Children's Aid Gives 143 Help

Service was given to 143 families by the Peterborough Children's Aid Society during February.

Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, in her report at the regular monthly meeting of the society's board of directors, said 490 children were included in this total of families.

Twenty-one of these families contacted the society during the month and five of these had received service at a previous time. The families were referred to the society by the police, clergy, relatives, neighbors, a doctor and a merchant.

Their problems include juvenile delinquency, poor housekeeping, marital problems, desertion by mother, inadequate supervision and non-support.

During the month society staff members made 454 visits and held 264 office interviews. Adoptions for five children were completed and three wards of another society were accepted for supervision when placed in this community. A temporary ward was made a permanent ward. Three children were moved from one foster home to another.

Four unmarried parents came to the society for service in February. All requested help in planning for their babies and two in getting financial assistance from the father of the children.

There were 51 hearings in family court of which 22 were in juvenile court.

High Divorce Rate

LONDON, March 19 (Reuters) —One in every six British marriages ends in divorce and nearly one in every six brides is pregnant on her wedding day, Joseph Brayshaw, general secretary of the National Marriage Guidance Council, said Tuesday. Speaking on the stability of marriage, he said the main reason for the increasing number of marriage failures is that equality between men and women has wrecked the old fashioned concept of marriage.

SOUTH AMERICAN WAY—Sao Paulo is one of the reasons why Canadian factories have orders for $45,000,000 worth of heavy equipment to meet Brazil's constantly growing need for electric power. In 1897, when Canadians got their first franchise to furnish power in Sao Paulo, the city had about 250,000 people. Today it has 2,250,000 and is called the "fastest growing city in the world."

40 Million Dollar Orders From Brazil

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

What does it mean to Canadians—this matter of a Canadian company being the major public utility in Brazil? And how did the company get there?

These seem pertinent questions to ask about Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Co., Ltd.

Well, for one thing, at the present time, the company has orders on hand in Canada for $40,000,000 worth of heavy capital equipment —generators, turbines, pumps, transformers, and so on.

This is in addition to the millions of dollars worth of capital goods from Canada already installed. For, if you walk around Traction's operations, you will see on its installations such names as Canadian General Electric, Canadian Westinghouse, Dominion Engineering, Dominion Bridge, Canadian Allis-Chalmers.

Other names are there, too. One that I noted on a large container was Horton Steel Works Ltd., of Fort Erie, Ont.

That all adds up to payrolls in Canada. And with the inevitable expansion racing Traction, heavy orders are likely to be placed for some years to come.

The amount of the orders does, however, reflect a considerable switch in buying from Europe and the United States, to Canada.

The orders have resulted, also, in adding to Canadian engineering knowledge. This is because heavier equipment is required than was previously made in Canada, to handle the Brazilian "heads" or drops of water.

These are much greater than in Canadian installations, except for those planned for the aluminum development at Kitimat, B. C.

On the whole it seems reasonable to think that money which Canadians put into Traction these days, stays in Canada to buy equipment.

In addition to Traction's orders for capital equipment, it places large orders for current operations and maintenance; including base metals, and 50,000 tons of coal a year from Nova Scotia.

These things represent the practical benefits which spread out to virtually all Canadians. For Canadian investors, Brazilian shares have usually been an attractive buy, and there seems to be no visible reason why they shouldn't continue that way.

Perhaps most valuable of all, in these days when we are trying to find new markets, Traction's operations are a valuable introduction for Canada in Brazil and in South America, especially if their effort is followed up.

Know Little of Canada

The sad fact is, however, that though there seems to be goodwill for Canada and Canadians in Brazil, Brazilians know all too little about us or our country.

Our party which visited Brazil recently was told that Canada should send there on visits more of her scientists, educationalists, lecturers. And probably we should extend ourselves a bit more to welcome South Americans when they visit Canada.

At present when Brazilian Universities or other bodies extend invitations to representative North Americans, the tendency is to send the invitations to the United States.

Among our advantages is the likelihood, that there is less distrust of Canada, than of a larger country. Among the difficulties is that of language. Canadians generally think of Spanish as the chief language of South America, but Brazilians comprise nearly half the population of that continent, and they speak Portuguese, which is said to be harder to learn than Spanish.

Romantic Story

As to the question of how a Canadian Company came to get to be entrenched in Brazil—that is a romance of industry all by itself. In brief:

In the 90s, a Brazilian, Dr. Americo de Campos, visited Francisco Gualcos, of Italian birth, then living in Montreal.

On the suggestion of De Campos Gualcos went to Brazil and in 1897 got a franchise for electrifying a mule-drawn tram system in Sao Paulo. He interested Dr. F. S. Pearson, an American engineer, who in turn interested William (later Sir William) Mackenzie, Canadian railroad builder, and other Canadians.

The result, in 1899, was the Sao Paulo Tramway, Light and Power Company. The first electric tram was run in Sao Paulo in 1900, and the first hydro-electric plant was in operation a year later.

About this time Alexander (later Sir Alexander) Mackenzie (no relation to Sir William), went to Sao Paulo as legal counsel to look things over. He stayed for 30 years. He played a big part in expansion of the company to areas outside Sao Paulo, including Rio de Janeiro. Brazilian Traction the holding company for the various operations, was formed in 1912.

Ask New Deal In Homes For Maids

MONTREAL (CP)—Employers tend to forget maids are human beings entitled to privacy and a social life of their own, says a Montreal employment agency official.

Mrs. Catherine Lessard, supervisors of women at the national placement office here, says no provision is made in many homes for a maid to entertain a boy friend—or even a girl friend.

The former economist for the Canadian General Electric Company says Montreal and other cities have thousands of girls willing to work as domestics, but they want and are entitled to a social life of their own and feel unable to have one when they have to spend 24 hours a day with their employers.

Girl domestics feel "left out," says Mrs. Lessard. They are not accepted into the family "circle" of their employer nor have they other ways of making friends.

The four main faults of domestic help, according to the girls, are overwork, underpay, poor living conditions, and social stigma. They say wages are not paid regularly or on time.

Rosy Picture

"Employers paint a beautiful picture of liberties they will give the girls, but too often it is an exaggerated picture," says Mrs. Lessard.

Some women are called "regular slave-drivers" by girls, who say that they are sometimes left weeks at a time with children and have to assume full responsibility for the house.

Average income for maids is $65 a month—but employers are often careless about paying, says the placement officer.

Another major complaint from girls working as maids is lack of food.

Industry has provided an eight-hour day, says Mrs. Lessard, and the housewife should be ready to do likewise. Until she does domestic help will not be hard to get because girls will not work a 72-hour week.

Skilful Musician Discovers Composing No Rosy Path

TORONTO—(CP)—A 26-year-old composer who has had at least one work played by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, drove a taxi last year because in Canada a composer of serious music "can't possibly live on what he writes."

Blonde Harry Somers is one of seven Canadians whose compositions will be performed here by the Toronto Symphony March 26. Sponsored by the Canadian League of Composers, the concert will be heard on a CBC network and around the world via a short-wave international service.

Mr. Somers began studying piano and theory at 14. After wartime service with the air force and army, he continued studying at the Royal Conservatory of Music with the help of Veterans Affairs Department grants.

In 1949 he won a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association scholarship awarded through the Canadian Foundation. This sent him to Paris for a year.

But "a Canadian composer entering the serious field must make up his mind he won't make a living at it," said Mr. Somers. "At least under existing conditions—he must find some other income and work at his music as much as possible."

"North Country", a work composed by Mr. Somers, has been performed by the Toronto Symphony. It was written in 1948 following a trip to northern Ontario.

At present the young composer is at work on a set of 12 fugues for piano, to be followed by a set of 12 preludes, then 12 one-movement sonatas. The complete work will take between two and four years.

THIS PRETTY TEEN-AGE DANCE DRESS is Marian Martin design 9264. It can be made up either long or short, with or without a blouse. The version shown is made for spring formels in aqua colored cotton and trimmed with rhinestone buttons.

The evening bag which is included in the pattern is made of the same fabric and embroidered with silver metallic thread. The embroidery stitch was done on a sewing machine without the use of attachments, and is one of nine new fashion stitches being demonstrated at local sewing centres.

To save time when hemming this attractively wide skirt, the blind stitch attachment was used.

Pattern comes in sizes 11 to 17. Send 35 cents to Marian Martin Department, Examiner, Peterborough.

THE VERY LONG EARRING favored by fashion for past seasons has been modified this year to a moderate "dangle." Photo above shows matching necklace and earrings in rhinestones of white and ruby red.

RHINESTONES and bright glittery pieces are definitely remaining with us this spring. A necklace earring set, above, features a twice-caught semi-pendant.

Wedding Fashions Point Up Dresses Of Ballet Length

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON—(CP)—With Easter just around the corner, Britain's spring brides are thinking of wedding finery—and finding it not too hard on the pocket.

One of this year's best buys is a ballet-length wedding dress that can also be worn as a short evening dress.

Such a number, in white muslin with eyelet embroidery, of hearts and hour-glass waist, costs just more than £14. A tiny, cap-sleeved bolero is removed to give a strapless evening gown, and long gloves replace the sleeves believed traditional for the purpose of saying "I do".

British fashion writers stress that these dresses, coupled with waist-length veils instead of the usual train—that can be so much trouble in the hands of page-boys and bridesmaids—give an up-to-date picture in keeping with modern times.

Fashion adviser Veronica Papworth writes in the Evening Star that the "classical" wedding dress favored by so many provincial brides "looks little different from a long-sleeved nightie."

In fact, if fashion advice and store prices have any influence, most British brides will be wearing ballet-length dresses this year.

Favored By Big Ten

These styles are also favored by London's big ten of fashion. Dream dress by Norman Hartnell, designer to the Queen and Queen Mother Elizabeth, consists of a hip-length bodice, completely covered in pearl and sequin embroidery, and a tremendous tulle skirt. The bodice, with high, boned Edwardian neckline and long, tight sleeves can later be worn as a honeymoon glamor-blouse with a classic black suit.

An important factor that will swing many brides in favor of shorter styles is the low cost of bridesmaids' dresses. Many pretty styles that will later give good service throughout the summer months cost well under £10.

One such number is in black-spotted yellow organza with Nell Gwynn neckline circling low on the shoulders. With Quaker lines to the button-front bodice and three - quarter - length, flower-girl sleeves, it makes a pretty picture with Victorian posy or tiny basket of flowers and costs under £5 with petticoat.

All brides, of course, do not wear white. One of the prettiest gowns worn recently was in shell-pink organza with bolero of pink velvet. The bride carried pink-tinted lilies. Flock-printed organza and flower-patterned muslin make inexpensive bridesmaid's dresses that look like a million dollars over two hooped petticoats.

Britain Plans New Index Cost-Of-Living

LONDON—(CP)—Britain's cost-of-living index, based on a pre-war pattern of family expenditures, has been scrapped by the Conservative government.

A revised, but temporary yardstick has been introduced.

The new index will be official until a permanent weighting formula can be devised. This will be done after a country-wide survey into the typical family budget, which statisticians estimate will take about two years.

Introduced in June, 1947, the interim retail prices index started at a figure of 100. It was based on a full-scale inquiry by the Ministry of Labor into working-class expenditure in 1937-38, when food and other commodities were cheaper.

The latest index figure released by the Ministry was 132. Critics of the old system contended the figure was based on an outmoded pattern of living and failed to reflect the true trend of prices.

Investigations by the technical committee, however, failed to bear this out. The committee reported that the old index through "fortuitous" factors had given a reasonably accurate picture of the average movement of retail prices since 1947.

The new weighting factors, based on 1950 consumption but at current prices, give slightly increased importance of food, rent and taxes, with a small downward adjustment in outlays for clothing, household durable goods, alcoholic drink and tobacco.

Auxiliary Holds St. Pat's Dance

HAVELOCK, March 19—(ENS)—A St. Patrick's party was held in the Legion hall on Monday evening sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Havelock and Belmont branch of Canadian Legion.

The party commenced with progressive euchre, 14 tables being played. Prize winners were Donald Post, Mrs. Alley, Mrs. M. Whitney. Prizes were donated for the euchre by Mrs. Harry Revoy, Mrs. Munroe and Mrs. Garnet Emery.

A cake decorated for St. Patrick's day was made and donated by Mrs. Harry Hubble, and was auctioned by Reeve E. J. Leeson, the sum of $14 being realized on the auction. It was won by Mrs. George Brooks.

After refreshments were served dancing followed with the music being supplied by R. Anderson, Jack Bannon and Mrs. Jack Green.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Curried Eggs With Rice On Special-Purpose Menu

Meatless but Mouth Watering

Curried Eggs with Rice
Chopped Spinach
Cubed Turnip in Parsley Sauce
Celery Hearts
Crackers and Cheese
Ambrosia Coffee

Directions

You know I'm your friend don't you? and when I tell you this is one for the files you find it extra-super? Here is a recipe for a simple thing like curried eggs that answers all your desires for a satisfying egg dish. Clip it and try it.

Curried Eggs With Rice

Hard cook 8 eggs in simmering water. Peel and slice 3 medium onions or 1 average-sized Bermuda onion. Cook in plenty of salted boiling water 1½ or 2 cups long-grain rice. Cook the onions without browning in 2 or 3 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle them with 1 tablespoon flour mixed with 1 tablespoon curry powder. Add 2 cups good chicken stock or 1 tin of chicken broth diluted with water to make 2 cups. Season with salt and pepper. Cook gently until the onions are tender, then add 1 cup hot thick cream or top milk and the eggs peeled and quartered. Heat well in top of double boiler. (Do not boil over direct heat.) When rice is tender drain it and rinse it with boiling water. Shape it into a ring on a hot platter, pour curry mixture in centre. Garnish with parsley and served with chutney this is an elegant and sophisticated dish.

The Turnip dish rates company too. Cube turnip in ⅜-inch cubes. Boil in salted water until tender. Drain. In top of double boiler melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour then 1 cup boiling water or vegetable liquid (not turnip water-it's too strong). Add ¼ or ½ cup chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and if available ½ teaspoon MSG. Add drained turnips and mix and heat through.

Ambrosia

There are many versions of this sunny dish—but they all call for fresh grated raw cocoanut and since they are coming on the market now it is an ideal time for this recipe. Be sure to have the cocoanut milk when you crack the cocoanut, and be sure to pare off all of the brown skin. Grate the cocoanut on a grater not a shredder.

(1) Simplest version is to pile sections of large oranges freed from membrane in stemmed glasses. Sprinkle with a little sugar, then pile with 2 or 3 tablespoons freshly shredded cocoanut. Chill.

(2) Mix drained canned crushed pineapple, half and half with fresh orange sections, freed of membrane, in stemmed glasses. Pile with cocoanut, and pour 2 to 3 tablespoons pineapple juice over. Chill.

(3) Use method for No. 2 but add sliced maraschino cherries and use cherry juice to pour over.

(4) Pineapple - Marshmallow Ambrosia: ¼ lb. marshmallows, 1 cup cream whipped, 1½ cups shredded pineapple or drained crushed canned pineapple, grated raw cocoanut. Cut each marshmallow with scissors dipped in hot water into quarters or eighths. Mix with pineapple and chill. Just before serving sprinkle dish with grated cocoanut and top with the whipped cream. If this is done in either a large serving dish or individual glasses a pretty garnish is a few carefully placed pieces of pineapple and slices of maraschino cherry.

DOROTHY DIX

Feelings Of Insecurity Lie Behind Constant Scrapping

DEAR MISS DIX: I am the mother of two children, a boy of 7 and a girl of 5. Individually, they are wonderful children. I can talk to them and really enjoy their company. Together, they are continually fighting and eager to tell on each other. I must remember to take turns kissing them good night, so one isn't kissed first two nights in a row. I love them both. My son is everything a mother could be proud of, honest, intelligent and good. My daughter is a beautiful child and very sweet. They're both friendly and have no trouble with other children. I am especially worried about the girl as she shows evidence of growing into a beautiful, intelligent woman and I want her to be well adjusted, with a good personality. Right now she is getting selfish and grasping, more eager to be shown love than to show her affection.

I am married for the second time, and the children are of my first marriage, yet they loved each other after I married my second husband so I can't put the blame on this situation.

MRS. GLADYS W.

ANSWER: You may be convinced that your second marriage has nothing to do with the children's sudden maladjustment, yet that is undoubtedly where the trouble lies. They are jealous, not so much of each other, as of their stepfather, but are evincing their feelings in the only way they know—scrapping with each other. Your tactics of scrupulous impartiality are to them almost an admission of shortcoming, as they see it, providing a ready weapon for them to use in self-defense.

You show fine discernment in realizing the responsibility of launching a beautiful girl in the world. All the beauty and intelligence in the world will do her no good if she has a selfish, demanding disposition.

Stress Group Work

Since both children are socially minded, and are at their best in group work, emphasize that part of their development as much as possible. Dancing, dramatics, sports—anything that will encourage them to get along with other children—will be good for them. However, stay on the sidelines as much as possible during their activity. Don't let them get the idea that you encourage an extra-curricular pastime just to have them out of the way.

At home, let them share—not monopolize—your time and attention in the family. Don't neglect them for your husband, or vice versa. They have a place within the home and must learn to keep within it, not take over the entire household. Since they are both intelligent, you should be able to talk to them and give them a sense of responsibility, too.

Your son should be aware of the fact that as the older brother he must look after his small sister. She must realize that her femininity entails obligations as well as privileges. She is growing out of babyhood, inform her, and must learn to be a gracious sister and daughter. Household duties on the glamorous side, such as fixing decorative dishes, arranging flowers, setting up for a party, are not beyond her age, and will give her a sense of importance to overbalance the inferiority she now feels.

It is only a feeling of inferiority that makes children demanding. The child who can give as well as take is the youngster who is sublimely secure.

DEAR MISS DIX: What can we do about a middle-aged woman who visits all over the neighborhood during the day, staying sometimes as long as two hours in one house? She interferes with our household duties and none of us can spare the time for several hours of small talk during the day.

MRS. G. L.

ANSWER: These visiting pests are hard to discourage, but one but one method I have known to be successful is to continue your work, whatever it is, while she's around. Simply say "Pardon me, but I must go ahead and bathe the baby," or do my ironing or scrub the floor, whatever the task at hand may be. If you want a really foolproof system for discouraging her, casually hand her a job to do, too. Ask her to help you move the furniture some day or some other job necessitating an assistant. You'll soon be free of her intrusions.

DEAR MISS DIX: Though I've been going with a boy 21 for quite a while, we haven't gone steady. I love him very much, but don't think he cares too much for me. A few months ago I found his lighter at the house after one of our dates. As I had nothing of his as a keepsake, I decided to retain the lighter. When he asked for it, I refused to give it back. The other night we had a big argument about it. Should I call him up and offer to return it? I don't think he'll ask me for it again.

ANSWER: You were very wrong to keep such a valuable item as a memento. A lighter is an expensive item, and when a man is used to a particular one it is quite important to him. You'll have to do a lot of pride-swallowing, Norma, but you should call the boy up (or write to him), apologize, and send the lighter back. If he wants to resume your friendship after that, let the next move be from him. All you can do after the lighter is taken care of, is wait.

Roseneath W.A. Show Aprons At Meeting

ROSENEATH, March 19 (ENS)—A large display of aprons and a quilting bee was shown at the March meeting of Centenary W.A.

The numerous aprons on display, were made by the members during the past month. Mrs. Ernest Burrison is convener of the apron committee of the society and at the conclusion of the meeting many aprons were sold.

The meeting was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Neil Sherwin.

The second vice-president Mrs. Silas Sherwin presided, owing to the absence of the secretary, Miss Emma Sherwin, who is ill in a Toronto hospital. Mrs. Ernest Burrison was appointed secretary pro-tem.

A fancy crib quilt was on display made by Mrs. Silas Sherwin and donated to the society. Two pairs of fancy pillow cases were also donated by members.

The society also has a travelling apron on the rounds as a means of raising funds.

A television program was planned to be held on Tuesday evening in Woodvale School.

Assisted by a committee, the hostess served lunch.

What's Right?

You would like to ask a married man to be an usher at your wedding.

WRONG: Feel that you cannot unless the bride asks his wife to be one of her attendants.

RIGHT: Feel perfectly free to ask him. The only thing you have to do about his wife is to be sure that she is invited to the wedding and reception.

Hastings Auxiliary Packs Parcel For U.K.

HASTINGS, March 19 (ENS)—The Evening Auxiliary was entertained by Mrs. J. G. Thompson at its March meeting. The president, Mrs. R. Burnham, opened the meeting and spoke on Means of Grace.

Mrs. E. Hess was convener for the worship and study book and was assisted by Mrs. L. Humphries, Mrs. Len Metcalfe, and Miss Jessie Lamb.

Reports of the various secretaries were heard. It was decided to invite the Rev. W. H. Tonge of Lakefield to come and speak in May and to invite the auxiliaries from Norwood, Westwood and Roseneath.

The ladies decided to pack a parcel for Britain, so it would be there for Easter. Mrs. Clifford Scriver invited the auxiliary to her home for the April meeting, the committee in charge to be Miss Marjorie Scriver, Miss J. Lamb, Mrs. F. Halbus, and Mrs. Cecil Oliver. The hostess assisted by the committee in charge served refreshments.

Canadian Girl Lauded In Stage Role

LONDON, March 19 (CP). — British theatre critics agreed today that "The Same Sky," a play about a mixed marriage with Canadian actress Frances Hyland in the leading role, fully deserved its transfer to the West End.

The Times called Miss Hyland's performance "excellent" and the Daily Mail and Daily Herald also praised her portrayal of the Jewish girl in love with a Gentile soldier.

Miss Hyland, 24, is a native of Shaunavon, Sask., who grew up in Regina. She made her West End debut in June, 1950, as Stella in the London production of "A Streetcar Named Desire," making the jump from drama school into a leading West End role.

Impressive Debut

A Daily Express critic called her debut "extraordinarily impressive" and predicted a bright future for the Canadian actress.

As a girl in Regina, Miss Hyland dreamed of stardom on the stage after reading John Gielgud's biography, "Early Stages." Her childhood dream came true recently when she played with Gielgud in Shakespeare's "A Winter's Tale."

She dyed her fair hair black to play in "The Same Sky" and said her biggest trouble was in cultivating an authentic Jewish accent. The play, which has been appearing at the Lyric Theatre in suburban Hammersmith, moved to a West End theatre Tuesday night.

Urge Canada's Provinces Take More Interest In Ducks

MIAMI, Fla., March 19 — (CP) Increased participation by Canada's provinces in protection and management of ducks and geese was advocated today by the chief of the Canadian Wildlife Service.

Harrison F. Lewis made the suggestion in an address prepared for delivery to the 17th North American Wildlife Conference.

He said the existing major lines of waterfowl management in Canada are considered sound.

Most provinces had their own legislation for conservation of waterfowl. Some provincial game departments and some Canadian Universities sponsored waterfowl research but still greater participation by the provinces was one of the "desirable features of expansion" of waterfowl management in Canada.

He added that "it would be a distinct advance" if sportsmen's organization would also take a hand in waterfowl research work, now largely carried on by the Wildlife Management Institute through its stations at Delta, Man., and Fredericton, N. B.

Discussing Canada's means of looking after ducks and geese while they are in the country, Lewis said sampling is done in strategic areas, principally in the Maritimes, Southern Quebec, Manitoba and Southwestern British Columbia. It was not possible to cover the whole country in gathering field data relating to hunters and hunting pressure, to total kill, to sex ratios and to banded birds so that this sampling system was necessary.

Arbitration Started On Two T.T.C. Points

TORONTO, March 19 — (CP)— Arbitration of two points left unsettled when Toronto Transportation Commission employees ended a 19-day strike last January started today with Leonard W. Brockington as arbitrator.

He will rule on wages and cost-of-living formula and his decisions will be binding on the T.T.C. and its 4,760 employees, members of the Street Railway Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.)

At the time of settlement, the employees were granted a five-cent increase to $1.45 an hour. Maximum raise the arbitrator may grant is $1.55 which the employees had previously demanded.

The meetings are expected to last several days. Mr. Brockington, president of Odeon Theatres (Canada) Limited, has acted as mediator in several labor disputes.

Arena Makes Money

SUDBURY, March 19 —(CP)— Sudbury's new $1,500,000 arena is proving to be a profit-maker in less than three months' operation.

An audited report to city council last night showed a net revenue of $16,355 from November 21 to January 31. Receipts during the period were $74,431, mostly from hockey.

The quake was sharp in Seoul. It was felt at the United Nations command advance headquarters at Munsan. It rocked the press train there slightly. The quake rattled china and set hanging lights swinging.

Bigger Demand For Entries Music Festival

A record number of requests for Peterborough Music Competition Festival entry forms has been received by the festival committee this year.

To date approximately 1,600 entry forms have been sent out in Peterborough and to Toronto and Kingston and communities between these two points. In 1951 the total number of entry forms sent out were 1,100.

Tuesday was the record breaking day with requests asking for 100 entry forms. Included in this group were requests for 20 entry forms from Bowmanville and 35 from Lindsay.

The festival committee, using these requests as a gauge, have estimated that there will be 1,000 entries in the festival this year. This will be an increase of approximately 358 over the number of entries in the 1951 festival.

"Our biggest problem now is to get entries in before the deadline date, March 30," Wilson Gemmel, chairman of the festival committee said today. "We have a limited time to prepare the festival program and when the entry forms do not arrive until the deadline, it makes this time limit job almost impossible."

Mr. Gemmel also explained that the committee had decided to charge no admittance to morning and afternoon sessions of the festival this year. All children accompanied by their parents at the evening sessions will also be admitted free.

"This is our contribution to encouraging the people of the city to attend the sessions, so that they may hear the competitions and the adjudicator's remarks," he said.

The committee has planned a discussion meeting for teachers with students participating in the festival with the adjudicators. It is expected that this meeting will take place May 14.

Play's Debut Drags Critic Reports

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP).—The trouble and sacrifices of a displaced family trying to escape from the prisons of European totalitarian states is dramatically portrayed in George Tabori's new play, "Flight Into Egypt," which producer Irene Mayer Selznick presented at the Music Box Theatre Tuesday night.

Yet, despite the audience's sympathies with the characters and their fight for freedom, and despite an excellent cast of players, the drama drags and frequently becomes monotonous.

The Engel family—father, mother and young son, Bubi—have had their home and place of business wrecked by Communists in their native Vienna. They have escaped, with little money, and made their perilous way to Cairo, where they hope to get visas to the United States.

Mrs. Engel is carrying on the negotiations for the visa because her husband is a hopeless cripple with a bullet wound in the spine from a Buchenwald prison guard's gun.

Happiness Shortlived

The visas arrive, but the Engels' happiness is shortlived because a doctor from the American consulate discovers that Mrs. Engel has concealed her husband's condition. As a permanent cripple, he might become a public charge in the United States.

In the meantime, to get needed money, Mrs. Engel has a love affair with her husband's doctor.

The doctor, in turn, not only informs Engel of his wife's unfaithfulness, but supplies him with a vial of poison as the only solution to their problems and to clear the way for Mrs. Engel and her child to come on to America.

Paul Lukas is excellent in the tortured role of the crippled Franz Engel. Gusti Huber, a Viennese actress who is making her American stage debut in this play, is tragically beautiful in the role of Mrs. Engel. Elia Kazen has staged the play with skill.

Ocean Boils Above Volcano

MANILLA, March 19—(AP)—A submarine volcano, coming to life after a 90-year sleep, pushed a moving mass of volcanic rock 250 feet above the surface of the Pacific Ocean Tuesday.

The turbulent pile of rocks encompassed an area of at least five acres. For 15 acres around it the ocean boiled and bubbled like a witch's brew.

A 10,000-foot column of smoke and sulphurous steam towered. Huge block boulders, some of them five stories high, were tumbled about.

Off to one side of the growing, crater-shaped island, 315 miles north of Manila, a needle-pointed black rock stuck up starkly. The rock and the island both appeared to be surrounded by breaking surf. But as a C-47 plane piloted by Maj. Gen. Ernest (Mickey) Moore circled to within 200 feet of the surface it became apparent the white sea was the ocean boiling from contact with the hot rocks.

The new volcano island is appearing at almost the identical spot where almost a century ago undersea eruption created didicas rocks and pushed them 700 feet above the surface. That eruption lasted four years.

No-Hitter Game Bad Luck Blackwell Says

TAMPA, Fla., March 19 (AP)—Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell, one of the three active National League pitchers who have hurled no-hit, no-run games, hopes he never pitches another—so help him Hannah.

The lean, lanky, Cincinnati righthander, who astounded the baseball world by reeling off 16 consecutive triumphs in 1947, blames all the bad luck that followed on the no-hitter he turned in that year.

After racking up 22 victories in '47, Blackie suffered arm trouble in '48 and his victory total dropped to seven. He underwent a kidney operation the following year and was able to win only five games.

Although Blackwell came back strong, winning 33 games during the next two seasons, he couldn't quite hit the 20 victory mark again.

No No-hitters

"No more no-hitters for me if I can help it," moaned Blackie. "Call it superstition, if you like. But facts are facts. For 26 years I never had the slightest trouble with my kidneys. Then I pitch the no-hitterd and that darn thing nearly kills me.

"If you don't think no-hitters bring nothing but grief, look at what happened to the other pitchers who have turned in hitless games in the last few years. Look what happened to poor Rex Barney. He's out of the league now and he's still a young fellow. Don Black was almost killed by a pitched ball and had to quit baseball. Bill McCahan, Dick Fowler and Ed Head came up with sore arms.

"The only fellows who haven't suffered after pitching a no-hitter were Bob Feller and Bob Lemon. Allie Reynolds pitched two of 'em last season. Let's see what he does in '52."

Adds Another

Teddy Gardner, 30-year-old pub owner at West Hartlepool, England, who added the British and British Empire flyweight crowns to his European title on Monday night, now wants a crack at world champion Dado Marino, he said Tuesday. Gardner outpointed former world champion Terry Allen in 15 rounds Monday night.

H. Hunt Rolls High

H. Hunt hit a high single of 317 and D. Martin top three of 739 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League at Duffus'. Curtin's topped teams with 3,006 pinnage while Black's led in single games with 1,101. The blind score of 432 went to E. Thompson with 428. Curtin's blanked Cardinals, Marines took three from Sevenaires, and 2-1 victories went to Bassel's over Aces. Arcos against Black's, and Collis over Dickson's.

The annual league banquet will be at the Peterborough Golf Club on April 28.

Good singles included: H. Menzies 314, D. Martin 295, M. Thompson 281, M. Morton 270, G. Milliken 269, J. Moore 262, L. Vincent 257 and 255, D. Mason 251 and E. Herrington 250; neat triples were: H. Hunt 709, L. Vincent 682, J. Moo[illegible] 655, F. Kokesh 652, H. Menzies 650 and D. Mason 645.

Hockey Fans Hon or Kraut Line Three Players Re ceive Many Gifts

BOSTON, March 19 (AP). — Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and little Bobby Bauer—Boston Bruins' great Kraut line reunited for the first time since 1947—were honored Tuesday night by 12,658 fans.

In ceremonies prior to the Bruins-Chicago Black Hawks game designated as "Schmidt-Dumart night," the trio received gifts from the fans, players, hockey writers and broadcasters, Garden management and Garden employees.

Schmidt and Dumart each were presented with substantial cheques from their thousands of rooters.

The famed line figured in all four goals the Bruins scored to clinch a playoff berth by beating the Black Hawks 4-0.

The trio first played together in 1936 and became known as the Kraut line, one of the National Hockey League's most famous forward lines. Bauer, who retired in 1947, rejoined his former teammates for Tuesday night's game.

Tremendous Ovation

Schmidt received a tremendous ovation from the crowd—second largest here this season—as he notched his double-century goal.

Tallies by Schmidt and Bauer brought the Kraut lines total goals to 525. Schmidt has 200, Dumart 202 and Bauer 123.

Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, presented each of the trio silver watches for their outstanding service to hockey.

Walter A. Brown, Bruins' president, presented sterling silver services to Schmidt and Dumart.

Schmidt and Dumart received inscribed silver trays and Bauer a silver pitcher from Tom Fitzgerald of the Boston Globe for the hockey writers and sportscasters.

The Garden Ushers' Association gave bicycles to Nancy and Milt Schmidt, Jr., and Bruce Dumart.

Among other gifts received by the trio were movie cameras, trans-oceanic portable radios, golf shoes, raincoats, sterling silver fruit bowls, wool shirts, felt hats, golf jackets, six months supply of ice cream, cigarette lighter sets, cases of peanut butter and soap, and electric juke boxes each with 120 records.

Y-Knots And Normals Take Cage Decisions

Y-Jacks, the only opposition in the Y.M.C.A. basketball house league for Y-Knots, fell to the Y-Knots 53-44 Tuesday night. In the first game of the weekly doubleheader the Normal school boys quintet handed Penguins a 28-20 setback.

Spreading the scoring to Batchelor, Butcher, Stewart, Jamieson and Fowler, the Y-Knots grabbed an 11-6 lead in the first quarter. They continued to press the Jacks in the second quarter and held a 26-15 score at halftime.

In the third quarter, the Jacks came to life with Spragge and Flowers counting 13 of the team's 14 in the quarter. But the Knots matched that effort with 15 points.

The Y-Jacks, with Thompson and Spragge leading the way, rallied in the fourth quarter but fell short.

Bill Stewart for Y-Knots topped the scoring with 17 points, followed closely by the Y-Jacks' Spragge with 15.

Finished Strong

A strong fourth quarter gave Normals the nod over Penguins in the first game. Before that the score was fairly close.

Laundry, Hulsman and McMartin sank 10 points for the Normal in the first quarter as they took a three-point lead. Although Penguins played on even terms with the Normal quintet in the second quarter, the latter led 16-13 at the half.

In a low-scoring third quarter, Normals still held their slim lead as they outscored Penguins 5-4. Practically all the Normal quintet took part in the fourth's scoring as they wrapped the game up with 12 points. Normals' Laundry was leading scorer with 12 points. Lineups:

First game, Normals (28) — Laundry 12, Hulsman 7, Roblin 1, McMartin 6, Radnor 2, Rikley.

Penguins (20)—Outram, Bogue 6, Motta 3, Hurrle 2, English 2, Canning 7.

Second game, Y-Jacks (44) — Huntley 5, Spragge 15, Whithard 4, Thompson 11, Payne 3, Flowers 6.

Y-Knots (53)—Batchelor 8, Butcher 11, Stewart 17, Jamieson 7, Fowler 8, Harwood 2.

Marmora Holds A 2-1 Edge Over Havelock

MARMORA, March 19 (ENS)—Marmora's T.V.L. team is one up in its semi-final games with Havelock by virtue of an 8-5 victory on its own ice on Tuesday evening. Play was fast throughout on what might be termed fair ice. Halfway through the third period, Hamilton received a match misconduct for molesting a referee. Play was halted for a short time in the first period as Mrs. Percy Gray, wife of Major Gray, received a cut on the forehead as the puck struck her, necessitating six stitches to close the wound.

For the winners, Jones and Stewart were most successful, the former scoring three goals, one unassisted, and the other two on Stewart's assists. Stewart's two counters came on Mantle's assists. Havelock's goals were divided amongst their players for whom Hamilton, Willshaw, Caravaggio, McIndoe, and Berardi stood out. Both goalies turned in good games with Killian having a little edge over his rival. The fourth game will be played in Havelock on Friday evening. More than 900 witnessed this third game of the series.

Prior to the start of the game, President Art Duncan of the Trent Valley League presented the William Goodfellow Trophy to Capt. K. Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Joey Stelmach, who last year played shortstop for the Central Ontario Baseball League champions, Brockville Memos, has been signed by St. Thomas for its 1952 Intercounty League schedule.

St. Thomas manager Andy Hershock, who piloted the Brockville club in 1951, made the announcement Tuesday. Stelmach served with the United States Marines in the Pacific theatre during the Second World War and played semi-pro ball in his native Chicago before going into the Marines.

As lead-off man with Brockville last year he batted .312 and was a defensive star all season.

Dates of venue of four top cycling events were announced Tuesday by the Canadian Wheelmen's Association. They are: the Olympic trials May 3 at Victoriaville, Que.; the 50-mile Canadian race at Montreal Sept. 14; the Canadian track racing championships at Winnipeg, July 31 and Aug. 1 and the Canadian open 150-mile road race Aug. 4 from Winnipeg to Kenora.

Sammy Snead stroked a steady two-under-par 70 Tuesday to grab the first-round lead in the 36-hole $10,000 Seminole pro-amateur golf tournament at Palm Beach, Fla. Tied for second in the field of 52 pros were Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., Henry Picard of Cleveland, John Palmer of Badin, S. C., and Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex. All had 71s.

Ria and Paul Falk, Germany's world and Olympic pairs figure skating champions, will leave by air Friday for the United States and Canada where they will give exhibitions. A tentative schedule calls for them to appear in St. Catharines April 24-26.

Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League overwhelmed Chatham Maroons of the International Hockey League 10-2 in an exhibition game Tuesday night at Chatham. A capacity crowd of 2,860 turned out for the game staged in recognition of Rosy Stoddart, a former Red Wing who now is owner and manager of the Maroons.

Hy Buller, rookie defenceman with New York Rangers, yesterday was unanimously chosen the National Hockey League club's most valuable player by the New York Hockey Writers' Association. He is the first rookie to win the award.

The New York State Athletic Commission Tuesday returned a $4,611 purse to welterweight Lester Felton of Detroit and said it found "no evidence of collusion" in his poor fight with Johnny Saxton last Friday night at Madison Square Garden. Bob Christenberry, commission chairman, said: "The boy just didn't have it."

The British Boxing Board of Control Tuesday told Bruce Woodcock to forget about a boxing comeback. Woodcock retired in November, 1950, when he lost his British heavyweight title on a knockout to Jack Gardener. He had asked for a licence to resume boxing.

It was a thrilling game from start to finish with both teams playing fast, clean hockey and only three penalties being handed out, two of which went to the visitors. Warsaw was leading by a score of 5-3 in the first period. Warsaw's goal-getters were T. Birch two, M. Tedford, M. Simpson and S. Lonsberry each one, assists going to V. Clements, Patterson, L. The Norwood boys played good combination, with outstanding performances by Rock Batley in the net, having a shut out in the second and third periods. Moon Wootton also played good hockey coming up from defence to take a turn on the forward line.

Examiner readers who have interested themselves in the plight of Fred Brant will be delighted to know that concern for his case has been shown by Flash, a Toronto weekly paper. This publication devotes itself to an intimate style of journalism in which very few Canadian newspapers attempt to rival it, and Flash has dealt with Fred Brant's story in the warm and vivid style which is its hallmark.

On Wednesday the editor of Flash telephoned the editor of The Examiner, apparently disturbed by a rumour that his paper was to be, in his expression, "banned" in Peterborough. The Examiner editor attempted to dispell his anxiety, for there is no power which can thus "ban" a publication.

Following this conversation, the editor of Flash, still apparently much disturbed, sent the following telegram to the editor of The Examiner:

Gov't Act Ruled Invalid Malan Refuses To Heed

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 20.—(Reuters) Prime Minister Daniel Malan said today he could not accept the constitutional position created by a supreme court judgment which dealt a blow at his racial-segregation policy. He made the announcement in the House of Assembly after five judges of the appellate division of the Supreme Court, South Africa's highest court, ruled invalid the government's act placing colored (mixed-race) voters on separate electorate lists.

Before speaking, Malan called the Cabinet to discuss the position which brings to a head one of the most important constitutional issues South Africa has ever faced.

Opposition leader Jacobus Strauss demanded that the government should resign on the court's ruling.

Strauss said the government's "immoral acts, now also proved to have been illegal," have already had serious and lasting consequences—"the faith of non-whites in the leadership and justice of the white man suffered a severe shock."

Won't Asquiesce

Malan told the house that "neither parliament nor the people of South Africa will be prepared to acquiesce in a position where the legislative sovereignty of the lawfully and democratically elected representatives of the people is denied."

He said the court's ruling also reversed a previous supreme court ruling in 1937, creating "uncertainty and chaos" on a constitutional issue of the greatest importance.

In view of the "intolerable" situation created by the ruling, said the Premier, "the government would be grossly neglecting its duty. . . if steps are not taken to put an end to this confusing and dangerous situation."

The government, he said, "will take the necessary steps to do its duty."

Malan's separate representation act removed the male colored voters in Cape Province from the common electoral roll and provided they should vote only for special members of the House of Assembly. Colored women do not have the vote. The Act was passed last year, affecting South Africa's 40,000 colored voters.

Temperature Above Average For Spring

TORONTO, March 20 (CP).—The temperature rose to 10 degrees above the average as spring arrived here today. The weatherman said it will probably be warmer Friday. Temperature was 43 degrees.

Throughout Ontario, spring was ushered in at 11:14 a.m. amid generally cloudy skies. Sunshine was expected Friday.

Weather officials said spring came a day early this year because of the extra leap year day in February.

Basket Factory Razed By Fire

GRIMSBY, March 20 (CP) — A fruit basket factory was destroyed by fire today with loss estimated at $250,000.

The Farrell basket factory, employing more than 60 men and women, was a branch of Canadian Wood Products Limited. Its capacity was between 15,000 and 16,000 baskets a day, most of which went to fruit growers in the neighboring Niagara peninsula.

At least 400,000 finished baskets were destroyed.

Occupants of four nearby homes left their dwellings when it was feared the fire might spread. They were Mr. and Mrs. Merle Martin, whose home was scorched; Mrs. Helen Teske and son, Peter; Mr. and Mrs. Grant Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lambert and children.

Furniture removed from the threatened homes was piled along the street for half a block.

When the fire was at its height, flames shot 100 feet in the air and the downtown area of this town 12 miles east of Hamilton was showered with sparks.

Last Year In Ontario One Of Extraordinary Progress

TORONTO, March 20 (CP)—The last year in Ontario has been "one of extraordinary growth and progress," Premier Frost told the Ontario Legislature today in his budget speech.

In a glowing picture of the province's economic health, the premier said that in 1951 Ontario's total production increased about 17 per cent in value and six per cent in volume to a total of $8,700,000,000.

Personal income increased $1,000,000,000 over 1950, labor's share in the increase was approximately $600,000,000 and the farmers' share $116,000,000.

But one of the "outstanding characteristics" of the post-war economy was public and private investment, which increased 22 per cent in 1951. Approximately 21 cents of every dollar spent in Ontario went for industrial expansion, housing and other assets.

"There is no better evidence of the vigor of Ontario's industry and faith in the future of the province than this investment in the capital assets of the province —$7,700,000,000 since 1944," the premier said.

Export industries were " in almost all lines operating under forced draft. Consumption of electrical energy increased 16 per cent during the year.

The province set a record population gain of about 160,000 and the working force increased 58,000 to nearly 1,900,000.

"The capacity of Ontario industry to produce is rising," Mr. Frost said. "This means that we are to an increasing extent enjoying the fruits of our past capital investment in the expansion and modernization of our industrial plant and machinery.' '

Truman Calls Wilson For Parley

Chairman Collapses After All-Night Steel Strike Session

WASHINGTON, March 20. (AP) — President Truman summoned defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson to Key West, Fla., today to discuss the steel wage dispute, after wage-board deliberations were halted by the physical collapse of the board chairman.

Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, who has been working night and day in an effort to avert a strike set for midnight, Sunday, keeled over about 6:30 a.m. EST.

A doctor said Feinsinger collapsed from fatigue, and the board recessed until 2 p.m. The unexpected delay posed a serious problem, in view of the imminence of the strike deadline.

Wilson's office told a reporter there was a "good chance" that the defence mobilization chief would fly to Key West late this afternoon.

Andrew Berding, Wilson's public relations chief, said Wilson had been called by President Truman to go over all the issues bearing on the threatened strike by 650,000 men of the United Steel Workers' Union (C.I.O.).

Informal Session

Philip Murray, union chief and president of the C.I.O., met this morning with his 36-man executive board in what Murray described as a purely informal session.

Murray's 170-man wage policy committee was here for a scheduled afternoon meeting to act on a request to postpone the threatened strike at least until April 8.

Neither industry nor labor members could agree during an all night meeting to a public member proposal straddling the problem.

The deadlock threatened to upset the W.S.B.'s time schedule designed to deliver a "package" solution

Reach Terms On 10 Ports

MUNSAN, Forea, March 20—(AP)—Negotiators cleared away a road-block to a Korean armistice today by agreeing on 10 ports of entry through which troops and supplies will move during a truce.

Three major issues remain to be settled: Communist nomination of Soviet Russia to a neutral inspection commission; allied demand for a ban on military airfield construction, and the U.N. request for voluntary repatriation of war prisoners.

Staff officers wrangling over prisoner exchange made no apparent headway toward breaking the repatriation deadlock. The Communists answered seven questions asked by the U.N. command Monday. But allied negotiators said the replies failed to show how the Reds' latest exchange plan could end the stalemate.

Col. Andrew J. Kinney said it probably would take a day or two to iron out "mechanical details" on the ports of entry agreement.

Protocol Takes Back Seat To Hitch-Hiking As Pearson Stranded In Snowstorm

KINGSTON, March 20 (CP). — Diplomatic protocol took a back seat to hitch-hiking Wednesday.

External Affairs Minister Pearson and W. J. Henderson, Liberal member of Parliament for Kingston, were due here, where Mr. Pearson was to address two gatherings. A snowstorm cancelled a scheduled plane trip from Ottawa and the two set out in Mr. Henderson's automobile.

Near Seeley's Bay, 22 miles north of here, the car broke down.

In ankle-deep slush, the minister stood with his thumb up. Robert Donnelly, nearby Westport garage operator, came to the rescue.

Mr. Pearson squeezed into the back seat piled with automobile parts. Mr. Henderson joined the driver. They arrived in time.

In his speech he said Canadians must see through to completion the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's present military effort.

Abbott Estimates Ask For $4,335,796,809, Biggest Peacetime Total

OTTAWA, March 20. (CP)—Federal government expenditures may reach the unprecedented peacetime total of $5,000,000,000. Finance Minister Abbott Wednesday tabled in the Commons the annual estimates of expenditures for government departments. They totalled $4,335,796,809—up 16 per cent from last year—but he said they will be increased later. Defence estimates of $2,106,000,000, including $324,000,000 in mutual aid to Atlantic-Pact allies, accounted for almost half of the proposed expenditures.

However, it was a small—$500,000—item in the estimates of the Transport Department which possibly more than any other stressed the uneasiness of the international situation.

Government officials said the money will be used to start equipping all Canadian deep-sea and coastal ships to combat underwater mines and to carry defensive guns.

Approximately 150 vessels will be rigged with wartime "degaussing" gear against magnetic mines and strengthened to carry gun platforms, at the expense of the federal treasury.

Officials said it has been decided to adopt the defensive measures for all Canadian vessels in the coastal and deep-sea trades, largely to get the jump on an enemy making a sneak magnetic-mine attack such as hit allied merchant ships hard during the Second World War.

Named After Inventor

The degaussing gear—named after the inventor, Degausse—consists of cables running around the outside of a ship's hull and neutralizing the steel hull's magnetism that would normally touch off a magnetic mine close to it.

Mr. Abbott said the 1952-53 estimates of $4,335,796,809 are not strictly comparable with estimates of $3,730,587,837 for the current year ending March 31.

Find Reason For Cycles

ITHACA, N. Y., March 20 (AP) —A mathematical reason for cycles has been found at Cornell University and it shows how figures can fool us.

Scientists found that numbers, chosen by pure chance, have cycles of their own—meaning highs and lows—like the cycles in the stock market, sunspots, animal and tree growth cycles.

Cycles have puzzled scientists because no matter at what activity they looked—human, animal, vegetable or nature herself — everything seems to run in cycles. Once every so often there is apt to be a repeat of something that happened before.

Dr. Lamont C. Cole, associate professor of zoology, looked to see whether numbers themselves might show cycles. Acting on a suggestion published by Dr. Pontus Palmren, of the University of Helsingfors, Finland, he used numbers from 0 to 9999.

These numbers were set down in series, each number chosen by chance. The series was scanned for highs and lows. A high was a larger number appearing between two lower numbers. A low was a middle number smaller than those on each side.

Result: there were definitely cycles. The highs appeared at the rate of once in each three sets of numbers. So did the lows.

Both the peaks and lows appeared about as often as they show in studies of other cycles.

These random numbers were amazingly similar to nine famous cycles which have been attributed to sunspots. These are growth of Douglas fir trees, hemlock trees, English partridges and six species of animals.

Trade Balance Favors Canada

OTTAWA, March 20 (CP). — For the fifth month in a row, Canada reported a favorable balance of trade in January, with exports exceeding imports by $21,000,000.

Exports—excluding gold—during the month gained both in volume and value to hit a record $323,700,000. Imports were down six per cent from the high January, 1951, value, at $307,100,000.

The Bureau of Statistics reported that the prices of exports advanced 7.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, while the volume increased 5.5 per cent. In contrast, import prices were slightly lower than a year earlier, with the volume down 6.3 per cent.

Trade with the United States produced an import surplus of $37,600,000 in January, compared with $43,000,000 a year earlier. There was an export balance of $19,300,000 in trade with the United Kingdom, with imports at $24,300,000 and exports at $43,300,000. This balance was three times as large as last year's corresponding total of $6,200,000.

Ike May Change Mind About Nomination

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Powers Europe, March 20—(AP)—General Eisenhower said today "the mounting numbers of my fellow-citizens who are voting to make me the Republican nominee" for president may cause him to change his mind about refusing actively to seek the nomination.

He issued a short informal statement at his headquarters in response to requests by reporters for comment on the Minnesota primary election Tuesday, in which more than 100,000 voters wrote in his name in the Republican preferential primary.

The statement said:

"The mounting numbers of my fellow citizens who are voting to make me the Republican nominee are forcing me to re-examine my personal position and past decision."

Eisenhower issued his statement a few hours after two developments—Senator Robert A. Taft withdrew from the New Jersey preferential primary, and President Truman said Eisenhower is at liberty to return home any time the General deems it safe and proper.

Labor Party Rebels Protest New Curbs

LONDON, March 20 (Reuters) —The Labor Party's left-wing rebels today protested at moves to make them toe the party line.

Less than 24 hours after the parliamentary Labor Party agreed to re-impose its standing orders to make rebels accept party discipline, the pro-Bevanite weekly Tribune launched an attack on the Labor leaders.

Edited by Jennie Lee, wife of left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan, The Tribune declared: "The most deadly potential enemy of the Labor Party at this stage in its history is intolerance."

Differences of opinion in the party could "never be resolved by mechanical disciplines," The Review's main editorial said.

Montreal Girl Murdered Officer Says

"New Evidence" Presented To Jury In Florida

KEY WEST, Fla., March 20. (CP)—Deputy Sheriff James O. Barker said today he believes that Mrs. Huguette Lemay, missing Montreal beauty, "was the victim of an act of violence."

Barker presented "new evidence" to a Monroe county grand jury investigating the case of the 21-year-old blonde who vanished while fishing with her husband in the Florida Keys Jan. 4.

He was the first of several witnesses to appear before the jury, whose proceedings are held in camera.

"I can't reveal what we've discovered at this stage," Barker said when he came out of the jury room.

"But you can quote me as saying what I've said several times before that it is my opinion Mrs. Lemay is dead and that she was the victim of an act of violence."

Barker, who has headed the investigation, said Frank P. Weber, former Monroe county chief deputy sheriff would be among the witnesses testifying at the afternoon session.

Others scheduled to testify include Dr. Rolphe Perron of Valleyfield, Quebec, and Alfred Quenneville, retired chief of the Quebec provincial police, in the area for the last 10 days working on the case.

Barker had "no comment" today on a report that a bloodstained robe found under a bridge on the Tamaimi Trail might be introduced as evidence that Mrs. Lemay was murdered.

Kingston Board Blacklisted

KINGSTON, March 20 (CP).—Blacklisting of the Kingston Board of Education by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation was revealed today. It arises from a stalemate in salary negotiations in which the Federation has been acting for teachers of Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

The teachers' decision was reported to the board meeting in committee of the whole Wednesday night when a letter was read from S. G. B. Robinson, general secretary of the Federation, and in a bulletin being sent to all Federation members.

The bulletin says the board's final offer in salary negotiations ($200 across the board, which went into effect Jan. 1) is unsatisfactory to the Federation and to the K.C.V.I. teachers who asked for $500.

Walkout At G.E.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 20 —(AP).—Operations at the General Electric Company plant here were crippled today by the walkout of about 200 crane operators seeking a 25-cent-an-hour pay boost. The plant employs 12,000 persons. Arthur La Blue, local president of the International Union of Electrical Workers (C.I.O.), estimated the plant would be deprived of up to 90 per cent of its working force.

Judge Asks Investigation Currie Barracks Discipline

CALGARY, March 20 (CP) — Mr. Justice C. C. McLaurin Wednesday called for a "rigorous investigation" by the defence department into discipline at the Army's Currie barracks here.

He made the request after imposing jail terms on three soldiers convicted of assaulting a woman at the barracks. He said discipline at the barracks the night of the offence was "virtually non-existent."

Ptes. James R. Quinn, Francis Primeau and Raymond Madere of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps were sentenced each to two years less one day at hard labor. The trial judge reduced the charges from rape and indecent assault.

Police witnesses said the huts in which the assault occurred were strewn with the woman's clothing and liquor bottles. They said the general condition of the buildings was "filthy."

Evidence revealed the woman was brought to the barracks by Quinn and taken to a hut where she was attacked by the three men. She testified she was later taken to another hut and assaulted by other soldiers. Pictures entered as exhibits showed she was badly beaten about the face.

Mr. Justice McLaurin said the events during the early morning of Dec. 23, 1951, were "disgraceful." The soldiers had "behaved in a depraved and brutal manner."

He said he would have imposed more severe sentences if the woman had been of a higher moral standard.

A fourth soldier was acquitted.

No New Tax Added In Frost Budget; $896,000 Surplus

TORONTO, March 20. (CP)—The Ontario government will break long-established tradition by paying municipal taxes on its business and administrative offices in some 300 Ontario centres, Premier Frost announced today. The Premier, who is also Provincial treasurer, said in his annual budget address to the Ontario legislature that the publicly-owned Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and municipal commissions also will pay municipal taxes on their lands and buildings. He estimated the cost to the Province at $2,000,000 with a similar amount for hydro.

The $2,000,000 cost ranked low among the expenditures included in Ontario's first $300,000,000 budget. But, in a press conference, the Premier said it made Ontario the first province in Canada to pay municipal taxation on its offices.

In the 17,000-word address, the Premier announced the ninth consecutive surplus on ordinary account since he became treasurer in 1943. In the fiscal year ending March 31 the surplus will be $896,000 after applying an extra $18,000,000 to debt retirement and payment of supplementary grants totalling $11,550,000—$27,250,000 to hospitals, $2,300,000 to universities, $1,000,000 for housing and $1,000,000 to the province's superannuation fund for school teachers.

The actual surplus compared with a forecast of $598,000 a year ago. It is offset by an increase of $47,707,481, in the net debt which now stands at $569,257,645 compared with $521,550,164 a year ago. The current-account surplus for the next fiscal year is estimated at $88,000.

No New Taxes

The budget contained no new taxes nor increases in existing rates. It made two tax changes. Depreciation allowances for corporation taxes are being changed to bring them into line with the federal income tax act. The race-track pari-mutuel tax is being cut. The tax plus the track share of all betting pools will be a constant 17 per cent. Last year it was 19 per cent. The tax ranges from eight to 12 per cent of the betting pool, depending on its size. Last year the range was from 10 to 14 per cent.

Booming business skyrocketed the province's income and spending far beyond Mr. Frost's esti-

600 Peasants Storm Town Hall Over Land

VILLA LITERNO, Italy, March 20 (AP)—South Italian peasants went sullenly about their work around this heavily-guarded village today after a bloody night in which their land-hunger touched off clashes with police.

Six hundred peasants stormed the town hall at dusk Wednesday, hurling stones at the 30 police guarding it. One man died from a bullet through the stomach. Two others went to hospital—one shot, the other clubbed.

Villagers claimed the demonstration was motivated by the way Italy's land-redistribution program was being carried out here.

Villa Literno, a town of 3,500, had a Christian Democrat (government party) majority at the last election. However, some Communist agitation has been reported here.

Mystery Man Defends Oatis

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 20. (AP) — Vladimir Komarek, "mystery man" of the William N. Oatis trial, said today Oatis is an innocent newspaperman "caught in the gears of the Communist policy machinery."

Komarek, 21, is a Czech political refugee. The Czech court which sentenced Oatis on espionage charges tried to link Komarek in an alleged spy ring with Oatis and other Associated Press employees.

Oatis testified he had never met Komarek, and Komarek said today he had never met Oatis. Komarek was accused of having killed a security guard; Komarek says the story probably was made up because he left Czechoslovakia about the time a guard was killed.

Komarek's name was mentioned again Saturday in Prague's account of the conviction of 11 Czechs and a Yugoslav as spies and "collaborators" of Oatis. A death sentence was pronounced on Josef Pavelka, charged with having close connections with Komarek. Komarek says he worked as an espionage agent—for Czech emigres—against the Red regime in Czechoslovakia, but denies he was connected with a western government.

Komarek says he knew all 12 men named in last week's trial.

B.C. Relaxes Embargo On Livestock

First Province To Ease Ban Since F-M Outbreak

By The Canadian Press

Relaxation of an embargo on prairie meat and livestock by British Columbia Wednesday was the first break in a wall of such bans which hemmed in prairie cattle since foot-and-mouth disease broke out in southern Saskatchewan.

Instead of an outright embargo, British Columbia, faced with the possibility of meat shortages, will allow in prairie cattle and meat certified healthy by Federal inspectors. Permits well be issued by the B.C. agriculture department.

The province's action apparently was the first result of the Federal agriculture department's campaign for lowering of inter-provincial barriers imposed because of the Saskatchewan outbreak.

An embargo on livestock, animal products, hay and straw was put on by the United States shortly after the disease was discovered in the Regina area. Four provinces followed with bans of varying intensity.

Controls Sufficient

When British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec and Nova Scotia put on embargoes, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Federal control measures were sufficient.

For almost three weeks, negotiations went on between Federal and Provincial officials. Mr. Gardiner took the matter up with Manitoba. He said Wednesday night "we hope that province soon will follow" the B.C. example.

In Winnipeg, Premier Campbell said Manitoba was "giving every consideration" to lifting its embargo. But he said all the provinces should act at the same time.

"As far as we're concerned, the east is more important than the west because that's where most of our livestock moves," he said.

Quebec was the only other province with a strict embargo on prairie meat and cattle. It admits both under permit of its agriculture department. The Nova Scotia ban concerns horses since cattle are imported only rarely.

Nothing indicated that Quebec planned to change its system. Some livestock already has moved from Ontario to Quebec. Premier Duplessis said twice before that the ban will go if a better means of protecting the province's livestock and public health is found.

Labor Code Revival To Shackle Bevan

LONDON, March 20 (Reuters) —Labor Party leadership, headed by Clement Attlee, Wednesday slipped the political handcuffs on Aneurin Bevan and his 56 left-wing followers by reviving a strict conduct code suspended since 1946.

A secret meeting of Labor M.P.'s voted overwhelmingly for the conduct code, which will give Attlee more power in his struggle with the fiery Welshman.

Henceforth the Bevanites must toe the line and muffle criticism of party policy or face strict disciplinary measures.

But the code — the party's standing orders — will operate only until a new and even stricter set of rules, put forward by Attlee this morning, has been studied and, with probable toning down, adopted.

Market Prices Show Little Trend Today

TORONTO, March 20 (CP) — Stock market prices showed little trend today in listless early afternoon trading.

Activity slackened as industrial dealings shrank to selected leading issues and few golds, oils or metals showed large turnovers. Volume for the first three hours was 1,596,000 shares.

Banks and miscellaneous issues posted a slim majority of advances to take over as industrials strongest sections. Papers, utilities, constructions, refining oils and manufacturing companies held gains and losses in balance but steels and retail stores dipped.

Base metals leaders were mixed but lower-priced issues showed a majority of penny declines. Barvue, Hellens, United Asbestos, Normetal, Quebec Copper and Yukeno eased. Golden Manitou and Quebec Manitou turned upward.

Western Oils made little headway. Anglo-Canadian, Britalta, Charter Oil, Gas Explorations, Punch Petroleum and Trans Empire strengthened while Canadian Atlantic, Central - Leduc, Del Rio, North Canadian and United Oil weakened.

Senior golds were firm. Lamaque, Malartic and Teck Hughes pushed higher. Secondary issues wavered irregularly.

Spring's Here, No Celebrating

Nobody rang any bells, the sun didn't even bother to come out. But spring started this morning at 11:14, Eastern Standard Time.

Several interesting observations were made to mark the vernal equinox. A close watch on a thermometer at precisely the time of the vernal equinox showed no clear upward movement.

A handful of snow was picked from a dwindling bank in front of St. John's Church. It was just as cold as it was Wednesday at 11:14 a.m.

There was no immediate and general outbreak of spring fever.

The conclusion reached from these tests was that the vernal equinox doesn't mean an awful lot. In fact, only a few people knew that this was the first day of spring.

The World Almanac, reports that the seasons in 1952 begin as follows: Vernal Equinox (Spring), March 20, 11:14 a.m.; Summer Solstice (Summer), June 21, 6:13 a.m.; Autumnal Equinox (Autumn), September 22, 9:24 p.m.; Winter Solstice (Winter), December 21, 4:44 p.m. All times are Eastern Standard.

To whip through a scholarly explanation of these occurrences, the equinoxes occur when the axis of the earth is tilted at right angles to the direction of the sun's rays.

When this happens—in March and September—day and night are equal the world over.

Solstices occur when the earth's axis is at an angle of 23 degrees, 27 minutes to the direction of the sun's rays.

By an odd coincidence, this year the vernal equinox is exactly six weeks before the trout season opens.

Truck Dodges Holes Car Swerves, Hits Pole

A car sideswiped a telephone pole in attempting to avoid a head-on collision on the River Road Wednesday noon, causing damage to the car estimated at $65.

Eugene Varty, R.R. 9, Peterborough, told police he was driving south when a truck he was meeting, driven by R. D. Brown, R.R. 4, Peterborough, swerved across the centre of the road to avoid several big potholes in the street.

Varty said that in swerving to the right to prevent an accident, his car scraped a pole, damaging the entire right side.

It is an offence under the Highway Traffic Act to not give oncoming traffic half the road, and it is understood, that Brown will likely be charged with failing to allow the vehicle he was meeting half the road.

Abbott Estimates

In three weeks—on Tuesday, April 8, at 8 p.m. EST — Mr. Abbott will bring down his budget and tell Canadians how he proposes to raise the revenues to cover the expenditures. Prime Minister St. Laurent has already stated that no substantial tax reductions can be expected as long as the international situation remains as it is.

The $2,106,000,000 defence expenditure, included $759,000,000 for the air force, $268,000,000 for the navy and $532,000,000 for the army.

Atomic Expenses

Mr. Abbott said another $45,000,000 to be spent on such things as atomic energy might be includes in the defence estimate.

Civil defence expenditures will jump 50 per cent to $6,508,000 from $4,196,000, but still will be considerably less than one per cent of the total defence outlay.

Estimate of the Veterans' Department was boosted to $228,000,000 from $213,000,000 largely due to increased pensions.

Payment of $40-a-month pensions to all Canadians 70 and over largely was responsible for increasing non-defence expenditures to $2,249,796,809 from $2,002,587,837. The pensions, inaugurated Jan. 1 last, are expected to cost $322,000,000 in 1952-53.

Public works estimates were $8,199,728, but Mr. Abbott said the government is continuing its policy of curtailing construction projects during the defence emergency.

5 Red Planes Shot Down

SEOUL, Korea, March 20 (AP) —American Sabres shot down five Communist MIG-15s and damaged five others today, bringing their two-day score to six Red jets downed and 12 damaged.

The jets damaged Wednesday include a new "Type 15" Communist plane, "a funny-looking bird" rarely seen over Korea.

It was a high-wing version of the familiar Russian-type MIG-15.

A Fifth Air Force spokesman said the high-wing jets rarely have been seen. This was the first reported hit.

The spokesman said it appeared to be more efficient at lower altitudes than the low, swept-wing MIG-15. But it seemed to be about two feet longer and had a two foot wider wing span than the MIG-15.

On the ground, briefing officers reported light Red probing thrusts on the western and eastern fronts late last night and early today.

Three brief Red attacks, supported by artillery, were knocked back northwest of Korangpo in the west.

Two smaller probes were made south of Kosong at the eastern anchor of the 155 mile front.

Truman Calls

in the complex steel labor dispute in time to avoid a strike set for midnight Sunday.

Philip Murray, head of the C.I.O. and of the United Steelworkers of America, waited for the W.S.B.'s findings to submit them to his union's executive board.

The union's policy committee was called to meet at 2 p.m. to vote on a strike postponement to at least April 8 asked by chairman Feinsinger.

This was to give the union and management time to bargain on the board's recommendations.

While the bickering went on within the public-industry-labor wage board, the steel industry stood by waiting to learn whether to start shutting down furnaces and mills across the U.S. to prepare for a walkout of 650,000 members of Murray's union.

Most Hotly Contested

The union-shop issue is perhaps the most hotly contested of all the union's many demands. It would require all workers in the steel industry to be members and pay dues to the union, which claims 85 to 90 per cent membership now.

Public members of the W.S.B. reportedly proposed that the wage board make no specific recommendations on the union shop issue but issue a report strongly favoring the union shop without saying so.

This was understood to be acceptable to neither the industry members, who dislike the language, nor to labor members, who dislike the failure to take a stand.

The public members were reported pushing a plan that would give the steel workers a 20-cent hourly raise in pay plus contract improvements in such things as holidays and vacations.

No New Tax

mates of a year ago. He forecast gross revenue of $265,980,000 for the fiscal year ending next March 31. Today, he said the figure would be $304,966,000 (based on 10 months actual and two months estimated), largest in the province's history.

Biggest boost came in corporation taxes which produced $90,000,000, up $18,500,000 from the estimate. Highways revenue (from gasoline tax and motor vehicle licences) was up $5,000,000 to $92,030,000. Succession duties of $19,500,000 were up $4,000,000. Liquor profits at $42,000,000 were $3,000,000 more than the estimate.

Biggest Boost

Gross ordinary expenditure of $304,070,000 compared with an estimate of $265,382,000. Biggest boost was in sinking fund payments for debt retirement—$25,276,000 compared with an estimate of $7,276,000. Health expenditures were $7,201,000 over the estimate, highways $6,267,000 and education $4,617,000.

For the coming year, the Premier forecast ordinary expenditure of $304,208,000 and revenue of $304,296,000. Biggest single spending department would be education—$72,418,000. Most revenue would come from the provincial treasurer's department—$161,124,000 with the biggest sources corporations tax of $89,000,000 and liquor profits of $36,000,000.

Spends Most

The Highways Department stood out as the biggest single spending and money-raising department. Its revenue for the next fiscal year was forecast at $96,030,000 with $75,000,000 of that from gasoline tax. Its spending was placed at $99,000,000—$45,000,000 for capital works and $54,000,000 on current account.

The Premier, in the longest budget speech of his 10 since 1943, spoke at length on aid for municipalities. In the new fiscal year, total grants to municipalities were estimated at $118,600,000, an increase of some $19,000,000 over the present year.

Education accounted for the biggest share. Grants were being increased by $6,600,000 to $55,400,000.

Total grants to municipalities now represented about one-third of the ordinary and capital budget of the province and formed a major part of increases in expenditures in recent years.

Change In Grants

The Premier announced a change in the method of grants to northern Ontario mining municipalities which would provide a total of $1,300,000 in the new fiscal year, an increase of about $480,000. Some 25 municipalities were affected and none would receive less than in the last year.

The grants to the mining municipalities would be made on a complicated formula which took in such factors as residence of miners, profits of mines within municipal limits, the municipal tax rate and assumed assessment value of homes of miners. Precise figures were not available but it was estimated that Sudbury would receive an additional $130,000, Teck township (Kirkland Lake) $55,000 and Timmins $90,000. These three are the largest of the mining centres.

Outlining the new—and radical —policy of payment of municipal taxes on provincially - owned property, Mr. Frost said the province would pay the levy for general purposes, including local improvements. Valuation for assessment purposes would be the same as other municipal property. The assessment would be made by the Department of Municipal Affairs and each municipality would have the right of appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Stress Limitations

Taxes would not be paid on Crown and forest lands, educational institutions, hospital or charitable institutions, parks or fish hatcheries except for local improvements in certain cases. It would apply to administrative and business offices. With hydro; it would apply to business offices and establishments but not to plants and transmission lines. The municipal act would be amended to permit tax payments by local utilities of lands and buildings.

The premier defended his government's policy of applying current surpluses to debt retirement. In his first budget speech of 1944, he set out on a policy or retirement of the net debt in 50 years.

The province could pay all its capital costs out of current revenue by increasing taxes. Ontario now had the lowest provincial taxation in Canada. Its taxes were of the sort that had the lowest impact on the cost of living. Outside of corporation taxes, revenue came mainly from imposts on services such as gasoline and motor licence fees, royalties on natural resoures and profits from commissions operated by the government.

Keep Taxes Low

"Our two-fold objective has been to keep our taxes low—in which we have been successful—and so to conduct our business that we can apply our surpluses to the control of our net debt and by paying what we can on current capital costs and increasing sinking fund payments, keep our credit healthy and strong and reduce the interest bill and service cost which go with the rise of debt."

Deficits would increase the net debt. The government had avoided deficits. It had nine consecutive surpluses since it took office —a record for Ontario.

Control Debt

"How well we were able to control our net debt is shown by the fact that on March 31, 1940, it stood at $507,200,000 and on March 31, 1951, at $521,600,000. In the first 40 years of the century, when our population was much smaller, approximately $500,000,000 was added to our net debt; in the next 11 years only $14,400,000."

In 1940, net debt was nearly six times the province's ordinary revenue. In 1951, it was less than twice as much. The purchasing value of the dollar also was less.

The Premier proposed immediate grants—from this year's revenue—to hospitals and universities. Biggest was $3,000,000 to the Toronto General Hospital—which the province agreed to pay during the hospital's successful campaign for $16,000,000. Another was for $1,200,000, balance of a grant to the new Cancer institute at Wellesley Hospital in Toronto.

Other grants, to teaching hospitals, were: Ottawa General, $250,000; Ottawa Civic, $150,000; Kingston General, $275,000; Kingston Hotel Dieu, $125,000; London Victoria, $300,000; London St. Joseph's, $100,000; Toronto St. Michael's and Toronto Western, $175,000 apiece.

Another grant of $1,500,000 would be divided among all general hospitals of the province for maiintenance costs.

University Grants

In addition to previous grants of $5,700,000 to universities, the Premier proposed capital grants of $2,300,000; University of Toronto, $900,000; Queen's, $400,000; University of Western Ontario, $400,000; University of Ottawa Medical Faculty, $250,000; Hamilton College of McMaster University, $250,000; Carleton College, Ottawa, $100,000.

Other supplementary grants, to come from this year's revenue, included $1,000,000 to be placed to the credit of the Ontario Housing Corporation and $1,000,000 to the Teachers' Superannuation Fund.

For the new fiscal year, the budget included $10,000,000 for various types of housing projects. Most of these would be carried out in partnership with the federal government which would contribute 75 per cent of the cost, thus making some $40,000,000 available for housing in the next year.

The province planned an eight-point approach to the housing problem: (1) extension and simplification of land assembly plans; (2) introduction of the principle of taxes geared to rentals; (3) broad expropriation powers; (4) powers to acquire lands within municipalities for re-development of deteriorated areas; (5) industrial participation (in areas where new industries locate); (6) rural housing; (7) establishment of young farmers on the land; (8) a crown corporation to serve as a lending institution under the National Housing Act in rural areas.

Made Great Progress

The rental housing plan launched last June for 5,000 units, with provision for expansion to 25,000, had made great progress. The premier commended the federal government for its partnership. Projects had been started at St. Thomas, Windsor, Hamilton, Fort William, Prescott, Brockville, Guelph and Trenton. Negotiations were under way with North Bay, Peterborough, Port Arthur, Stratford, Sault Ste. Marie and other centres.

To assist young farmers get on the land, a junior farmers establishment loan corporation would make loans to farmers between the ages of 21 to 35, up to 80 per cent of the value of the assets with a ceiling of $15,000. The budget provided $1,000,000 to launch the corporation.

In the fiscal year now ending the government had spent more than $13,000,000 on conservation projects. The work included reforestation, forest management, insect control, soil conservation, flood control, exploratory work on water tables, drainage, propagation of game and fish and other projects.

Conservation Aid

Two new conservation authorities had been established on the upper Holland and middle Maitland Rivers bringing the number to 15. Field assistance was given to all. Four—the upper Thames, Ausable, Etobicoke-Mimico and Grand authorities had received grants of $957,500. In the next year payments of $1,404,000 would be made to the Ausable, Thames, Grand and Etobicoke units for flood control schemes. Total expenditure in the new year would amount to nearly $16,000,000.

The government was concerned by the rising water levels on the Great Lakes and shore erosion. It was urging a joint conference of the Canadian and United States governments with the Province and interested municipalities to survey the problem.

Reviewing the Province's economy in the last year, the Premier reported development in every business field. Gross value of Agricultural output at $1,250,000,000 was 15 per cent greater than in 1950. Forest production increased about 20 per cent. Mining output reached a record value of $437,000,000 with nickel the leading mineral. Manufacturing, employing 52 per cent of the working force, increased production more than 20 per cent.

Get More Revenue

On Dominion-Provincial relations, the Premier said the Province got more revenue from its tax fields than if it had accepted the Dominion offer of fixed grants. Since 1947-48, when the Dominion first made its offer, the province had collected $77,903,000 more than it would have received in grants.

Although the province had prepared its budget for the new year "none of this precludes the possibility of...entering into an agreement or agreements on tax matters".

The province had reached friendly agreements with the Dominion on a number of major subjects—old age pensions, housing, the St. Lawrence Seaway and power development, the Niagara Treaty, the Trans-Canada Highway.

"I have said before—and this applies as well to taxation agreements as to anything else—that an agreement which is not good for all parties is not a good agreement. It must be fair and must protect the interests of all. It must be a Canadian approach, brought about by men of goodwill. The federal offers have not been made in take-it-or-leave-it attitude and our position is similar".

Grey Cattle Free Foot-Mouth Disease

OWEN SOUND, March 20 (CP) —All Grey and Bruce county cattle imported from Western Canada since last Nov. 15 have been checked a second time for traces of foot-and-mouth disease. All are free from the disease.

The announcement was made today by Dr. T. S. Cornish of Chesley, sub-district veterinarian for the health of animals branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

Board Refuses Cut In Education Costs

BRANTFORD, March 20 (CP)— A city council request for a cut in the Board of Education's estimated expenditures for 1952 was rejected Wednesday night by the board.

Trustee Elmer Davies said only repairs and maintenance costs could be trimmed, and these now are just two per cent of the budget.

Repairs and maintenance "have too often been the goat for economy's sake," added Trustee W. J. McCormack.

Many Nominees For Award Out Of Town

HOLLYWOOD, March 20 (AP) —Anybody who is anybody in movieland will be present tonight for the 24th annual Academy Awards — except some of the people voted most likely to win.

At least 12 of the 25 top nominees won't be on hand. Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando, likely choices for the coveted top actress and actor Oscars, are out of town.

Both were nominated for roles they first played on the stage in "Streetcar Named Desire."

Humphrey Bogart, Shelley Winters, Jane Wyman and Eleanor Parker will be in the audience at the RKO Pantages Theatre.

Katharine Hepburn, Bogart's co-star in "African Queen," is en route to London and won't be among those present. Montgomery Clift of "Place In the Sun" will be the only other top male star present. Frederic March of "Death of a Salesman" could be another sentimental choice.

A victory for him would make him the only three-time winner. He's in New York. Arthur Kennedy ("Bright Victory") is in Jamaica.

Supporting Actors

In the supporting actor class, Karl Malden of "Streetcar" is the choice of most experts. He, too, is repeating his stage job. Kevin McCarthy of "Salesman," Leo Genn and Peter "Nero" Ustinov of "Quo Vadis" and Gig Young, the alcoholic of "Come Fill the Cup" make it anybody's race. Ustinov, home in England, is the only absentee.

Worst attendance record of the night will go to the supporting actress nominees. All five are in New York.

Lee Grant, the shoplifter of "Detective Story," was choice of The Associated Press critics poll but Joan Blondell of "Blue Veil" stacks up as sentimental choice. Mildred Dunnock ("Salesman"), Kim Hunter ("Streetcar") and Thelma Ritter ("The Mating Season") could easily win.

Closest battle is between "Streetcar" and "Place In the Sun" for the best picture sweepstakes.

Senator Davies Leaves Wales After Year

LIVERPPOOL, England, March 20 (Reuters)—Senator W. Rupert Davies, president of the Kingston Whig-Standerd, sailed Wednesday for Canada aboard the Empress of Canada.

Davies recently ended his year as High Sheriff of Montgomeryshire, Wales. Among his luggage are his formal robes of office and a film record of the ceremonies in which he participated. A native of Welshpool, Senator Davies is the first Welsh-Canadian to be elevated to the office, instituted in 1541 by King Henry VIII.

One of his duties as Sheriff was to proclaim throughout the county the accession of Queen Elizabeth II.

"During the last five years," he said, "The British treasury must have benefitted by about $150,000 which I brought over for holidays—bringing my family with me—and for my year of office."

Ontario Bill To Aid Rural Housing

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—Legislation aimed at both rural and urban housing problems was introduced in the Ontario Legislature Wednesday.

The proposals are in four related bills, introduced by Development Minister Greisinger and Public Works Minister Thomas.

A Liberal motion of non-confidence was defeated 76 to 10.

Legislation which would increase the pay of every private member, cabinet ministers and the Speaker was also introduced in the busy afternoon session.

The housing legislation was termed a "comprehensive and several-pronged attack" on housing problems by Mr. Griesinger who introduced three of the bills.

The fourth bill, introduced by Mr. Thomas, would set up a $10,000,000 Crown corporation, "the Ontario Junior Farmer Establishment Loan Corporation," to make loans of up to $15,000 for a maximum of 25 years. The loans will help young farmers buy farms, erect farm homes and buildings, buy livestock and do anything else approved by the corporation.

Fear Rents Too High

The measures make a considerable change in rental-housing-project proposals under which the federal, provincial and municipal

Won't Take New Claims In Noronic Disaster

CLEVELAND, March 20 (AP) —New claims in the burning of the luxury cruiser Noronic at Toronto in 1949 are "forever barred" by a ruling federal Judge Paul Jones made Wednesday. All of 575 claims filed since the disaster, which cost 119 lives, are to be settled for a total of $2,150,000.

The Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., owner of the Noronic, has deposited that amount in notes with the Federal Reserve Bank here. Hearings by a referee are expected to start next month and last into next year before awards are determined. Originally, the 575 claims filed asked nearly $19,000,000.

Sarnia To Reduce Municipal Spending

SARNIA, March 20 — (CP). — A sharp reduction in Sarnia's municipal spending for the next few years, and an immediate postponement of certain major civic building projects appeared likely today with the announcement that the city will be restricted to issuing $1,500,000 in bonds or debentures for 1952.

In making the announcement, City Manager E. Royden Colter emphasized that the city's financial position is sound.

He said the municipal bond market had tightened up and the very limit the city could market in a year would be $1,500,000.

48 Ontario Parishes To Join Canvass

KITCHENER, March 20 (CP)— Forty-eight Ontario parishes of the Missouri synod of the Lutheran Church will join about 5,000 United States congregations in a $10,000,000 conquest-for-Christ every-member canvass Sunday.

The expansion program is necessary to train more young men for the ministry to relieve the present synod shortage of 300 pastors, officials say.

The Rev. H. H. Erdman, Kitchener said Ontario membership has doubled in 20 years and now comprising 26,000 persons.

For the first five days of each week the Examiner will publish a baby picture and quote from the collection of Constance Bannister and on Saturday will publish the winning local pictures. In the Examiner's contest readers are being asked to submit baby pictures and the trick is to write a suitable caption implying what could have been on the baby's mind to create such an expressive picture. Every home where here are children has an unusual baby picture, so look over your family album, pick out and write the caption and send picture to Baby Photo Editor, Examiner, Peterborough. Pictures must be of babies two years and less. Two prizes of five dollars a week are given and a grand prize of ten dollars at end of contest.

April Ceremony To Streamline NATO In Paris

LONDON, March 20 (Reuters). —The new, streamlined organization of the North Atlantic Treaty Powers, planned at Lisbon last month, will come into being on April 4, past headquarters in London announced Wednesday.

Gen. Lord Ismay, present British Commonwealth Relations Secretary, who is to be Secretary-General of the new organization, will take over his new job that day.

At the same time the existing deputies' council, the finance and economic board, and the defence production board will be dissolved.

The present chairman of the N.A.T.O. deputies' council, Charles Spofford of the United States, will relinquish his functions at a formal ceremony at the temporary N.A.T.O. headquarters in London.

Permanent Council

The work of the dissolved deputies council and the two related boards will be taken over by a permanent ministerial council, of which Lord Ismay will be vice-chairman.

The new council will not meet until N.A.T.O. headquarters has been transferred to Paris. The move, it is understood, will start in April and will be completed in June.

Temporary headquarters in Paris will be the Palais de Chaillot, scene of the sixth session of the U.N. General Assembly.

The ministerial council, a more authoritative body than the council of deputies, will co-ordinate all the work of the Atlantic Pact, outside the military commands.

School Conditions Said Bettered During 1951

COBOURG, March 20 (ENS)—Improvement of conditions in school buildings during the year 1951 is evident from a survey of the yearly sanitary inspection reports on file at the Northumberland and Durham Health Unit office.

The inspection of school buildings in the counties of Northumberland and Durham, which are carried out every year by the Health Unit sanitary inspectors, involve detailed examination of the school buildings, including the lighting, water supplies, sanitary facilites, ventilation and all other factors influencing the health of the children. Complete reports are made and the results of the inspections and recommendations regarding any necessary improvements are forwarded by the Medical Officer of Health to the various school-boards. Copies of the reports are sent to the school inspectors and the Provincial Department of Health.

Sees End of Shortage

LONDON, March 20—(Reuters)—Britain's current steel shortage, which has caused many firms to lay off men, may end soon, industrial experts here believe. L. G. Dover, of the British Iron and Steel Federation, said Wednesday night that by the end of the year there might even be too much steel in the country. He estimated home production this year would be about 250,000 tons more than last year's 15,700,000 tons.

Driving Difficult

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20—(ENS)—Wet snow which fell during Tuesday night made driving conditions on roads in this area hazardous on Wednesday. Highway 30 between Campbellford and Brighton was extremely bad. Poor visibility coupled with slippery roads kept many motorists off the highways. Those who had to travel were forced to move slowly. No accidents were reported during the day or evening.

Deputation Criticizes County Tree Cutting Bylaw

Mrs. James Hamilton, of Stony Lake, on Wednesday afternoon headed a deputation of county ratepayers — all opponents of the proposed bylaw to restrict and regulate timber cutting in Peterborough County.

One by one she criticized the clauses of the bylaw. She was followed by a Dummer ratepayer, A. Crowe, onetime councillor for Douro township.

(A decision to shelve the bylaw for the time being had already been reached by the County Council at the morning session.)

Altogether 14 county residents —including three women and William E. Griffith, former reeve of Belmont-Methuen township— sat in the gallery. But only Mrs. Hamilton and Mr. Crowe spoke.

Need Money For Taxes

"Do you want us to be driven off our farms?" demanded Mrs. Hamilton. "These people need that bushland to pay for doctors, hospitalization and other bills. Why, they can't afford to pay their taxes unless they are able to cut timber on their own or other people's lots."

Warden Dick Stewart of Otonabee crossed verbal swords with Mrs. Hamilton three times. Twice he asked her to stick to the subject of the bylaw and the third time he told her not to bring personal charges against a member of council.

She told the County Council that the worst offenders at cutting and slashing timber were operating on Crown lands, and these people were not subject to a county bylaw.

The "personal" note, objected to by Warden Stewart, was when she charged one of the village reeves (unnamed) with earning a pot of money by doing the very "slashing" of woodlots that he was criticizing in council.

Mrs. Hamilton said it was a strange thing that people who "slashed" timber on their own should sit in county council and pass laws forbidding others to do the same.

Restrict Taxes

Edged back onto the subject by Warden Stewart, she said, tartly: "If they're going to have restrictions on timber cutting then I suggest they have restrictions on taxes as well."

The Province of Ontario, Department of Lands and Forests, and the Hon. Harold R. Scott all came in for the same treatment.

"If they had started many years ago to try and check fires, caterpillars and other diseases attacking tamarack and spruce, they'd be really doing something.

"Why don't they get busy and put some disease destroyers on our trees?"

She intimated that the council were complying with a request from the provincial legislature by proposing to pass the bylaw.

Mrs. Hamilton diverged briefly to tell of the difference in Christmas tree prices in Canada and the United States. Then she had a comment on the idea of hiring men to enforce the bylaw.

"Just think, we have to pay outside watchdogs to look after us," she said. "Why don't they pay somebody from Peterborough County to do the job instead of somebody from outside?"

After Mrs. Hamilton took her seat Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore said that some of her charges were a revelation to him.

Not Dictatorial

"At no time has the council wanted to be dictatorial," he said, "or inflict hardships on our ratepayers . . . We're ratepayers ourselves . . . Perhaps we haven't been as careful as we might have been, but we've done our best."

He denied that the Ontario government had tried to force any such legislation on the county. But after considerable pressure from counties, particularly in the southern parts of the province, they had passed legislation permitting the counties to pass a restrictive bylaw.

"It was entirely up to ourselves," said Reeve Gifford.

He said that if everyone who had woodlots and did cutting every year would take the trouble of planting young trees there would be no need for any restrictive bylaw.

"I think one of the benefits of the bylaw, so far as it exists, made people conservation conscious. . . In a democracy you have an opportunity to show your resentment when such a bylaw is proposed and today you have done so in an orderly manner."

Cut Dying Pines

Reeve James Humphries, chairman of reforestation, said that much of the pine cut this year in the reforestation area was going bad; some of it was damaged. That's the reason it was cut.

"We're trying to build up a forest," he said, "not cut it down for the bit of revenue in it."

Mr. Crowe, who owns a number of woodlots in Dummer and is one of the oldest ratepayers in the township, said at first he thought the bylaw would be an infringement on his private rights.

"I didn't like the idea of anybody trying to restrict my private rights in looking after my bushland and farmlands," he said. "But as it stands now (i.e. with the bylaw shelved) I'm very happy with your decision this morning.

"I had intended to criticize when I came here, but in the light of your decision I congratulate the County Council on the course taken.

Sound, Bright Budget

The Budget which Premier Frost as Provincial Treasurer presented in the Ontario Legislature proudly shows this to be the most prosperous province in the Dominion. In his quick review of the last year Mr. Frost noted that the provincial productivity increased 17 per cent. in value and six per cent. in volume during the year 1951—to the immense total of $8.7 billion. Personal income rose by a billion dollars; ;labour income by approximately $600 million; farm cash income was up seventeen per cent.—$116 million more than in 1950. Public investment increased during the year by twenty-two per cent. to $1¾ billion. The population also increased, by 71,000, and by August the number employed in the Province was the highest ever: 1,900,000 men and women had jobs. It was an increase in employment of 58,000. This is a wonderful record of expansion and prosperity.

* * *

The revenues and expenditures during the fiscal year (April 1951 to March 1952) and the estimated budgetary surplus, reflected the booming conditions in the Province. Total revenues and total expenses were the greatest in the Province's history. Premier Frost's budget address showed a surplus of $26,172,000, before provision for the sinking fund. Two weeks ago we said in these columns that the surplus this year would be the largest in the Province's history: $37,182,032. We got this figure from the public accounts tabled in the Legislature at that time. Why does the budget show only a surplus of $26,172,000? Others beside ourself saw the unusually large size of the surplus. The Provincial Government has reduced it (or is planning to reduce it before the year's accounts are closed at the end of the month) by a variety of supplementary estimates which are whittling eleven million dollars off the surplus. The chief of these extra expenses were mentioned by Mr. Frost in his address. They are: $3 million to the Toronto General Hospital; $1½ million to other teaching hospitals connected with universities; $1.2 million to the Toronto Wellesley Hospital (for cancer equipment and treatment); $1½ million for maintenance of other general hospitals in the Province; $1 million towards the Ontario Housing Corporation; $2.3 million in special grants to the universities in the Province; $1 million to strengthen the Teachers' Superannuation Fund. Thus the biggest surplus in Ontario's history has been cut down to merely one of the biggest.

* * *

The budgetary record of the fiscal year now closing shows the Province's strength, and the nine-year unbroken record of large surpluses (during them $110.3 million have been paid into the sinking fund to reduce and control the net provincial debt) have kept Ontario's credit "bright and clean," as Mr. Frost said today.

* * *

What is the prospect for next year? The Premier mentioned the slackening in consumer spending, retail sales, and employment in the last three months. These are times of "sudden and unpredictable changes," but he looks forward to a buoyant year. This view is reflected in the estimates for 1952-53: total revenue of $291.1 million, total expenditures of $281.6 million, leaving $9.5 as a surplus which is to be devoted almost entirely to the sinking fund. The expenditure forecast is the highest the Province will have faced; the revenues forecast are at the same level as this year. It is likely to be a conservative forecast of revenues. There are to be no new taxes, and no increase in existing taxes. The only decrease will be in taxes on race track betting.

* * *

The budget holds disappointingly little relief for municipalities. On the other hand, the Provincial expenditures on education, hospitals, and legislative grants to municipalities for public services are increasing because there are more schools, bigger hospitals and the like to draw the stipulated grants. In 1952-53 grants to all municipalities and associated bodies will amount to $119 million, Mr. Frost said; that is $19 million more than in the present year. Grants to municipalities for roads are to be increased $7 million, and for education $6½ million.

* * *

What additional financial help does the budget hold for Peterborough? As well as the general increase in grants (which the Hospital Board and Board of Education are already taking into account) there are these items: Peterborough will have a share of the special $1½ million grant to be divided immediately among all general hospitals. Hydro, Utilities, and any provincial offices in the city are now to be assessed and will pay city rates, henceforward. Four million dollars have been earmarked to pay such municipal taxes throughout the province on Provincial establishments. How much these concessions will mean to Peterborough's mill rate has yet to be calculated. It will provide some relief, but not a great deal.

Wolf! Wolf!

There is great wisdom in the fables of Aesop, and a favourite of ours is that about the shepherd boy who used to call out "Wolf! Wolf!" now and then, in order to frighten his neighbours and make them jump; but at last the day came when there was a real wolf, and because he had abused his cry of warning nobody heeded, and he was eaten up. We are reminded of that fable by the frequent cries of the dairy farmers that they are being ill-used, and that margarine is doing them incalculable harm. The agriculture committee of the Ontario Legislature has seized upon the opportunity given by a suggestion made to it by the Provincial Council of Women, that margarine be coloured. The comments of the committee were, to put it mildly, ungenerous, and they predicted ruin for the dairy farmers if margarine were to increase its sales.

An entirely different attitude is taken by Mr. George Urwin, the president of the Saskatchewan Federated Co-Operatives: "the manufacture and sale of margarine is not responsible for the fact that the cream can is on the way out," says he, and continues that the fact that farmers are able to get better prices for other agricultural products has reduced their interest in butter, cheese and other dairy manufactures. In brief, when beef brings more profit than dairy goods, farmers go in for beef.

In the House of Commons the member for Maple Creek, Mr. Irwin W. Studer, has gravely warned the nation that if industrial workers are going to have a 40-hour week, farmers will have one as well, and that will be the end of cheap food. (It is a cherished belief of speakers on behalf of agriculture that food is cheap, and that they are being ground down to maintain this situation; the facts that food is dear and that Canada pays farm subsidies in the millions every year do not trouble them.) On this subject it can only be said that farm work is seasonal, and industrial work is not; that a farmer is a capitalist and an industrial worker is not; and that while farmers undoubtedly work very long hours during certain times of the year, no accurate figures have ever been produced to show how many hours a day they work when their labour is spread over the whole year.

Some degree of self-pity is to be detected in the propaganda of all economic groups; only among agriculturists, however, has it been given the stature of a major instrument of policy. When today's budget reveals that farm cash income was $116,000,000 greater in Ontario in 1951 than in 1950, the tears of the farmers look suspiciously like glycerine.

At God's Dictation

It is a hundred years ago today that Uncle Tom's Cabin, by Harriet Beecher Stowe, first appeared in print as a completed book; it had appeared for the previous eleven months as a serial in The National Era. During the years that followed millions of copies of the book were sold; it was translated into eighteen languages; it was a great success as a stage play; it was so potent a force in the American Civil War that Abraham Lincoln addressed Mrs. Stowe as "the little woman who wrote the book that made this great war!" There were those among Mrs. Stowe's friends and relatives who feared that the large sums of money and the fame accruing to her would injure her Christian character. But Mrs. Stowe always denied that she wrote Uncle Tom. "God wrote it," she would insist; "I merely did his dictation." She frequently asserted that the whole story had come to her in the form of visions, and that she had no control over what happened to the characters therein.

If, as Mrs. Stowe asserted, Uncle Tom's Cabin was written by God, it cannot be denied that He adopted a style for the purpose vastly inferior to that employed in His dictation of the Bible. To the modern reader Uncle Tom is a trite piece of work, sometimes flat and scarcely literate; sometimes venturing into the crudely coloured prose of melodrama. But it is vivid and compelling, after its fashion. Uncle Tom himself, Little Eva St. Clair, Topsy, Miss Ophelia and Simon Legree are not characters that one can readily forget. It must be admitted that most of us know the story better from the play than from the book, and that comparatively few people under twenty-one know it at all. But in its day it was a household word.

It is odd that Uncle Tom and Herman Melville's Moby Dick were presented to the public within a year. The former became a worldwide success, but now we see that it is a piece of fustian, considered as anything but propaganda. The latter, one of the great novels in the English tongue, is at long last coming into its own.

Banana Ruin Gave Opportunity

THIS could happen only in Jamaica." said my Chinese-Jamaican hostess, as we drove around searching for an address in a suburban wilderness where few streets had their names posted up and even fewer houses had visible street numbers.

It is a common Jamaican attitude. Jamaicans—brown, black, white or "yellow"—will hold forth at length on Kingston's admittedly appalling 'bus service, on evidence of corruption in Government circles, on illegitimacy and illiteracy rates, on policial partisanship, and say, "This could only happen in Jamaica".

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is, of course, nonsense, and most of them know it. In fact, only a country which had achieved some faith in itself could afford to run itself down so consistently. Unfortunately, many United Kingdom visitors take too seriously what local citizens tell them, and are reinforced in their beliefs by their knowledge of certain Jamaicans in London who left Jamaica—for Jamaica's good. It is like judging Britain by the spivs along Oxford Street.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE British Press has not always helped by highlighting strikes, riots, poverty and corruption. In reality Jamaica has had fewer strikes than most Western European countries, suffers from less desperate poverty than nearby Latin-American nations of much greater potential wealth, has seen less political violence than all but a few highly-developed countries with centuries of tradition behind them, and is plagued by an infinitesimal amount of administrative irregularity in comparison with such great nations as France and the United States.

JAMAICANS, being British as well as brown, have a genius for grumbling, but they also have the capacity to achieve the best when all seems worst, and to snatch victory out of apparent defeat. The effects of the hurricane are an example.

The hurricane could have smashed Jamaica. It rendered thousands homeless and wrecked the year's banana crop, which was one of Jamaica's chief hopes in the fight to free herself from the slavery of dependence upon sugar. The Jamaicans took the opportunity thus afforded to rebuild better dwellings (though these too have been criticised as inadequate), and to replant bananas according to modern techniques which should soon double pre-hurricane production. They have devoted aid from the United Kingdom and elsewhere, for which they are expressly grateful, to industrial and other uses, plucking new hope out of disaster.

JAMAICA is not yet an adult nation, but it is a sturdy adolescent. Jamaicans returning from abroad miss the brave promise of '44, '45 and '46, when a new nation was born of a new constitution, literature and the arts began to flourish, and politics had a new excitement and idealism. They say that today literature is languishing, and politics has degenerated to rigidity in Bustamante's Jamaica Labour Party, and to personal and internal wrangling in Manley's People's National Party. They are like parents remembering the enchantment of baby's early growth and deploring the adolescent's gawkiness. But gawkiness is a prelude to adulthood, and it will not be too long before Jamaica is adult.

✧ ✧ ✧

AND a civilised adult. The faults Jamaica has are those of civilsation, not of backwardness. So are her virtues. It is no small achievement to have achieved racial harmony on a tiny island where one and a half million human beings live crowded together. True, there still exists a certain snobbery among some sections of the population who like to consider themselves socially superior to others, but since their pretensions are taken less and less seriously, even this is tending to disappear.

✧ ✧ ✧

A HIGHLY encouraging feature of Jamaican life is the interest taken in what is happening not only within the country but anywhere in the world. Coming from British Honduras, where few people have any interest at all in outside affairs, it was startling, within an hour of landing at Palisadoes Airport, to have somebody give one his views on the results of the Nigerian elections. I remember particularly one evening sitting on the verandah of a house in suburban Saint Andrew talking with a group of Jamaican friends: Two of them, both Negroes, had travelledly widely in Europe and the United States. The other three, all part-Chinese, had never been outside the island.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE conversation ranged from the German character to the internal politics of the Union of South Africa, Continental cooking, the French Revolution, Communism in Asia, and the Expanding Universe. One would be unlikely to find such a range of topics intelligently discussed on a London suburban balcony, particularly if three of the participants laid no claim to be intellectuals.

✧ ✧ ✧

JAMAICA'S interest in and knowledge of the rest of the world is not always, as Jamaicans wrily complain, reciprocated by the rest of the world's knowledge of Jamaica. While we were talking, a broadcast from Radio Jamaica was coming from the living room. The programme was interrupted for a commercial, recorded in the United States, for Jamaican consumption.

"Buyum Pepsi-Cola", urged a solemn voice, "Good for papoose, good for squaw..."

"Man!" said my hostess, "these foreigners take some liberties with us, don't they?" Everyone burst out laughing, and that laughter was a pretty sure sign that Jamaicans are rapidly losing their youthful chip on the shoulder and emerging into adulthood.

Books And Authors

(Manchester Guardian)

Whenever one meets a man who served in Mr. Attlee's government it is pretty safe to ask: "And how is the book going?"

Mr. Dalton, Mr. Bevan, Mr. Strachey, and Mr. Gordon-Walker have been at work for some time, and now Mr. Morrison has started work on an account of the machinery of British Government which will deal with the working of the Cabinet and the relations between the Cabinet and the House of Commons. There will be sections on the Cabinet committee system and the organization of economic planning, science, and publicly owned industries.

Mr. Dalton's book is to be autobiographical. Mr. Strachey's is a novel, "The Frontiers", a story of an airman who escaped from occupied France. It was written while he was in the R.A.F. but was held up after the war on grounds of security.

Mr. Strachey is now working on an analysis of the present position and future tasks of the Labour movement.

Another former minister busily writing is Mr. Harold Wilson. He is doing a long report concerning world food resources for the Association for World Peace.

THEY'RE OFF

Serious Blow to Theatre Movement

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

A GRIEVOUS and regrettable blow was struck not only at the resources and progress of the Montreal Repertory Theatre, but also at the theatre movement as a whole in the Montreal area, by the fire which recently destroyed the Guy Street building housing the MRT organization and auditorium. It was undoubtedly the most serious and dismaying of the many discouraging setbacks which the MRT has had to overcome, especially in the formative years following its establishment 22 years ago.

There will be general sympathy among Montrealers for the MRT in the loss of its physical assets and working quarters, as well as for relatives of the two women residents of the building who lost their lives in the fire. There has already been a rallying of helpful support for the theatre group in its prompt and spirited attempt to find temporary quarters to continue operations, and otherwise rebuild its capacity to carry on the fruitful work it has accomplished from the original inspiration of its founder, the late Miss Martha Allan.

An especially painful loss to the organization and one to be publicly deplored, was that of the MRT's splendid theatrical library, rated as the finest in Canada, and the auxiliary collection of old prints, etchings, costumes, theatre programs, and theatrical Canadiana. The value of the library and its adjuncts was inestimable and much of the material is irreplaceable.

It can only be hoped that the intensive efforts that are being launched to establish the MRT in new quarters will prove as great an impetus to its development and its status in future as did the move into its now destroyed building in 1942.

Funeral Marches

(Winnipeg Free Press)

The Handel Dead March comes from his Oratorio, Saul, written in 1738 when the composer was 53. For some reason long since forgotten, it is always referred to as the Dead March in Saul.

The oratorio closely follows the Biblical narrative of the relations between David and Saul. The Dead March comes in the third scene which opens with the interview between David and the Amalekite who brings the tidings of the death of Saul and his son, Jonathan. The magnificent dirge which is called the Dead March is played after the passage depicting this sad news.

The Chopin Funeral March will be forever associated with the life of that frail and fiery Polish patriot. Written towards the middle of the 19th century under the most macabre circumstances, it was first a part of Chopin's Second Pianoforte Sonata in B Flat Minor, Opus 35, but it has since been used as an instrumental portion of great funeral occasions. It was so tied up with the fame of Chopin that a part of the music is inscribed on Chopin's tombstone in Paris.

UNFINISHED

A man had been talking for hours about himself and his achievements.

"I'm a self-made man, that's what I am—a self-made man," he said.

"You knocked off work too soon," came a quiet voice from the corner.

Another Card Game!

(Montreal Gazette)

The new card game, Samba, seems to be pushing Canasta off the card tables. But whatever little domination it may hold will likely end before long. Some new game will appear, and everyone will be reshuffling the cards.

Always there has been a passion for a new game of cards. And sometimes a very old one is revived, and comes back with all the prestige of novelty. This come and go on the card tables has continued for centuries.

In the year 1749 the celebrated English letter writer, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, was saying: "Your new-fashioned game of brag was the genteel amusement when I was a girl; crimp succeeded to that and basset and hazard employed the town, when I left to go to Constantinople. At my return I found them all at commerce, which gave place to quadrille, and that to whist.

"But the rage of play has ever been the same, and ever will be so among the idle of both sexes."

The idle of both sexes, it appears, are now raging over Samba.

Tight Trousers Coming

(Hamilton Spectator)

Some of the new fashions for men being recommended by the trade in New York and London are a radical departure from the casual sports coat and slacks. In Great Britain, for instance, the designers have gone to the other extreme. Tight trousers are going to be the thing, they say. The vest will be back; suit coats will fit more snugly. The stiff white collar and the Christie hat are also being strongly urged in the interest of "the well-dressed look".

The motor car, the longer week-ends now enjoyed by many persons by reasons of the five-day week, the wider participation in outdoor recreation, the slack suit, the open shirt, the slip-on shoe and other features of modern life all make for a freedom from irks and afford a release from tension.

These are boons which the post-war man of 1952 has been educated to avail himself of. He is therefore not likely to yield them without protest.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the scribes questioning with them . . . And he asked the scribes. What question ye with them? And one of the multitude answered and said, Master, I have brought unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit . . . And ofttimes it hath cast him into the fire, and into the waters, to destroy him: but it thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.

Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.

When Jesus saw that people came running together, he rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him. And the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead.

But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up; and he arose. And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out?

And he said unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting. (Mark 9. 14, 16, 17, 22-29.)

Advertising Should Not Be Forced On Anyone

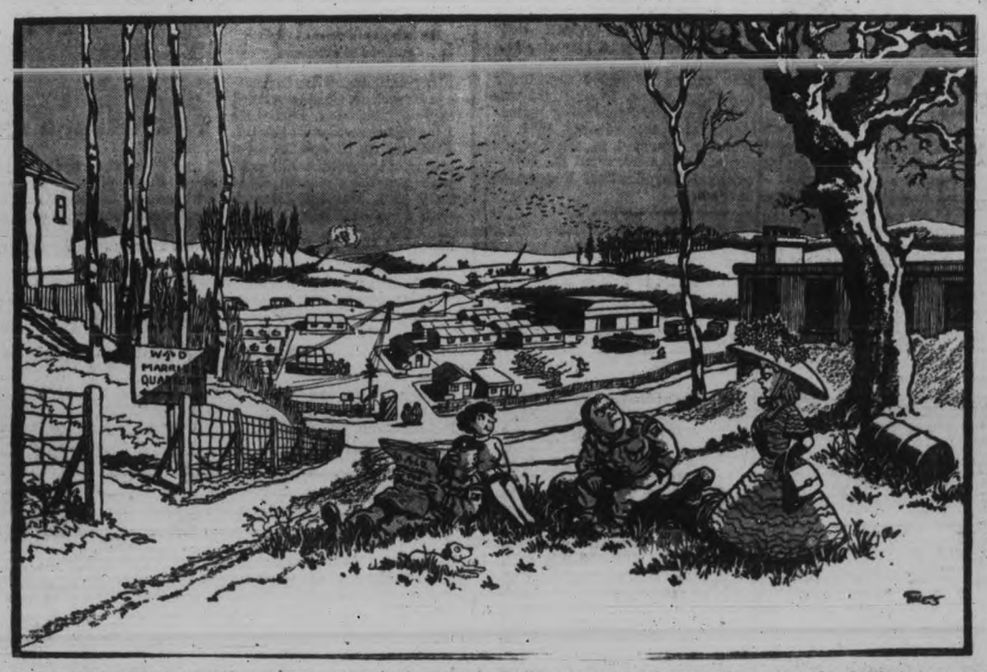
(Kingston Whig-Standard)

We have published several letters to the editor complaining about advertising being thrust upon audiences at a local moving picture theatre, and we have received other complaints about this practice. These complaints are thoroughly justified; the owners of the theatre are violating a principle that has been upheld by aroused and irate citizens on more than one occasion. They are taking advantage of a captive audience and attempting to force that audience to listen to advertising.

This is altogether improper and it can be most irritating. Patrons of Grand Central Station in New York City found it so, and they protested against it, so loudly and insistently that they won their point and the nuisance was eliminated. Patrons of the Washington, D.C., public transportation system foresaw how infuriating radio programs piped into the buses would be, and they protested against the proposal, so loudly and insistently that it was abandoned. These were captive audiences—persons paying for certain services—and they had every right to expect protection against exploitation because of that fact.

When people go to a moving picture theatre, they do not pay to see and hear advertisements. The admission price is assumed to be sufficient to enable the theatre to operate without tapping other sources of revenue. A theatre may, it is true, advertise its own wares within reason, but that is the limit of propriety. Anything further is a direct attempt to ignore a feature common to all other forms of advertising—the right of an audience to reject an advertising appeal. Readers may toss newspapers aside or refrain from reading the advertisements; listeners may switch off radios or tune out commercials. And, fortunately, there are regulations which forbid the indiscriminate bombardment of the public's ears from sound trucks. Yet there apparently is nothing, except the audience, to prevent patrons of a moving picture theatre being annoyed by advertising when they have paid for straight entertainment.

However, we think it has been demonstrated that vigorous and sustained protest can be effective in ending a nuisance of this description. That being the case, if the patrons of the offending theatre protest loud enough and long enough, the advertising program is likely to be discontinued.



"Here's the government spending millions of pounds on you—and you moaning because I spend a few shilling on a new hat."

The Department of Justice filed an anti-trust suit against 186 members of the Du Pont family, charging that they control five corporations with assets of more than six billion dollars. 'nited Textile W orkers Planning Strike Action

MONTREAL, March 20 (CP)—Kent Rowley, Canadian director of the United Textile Workers of America, said Wednesday that ike action is being planned in e meetings between Dominion xtiles Ltd., and the U.T.W.A. l to bring about solution of a ute over wages and working

Meanwhile, company officials have challenged union statements on Judge Rene Lippe's arbitration award handed down this week.

They said the union's use of the phrase "speed-up" is "a misrepresentation of the company's incentive bonus plan."

"The majority award of the Arbitration Board recognizes the [illegible] that increased wages and standards of living can only come out of increased efficiency and productivity," officials said.

"A wage increase of 13 cents an hour, applied to all our mills, would mean the company had to find an additional $3,250,000, or more, for wages each year."

100 Million Estate

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP).—Mrs. Sylvia Wilks, one of the world's richest women, left an estate worth nearly $100,000,000, it was revealed Wednesday in a court accounting. Her will was drawn in 1928 and she stored it in a cabinet with four cakes of soap. The eccentric Mrs. Wilks died February 4, 1951, at the age of 80. She left most of her wealth to 63 charitable institutions.

Lake Erie Fishermen Protest Proposed Firing Range

LONDON, Ont., March 20 (CP)—Fishermen along Lake Erie's north shore are protesting the proposed establishment of a firing range area for aircraft using live ammunition.

Erieau's Reeve Leonard Stass said there is "well over $5,000,000 invested in fishing between Erieau, Port Stanley, and Port Dover."

"Not only would it imperil the men, but much of the ammunition would not explode until it reached the water. It might have a disastrous effect on fishing."

He said there were more than 50 boats operating out of the three ports.

"If they must have a live ammunition range, why don't they put it in Lake Ontario where there is little fishing done," he asked.

In Port Stanley, fishermen said they hadn't been given much warning about the aerial firing range. Some nets had been set within the designated range area before the information was circulated.

Eskimo Boy Has Both Legs Amputated

MONTREAL, March 20 (CP)—Koonak, 17-year-old Eskimo boy, is in hospital here, faced with the prospect of getting about the rest of his life on artificial legs.

Koonak doesn't seem to be worrying, however—he is too busy learning English and marvelling at the civilized world.

He was brought here last month from Labrador suffering from gangrene and had both legs amputated, one below the knee, the other at the ankle. He was frostbitten while hunting.

Help Diggers

REGINA —(CP)—Grave diggers in Regina are going to get some mechanical assistance. City council is looking for a boring machine to make digging easier and reduce labor costs.

Still Useful

BLIND RIVER, Ont. — (CP) — The ancient steam fire engine purchased here in 1910 is still being used, but not for fighting fires. It produces live steam which is used for the less spectacular task of thawing out frozen culverts.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Another district hockey team which is making a fine show these weeks is the Otonabee Wolves. They led the P.M.H.A. bantam section the past winter and then went into O.M.H.A. bantam "C" playdowns as a village team. However, after sweeping Bobcaygeon and Wellington aside handily, the provincial body boosted their rating to bantam "B", since they were using boys from Lakefield, Warsaw and Havelock as well as the Keene area. That didn't daunt George Heron's crew any and they promptly erased Midland in semi-finals besides taking Brampton 9-8 in the first of the Ontario bantam finals. Seven playdown wins in a row and they're gunning for their eighth and the title 'gainst Brampton here Saturday night. A best-of-three series. Wolves are sponsored by Empress Hotel.

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist waxes indignant over the O.H.A. tossing out Hawks' protest on Petes using several junior players in their group semi-final series which the Petes swept in four straight. Strikes us that if Hawks couldn't come closer against a team using some junior "B" players then they certainly couldn't win a replayed series with the Petes using only senior "B" players. We tried patiently early in the season when Hawks were flying high to point out to friend Carver that they wouldn't be around when the group title was being settled. He was stubborn on the subject, even after all those years of failure, and no doubt next season will be again. Ah, but that is sports for you.

* * * * * *

An Interesting Angle

However, we were interested in some of his comments on the protest meeting. This para for instance: "A representative of the Triple Links told the hearing that his club had had a 'working arrangement' with the Petes for a number of years, and did not think it necessary to file notification each year. Asked why members of his team played with the Eagles against Kingston, he came up with the rehearsed answer 'they played without permits' . . . And with a scuffling of hands signifying that is that, the august O.H.A. in a magnanimous gesture returned the Hawks' protest fee. Please pass the deodorizer."

* * * * * *

Whether or not the O.H.A. was wrong in this doesn't particularly interest us, as the classy Petes could take the Hawks anytime, with or without. Also, we think juniors should be allowed to step up and get a crack at senior "B" experience. But the interesting point—if true—is that the Oddfellows permit their boys to step up with one senior "B" club here and not the other. According to the Belleville report. We think they should be allowed to play for either club. If Eagles should be re-instated this season they couldn't use any juniors, nor can they in future seasons. O.H.A. has said that the Petes can. We feel that the matter should be settled once and for all and let both local clubs use these juniors, as Frank Buckland advised them they could.

* * * * * *

Played Like Champions

Petes played like champs here last eve to come from behind in overtime and win out 5-4 over Kingston. And it was a junior who dented the hemp with the winning marker with eight seconds left to play. Bill Stewart proved the hero in the extra inning. Goalie Ray Harding stood out all through the game as he—and his rival netter, Sonny MacDonald—came up with a scintillating performance between the pipes. That's all that kept the score down as both sides were travelling at a hot clip from start to finish and fashioning some mighty nice passing plays as they roared in. 'Twas a dandy duel to view, and only miserable weather kept it from being a sellout. A goodly gallery at that, and they'll all be back for the next one.

* * * * * *

Series isn't over by any means yet. The K's will be plenty tough at home and back here. But we think Jim Ellis' speedy crew will take it all right. They've got the first big one—even if they did have to work overtime to get it—and will sure be gunning for the Saturday decision on big ice at Kingston. Hard to pick stars, but Jake Wade came up with a solid effort over the route and Freddy Garvey — with a patched-up lip from a cut in Belleville—toiled like a trooper throughout. Rest of 'em did, too. Mulholland and McGregor were highly dangerous all evening for the K's, and they had no loafers along, either. Chum Fryia is still out with a bad knee and Ted Collins is a flu victim. Yes, it was a swell struggle.

* * * * * *

Hither And Yawning

Togs are down six points for their return L.O.B.A. playoff here Saturday night . . . Frank Shields Resigns After Year At Helm

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Frank Shields, after one year at the helm, bowed out of the 1952 Davis Cup picture Wednesday night. He announced he would not be able to continue as captain of the United States team.

Shields, whose squad dropped a 3-2 decision to Australia in the challenge round last December said:

"I've business commitments and recently added to my investments. It was a matter of weighing one against the other. . ."

Shields caused a storm within the ranks of the United States Lawn Tennis Association when he selected the veteran Ted Schroeder over young Dick Savitt to face the Aussies.

When the team was in Australia Savitt blasted Shields publicly for not naming him to play Frank Sedgman, Ken McGregor and Co. When the U. S. L.T.A. held its annual meeting two months ago, Shields let loose with a barrage against Savitt.

STAR GOALIE IN ACTION—Turning in a whale of an effort here last night to help the Petes yank out a 5-4 overtime playoff win against Kingston, Goalie Ray Harding is shown making one of his sensational saves. He is diving in the nick of time to stop a hot angle blast from the stick of Kingston's George McGregor halfway through the even second period. Each side counted one goal in the middle stanza. It was the first game of the big senior "B" series. (Examiner Staff Photo)

Stewart's Overtime Goal Gives Petes 5-4 Win Over K's To Open Playoffs

Bill Stewart's goal with eight seconds left to go in overtime here last night gave the Petes a 5-4 decision over Kingston to open their best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" group finals. A crowd of about 1,500 gave the husky junior a big hand as he broke up a swell puck struggle. The second joust is on Kingston ice Saturday night. Streamlined, tight hockey was the order of the night from start to finish. The Petes looked better in the first frame as they scored the only goal, but Kingston fought back in a 1-1 second stanza, and outplayed the Petes somewhat in the third to outscore them 2-1 and force the extra inning. They sank the first one in overtime as they drove hard again, but the Petes battled back in the dying minutes to tie it once more and then tally the winning marker in fast stepping.

STARS IN GOAL—Ray Harding rose to heights here last night in a great goaltending display to help considerably in the Petes' 5-4 overtime win over Kingston to commence group playoffs. It was a goalies' contest as Sonny MacDonald also was mighty tough to beat in Kingston had an edge on play. Murray was robbed and a Steele-West breakaway almost counted. Goodfellow scored the equalizer from the side on an in-close scramble at 14:39. He later was waved over for hooking and the Petes tried vainly the rest of the period to go ahead again.

Redhot action ruled the 10-minute overtime session with each side in turn tearing in to make the goalies hop to keep out the rubber. Steele was close early and Murray then hit the goal post. Harding came out twice to pull spectacular saves at the K's bored in like jets. McGregor scored on a picture solo, tearing up the side fast to go through defence and blast the disc into the corner of the net halfway up. The groans hadn't died down when the Petes tied it up again as Garvey slapped the biscuit into the oven in a scramble on MacDonald's doorstep. The Petes kept pressing the final two minutes and at 9:52 Stewart took the puck on a passing play with Floyd and Garvey to roar right in close and whisk the puck into the cage for the winner. Teams:

Kingston Goal, MacDonald; defence, Stewart and Bender; centre, McGregor; wings, Mulholland and Larmer; alternates, Murray, White, Aitken, Catlin, Tinkess, Wagar, Latimer and Goodfellow.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and E. Leonard; centre, Dugan, wings, Mason and Robinson; alternates, G. Leonard, West, Steele, Peters, Wade, Garvey, Floyd and Stewart.

Referees: J. Crombie and M. Walsh.

Generally Clean

Some stiff checking was seen, but play generally was clean. The visitors drew six of the eight penalties, including a misconduct in the second to Dave Latimer after an elbowing offence for pushing Referee Jim Crombie. None of the penalties proved costly.

It was a battle of goalies, with Ray Harding and Sonny MacDonald turning in a great display to keep the score down. Nor was there much to choose between the squads as they roared up and down the ice on speedy passing plays to test the netminders repeatedly. The homesters were minus Ted Collins, out with the flu, and Chum Fryia, limping with a bad knee.

Petes' scorers were Junior West, Jake Wade, Curly Mason, Freddy Garvey and Bill Stewart, with an assist apiece going to Don Floyd, Garvey, Drake Jopling, Red Peters and George Steele. Sammy Mulholland notched a pair for Kingston, with George McGregor scoring one and aiding on two, as Bud Goodfellow got the other marker.

Edge In First

The Petes had an edge in territorial play and Mason came close in the first two minutes. West backhanded home a slap shot on a corner passout in close from Steele and Peters at 3:38 for the only goal of the frame. Latimer was gated later for elbowing but MacDonald held off the homesters till he returned. It was hot and even then till Larmer got the nod for slashing. He was back and the Garvey lined pressed a space, with the K's third line later giving Harding some busy moments. A thrust by Gus Leonard and Wade nearly paid off and, then with Steele away for elbowing, Kingston drove in but couldn't count.

It was speedy and quite even in the second heat. Tinkess tested Harding and Wade made MacDonald jump. Steele tore in fast but missed and Kingston's second line had an edge for a time. Mulholland tied the count with a high angle shot at defence on McGregor's pass. Mason went over for high-sticking but was back as a rush by Bender and Murray had Harding sprawling far out to save. White got it next for high-sticking but MacDonald was too solid to beat in his absence. Mulholland got in close and then Wade put Petes up with a high angle shot from just inside the blue-line, a screened shot that caught a net corner as Kingston players blocked the goalie's vision. Latimer was chased for elbowing and had a misconduct tacked on for pushing the ref. Garvey missed inside as the Petes ganged up hard till the sides were even again.

Tied It Up

After some sizzling up-and-down action in the third, Mason pushed home Jopling's shot on net from well out and screened, Mason being right at the crease edge. Mulholland got that back on a fast piece of work going right in with McGregor's pass as

Toronto Edges The Togs In First Game

Towne Togs will enter the second game of the Southern Ontario women's intermediate "B" semi-finals Saturday night six points down. In Toronto Wednesday night, the Togs lost their first game 43-37 to Toronto Tops, city champions.

Coach Phil Macks said after the game, "We can take them. The floor there was a little too big for the girls; they weren't used to it."

The refereeing, by Toronto officials, was criticized by coach Macks, saying "it was not too good." Although, as far as personal fouls went, they handed them out equally, but the Peterborough team was given "cheap and petty" calls.

Had Slim Edge

On the Oakwood Collegiate floor the Toronto lasses, who have built up quite a reputation in Toronto and were "B" champions under another name last year, held a slim edge throughout. The Togs were on even terms 10-all in the first quarter but fell behind 21-16 at the half and 28-20 at three quarters.

Down 13 points with a minute to go, Togs switched from the zone defence to man-to-man and whipped in seven points, all by Joan Dunk. They checked Tops back under the basket.

Until the last minute coach Macks had relied upon a zone defence to hold back Tops. This worked only fair on the wide floor. Meanwhile the Tops employed a man-to-man defence which worked slowly.

"The Tops are not as fast as some teams we have met this year in exhibition games," said Macks.

Top Scorer

Mabel Gillen was the game's high scorer, totalling 17 points. She worked mostly from under the basket for layup shots, sometimes with two and three Tops players atop. Pauline Stewart with one-hand shots from the key scored nine points.

The Tops' scoring was fairly well distributed among three players, S. Navin, N. Grenton and Jackie McDonald. Navin dropped in 14 points to lead Tops, all her points coming from shots outside the zone defence. Grenton with breakaways for long passes scored 10.

Jackie McDonald, the Tops' star pivot, racked up 11 points. These came mostly on rebounds and not from her known hook shot.

Sue DeWarga and Dot Jackson were the defensive standouts. DeWarga, until lost with five personal fouls early in the fourth, went best defensively while Jackson in the fourth boxed McDonald fairly well.

Lineups:

Toronto Tops (43)—Inner 2, Navin 14, Martin 2, Trunball 4, Gibson, Saunders, Sproat, Hendrickson, Grenton 10, McDonald 11.

Towne Togs (37).—Gillen 17, Raper 2, Stewart 9, Batley, Owen, McIlhagga, Jackson, Rumble, DeWarga 2, Dunk 7.

Sammy Snead turned on the steam in the final nine holes Wednesday to win the pro division of the $10,000 Seminole golf tournament at Palm Beach, Fla.

The West Virginia slugger's 36-hole total of 138, six under par for the 7,000-yard course, gave him an easy six-stroke victory over a field of 50 other pros and won him first money—$1,800.

Johnny Palmer of Badin, S. C., had forged a stroke ahead of Snead at the 27-hole point, 105 to 106.

The threat goaded Sammy into action and he covered the last nine in 32, leaving Palmer far behind as the Carolinian flopped to a 39 on the home stretch.

Canadiens Bolster Hold On Second Spot, Subdue Toronto 3-0

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadain Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens apparently aren't a bit afraid of those big bad Boston Bruins.. The Canadiens are practically assured of a semi-final spot against Boston—who defeated them twice last weekend—when they walloped Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 before a sell-out 14,581 National Hockey League crowd at Toronto Wednesday night. The loss just about condemned the Leafs to face the league champion Detroit Red Wings in the other semi-final. Leafs now have a 74-point total against Montreal's 77.

In the other game of the night, New York Rangers whipped the fourth-place Bruins 6-4. Boston, with nothing to lose, rested their three top scorers—Milt Schmidt, Dave Creighton and Johnny Peirson.

The game at Toronto, billed as the big one with Leafs only one point behind Dick Irvin's second-place crew and each with two games left, didn't live up to advance notices. Leafs floundered around all night and Canadiens, working on a 2-0 first period lead, checked and bounced them almost to a standstill.

Nothing Exciting

Apart from some fairly stiff bodychecking and the odd near-fight, the fans had little to get excited about. A total of only 28 stops—13 by Canadiens' Gerry McNeil and 15 by Leafs' Al Rollins—told the story of the 60-minute what-was-it.

But there's still hope that the two clubs will change places — and semi-final partners. Canadiens have a weekend double-header with Detroit coming up and the Leafs meet the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks at Toronto Saturday and wind up the schedule Sunday at Boston.

One loss for the Leafs and they're in with the Wings. A Montreal tie and a Toronto loss or one victory for Canadiens and the Habitants tangle with Bruins.

Toronto fans gave their club the razzberry Wednesday night as the blue and white club skated onto the ice for the third period. And the way they played the boos were deserved.

For minutes at a time they couldn't carry the puck past the Montreal blue-line and they blew the few scoring chances they had with poor shooting, bad passing or just sloppy play. Canadiens outskated them and were content to ease off after Boom Boom Geoffrion and Butch Bouchard sent them into their first-period lead.

Full of Bounce

Maurice Richard, sun-tanned and full of bounce after a long stint of Florida sunshine, scored the third Canadien goal midway through the second period. He roared in almost on top of Rollins to take a pass from Elmer Lach and beat the Toronto goalkeeper cleanly.

Butch Bouchard, one of the best men on the ice, combined with Billy Reay to set up Geoffrion's goal at 6:22 of the opening session and then at 13:58 bulled his way along the left boards, cut in at the Toronto defence and scored when his foot-high drive found an opening of about six inches between Rollins and the post.

Penalties Few

Canadiens had six penalties called against them compared to Toronto's three.

Only five penalties were called in the game at New York which saw Rangers switch goalkeepers. They brought up Lorne Anderson to tend the nets, replacing Emile (The Cat) Francis who was sent back to Cincinnati Mohawks, currently in the American Hockey League playoffs.

The six goals scored also eclipsed by six the highest previous New York total for a season, 177, set in 1941-42.

Centre Paul Ronty scored two for the Blueshirts with singles going to Wally Hergesheimer, Gaye Stewart, Allan Stanley and Frank Eddolls. George Sullivan contributed two for the Bruins, the others scored by Ed Sandford and Real Chevrefils.

St. Mike's Blank Teepees 4-0; Indians Win

By The Canadian Press.

The first shutout of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs was marked up Wednesday night in Toronto.

With a 4-0 victory over St. Catharines Teepees, Toronto St. Michael's took a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five semi-final series. To stay in the series, Teepees must win when St. Mikes visit St. Catharines Thursday night.

Owen Sound Mercurys in the Senior A finals are in a similarly tight spot. Wednesday night Stratford Indians beat the Mercs 4-3 to move into a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The fifth game of the series will be played in Stratford Friday and an Indian win would give Stratford the title. The Mercurys defeat Wednesday night was in Owen Sound.

Scores Winning Goal

Dinny Flanagan scored the winning goal for Stratford with less than three minutes to go in the third period. Other Indian goals were scored by George Aitken with two and Bill McComb with one.

The Mercs placed one goal in each period: Andy Grant in the first, Tommy Burlington in the second and Jack White in the third.

Neither team scored in the first period in Toronto. The first goal was scored by St. Mike's Marc Reaume and Art Clune, Billy Lee and Mike Ratchford took the rest.

Boston Needs Good Shorstop To Advnce To Top Spot

By JOE REICHLER.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 20 (CP). — Boston's youth-infused Braves appear to have strengthened themselves in several positions but not where they need help the most—at shortstop.

The Braves, fourth place finishers for the last three years, have one of the league's better pitching staffs headed by Warren Spahn. They own a solid, experienced outfield composed of Sid Gordon, Sam Jethroe and Willard Marshall. They have some good long-ball hitters in Earl Torgeson, Bob Elliott and Walker Cooper. And they boast as fine a rookie match as seen in any camp.

But unless manager Tommy Holmes can come up with a suitable shortstop replacement for the departed Buddy Kerr, the Braves' hopes of improving their position appear slim.

"The infield is our biggest problem," admitted Holmes.

Of the four different keystone combinations tried by Holmes, shortstop Jack Cusick and second baseman Billy Reed have attracted the most attention. Cusick, who came to Boston from Chicao Cubs for outfielder Bob Addis last October, is one of those "good-field, no-hit" players. Jack batted only .176 in 65 games last year.

Reed, a rookie from Milwaukee, has impressed with his fielding finesse, poise and stickwork. He batted .312 and set an American Association fielding record for second basemen last season.

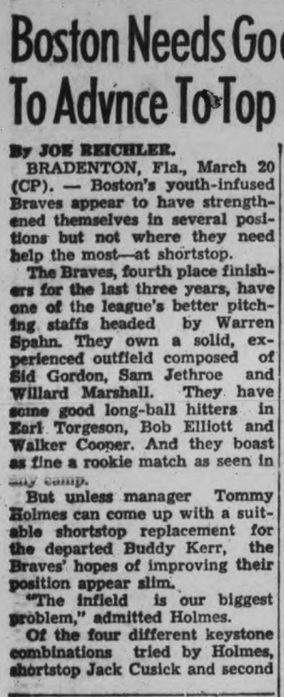
Holmes Undecided

Except for the three outfield positions and three pitching spots, Holmes is undecided on his regular line-up.

The call to service for April 7 induction of sophomore southpaw Chet Nichols will hurt, but Holmes regards his pitching staff as one of the best in the league. Spahn (22-14), Vern Bickford (11-9), and Matt Surkont (12-16) comprise a solid trio. Leading candidates for the fourth starting job include Gene Conley (20-9 at Hartford), Ernie Johnson (15-4 at Milwaukee), Murray Wall (15-5 at Milwaukee), and holdovers Jim Wilson and Dave Cole.

Gordon (.287), Jethroe (.280), and Marshall (.281), are certain to open the season in the outfield.

Ebba St. Claire (.282) has the edge over Cooper (.313) as the No. 1 catcher.



BENCHED BY INJURY—Yogi Berra, Yankee star backstop, leaves Miami Stadium in a wheelchair after he was hurt on baseline in a game against the Dodgers. Yogi suffered a sprained ligament and a ruptured blood vessel just below the right ankle and will be out of action for a week.

Rookie Goalie Gets Chance With Rangers

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP).—Lorne Anderson, 20-year-old goalie for the New York Rovers of the Eastern League, got a chance at the big time Wednesday night when he was brought up to tend the nets for New York Rangers in their National Hockey League game with Boston Bruins.

Anderson, a native of Renfrew, replaced Emile (The Cat) Francis who returned to another Rangers farm club, Cincinnati Mohawks. The Mohawks are playing Buffalo in the American Hockey League playoffs.

Penny Gains 3 Wins

PORT HOPE, March 20.—Penny of Brantford scored three straight wins in the lightweight novice competition as the Trinity College School annual boxing competitions progressed through the initial stages. Day, of Mexico, was a double winner in the welterweight open competition, while D. Osler and A. Osler both won their matches in the welterweight novice bracket.

International Flavor For White Sox

PASADENA, Calif., March 20 (AP).—The final decisions remain to be made but it appears that manager Paul Richards is moulding a solid infield for Chicago White Sox—and with a distinct international flavor.

The Sox infield was pretty well set from last year when the club came to Pasadena this spring, with the one hole at third base.

Eddie Robinson, a good long ball hitter, is set at first, and so is the keystone combination of shortstop Chico Carresquel and second baseman Nelson Fox.

The newcomer is Hector Rodriguez, the rookie of the year with Montreal in the International League last year.

International Flavor

The international flavor, which extends into left field and the pitchers' box, goes like this:

Carresquel is from Venezuela, and his rookie understudy, Guillermo Miranda, is from Cuba. Rodriguez and the now famed left fielder, Orestes Minoso, are also from Cuba, along with Luis Aloma, the ace relief pitcher.

Fox is from St. Thomas, Pa., and Robinson lives in Baltimore and his birthplace was Paris—Paris, Tex., that is.

Richards has been using Rodriguez Cuban regularly all spring in the exhibitions. He must pass a thorough test before anyone will call him the 1952 third baseman.

The 31-year-old Rodriguez, long a star in Caribbean baseball before trying the American brand of organized ball last year, hits the ball well, and his fielding more often than not has been exceptional.

Gariepy Pleads Innocent To Charge

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP) Ray Gariepy of the American Hockey League's Hershey Bears testified before an alderman on Wednesday night that he does not remember hitting a fan during a Pittsburgh - Hershey game here Feb. 20.

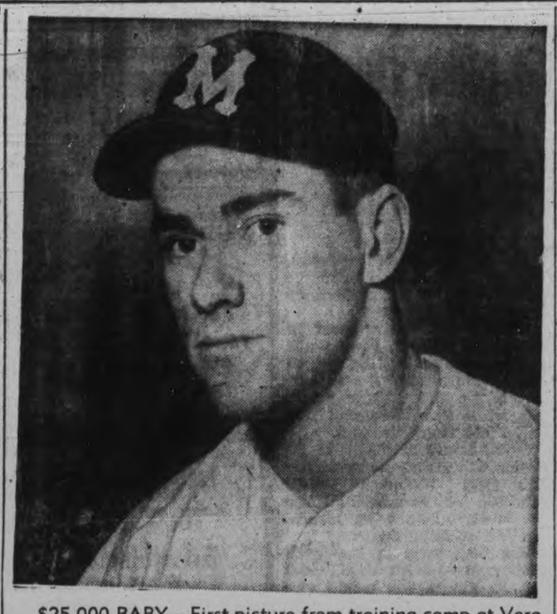
Gariepy, native of Toronto, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault and battery laid by Peter Meshanko, an auto dealer. Meshanko claims Gariepy leaned out of the penalty box and hit him after he objected to the player's swearing because women were nearby.

"I certainly don't recall hitting anyone," Gariepy told Alderman W. Omar Hysong.

Hysong reserved decision for five days. Gariepy is free on the $1,000 bond he posted after he was arrested Tuesday.

Teen-Agers Barred

MONTREAL, March 20—(CP)—Teen-agers are not allowed in one central Montreal restaurant at lunch-time unless they intend buying a meal. School pupils who daily crowd the restaurant to buy soft-drinks and eat home-made lunches must make room for regular customers.



$25,000 BABY—First picture from training camp at Vero Beach, Florida, shows Danny Lynk, 18-year-old shortstop who received an estimated $25,000 for signing a Montreal contract. Danny stands six feet, three inches and tips the beam at 210. He is a nephew of Jimmy Ring, former major league pitcher.

$3,000 Poker Pot Stolen On Ship

PARIS, March 20 (CP). — The U.S. Navy said Wednesday that a $3,000 poker pot disappeared after the game was broken up by officers aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway, and that the three seamen in the game ran for cover.

As the story leaked out it got a bit twisted and the Riviera was buzzing with reports that the ship's paymaster had been robbed of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Cmdr. Robert Sullie, U.S.N., intelligence officer, denied a Reuters News Agency report that there had been a robbery of naval funds.

Another version of the report said that three armed sailors raided a crap game and made off with about $4,000, escaping into the vastness of the ship.

The Midway, part of the U.S. Sixth Fleet, is anchored at Golfe Juan, France.

Sullie said the game was raided Saturday night. The sailors disappeared and so did the kitty. Neither money nor thief had yet been found.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Times change. Once the Irish ruled the prize-ring, but you don't see many Irish fighters, any more — no Ryans, no John L. Sullivans, no Terrible Terry McGoverns, no James J. Corbetts, no O'Briens, no Bould Michael McTigues. There are no more O'Mahonys or Caseys at the wrestling peak, and the great Irish weight-tossers of other days, the Flanagans and Ryans, don't seem to be around.

But the Irish are by no means out of top-flight sport. It may not have occurred to you, but the Irish come pretty close to holding top hand on the turf in this country. Ireland is a great horse-racing country. The Emerald Isle specializes in jumping horses and has sent many a winner to the most testing of all races, the Grand National Steeplechase.

But right now, Irish-bred horses have played and are playing a big part in American racing. First there was the Irish-bred Noor that, on four successive occasions, defeated America's greatest modern race-horse, the mighty Citation in race thrillers seldom equalled anywhere and in which world records were smashed or tied, while the pride of Kentucky was being humiliated. Now comes another of the Irish, Windy City II, to breeze by Calumet Farm's best three-year-olds as though they were tied.

This Irish-bred European juvenile champion of last year not only has won two stakes for three-year-olds this year, in America, beating Hill Gail and A Gleam—rated Calumet's best Derby hopes at this time—but came from behind to win going away like a real standout.

His victory in the San Felipe handicap at Santa Anita at one mile and one-sixteenth—indicating his liking for distance, since he was increasing his lead as he passed under the wire—just about convinced turf experts that Gus Lueliwitz's $165,000 purchase is a prize package.. Windy may go to the post in the Kentucky Derby a hot favorite to win that big race.

In Europe, where Windy City was raced as a juvenile, his amazing speed won him the title of the champion two-year-old of England and Europe. His only defeat was an upset, something the same as once happened to Man O'War. Abroad, the only question about Windy was his ability to go the Derby route. So Ireland is by no means in sports eclipse. The Ould Sod carries on, as it has always done, in some division of sport.

"The Day" has been both good and bad for the sons of the Ould Sod. Most important fight in ring annals, staged on March 17th, took place in Carson City, Nevada, on March 17th, 1897. James J. Corbett, an Irish-American who had defeated the mighty John L. Sullivan to win the title, was matched with the Cornishman, lanky Bob Fitzsimmons. Corbett was the favorite, but was knocked out in the 14th round with a blow that still lives in ring legend as the solar plexus punch.

But on March 17th, 1923 — and in Dublin City no less — Michael Francis McTigue of County Clare out-fought the Sengalese, Battling Siki in 20 torrid rounds and became the light-heavyweight champion of the world. You couldn't ask for a greater combination of Irish ring success than that, could you now?

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Evasion Builds A Problem

French Fiscal System Totters Sadly

By CHARLES R. HARGROVE

PARIS —(NEA)—If the French government could make people pay their taxes, revenue would exceed expenditure. If they would turn over to it their holdings of gold and gold currencies there would be no trobule about paying off debts incurred abroad.

Against the less than 500 tons of gold that constitute the official national reserve, there are at least 2,000, probably 3,000 and possibly 4,000 tons owned by French citizens.

What taxes citizens should pay —but don't—is the equivalent of at least one billion, probably two billion and possibly three billion dollars a year.

Within two months recently, two governments bit the dust because Parliament refused to step up taxes in order to make the 1952 budget balance. A third, now in office, pronounced its aim to collect existing taxes instead of raising tax rates. Estimates of tax évasion run from 20 to 50 per cent. The budget deficit would be more than covered if just 20 per cent could be collected.

Hoarded Gold

But it probably can't be, for just the same reason as the two or three thousand tons of hoarded gold can't be gotten into the commodious, nearly-empty, all-steel vaults of the national bank.

One shrewd Parisian put it this way:

"Almost every citizen of France is convinced that the government is certain to lose or waste a good part of any gold or francs he may surrender into its keeping.

"Therefore he says to himself: "The less surrendered, the better!"

Seeing what has been happening to the national currency for almost 40 years past, it is only natural that the French citizen should hold onto his gold and evade his taxes.

The government, after trying in vain to extort his gold, finally made it legal for him to buy and sell and hold it. It has now begun to make it legal for him to evade his taxes in full because they have become exaggerated, inequitable and complicated to the point of confusion.

Three Defects

The fiscal system developed these three defects by reason of the French genius for dodging taxes and successive short-lived governments' need of getting in more money as quickly as possible by any and every means. So one tax was piled on top of another and rates of taxation constantly raised.

Income taxes, introduced into France less than 50 years ago and never a success, proved slower and slower to react to incessantly rising prices and harder and harder to collect as their rates were raised. Of all state revenue, they never produced more than 26 per cent and now they produce 23 per cent, Where they are paid in full it is by the salary-earners, who represent 60 per cent of all income declarations.

Business contributes only 20 per cent and agriculture a mere 1.3 per cent.

In 1950 just 80,000 farmers paid income tax on profits averaging less than $650, while the 640,000 businessmen liable to tax on industrial and commercial profits declared an average of less than $1,500, the majority of them being taxed exofficio as having earned less than $1,000. Of course the progress of inflation brought payment in francs of less and less purchasing value.

Disappointment over the yield of direct taxation made France rely more and more on indirect levies. Use taxes now conribute 61 per cent of the revenue, turnover taxes 38 per cent.

More Evasion

But there is evasion there also. These turnover taxes amount sometimes to 20 per cent of the cost of a product, and naturally they rise as prices and production rise. Thus the temptation is to make out bills for less than real values, the balance passing in cash. The estimated tax loss is hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

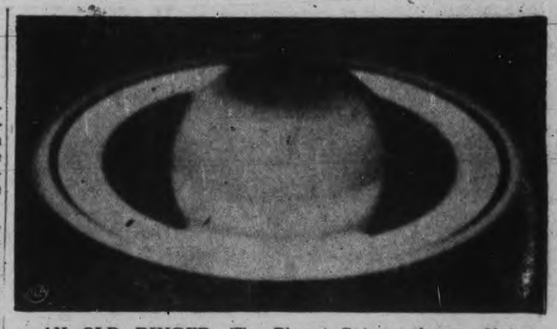
Another defect in indirect taxation is its multiplicity. For instance, 14 taxes fall on coffee on its way from the plantation to the consumer. Another, still more serious, is that the more rates are raised the more prices rise.

The taxpayer has another grievance. Only 64 per cent of all public revenue comes from national taxes. In addition, 26 per cent represents "parafiscal" charges, such as social insurance, and 10 per cent local taxes. The Ministry of Finance estimates that "fiscal and parafiscal pressure" absorbed 38 per cent of the national income in 1951, against 28 per cent in U.S.A. and 40 per cent in Great Britain.

Parliament's recent revolt against higher taxation makes some sense. What is wanted is simplification of taxes, more equitable incidence, more moderate rates, and, last but not least, something like stability of the currency.

An authority on taxation suggested the other day in the most serious of Paris dailies that fiscal injustice may be today greater than in 1789, when fiscal injustice bred the Revolution. Like the franc, the fiscal system is tottering.

Eddie Jackson (right), one of Durante's old partners, joins in this dance routine which leads into a new song—entitled "Truman, Jackson and Durante"—that Margaret sings.



AN OLD RINGER—The Planet Saturn shows off the splendor of her rings, in this view captured by the 10-inch Hooker telescope of Mount Wilson Observatory, in California. The ring system is believed to be composed of relatively small particles of matter, which revolve within the gravitational field of the planet.

Best Time For Haircut During Waning Moon

TIMMINS, March 20 (CP)—An officer of the police force here says that the best time to get a haircut is in the period of the waning moon.

The officer, whose name was withheld under a police ruling that officers may not be quoted in public statements, said Wednesday human hair will not grow as rapidly as usual if it is cut now.

The moon was full March 11 and declined to its last quarter March 18.

About a year ago, the officer came up from a study of police records with the statement that crime and accidents double at the time of the full moon and fall off as it wanes.

Revised Bible Version

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP).—The printing of 1,000,000 copies of a revised standard version of the Bible began Wednesday. Officials of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America said it was one of the biggest projects in book publishing history. The object is to present the Bible in clearer language than the King James version.

Says Alta. Children Taught How To Bring Up Parents

By The Canadian Press

Children in Alberta schools are being taught "how to bring up their parents," Liberal Leader J. Harper Prowse told the legislature Wednesday.

A course being given grade VII students could lead to "a lot of trouble" he said. They used a text entitled "growing up" which encouraged children to "criticize their parents."

Mr. Prowse said the course in the hands of the "mill run" of teacher is apt to cause a lot of harm. He added the course asks children to discuss in class conditions which they think are wrong in their homes and brings up such problems as a comparison of the amount of money children and parents are allowed for recreation.

The Nova Scotia House rejected an opposition motion which would have affirmed the right of newspapers to report proceedings in committees of the House and Premier D. L. Campbell told the Manitoba legislature the Provincial budget wil be presented Monday night.

Allow Leases

The New Brunswick House continued the budget debate and the Saskatchewan legislature approved a bill in principle which would allow a member of the House to hold mineral and timber leases. The Newfoundland House was told by Premier Joseph Smallwood of plans to inspect all cattle in the province during the coming year and slaughter any infected with tuberculosis.

Nova Scotia Liberals, who voted in a bloc against the motion of G. I. Smith (PPC-Colchester), claimed that newspapers already have the right to report proceedings in the committees of the House.

Under Mr. Smith's motion "fair and accurate reports" of committee discussions would not be a breach of privilege of the House. He said he doubted if such reports could be prohibited under present regulations, but he felt the motion necessary as the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, in a story concerning the public accounts committee had recently quoted a rule which possibly banned such reports.

Premier Campbell made this announcement that the Manitoba budget will be brought down Monday night after the House had completed study of $49,099,606 in estimated expenditures for the 1952-53 fiscal year.

Labor Minister C. E. Greenlay suggested government action to permit sale of homes now barred by rental regulations. He said the provincial government should get out of the rent control business in "due course." He also announced changes in Workmen's Compensation Act to enlarge the persons eligible for coverage.

The Bill which would prohibit member of the Saskatchewan Legislature to hold mineral or timber leases passed second reading. It will abolish amendments made in 1951 to the Legislative Assembly Act which allow a member of the House to hold such leases. In moving second reading, Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines tabled affidavits signed by every government member, swearing that they do not hold mineral or timber leases from the government.

Have Electric Wrist Watch Firm Announces

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO, March 20 — (AP) — An electric wrist watch, hailed as keeping almost perfect time, was announced Wednesday.

It has a little electric motor, yet is no bigger than a conventional wind-up watch. It has a barely-audible tick, no mainspring, no winding mechanism.

A main secret is a battery smaller in diameter than a pencil which runs the motor for more than a year. Cost of a new battery probably will be less than 25 cents.

The battery delivers power at a constant rate. It takes only 2/100,000ths of a watt to run the watch.

The watch was demonstrated today at a press conference. Only a laboratory model has been made, said president J. G. Shennan. Simultaneously in Paris, a company of Besancon, France, announced an electric wrist watch. It differs in many mechanical and electrical respects, Shennan said.

It will cost more than ordinary watches for some years at least, Shennan said, but price was not estimated.

The battery powers a single-speed motor, replacing the usual mainspring and other parts.

Coils for the motor are only one-eighth of an inch in diameter, only 1/32nd of an inch long. They are wound with 3,000 turns of insulated copper wire one-sixth as thick as human hair.

Hospital Device

STOCKHOLM — (CP)—A novel type of x-ray table which permits three - dimensional photographing of the heart has been designed by a doctor and engineers at Malmo. The new table is expected to greatly improve diagnosis for operations.

Electronic Watch To Run On Power From Battery

CHICAGO—(NEA)—Within a few years, you'll be able to carry a wrist watch that is infinitely more accurate than present models and never needs winding. It's all those things—except when the battery runs down.

The revolutionary timepiece is an electronic wrist watch, which has a tiny motor where today's watches have their springs. The battery—which the manufacturer calls an "energy capsule"—is about the size of a peanut.

To Last Year

They estimate that one battery will last about a year. A replacement will cost somewhere under 25 cents, and it will probably be a 25-cent job for the jeweler to put the new one in.

Although the watch is not yet on the market, it will be an expensive mechanism when it does become available. There are no estimates of price yet, but high costs of material—coupled with existing stocks of conventional watches which can't be made obsolete overnight—will make the price high.

Eventually, however, the electronic watch will probably be cheaper than the ordinary watch of today. That's because the mechanism is simpler, with complete elimination of the mainspring and winding apparatus. But "eventually" may be ten years off.

The makers have been working on the project since before the war. They finally succeeded in constructing a model that performs, in miniature, the same function as the power plant of a diesel electric locomotive. Yet it consumes so little power that 10,000,000 of them could be operated from the power consumed by one 100-watt light bulb.

They say that the same tiny mechanism could be built into a woman's watch, although the laboratory model is man-sized.

GUILTY ON TWO COUNTS of misconduct in office, James P. Finnegan, former collector of Internal Revenue is shown with his wife leaving Federal Court in St. Louis, Mo., after the case had been placed in the hands of the jury.

EASILY OUTSHINING all the other passengers in their clothes adorned with thousands of mother of pearl buttons Bert and Rebecca Matthews go into a dance called "Knees Up Mother Brown" on arriving at New York's Idlewild Airport, this week, from London. Senior king and queen of the Cockney Pearlies (charity collectors), the couple will take part in a British good-will bus tour of the United States. The 66-year-old Mrs. Matthews estimated there were about 30,000 pearl buttons on her costume and another 30,000 on her husband's outfit. She said she sewed them on over a period of years.

No Basic Pay Changes Suggested At Chateau

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP)— The majority report of a Federal Conciliation Board has recommended no changes in basic pay or working hours for employees of the Canadian National Railways' big Chateau Laurier Hotel here, the Labor Department announced Wednesday.

Employees sought a 40-hour work week with adjustments to maintain their pay to the present 48-hour basis, plus a 20-cents-an-hour wage increase. They are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.).

A minority report by A. Andras, Labor nominee on the board, recommended the 40-hour week as sought by the union, plus wage increases ranging between 7½ cents and 15 cents an hour along with a cost-of-living escalator contract.

Russia Tries To Lure West With Gold

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA — (AP) — Russia is adding the enticement of gold to the bag of tricks it uses to try to weaken the West.

It has started a world-wide campaign — with inducements of profits — to persuade Western capitalists that they should, after all, do business with Russia.

But diplomats here say the Moscow plan has no other ultimate objective than to lay hands on strategic goods for the Soviet war machine. These have been drastically cut down by the West's ban on such shipments to the Soviet world.

The campaign is being run by the Cominform's great propaganda machine. This is talking about "co-existence" between Communism and Capitalism and promoting an "international economic conference" to be held in Moscow April 3 to 10.

Throughout the entire Western world, Communist parties are busy rounding up economists, industrialists, merchants and trade union leaders to attend this conference.

"Through the development of economic relations between all countries," the agenda states, "the conference will strive to complete its work by practical proposals."

Attacks Continue

In pre-conference propaganda behind the Iron Curtain, the Communist press has been going in two directions. There has been no let-up on attacks on Britain and the United States and on "dirty Western capitalists." But, at the same time, such newspapers as Czechoslovakia's rude Pravo recently said that East - West economic co-operation is a "historical necessity."

Moscow's co-existentialist fortnightly News, has claimed that the conference represents the unselfish desire of the Kremlin to help the west "stimulate its economy." It claimed the east actually does not need western goods.

"But," said an American diplomat in Vienna, "the reverse is actually true. All the facts indicate that the Russians are beset by shortages in their war economy that can be helped only by western imports."

"The true reasons for the Moscow conference, we feel, are the economic burdens of Moscow's armament production, her strategic stockpiling and her shortages of raw materials and finished products."

"What the Moscow conference means," the diplomat said, "is that vital materials needed for western defence will be bought from dupes and profiteers to build up Russian war strength."

Trumpeter Swans Back In Victoria Waters

VICTORIA, B.C. — (CP) — Trumpeter swans, one of the world's rarest wild fowl, have returned to Victoria waters for the first time since 1949

Government naturalists say they believe this is partly due to an increase in the numbers of the birds and that it may mean the swan has won its fight against extinction

The black-billed trumpeter was thought almost wiped out just a few years ago. Only a few pairs were then believed to be alive. The ringing bugle sound was rapidly becoming a rarity in its B.C. homeland.

But this year a survey by R. H. Mackay, Dominion Wildlife officer for B. C., showed at least 90 trumpeter swans in B.C. with other flocks thriving in Montana and perhaps western Canada.

In recent years most of the trumpeters have wintered on Vancouver Island.

Dr. Clifford Carl, curator of the Provincial Museum, says that the survival of the swan is still a "touch and go matter." A sudden change in the narrow pattern of safety they have won could still wipe them out.

Civilization has robbed the fowl of the choicest feeding and resting grounds while predatory coyotes and mink continue to take a toll of the young

No one as yet knows where the trumpeter nests. Naturalists place it no more exactly than "somewhere in the northlands." Many say that the secret of the swan may just as well be left uncovered because it may be a big factor in the bird's survival.

Five of the trumpeters were captured recently at Lonesome Lake, B.C.; and sent to Britain as a gift to Queen Elizabeth II from the Canadian Government.

Says Hydro Can Supply Any New Industries

KINGSTON, March 20 (CP)—Robert H. Saunders, Ontario Hydro chairman, Tuesday night told provincial municipalities to attract industries and the Hydro Commission will supply all the power they need.

Mr. Saunders addressed a joint meeting of the Kingston branches of the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Chemical Institute of Canada and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He said hydro is meeting the demand for power today without restrictions.

"Go out after industry," he said. "We will supply the power. That is our position today. And that will be our position tomorrow."

Try To Clear Road

JUNE LAKE, Calif., March 20 (AP).—Efforts to clear a road into this Sierra Nevada resort where 125 persons are marooned by giant snow slides resumed today. The 125, mostly navy Seabees testing snow removal equipment, have taken refuge in June Lodge. The Lodge reported on Tuesday its fuel supply is dangerously low. Owner George Conn said, however, that there was enough food for a week.

Husband Ready Renew Inquiry

MONTREAL, March 20 (CP)—Georges Lemay, husband of a 21-year-old Montreal beauty who disappeared in Florida last January, said Wednesday he is at the disposal of Flordia authorities in a new investigation of the case.

Lemay, holidaying with his wife when she vanished, told newspapermen he is ready to return to Florida where he participated in searches lasting several weeks if he gets an "official" request.

"I am in constant touch with persons in Florida concerned with the case," said Lemay. "I am ready to help police authorities."

Monday Sheriff J. O. Barker announced at Miami that a grand jury in session at Key West will review the Lemay disappearance case Thursday.

The Key West grand jury is expected to hear a report on the disappearance prepared by former detective A. Quenneville of Montreal.

Quenneville's services were obtained by Dr. Dolphe Perron, Valleyfield, Que., dentist, an uncle of the missing woman.

U.K. Tries Generating Power From Wind

LONDON, March 20—(Reuters)—Britain is continuing experiments on the possibility of generating practical amounts of electric power from the wind, an expert told the Royal Society of Arts Wednesday.

C. W. Marshall Deputy Chief Engineer of the British Electricity Authority, said a giant windmill will be set up a Mynydd Annelog, Wales. A similar mill already is operating in the Orkney Islands off Scotland.

Propellers 60 to 80 feet in diameter have been designed, Marshall said. But a wind motor sufficiently light and cheap to produce electric energy at a low cost had still not been produced.

Marshall said long-term plans for development of wind power are important to stretch Britain's diminishing fuel resources.

Suggest Federal Grants To Equalize Education

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP) — Federal grants to equalize educational opportunities for Canada's children were suggested Wednesday as the Commons turned to the study of private members' resolutions.

It debated a motion by R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon), a former school teacher, asking the Federal government to consider making financial grants to the provinces as a means of "expanding and equalizing educational opportunity."

The resolution, generally accepted by those who spoke, still was under discussion when the House rose and now goes to the bottom of the list of private resolutions, but may come up later in the session.

Mr. Knight, introducing his motion, stressed the critical problems facing Canada's educational authorities and quoted estimates that a shortage of 25,000 teachers may develop by 1952.

The demands of the people for the education of children no longer could be met by municipalities or the provinces. Costs were running ahead of revenues. The Federal government should come to their aid with unconditional grants.

All children should "enjoy a degree of equality of opportunity, irrespective of geographical position and the country of their parents, or of their economic status."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, endorsed the motion, but suggested the Federal government could best assist the provinces by vacating their tax fields and allowing them to take the full benefit of possible revenues.

If Federal grants were the answer to the problem, they should go directly to the provincial departments of education and not to the educational institutions themselves. The Federal government should not interfere with education, an exclusive Provincial field under the constitution.

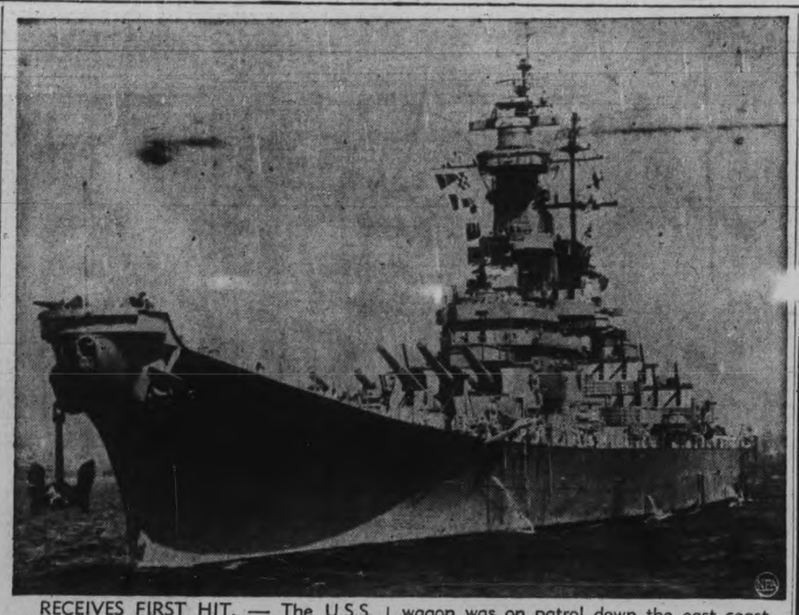
He warned that the possibility exists that eduction, through lack of money, might "fall away" to the point where it would be difficult to give children even basic learning.

Jean Francois Poulio (L—Temiscouata) disagreed with the proposal for Federal grants, and suggested the provinces now have more tax revenue and are better able to help their schools. The provinces should be "supreme" in education.

Dr. Pierre F. Gauthier (L — Portneuf) agreed there was a need for assistance to the provinces, not only for students but also for teachers. If the provinces wanted assistance, they should enter into greements with the Federal government to cover the distribution of funds granted.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said the problem is "to harmonize the constitutional position with the constitutional distribution of revenues." Provincial jurisdiction over education must be strictly respected. Any Federal assistance must be based on agreements.

F. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) suggested the grants should be unconditional. The social credit group would oppose grants with conditions attached. He always was "shocked" when he realized teachers could earn more money as common laborers.



RECEIVES FIRST HIT. — The U.S.S. Wisconsin was hit for the first time in two wars on Sunday when a Communist shore battery opened up on her. North American Life Amazes Siamese Girl

TORONTO,—(CP)— Salika Supol, 16-year-old Siamese girl from Bangkok, doesn't understand the "rush, rush" of North American life.

She thinks Canadian girls wear too much lipstick. She is surprised that they go on dates without chaperones.

But she's enthusiastic about all the gadgets she has discovered in Canadian homes—and television.

"I can't go to sleep without ...ng that screen," said Salika, one of 21 teen-agers from the Far East now spending three days in Toronto on a good-will tour. She and her companions have been in the U.S., since December as part of a youth forum project.

Salika said she has found Canadian homes "remarkable."

"We have four servants at home which is average," she said. "Housewives in Toronto have so many gadgets they don't need any servants."

"The way boys and girls go out together in North America — makes my head spin," she said. "In Thailand we don't see boys without chaperones until we're 20. We marry later, too—it takes five or six years to learn if a fellow is serious."

Thailand she described as a trouble-free democracy. "We have no trouble with Communists and we have no wars despite the fact there is fighting on all sides," she said.

governments shared costs. Mr. Greisinger said some municipalities, although their share was only 7½ per cent, feared operating losses and also felt that rents, which had been based on a full recovery of costs, were too high.

The province, under the new scheme, is prepared to take over the municipal share and assume a full 25 per cent of the cost. The federal government has shared 75 per cent in the plans.

Municipalities will be asked to accept "something less than" the full taxes on the property because the federal and provincial governments are prepared to "relate rents to income, subject to a rental floor which will limit any losses to be borne by the two governments."

Also included in the measures is legislation to permit expropriation of land for subdividing and servicing, to allow industries to enter as partners in housing developments, especially in small municipalities, and to enable larger municipalities to re-develop deteriorated and slum areas for both housing and industry.

Rural Mortgage Loans and Junior Farmers assistance are in two related bills. The first will set up a Crown Corporation to make first-mortgage loans under the National Housing Act on residential property in rural communities and on farms. It is aimed at filling a gap in financing not carried by normal loan companies.

To qualify, young men must be trained and able farmers between 21 and 35 years of age. Resident of Ontario for three years and intend to farm on a full-time basis.

The loans will be up to 80 per cent of the value of the security, with a top level of $15,000, secured by a first mortgage on the land. Interest rates will be at current levels.

The salary increases for members were recommended by a special legislative committee last year and delayed to this session, following the general elections in November.

Members' Pay Raised

Members' pay will be raised $900 a year to $2,600, and they will receive a mileage allowance of 10 cents a mile for four trips a year between their homes and Toronto.

Cabinet ministers will resume their statutory salary of $10,000 which has been voluntarily reduced to $8,000 since the depression year of 1934. The Premier will also draw his full salary of $14,000 instead of the $11,995 paid since then. The Speaker will be given a $500 raise in his allowance to $3,000 and an expense allowance of $2,000 yearly.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy also introduced two important bills. One will give the province permanent power to ban shipments of cattle from any diseased area. It stems from the recent ban on shipment of western livestock following the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan. The second bill will permit the Ontario Milk Control Board to define all classes of milk sold in terms of buttterfat and solids content. It will make legal the present sale of skim milk.

Not Doing Share

A demand that the government accept a share of responsibility for relief of unemployed persons who are able to work was voiced by Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver.

He accused the government of refusing all responsibility for unemployment relief by claiming it was a federal government problem.

The defeated Liberal motion said the government had failed to assure municipalities immediate financial assistance pending the report of the provincial-municipal committee studying financial relations, had failed to increase education grants in the face of rising costs, had no plan to remedy "obvious defects" in Labor legislation and had not implemented any of the recommendations of the select committee on conservation.

A C.C.F. sub-amendment to the motion was defeated on a voice vote.

The C.C.F. motion charged the government had "failed to supplement the inadequate pensions" paid to old-age pensioners or to provide relief for unemployed "who are at present in serious need."

Not as a paying customer, but as a former neighbor, Herb J. McCannan made his first call Wednesday at the new office building of the Utilities Commission at Dalhousie and Aylmer Streets. Parents, Teachers Discuss Modern Teaching Methods

Modern educational problems—particularly those arising from the conflict between the so-called "traditionalists" and the "progressives"—were posed Wednesday night in an address, followed by a panel discussion, at Queen Mary auditorium. The speaker was Donald I. Graham, director of education for Forest Hill Village schools. He was guest of the Peterborough Home and School Council who sponsored the open meeting so teachers and parents could get together and discuss the philosophy of education.

'Education for What?" was the title of Mr. Graham's address.

He said he was particularly interested in seeing parents concerned with educational problems, and his whole address was geared to the ultimate effect of getting the audience involved.

The setup was like this: Mr. Graham led off with a resume of two widely divergent views on education—its purpose, the student product it is turning out today, possible reforms and other closely related questions.

Though giving final answers to none of these questions, he invited his audience to think about them.

Audience In Groups

When his address was over he organized the audience into groups of eight people or so and had them submit questions. These questions were sorted into groups (each group on one particular topic) and answered by a panel of four under Mr. Graham's chairmanship.

This was what Mr. Graham referred to as "an interesting and new device of getting audience and speaker together on a topic like this."

On the panel were: Howard Moebus, head of P.C.V.S. vocational guidance department; Miss Cora Bailey, principal of Parkhill School; Mrs. Blake Bell, trustee and parent; and Leo Copp, principal of the Normal School.

The conflict between the "progressives" and "traditionalists" is most marked in the United States, said Mr. Graham.

The progressives, though there are at least three wings of them, have the aging John Dewey as their central figure (hero or arch-criminal, as you will). Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, is the leading traditionalist as Sir Richard Livingstone is in Great Britain.

Began This Century

Progressivism was born in the 20th century upheaval in politics, the social gospel and religion and ethics, said Mr. Graham. It permits the child to freely express himself and the teacher must have complete fredom to plan the curriculum.

Dewey demanded that the child should be adjusted to his environment. The child learns about society by being a participant; he learns by doing; and knowledge is only meaningful if related to a child by experience.

He uses the scientific method and questions everything. There are no absolute values. And this raises problems in the moral and spiritual fields.

Two major objections by parents to progressive education is that the students haven't enough basic skills; and many of the parents are upset because their youngsters want to go out and change the social order.

Another criticism is that the progressive curriculum places too much emphasis on student interests, said Mr. Graham; life is full of compulsions.

Gives Discipline

Hutchins, an advocate of liberal education, thinks that one of the values of a traditional education is that it imposes a discipline on the mind. The emphasis is not on interests.

It is also claimed that pedagogues are gradually taking over the function of the home and the church. "The school is taking over the total life of the child." The pedagogical reaction when he sees these institutions "barren" is to propose another course in school, said Mr. Graham.

"Is it good enough just to teach a child to adjust"? asked the speaker. "Adjustment to learn, for what purpose"?

"My criticism of Dewey and Co. is that they placed their entire faith in scientific method. Dr. Hutchins has said that scientists can give us what we want; but they can't tell us how to get it, or how much."

Hand On Tradition

The Livingstone and Hutchins concept is that we have a way of life to be handed on, said Mr. Graham. That we should hand on certain concepts of life and how a man must live.

Our Western culture comes from two sources: Judaeo-Christian and Hellvetian. These sources have given Western culture its vitality.

Mr. Graham agreed with a conclusion in the Harvard Report: that every student must be inducted into this culture by a general education as well as science.

The student must have the "vision of greatness". This can be inculcated through great books, great music, great art, and particularly, "great living".

Firemen Decline Salary Offer Of City Council

Firemen Tuesday night declined the salary terms of the city council as a major item in the working agreement between the council and the department for this year.

Part of the breach between the two bodies, the members of the Fire Fighters' Association on the one hand, and the members of the council as appointed by the taxpayers, arises from the council's decision not to incorporate any part of the cost of living bonus in the basic salaries.

Actual dollars and cents spread between the two parties in negotiation was apparently only $28 for the whole year.

The schedule the men presented with alternatives, amounted to $3,332 and the council's offer was $3,304. Mayor Waddell told the firemen the council were averse to including cost of living allowance in the salary scale.

Lose On Decline

The discussion indicated the association felt that the terms of the council would react against them in the event of cost of living retreating from its present levels this year. They said there was an adverse discrepancy by which they lost more for a point decline in the C.O.L. than they received for the same point of increase.

That was one of the impressions from the meeting at the city hall last week.

Net result is that the firemen are carrying on under the 1951 agreement, and that possibly the new agreement for this year may have to be arranged by arbitration. Usually, both parties try to settle their negotiations before the new year begins.

Mayor Waddell has informed Henry Nokes, president of the association, that a treasury effort would be made to include in the next pay cheques some margin of pay that has been accumulating since the first of the year.

Medals Awarded To First-Aiders

Long service medals were presented Wednesday night in the Armouries to three members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade at the annual inspection.

An instructor's certificate in first aid was presented to Miss Florence Vickers, head of the women's division. This certificate is one not easily come by, and Miss Vickers is one of the few women in Ontario to hold one.

Long service medals went to George Siddall, Fred Whaley and Mrs. William Warren. They have been members of the Peterborough brigade since the early 1930's.

The women's awards were presented by Mrs. Ethel Anderson, Toronto, provincial nursing officer, and the men's awards by V. A. M. Kempt, provincial commissioner.

County Stops Subsidizing Residents Entering Civic, People To Pay $1 More

County Patients Must Now Pay $7.50 Daily In Public Ward, Council Refuses Suggested Appropriation

Patients from Peterborough County now entering Civic Hospital will pay an extra $1 a day. The County Council, sitting as a whole in finance, today decided they would no longer subsidize hospitalization for paying patients in Civic. This means the county patients will now pay $7.50 a day public ward; $10 for semi-private ward; $11 for small private ward, and $13 for large private ward. City patients pay $1 less. Nursery rates will go up 50 cents a day:

Three dollars for children of mothers in public wards; and $3.50 for children of mothers in private and semi-private wards.

Payment of a $1 subsidy ends today, County Council ruled. The hospital has not indicated when its charge will go up to county patients but, presumably, it will be immediately.

Indigent patients will not be effected. The County is continuing to pay their share of the indigent-patient costs as requested by the Board of Governors.

Board Delegation

County Council's action followed the visit Wednesday afternoon of a three-man delegation from the Board of Governors: Chairman Max Swanston, Superintendent John Hornal and Treasurer T. T. Rodger.

They asked the County for $29,934.05 to meet 1952 expenses, an increase over 1951 of $12,176.90. And County Council, already facing the prospect of a record-high budget, slashed suggested appropriation.

The Board of Governors' requests were made up as follows:

$1,909 to be applied toward the cost of upkeep on so-called "paying patients."

Paid $1 a Day

(In 1951 the County Council paid a $1-a-day subsidy on paying patients as a token of recognition of the excess of expenditure over revenue incurred in running Civic Hospital. By this $1-a-day grant county paying patients were able to be treated at the same rate as city paying patients. Other non-city resident patients pay an extra $1 on their personal bills.

(This is the account that County Council washed out today. In effect it is passing the cost along from the ratepayers to the individual paying patient. The balance of the hospital's deficit is raised by taxing city ratepayers.)

$15,785 covering the loss on indigent patients during 1951.

$12,240 covering the difference between city rates and non-resident rates, for residents of the county who would be using the hospital during 1952. (The $1,909.05 was the portion not covered by the 1951 grant on this account).

Reeve James Gifford said he was not in favor of paying this $12,240 account. He said the matter had been thoroughly discussed at the beginning of 1951 and the County Council agreed to pay this account (i.e. the $1 on the paying patients) for the year, but no undertaking was given for 1952.

Council agreed to pay the full cost, as requested by the Board of Governors, on indigents.

Cost Slightly Less

The average daily cost of all patients in Civic Hospital during 1951 was $14.84 a day, said Mr. Hornal. But, because of some lesser services, the indigents cost is $13.75.

On indigent patients the Hospital receives the statutory rate of $3.50, plus a provincial public ward grant of $1.61, plus a provincial grant for indigent patients. Grant altogether come to $6.75, leaving a net loss of $7 a day on indigents.

The total number of indigent patient days charged up to residents of Peterborough County during 1951 was 2,255. At $7 a day, this brings their cost of hospitalization up to $15,785—the amount requested by the Board.

With much less discussion and heat the County Council passed the indigent patient account for St. Joseph's Hospital.

There were 2,374 patient days of hospitalization by Peterborough County residents in St. Joseph's—actually 119 more days than in Civic.

But the daily loss on indigents, as computed at St. Joseph's, is $2.75. And they asked the County Council for $6,528.50.

It is estimated that the average daily cost for an indigent at St. Joseph's is $9.50. Total grants (the same as at Civic) are $6.75. Grants plus the $2.75 from the county, bring the figure up to $9.50 a day.

$500,000 Tagged In Budget For Post Office

That $500,000 item for the Peterborough postal-customs building in the federal government's estimates for this year apparently signifies a nearer approach to construction.

The appropriation, which includes a revote of $200,000, obviously provides ample funds for whatever work might be done in one year.

A brief note from G. K. Fraser, M.P., this morning mentioned the fact that this money has been "ear-marked for the federal building in Peterborough."

The renewed reference to the local project may not have been a surprise to the members of the council of last year who were hosts at a dinner in the McGillis Hotel to Senator W. A. Fraser on his way home to Trenton from Ottawa for the Christmas period.

Wait For Steel

On that occasion Senator Fraser mentioned the long deferred postal-customs building. He said the government had the site and plans, and that actual construction this year might depend only on the available supply of steel.

That was the last information heard here, and it may be that the half million dollar amount in the estimates for this year will bring the government's project nearer to actuality.

The site is the property on the south side of Charlotte St., between the creek and Louis St., that is in temporary lease as a parking area.

Provincial Commissioner Inspects St. John Brigade

Annual inspection of the St. John Ambulance Brigade of Peterborough was made Wednesday night by three top officials of the Ontario corps. V. A. M. Kempt, provincial commissioner, was assisted in the inspection by Mrs. Ethel Anderson, provincial nursing officer, and James Taylor, district officer for the Toronto area (including Peterborough).

Following the inspection, which was held in the armouries, practical demonstrations were given. These included bandaging for fractures and lacerations, artificial respiration, and (by the women's division), making a hospital bed.

Pleased By Showing

The provincial officials said they were pleased with the Peterborough corps' showing.

There are 60 members of the women's division, 14 men in the Peterborough division, and 26 in the newly-formed Kawartha division. This later group, under E. G. Baker, is made up of men from the city's industries.

When the city's civil defence scheme is underway, members of the corps will act as lecturers in first aid. The three divisions in Peterborough make up one of the largest corps in the province for cities of this size.

Acting corps commander is Leo Tomkins; commander of the women's division is Miss Florence Vickers.

County Profits On Timber Cut

The reforestation committee of the Peterborough County Council are hoping to wind up timber cutting operations in the country's reforestation area with a $1,000 surplus.

Reeve James Humphrey of Asphodel said between 50,000 and 55,000 board feet of timber (log measure) were cut over a four-month period. The work was done by Caretaker James Moore and his father; and during a two-and-a-half month period, when Mr. Moore, Sr. was ill, an extra man was hired.

Harold Mace, Lakefield lumberman, has contracted to buy the lumber at a price of $50 a thousand board feet, a total revenue of at least $2,500.

Most of the timber cut this year was pine and spruce.

Last year there were more than 100,000 board feet of timber cut but at one time there were six men employed on the job.

This year there were only two men—Caretaker Moore and either his father or another man. Altogether they cut and hauled 1,165 logs.

Mr. Mace has the alternative of milling the logs on the premises or hauling them away. He was the only one to bid when tenders were called for, said Reeve Humphries.

The reforestation area is 4,800 acres in extent, lying north of Norwood, mostly in Dummer township.

Church Group Leaders Take Training Course

Church group leaders were in attendance Wednesday night for the Leadership Training Course being conducted at the Y.M.C.A. The three-night program is sponsored by the Peterborough Boys' Work Board.

The course is divided into three sessions directed by Y.M.C.A. leaders. The sessions include: Group Work Theory, Charles Forsythe; Mid-week Activities, Bill McFarlane, and Recreation led by Fraser Wade and Alex Sinclair, Recreation Director.

The course ends Friday night.

Driver Blameless In Death Of Pedestrian

At an inquest into the death of Murney Martin, 68, 267 Simcoe St., Wednesday afternoon, a coroner's jury found that Martin died January 27 due to complications which set in after he was hit by a car on January 12.

The five-man jury exonerated Elwood McIlmoyle, 33 Armour Rd., the driver of the car, of all responsibility, but brought in two recommendations for the safety of pedestrians.

"In view of the evidence submitted, we strongly recommend that the proper authorities be approached with the view of receiving improved lighting facilities and better provisions for pedestrian traffic along Highway 7 where the accident occurred," the jury stated in its verdict.

Pulled Out To Pass

McIlmoyle told the jury he was driving east on Otonabee St., and pulled out to pass a car travelling ahead. He said he did not see Martin, walking on the north side of the pavement, until he was about six feet away from him. He said he applied his brakes and pulled toward the car he was passing, but was unable to avoid hitting Martin.

Dr. Robert E. Pow, who attended Martin at St. Joseph's Hospital from the time he was injured until his death 15 days later, said Martin received a broken left leg, bruises in the region of the pelvis and lacerations on his chin in the accident. Dr. Pow said that Martin died of pneumonia and that the pathologist's report showed evidence of fat embolism. It is not unusual, Dr. Pow said, in cases of bone fractures that little globules of fat enter the blood stream which are carried to the brain, kidneys and lungs, and set up inflammation.

Dark Spot

The accident occurred about 11 p.m. at night, near Police Chief John Thompson's home, and Chief Thompson told the jury at the inquest that there "definitely is a dark spot in the road," just east of the Locks Bridge where the accident happened. Chief Thompson explained that the nearest light east of where Martin was hit was 98 paces to the east, and the nearest light to the west was 42 paces away.

Frank Jobbitt was foreman of the jury. The other members were: Joseph Primeau, John Thompson, Vincent Crowley and Joseph Slattery. Dr. H. G. Carleton was the presiding coroner.

Industrial Expansion Brings Growing Pains and Inflation To Citizens Of Brazil

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Brazil is in the midst of a boom, if an expansion that has been going on for 30 years can be called a boom. She also has inflation. On a recent trip our party heard many stories about both.

The background is that Brazil proceeded for many years at a relatively easy pace, with an agricultural aristocracy controlling most of the wealth.

Now she is experiencing fast industrialization and growing pains. However, traditionally she is a stable country of calm people who have shown capacity for working out their own problems.

Brazil's development, though shared by the capital, Rio de Janeiro, centres about the energetic city of Sao Paulo. Sao Paulo's growth apparently started with the movement to its area of coffee plantations from the "mined out" areas around Rio.

Now the plantations are moving further south and west into the state of Parana, and this seems to forecast that the present surging development will spread throughout southern Brazil.

New Millionaires

The situation has created its quota of new industrial barons and millionaires.

Here are some of the boom and inflation stories:

First, housing. Some 25 years ago Rio and Sao Paulo had virtually no buildings of more than three or four stories. Today their panoramas are featured by hundreds of tall, white buildings, 10, 20, 30 storeys high.

Large numbers of these are apartment buildings and many are sold by individual apartments. We were told that a builder or financier will start a building, sell the apartments at the blueprint stage, and through a combination of down payments from the buyers and financing, will be out of the project with his profit before the building is finished.

Don't feel too sorry for those who paid high prices for the apartments. Before the building is finished, they, too, may have resold their apartments at another profit.

We met one young executive who is paying $27,000 for an apartment of moderate-sized living room, one bedroom, dining room, kitchen and bathroom. One man told us he bought a home in 1939 for $7,500 and sold it in 1950 for $75,000. Another home, beautiful, but by no means an estate, is being offered at $450,000. We visited one home on grounds about 200 feet by 450 feet, bought 45 years ago for $15,000 which would bring $1,000,000 today from apartment builders.

Cost of Living Soars

We were told, the figures seem to bear it out, that the cost of living has advanced 300 to 400 per cent in seven years, and the cost of food 500 per cent.

A one-family home rents for $250 to $300 a month for those who can afford it, if they can get it. There are virtually no heating costs. Food seems to cost less than in Canada, but the wages of the mass of people are lower.

Unskilled labor gets the equivalent of $100 a month. Stenographers get $175 a month, and if bilingual, up to $260. A maid or cook is available at $30 a month, though housewives complain that help is not what it used to be.

Banks pay three to four per cent on deposits and six per cent on deposits of six months or more. Borrowers pay the banks up to 12 per cent, the limit allowed by law, for small loans, and eight per cent for larger ones. Real estate mortgages run between 10 and 12 per cent.

Two Stars Happy At Ice Show

VANCOUVER, March 20—(CP)—Barbara Ann Scott and Andra McLaughlin both skated Wednesday night at the opening of the Vancouver Skating Club's annual ice show.

Andra got her picture on the program cover—it was printed some time ago—and Barbara Ann got the star billing.

Miss Scott, who Wednesday replaced the 17-year-old American as the headliner of the two-night show, broke down and wept Wednesday and said: "I did not want to hurt anyone."

Andra's mother had said the young skater, who appears with Barbara Ann in Miss Scott's touring U.S. show, was "sick with shock" at her replacement.

But on the ice—at least—both were smiling.

Earlier, Barbara Ann had said: "I gave up my holidays and came here as a special favor for my old instructor, Otto Gold. But I'll go home if my being here causes so much trouble."

Mountie Describes Debate On His Death

SYDNEY, N. S., March 20 (CP)—An R.C.M.P. constable, whose duty it is to keep law on the Eskasoni reservation, told Tuesday of a 30-minute battle with two Indians and how he escaped when the accused argued which one would bring a double-edged axe down on his neck.

Constable Arthur Walsh told his story during the trial of Stephen Marshall, 26, and John Marshall, 28, brothers, who are charged with assault occasioning grievous bodily harm.

Stephen Marshall pleaded guilty and was remanded until Monday for sentence. John Marshall was committed to Supreme Court for preliminary hearing.

Both originally were charged with attempted murder.

300 Bones Broken

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—Three hundred bones for which compensation is paid are broken in Ontario every day, E. E. Sparrow, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, said Wednesday in an address. "We have got to do a better job in accident prevention. The 210,000 accidents we will have in 1952 are too many."

Police Seize Lottery Tickets

OTTAWA, March 20 (CP) — Police Wednesday announced the seizure of a second large batch of lottery tickets and said Ottawa may be the Canadian headquarters of a country-wide lottery ring.

Seven parcels containing 75 books of tickets and stubs and money orders amounting to almost $1,000 were confiscated by police Tuesday. Monday they seized 51 parcels containing tickets and money orders worth $800.

Police said the parcels contained ticket books for the Irish Sweepstakes, the Army and Navy draw and the Brockville Playgrounds drawing.

The parcels were addressed to various fictitious persons in towns in the Ottawa district both in Ontario and Quebec. They were picked up by police at express offices here and contained stubs and money orders from as far away as the Yukon.

Police believe they were to be picked up in the small towns to which they were addressed.

Village Admits Defeat Residents Moving

TIGNES, France, March 20 — (AP)—The resistance leaders of the village of Tignes sadly conceded defeat Wednesday and most of the 400 inhabitants began to pack their belongings.

In a few weeks the village will be razed and buried by a 600-foot deep reservoir of the largest hydro-electric power station in western Europe.

Acting Mayor Justin Raymond and his friends at first had said they would defy the government's evacuation order until they either received what they considered adequate compensation or were removed by force.

Hold Up Action

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—Board of Control Wednesday held up immediate action on Mayor Allan A. Lamport's proposal to expropriate the Consumers' Gas Company. The Mayor asked for a bylaw after the firm announced a 25-per-cent increase. The board also indicated it would move for a public vote on them after next Dec. 1.

Writer Argues That Russia Really Won 2nd World War

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 20—(CP)—Who really won the war, anyway? Six years after the cease-fire in Europe, along comes a writer who reinforces the suspicion that Russia was the lucky country.

In a carefully-documented, 766-page study, hailed here as the war - book -to-end-all-war-books, Australian-born Chester Wilmot argues that largely because of United States confidence — and suspicion of Britain — Stalin emerged from the Second World War as master of half of Europe.

Wilmot's story is outlined in "The Struggle for Europe" (Collins), to be published late in March in Canada and the United States. Wilmot covered the war as a B.B.C. correspondent and spent post-war years poring over battle documents. One of his chief conclusions is that the late Franklin D. Roosevelt mistrusted Britain, as an imperial power allegedly bearing "the colonial stigma," even more than Russia.

"That assessment of his allies," says Wilmot, "was a decisive factor in Roosevelt's readiness to make concessions to the Soviet Union both in Europe and in Asia in order to ensure Stalin's entry into the Pacific war."

Not all authorities are entirely in accord. A book published here recently by George Kennan, famed "Mr. X" of the U.S. State Department, takes the view that the Anglo-Saxon powers, once engaged in mortal conflict with Germany, could have done little different from what Roosevelt and Winston Churchill did.

Kennan contends the almost inevitable result of a war which the democratic states could not win against one totalitarian state without help from another totalitarian state was bound to deliver a large part of Europe into Russian hands.

In view of recent conflicts within the British Labor Party based partly on the real degree of the Russian danger, it is interesting that Kennan, original apostle of "containment," and Wilmot are firm believers in the policy of negotiating from strength. They do not underrate Russia.

Wilmot's book contains a secondary theme. This is in general a sympathetic examination of Anglo-American differences of opinion and in particular an expression of the view that the war might have been cleaned up in 1944 if Britain's Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery had had his wa.

Broadly, Montgomery argued for a single decisive military stroke on a narrow front. Wilmot quotes Montgomery as saying after the Normandy breakout:

"We must decide on one thrust and put all the maintenance to support that. If we split the maintenance and advance on a broad front, we shall be so weak everywhere that we will have no chance of success."

Wilmot says that even if 15 divisions had carried on after the capture of Brussels and Liege, as proposed by Montgomery, the Germans would have been unable to stop them seizing the Ruhr. Von Blumentritt, chief of staff to Gen. Karl Von Rundstedt, is quoted as saying such a breakthrough "would have torn the weak German front to pieces and ended the war in the winter of 1944."

Wilmot is understood to have started his book prejudiced against Montgomery, but to have finished his studies a convinced Monty man. "The Struggle for Europe" casts considerable light on the differences between Montgomery and such American generals as Omar Bradley, whose book on the war contains critical references to British generalship.

On the other hand, Wilmot is not one-sided in his judgments and admits that Monty had some frailties, including the habit of exercising his authority "almost as a matter of right."

CORRECT COCKTAIL COSTUME—'Susie,' a chinchilla living in Wells, Me., is all dressed-up in a full-length chinchilla coat, (her own), as she whiles away some time over cocktails. However, her owner, Frank Sawyer, says it's all in her mind. The "straw" is a piece of hay, baited with a raisin, and the "cocktail" is only water. Owning a chinchilla coat should be intoxicating enough for anyone.

Boston Firm Charged Cruelty To Animals

QUEBEC, March 20 — (CP). — A Boston horsemeat firm, charged with cruelty to animals, said Wednesday it was told by a veterinarian to leave horses out in a fieldd uring cold weather to keep them healthy.

Superior Packers, Ltd., operating a slaughterhouse at nearby St. Louis de Pintendre, is charged with "maliciously, cruelly and without necessity having maltreated, abused and abandoned horses, causing them undue sufferings." The plant manufactures dog food.

One Wash A Day Enough For Child

LONDON, March 20 (Reuters) —Dirty little boys have a champion. Dr. C. Leonard Williams, skin specialist and Minister of Health for the Essex County town of Barking, says one wash a day is sufficient for any child.

He explained in a report:

"As soon as children get a little grimy, mothers rush them off to a washbowl and give them a good going over with soap and water, taking not only the dirt but the natural oils from the skin.

"The skin becomes like blotting paper so that they are grubby again in no time. The oils in the skin are natural germ killers."

ONTARIO BUDGET INDICATES YEAR OF GROWTH AND PROGRESS

Expenditures On Housing May Total $40 Million In Fiscal Year

TORONTO, March 20. (CP)—Expenditures on housing in Ontario by the Federal and Provincial governments may total $40,000,000 in the fiscal year starting April 1, Premier Frost told the Ontario legislature today in his budget speech. The Premier, announcing that $10,000,000 is budgeted by the Province for housing projects, said the Federal government is a 75-per-cent partner in many of the projects. "It will be seen that this can involve an expenditure of more than $40,000,000 next year if such a vast sum can be expended in view of the many involvements, including availability of land, shortages of labor and material and the requirements of private industry in house and other construction work."

A decrease in completions of new housing in 1952 is "unavoidable," unless conditions change drastically. Tighter credit restrictions and a higher interest rate were major factors in the decrease.

Ontario was urging the Federal government to ease restrictions on private building by reducing down payments and alloting materials in cases of shortages. "This, in our belief, is the method by which to get the greatest number of units constructed.

Many-sided Approval.

Mr. Frost referred to the "many-sided approach" to the housing problem contained in legislation introduced Wednesday. New measures included: extension and simplification of alnd assembly, plans, the new principle of gearing taxes to rentals, broad power of land expropriation for house-building, redevelopment of deteriorated areas in municipalities, and a Crown Corporation to loan money for building in rural areas.

Present measures for providing serviced land for housing in co-operation with municipalities were "meeting with real success," and the government felt the plan would be "greatly extended."

The rental housing plan, begun last June with Federal and Municipal partnership, was still not fully developed.

"This type of housing is new to our people as well as to ourselves and to the municipalities," the Premier said. "Authorites have to be set up. Experience has to be gained, but this plan will prove a very useful auxiliary to providing houses for that segment of our population which is interested in rental units."

A bill introduced Wednesday for loans to young farmers to help them acquire their own farms had a bearing on rural housing. In the first year of the plan, organization would have to be set up and $1,000,000 was being provided as a start for the Crown Corporation which will make the loans.

"We are confident, however, that this act will make a real contribuation to maintaining our rural population and not only encouring, but definitely making it possible for young people to take up the great business of agriculture as their lifetime work.

THREE GOES INTO ONE?—Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill), tries to pour three glassfuls of water into one glass, and thereby gets a copy of President Truman's Economic Report, on which the glass rests, all wet. Douglas, a former professor, performed the "experiment" for Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder during a Congressional hearing. He was dramatizing his belief that large-scale purchase of Government bonds by the Federal Reserve System causes higher prices by expanding bank credit. The surplus water represents extra bank credit, which can't be contained.

Frost Delivers 10th Address, Breaks Record

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario delivered his 10th budget address in the provincial legislature today and broke a 53-year record.

The late Hon. William Harcourt, treasurer in Sir Oliver Mowat's Liberal administration in the 1890's, held the previous record for number of Ontario budget addresses with nine. He started his string in 1891 and wound it up in 1899.

Mr. Frost, provincial treasurer in the Progressive Conservative Government since 1943, broke the record by a whisker. He has had nine main budget addresses, starting in 1944. But he made two in 1945. One was early in the year, but the Government was defeated on a want-of-confidence motion and called an election. He made a second, and short, budget speech in a session which followed almost immediately after the vote.

In a meeting with newspapermen Wednesday, Mr. Frost gave a graphic picture of how Ontario's financial problems have grown. Mr. Harcourt's nine budgets ran about $3,500,000 apiece and totalled about $30,000,000. The nine-year aggregate is about one-tenth of the current spending provided in today's budget. The Harcourt budgets provided for some $4,000,000 in capital expenditures over nine years—the province's capital payments in the next year are estimated at $109,419,000.

HER KINDNESS REPAID—A two-month vacation in Hawaii will be enjoyed by Mrs. Nellie Kiefer, 66-year-old widow, of La Crosse, Wis., who recently received a check for $450 from Japanese-American soldiers of the 100th Infantry Btn., and 442nd Regimental Combat Team. Mrs. Keifer befriended the men when they were stationed at Camp McCoy during World War II. An additional token of their esteem is this scroll, sent to Mrs. Kiefer by one of the men.

Bettor Given Budget Break In Ontario

TORONTO, March 20— (CP) — Premier Frost took note of the plight of the two-buck bettor today and gave him a chance at slightly bigger returns in the 1952 racing season.

In his budget speech in the Ontario Legislature, the Premier announced that the race-track parimutuel tax was being reduced so that the tax, plus the track's share of each betting pool, would be 17 per cent. Last year it was 19 per cent.

The tax reduction ranges from one-fifth to one-seventh. The new rates starts at eight per cent on the first $20,000 bet on a race an moves up to 12 per cent on everything over $50,000. Last year the range was from 10 to 14 per cent.

The change means that $83 of every $100 wagered at parimutuels will be distributed to the bettors. Last year they got back $81.

At a pre-budget press conference, Mr. Frost said the aim was to cut down illegal bookmaking.

The Thousand Islands area in Eastern Ontario was known to the ancient Indians as the "Garden of the Great Spirit".

Canadian Mission Member Freed By Chinese Reds

By WILLIAM BOSS

HONG KONG, March 20 — (CP)—The Rev. Don A. Cunningham of Three Hills, Alta., freed Sunday by the Chinese Communists, has joined his wife and family on a nearby island and now is recuperatiing from his ordeal.

Cunningham was escorted to the Luwo frontier post, 32 miles north of here, by Communist guards and turned over to British frontier police. He arrived without advance notice after 11 months in jail at Luchien, in Szechwan Province of West China.

The Baptist missionary was the last Canadian serving the China Inland Mission in the interior of China. About 60 other members of Canadian Protestant missionary families—mostly of the United Church of Canada—still are there.

(The China Inland Mission headquarters in Toronto, announcing Cunningham's release, said Tuesday 77 other Canadians from its missions in China previously have returned home since Communist persecution started.)

Cunningham was reached by telephone at mission headquarters in Hong Kong and an interview with him was arranged. Later, however, mission officials said the interview could not be held.

Too Dangerous

The Rev. R. J. R. Butler, acting overseas director for the mission, said it is "against China Inland Mission policy to allow missionaries to speak publicly lest they jeopardize the future of others still in Communist hands.

Seventeen or 18 other China Inland Mission staff, not Canadians, still are in China.

Canadian officials here said some of the United Church missionaries still in China are expected to reach Hong Kong next week. Among this group are the Rev. and Mrs. William W. Small, the Rev. and Mrs. L. G. Kilborn, and the Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Wilmott, all of Toronto.

Butler said Cunningham and his family plan to sail for Canada April 10.

Canadian officials here said that, on the whole, Canadian Protestant missionaries in China are jailed but not otherwise maltreated by the Reds.

Lonely Pups

MONTREAL—(CP)—One of the strongest requests received by the student placement service of McGill University was for a "Baby sitter—to watch three Cocker Spaniel pups, three nights a week. The owners explained they lived in an apartment house and if the dogs were left alone they started howling, disturbing other tenants. Sitters were supplied at 40 cents an hour.

Good Old Days

TRURO, N.S.—(CP)—A payroll document of the Nova Scotia Railroad for June, 1859, recently discovered here, showed operators of the wood-burning locomotives were paid £5, 9 shillings a month. That was the average cash wage and there were no deductions for income tax.

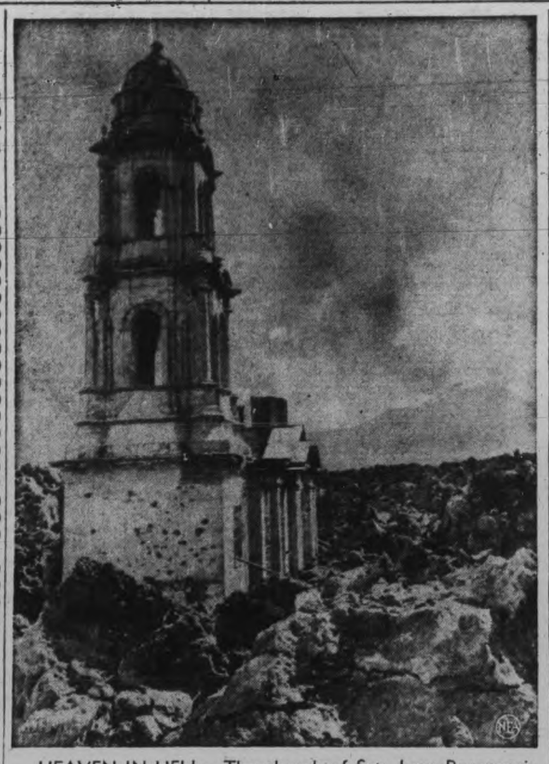
Fraserville W.A. Meets

FRASERVILLE, March 20 — (ENS)— The W. A. met at the home of Mrs. K. Larmer. Mrs. Percy Moncrief was pianist. Mrs. W. Waterman read the topic of the month, "The Lost Sheep."

It was moved and seconded that the society pay their share of the price of the electric appliances bought for the parsonage.

It was decided to hold a crokinole party Friday in the Orange hall at Fraserville. Mrs. H. L. Yarr had charge of the program entitled "The New Queen" and "Newfoundland Journey."



HEAVEN IN HELL—The church of San Juan Parangaricutro is almost inundated by remorseless flow of lava as Mexico's newest volcano, Paracutin, born in 1943, continues to erupt. From its cone in Michoacan, Mexico, more than four miles of lava has incinerated three villages, and built a cone 4,000 feet above the surface of the cornfield where Paracutin first appeared.

Profited By Shunning Tax Tie-up

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—Ontario profited by shunning a tax agreement with the Dominion Government, Premier Frost said today, but he shoved the door open for fresh discussion of the question.

In his budget speech to the Ontario Legislature, the Premier tabled figures showing that the province collected $7,993,000 more by retaining its tax fields than if it had surrendered them in return for grants the federal government first offered in 1947-48.

Then he said: "For the year 1952-53 we have prepared and balanced our accounts. We are budgetting for a surplus. None of this precludes the possibility of the province entering into an agreement or agreements on tax matters. The door is wide open for discussion".

Ontario and Quebec, the two provinces which declined the federal tax agreements offer helped themselves and the rest of Canada by their policies, Mr. Frost said.

Mutual Success

The Dominion and Ontario had achieved real success in mutual dealings. They reached agreements on old age pensions, housing, the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Developments, the Niagara Treaty, the Trans-Canada Highway, conservation and other matters.

Ontario had to consider its own interests as well as those of the rest of Canada.

"I have said before—and this applies as well to taxation agreements as to aything else—that an agreement which is not good for all parties is not a good agreement. It must be fair and protect the interests of all. It must be a Canadian approach, brought about by men of goodwill. The federal offers have not been made in a take-it-or-leave-it attitude and our position is similar".

New Formula For Mining Grants

TORONTO, March 20 (CP)—The Ontario government today came up with a new formula for grants to mining municipalities which will give them $1,300,000 in the next year, an increase of about $480,000 over 1951.

Premier Frost, Provincial Treasurer, said in his budget address that the scheme was too complicated to outline in detail. Roughly, it is based on factors such as where miners live, amount of profits of mines within the municipality, the municipal tax rate and the assumed assessment figures for miners' homes.

The premier said the old stem was outmoded. Since the beginnings of mining in the northern part of the province, the municipalities got their tax revenue from participation in the province's mining tax receipts. They were entitled to a prescribed share of mining royalties collected by the province. Since 1943 these amounts had been supplemented by grants-in-aid.

Unfair System

A mine within a municipality might employ a large number of men, carry on a big operation and yet have no profits to pay over to the province. Other mines might be outside the municipality where its miners lived and also pay nothing.

Under the new system none of the 25 mining municipalities would receive less money than under the old. It was learned that the three largest mining centres would gain by the deal. Sudbury would get $130,000 more than last year, Timmins $90,000 and the township of Teck (Kirkland Lake) $55,000.

Patricias' O.C. Receives New Promotion

OTTAWA, March 20 (CP). — Command of the 1st Battalion, P.P.C.L.I., is changing hands in Korea.

The army announced Wednesday that Lt.-Col. Norman Wilson-Smith, 35, formerly of Winnipeg, is leaving the Patricias to become the No. 1 staff officer at headquarters of the Commonwealth Division in Korea.

His job will be taken by Lt.-Col. John Ralph Cameron, 37, a former Halifax barrister, who is now commanding the 25th Brigade's reinforcement group in Japan.

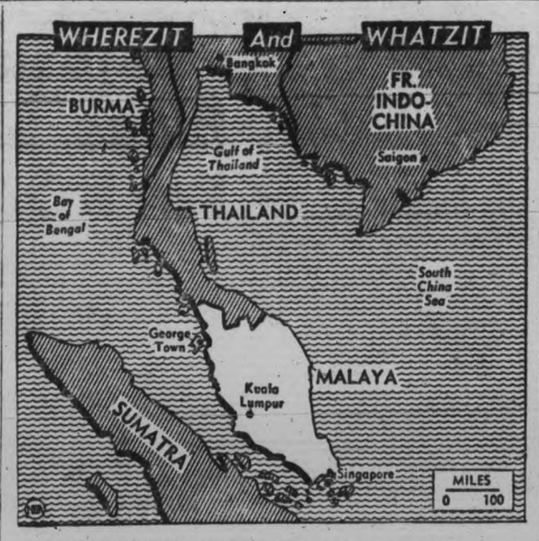
The reinforcement job will be taken by Lt.-Col. Gustave Oliver Taschereau, D.S.O., 39, of Quebec City, who will leave shortly for Japan from Valcartier, Que.

Lt.-Col. Wilson Smith is taking the divisional staff job as general staff officer, grade one, originally slated to go to Lt.-Col. D. W. Cunnington, Calgary, who now is unable to go to Korea because of illness.

He took over command of the Korean Patricias at the time late last year when the 1st Battalion succeeded the 2nd Battalion in the line. He was severely wounded in Normandy in 1944.

Lt.-Col. Cameron served as a company commander with the West Nova Scotia Regiment in Sicily and Italy and became the unit's second-in-command.

Lt.-Col. Taschereau won the D.S.O. while commanding Le Regiment de la Chaudiere in Europe in the war.



THE FEDERATION OF MALAYA, born in a state of emergency under the British crown in 1948, is the scene of one of the "little wars" of Southeast Asia. Some 3,000 to 5,000 Communist guerrillas have kept up a reign of terror, despite efforts of 100,000-plus British regulars, colonials and native forces to wipe them out. Malaya came under British protection in the early 19th century and under British rule near the end of the century. It was Western's World's Auto Age that saw the country develop into one of the world's richest suppliers of raw materials—most notably rubber and tin. In Malaya's roaring Twenties and Thirties, the capital city of Kuala Lumpur ("rubber capital of the world") doubled in size, to 14,000, and took on a strong European flavor. Just before World War II, Malaya was supplying three-fourths of world tin and three-fifths of rubber used in United States—economic facts that proved extremely discomforting when the Japanese overran the entire peninsula, including the highly-vaunted British naval base at Singapore. Despite the terrorism of Red guerrillas, Malaya manages to keep its economy going. It is still the British Empire's chief earner of dollars. British planters live in flood-lighted, barbed-wire enclosures, and travel in armored cars, against Red ambush—such as that which killed the British High Commissioner, Sir Henry Gurney, last fall. And the 2,500,000 native Malayans and 1,800,000 Chinese continue to plod their leisurely way, not taking with great fervor to either side in the East-West struggle that swirls about them.

Egg-Marketing Proposal Branded Racket

BRANTFORD, March 20 (CP)—An egg-marketing plan proposed by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture was branded a racket and a wildcat scheme by a meeting here Wednesday of Brant county poultrymen.

Frank Ellis of Woodstock, president of the Oxford County Federation of Agriculture, said: "this scheme will make suckers out of us."

He referred to the Ontario Federation's proposal to collect one cent a dozen from all producers who use egg-grading stations until $2,000,000 has been raised, borrow an additional $16,000,000 through banks and purchase surplus eggs in Ontario, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta for storage and later resale.

"The (Ontario) Federation proposes to hire a man who knows enough to buy eggs when they're at a low price and to sell them when they're at a higher price," Mr. Ellis said. "Such a man just doesn't exist."

A vote on the proposal by Ontario producers is expected to be taken during Easter week.

In Ontario, if poultrymen voted the scheme in, an eight-man board would have the legal power to set prices, control production and grant licences to egg-grading stations.

MONTREAL, Mar. 20th—Something to keep the family happy in this gloomy season between winter and spring? Good food will do the trick every time! That's why I make a point of serving extra-delicious, extra nourishing JELL-O PUDDING desserts when I particularly want to please the folks. It's just like a party when you serve milk-rich Jell-O Puddings—they offer so much variety and they're so wonderfully tempting. The youngsters particularly will love all the flavours—Vanilla, Chocolate, Butterscotch and Caramel. And don't forget the three wonderful Jell-O Tapioca Puddings. Mmm!—good and good for you! And a Jell-O Pudding is easily one of the most economical and simple-to-prepare desserts you could serve.

Your Husband Will Think You're Wonderful . . . "How do you get my shirts so white?", he'll say. And, giving credit where credit's due, you'll tell him it's Blue. Yes, Blue does the best job of all in keeping clothes from turning yellow. Just a swish or two of Blue in the final rinsing—that's all there is to it. And it's so completely safe for the fine fabrics in your wash! Those wonderful sheets you got for your anniversary—the luncheon set that's your pride and joy . . . don't take chances—use safe-as-can-be Blue to keep them snow-white. Costs just a few pennies a month—that's budget-wise, isn't it?

Yes, for the whitest wash, it's RECKITT'S Blue.

No Wonder It's Been "Canada's Favourite" Since 1893! WINDSOR SALT makes such a delicious difference in the flavour of food. Try it in all your recipes that call for salt. See how it makes all the difference between "flat" and "bright". And another thing you'll like about Windsor Salt . . . it's always free-running . . . no annoying lumps, no matter how damp the weather! I always use Windsor Salt—in the kitchen and at the table. I even add a pinch of it to my coffee. Just put it in the ground coffee before brewing—and delight in the way it perks up the flavour. M-mmm!—And sprinkled on grapefruit, Windsor Salt works the same flavour magic. Try it and see!

W.M.S. Plans Easter Service At Springville

The March meeting of Springville W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Davis with an attendance of nineteen ladies.

Mrs. Murray, president, opened the meeting.

The Easter thank-offering was announced, to be held in Springville United Church on March 26 at 8 o'clock. Miss Rorke, a returned missionary from Japan, will speak.

Mrs. A. E. Larke read a letter stating that the allocation for 1952 was not being raised.

Mrs. Whittington, program convener, led the worship service by reading scripture lesson. Mrs. McIntosh led in prayer. Mrs. Lytle presented the next portion of the study book on Orientals. She mentioned that these citizens, Japanese and Chinese, are confused by our many denominations, all worshipping the one Jesus. She also touched on the evacuation of Japanese from their established homes during the war, a disgrace to Canada. Of 5,000 Japanese in Toronto 2,000 adhere to the United Church.

Mrs. Allan Stevens introduced Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon, R.N., as guest speaker. She spoke on the relief registry nurses' service, giving an overall picture of its service to the community at large —the need of a doctor or nurse in an emergency; to police when an accident or emergency occurs; to doctors and nurses themselves and public generally. She mentioned that they were not assisted financially by the community chest, though application had been made. Mrs. Lytle expressed the thanks of the ladies to Mrs. Kingdon. A social hour and refreshments were served.

Norwood C.G.I.T. Marks St. Patrick's Day

NORWOOD, March 20 (ENS) —Norwood C.G.I.T. celebrated St. Patrick's Day Tuesday evening with a mother and daughter box social held in the United church Sunday school rooms.

The party opened with a skit by the girls based on their mission study course given by Mrs. Donald Paxton.

Mrs. Donald Audas read the introduction followed by each girl giving a different reading on a mission in Canada.

While Mrs. Wright, Mrs. John Starke and Miss Pauline Weir judged the boxes a sing-song was held.

The Busy Bees group dressed as Indians put on a skit by the light of an artificial bonfire.

Patsy McNab assisted by Ann Sinclair and Beverly Rothwell conducted a game in which the girls and mothers participated.

Mrs. Harold Wright presented a prize to Patricia Cleveland for the prettiest box. The prize for the most original box went to Ann LaBrash. Beverly McNab, helped by Lois Scott, auctioned the boxes. Sixty mothers and girls then ate lunch.

Beverly McNab, Patricia McNab, Lois Scott, Nona Scott, Barbara Rae, Ann Sinclair, Beverly Rothwell and Shirley Millett prepared the program, assisted by their leader.

Lakefield Holds Irish Show

LAKEFIELD, March 20 (ENS) —Ireland's patron saint was honored Monday evening when the Missionary and Service Club of the United Church held a St. Patrick's party and program. The Rev. W. H. Tonge was master of ceremonies.

The varied program included community singing of Irish songs and several stunts by members of the audience. Miss Louise Anderson played a piano accordion number and piano solos were played by Master Billy Hunter and Miss Margaret Richardson.

The club was honored with a visit from "Madame Lorenzo" of Paris, France, who sang a group of songs. She was introduced by Mr. Tonge and following her performance was presented with a corsage from the Club by Mrs. C. H. Hunter. This was a clever act, well done by Mrs. W. O'Brien as "Madame Lorenzo" and Mrs. Donald Hendren as "The Voice."

Other items on the program included a duet by Harry Wannamaker and Elmer Trethewey, a group of two solos by Mrs. J. R Hull and a solo by Perce Archer with accordion accompaniment by George Jeffery who also sang an Irish song playing his own accompaniment. Two little girls. Agnes Fraser and Sharon Johnston, dressed in Irish costumes danced "The Irish Washerwoman." Accompanists for the program were Mrs. M. Kennedy and John D. Grylls.

Following the concert, refreshments were served by husbands of Club members. Tea was served from a table covered with an embroidered cloth of Irish linen and centred by a silver bowl of shamrock, flanked by green tapers in silver holders. Presiding at the silver tea services were the Rev. W. H. Tonge and W. H Fife. Those serving were, Sam Henderson, Doug. Davis, A. G. Buchanan, Clare Chittick, Ralph Jackman, Sidney Whiting, Clarence Coons, Charles Hunter, George Tanner, George Graham. Dr. L. O. Bailey and Stanley Hart.

General convener for the evening was Mrs. Douglas Davis, assisted by Miss Merle Crawford and Mrs. George Tanner. Publicity was in charge of Mrs. Fife, Mrs. Tonge and Mrs. Davis. Others assisting in various capacities were Mrs. W. W. Leonard, Mrs. C. Payne, Mrs. R. E. Sutton, Mrs. G. Graham, Mrs. C. Chittick, Mrs. John Bell, Mrs. Hull, Mrs. C. H. Hunter, Mrs. J. L. Fraser, Mrs. S. E. Richardson, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. A. W. Newson, Mrs. W. H. Fife, Mrs. S. Hart, and Mrs. Theo. Down.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Fife, Mr. and Mrs. C. Coons and Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Bailey.

Ladies of the church were asked to donate a fancy cup and saucer to the kitchen and as a result 39 were received with several more promised.

Birthday gifts were given to those having birthdays on St. Patrick's day or close to it and were received by Mrs. Stanley Hart, Leslie Tonge and Anne Fraser. Mrs. Fife, the president of the club, also presented Mr. Tonge with a gift for "distinguished service during the evening."

She is being held as a key figure in the $1,500,000 Redfield burglary at Reno. MARY MOORE SAYS:

Ravioli Paste Is Delicious Other Italian Dishes, Sauces

In an Italian restaurant we paid $1.85 each for a ravioli dinner. The service was perfect, of course. The flavour was unexpectedly good. But I thought as I was tasting it that it actually was a most economical dish if it were made at home.

I have never given you a ravioli recipe before, but I hope you will clip this for it is a new venture and will open up a new field of cookery for most of you. Ravioli is a macaroni-type paste, but thin and delicate, shaped like a pocket-book about 3 x 2 inches, and filled with a meat and vegetable or cheese and vegetable filling and served with a rich tomato sauce.

It is delicious and I am sure that several of you who have written to me for other types of national dishes will snap it up and clip it out. The recipe is long and I will not have space to repeat it so here's your chance.

Italian Ravioli Paste

One and one-half teaspoons melted shortening, ½ teaspoon salt, yolk of 1 egg slightly beaten, ½ cup lukewarm water, about 2 cups sifted bread flour—or enough to make a medium thick dough that is not sticky. Add to the melted shortening the salt, egg yolk and water. Mix, then beat in the sifted flour a little at a time. (It must be bread flour.) Turn out on floured board and knead for a few minutes until the dough is smooth and does not stick to the board. Cover with a bowl and allow to stand for 30 minutes at room temperature. Roll out into an oblong about 16 x 18 inches. Brush half of the oblong with beaten egg white.

Arrange about 1½ teaspoons of filling (see below) at even intervals on the brushed side of the dough, having a generous 1-inch space between each little mound of filling. Cover with other half of dough. Press down between each filling, starting at centre to exclude air. Now with a pastry wheel or sharp knife cut out each square, then press down edges to seal them. Be sure they are sealed—the egg white facilitates this. Place on lightly floured wax paper, cover and let stand 1 hour. Turn them over once during this time.

When time comes to cook them, lower them gently in rapidly boiling salted water, cover with towel and boil gently about 20 minutes. If you have rolled the dough out to a 16 x 18 inch rectangle it is thin and 20 minutes is long enough. If one of them shows signs of breaking before this immediately remove them with a perforated egg lifter, letting them drain on it before placing on serving plates—this means only once handling them. Serve about 6 or 8 people to each plate. Cover with Tomato Sauce, and sprinkle thickly with grated Parmesan or old cheddar cheese.

Filling For Ravioli

One-half pound freshly ground meat—beef, veal, lamb or chicken or leftover meat, ¼ cup chopped cooked spinach, ¼ cup chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of nutmeg and cayenne pepper, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 small clove of garlic finely chopped, 1 small onion finely chopped, 1 tablespoon grated old cheese, 1 small egg or 1 large egg yolk. If fresh meat is used fry it in 2 tablespoons butter for 5 minutes first, then add ingredients except egg. Fry gently for about 7 or 8 minutes stirring. Remove from heat and stir in egg. Cool. Use as is or put through food chopper. The Italians mince it very finely. If it is too dry you may add another egg yolk.

If interested readers would like me to give them other ravioli fillings they should write to me?

Tomato Sauce (for ravioli and other Italian dishes).

Two 6-ounce tins Italian-style tomato paste, 1 28-ounce tin tomatoes, 2 tablespoons olive or salad oil, ¼ cup chopped celery, 1¼ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon each nutmeg, pepper, oregano (not essential), ¼ cup chopped parsley, ¼ cup grated cheese, ¼ teaspoon baking soda. Saute the onions, garlic and celery in the oil slowly for 5 minutes. Cut up the canned tomatoes and add them and the tomato paste. Add all ingredients except soda and simmer covered for 1 hour. Add baking soda during last 10 minutes. (This sauce may be used for cooking Italian Meat Balls).

Let me know if you like this Italian dish. I will give you others if it proves as popular with you as it did with me.

St. Patrick's Dinner Held By Roseneath W.A.

ROSENEATH, March 20 (ENS)—The Ways and Means group of the United Church W.A. were hostesses to the ladies of the community at a St. Patrick's banquet Monday evening at Maple Lodge, the tourist home of Mrs. Leslie Sherwin. About sixty ladies sat down at the long tables covered with Irish linen table cloth, centred with yellow daffodils in silver baskets and flanked with green candles in silver holders. Shamrocks and Neptune ferns were in tiny flower pots on the table. Shamrock place cards and the guests wearing green satin bows as a corsage added atmosphere.

Mrs. Isabel Brown is leader of this group with Mrs. George Hoover secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. R. C. White was mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. C. W. Varcoe was pianist for a sing-song of patriotic numbers.

Mrs. White gave the biography of the life of St. Patrick.

Mrs. Ira Merriam gave a recitation, "St. Patrick", this number was composed by Mrs. Merriam's mother, Mrs. Nelson Usher, many years ago. A sing-song of Irish songs followed with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe at the piano; Mrs. Howard Macklin won the prize on a contest conducted by Mrs. Earl Braithwaite; Mrs. Edgar Carew contributed a piano solo; "When Fears Die Down" was the subject of a reading by Mrs. Thomas Coyle; Mrs. Walter Gallagher conducted a "Pat and Mike" quiz won by Mrs. Charles Sandercocks and Mrs. R. C. White's group; Mrs. Louis King gave an Irish reading followed by the singing of "Mother Machree"; Mrs. Les Tucker read "The Wearing of the Green"; Mrs. Earl Thackeray drew the lucky number in a contest by Mrs. Isabel Brown. The birthday prize was carried off by Mrs. Silas Sherwin.

There was brief period of intermission and every lady present autographed a "wish you well" to be sent to Mrs. M. D. Brown, a patient in Peterborough Civic hospital.

Mrs. Louis King was pianist for another Irish sing-song.

Mrs. Earl Waldie, convener of the Courtesy Committee, expressed her thanks to the hostess and everyone assisting with the program and the success of the evening.

G.A. Dress S. American Dolls

Twenty-three members of the Girls' Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church met Tuesday at the home of their leader, Mrs. W. C. Boate, Antrim St., to work on the miniature model of a South American Indian Mission, a project in the mission study. Under direction of Miss Margaret Stevenson each girl dressed a doll in complete South American costume. The dolls represented the mission nurse, the peasant man and woman, the gauchos, or cowboy of the Argentina, Arequipa women in pie-pan hats, reversible in rainy weather, a Bolivian Indian woman with layer upon layer of skirts, Incas women and men in loose robes and wrap-around skirts, Indians from Nicaragua and Peru, etc. The mission itself is complete from the mountains in the background, the mission school and church to the humble abode. On display at the meeting were the gifts received from members and the congregation to be shipped next week for distribution next Christmas at the All Saints Indian Mission School, Prince Albert, Sask.

SCARVES AND JEWELLERY offer many opportunities for wardrobe versatility. A little practice is all that is necessary, for instance, to make a pretty date hat like the one pictured in the upper left hand corner. When you are entertaining guests, try more formal draping of scarves (lower left) tied together at the shoulder and belted at the waist. Three flower pins accent the other side of the neckline. Black and white silk print scarves, one as a gilet top and the other as a bolero (upper centre) spotlight this season's important above-the-waist interest. Gold star pins, worn three at a time, punctuate the belt-line. Always a favorite for at-home evenings or more social events is a bow, fashioned from a pure silk scarf, pinned prettily to accent a V-neckline (lower centre). Scarves and pins can be as glamorous as you like, too. Try tying two hand-woven turquoise and gold organza saris into a soft pouf at your throat, and let one panel float softly in front, while the other gives a dramatic back effect (right).

Mix And Match For Glamor Your Jewellery And Scarves

Start your spring wardrobe with a basic black halter dress. It will suit every mod and every occasion, with the help of your scarf and jewelry arrangements.

And you'll have no difficulty this season finding a wide assortment of enchanting accessories. Scarves are available in every shape, color and size. Much of the newest and smartest jewelry has been designed with this in mind.

Gold star pins and earrings combined with two pure silk print scarves will transform your simple halter dress into a stunning street costume. Wear one scarf as a gilet top (use 36-inch scarf on the square, tie ends around neckline and waistline), and the other as a bolero (fold 36-inch-square scarf on diagonal, drape around shoulders and knot in the back). Accent the costume with handsome gold cuff bracelets.

Always a welcome sign of spring are blossoming floral scarves and flower-shaped pins and earrings. An unusual way to wear these scarves is by tying two 36-inch squares together at the shoulder and then belting them at the waist. The flying panels will give an entirely different appearance to your basic dress. Complete your accessories with feminine, rhinestone bangle bracelets.

Hats usually take a pretty gay turn at this time of year, and if you are in the mood for some frivolous fluff, make a perky bonnet with two long, plaid taffeta scarves. Fold one scarf twice to form a square. Pin a tuck about one inch deep on the fold.

Then fold the second scarf four times to achieve loose pleats at both ends, and pin it two-thirds of the way across. Fold first square on the double, and slide the other scarf through it. Pin both scarves together, place them on your head, and tie at the side.

Dramatize your scarf hat with "period-inspired" rhinestone pins and wide rhinestone bracelets. Wear one pin at each side of your neckline for accentuated interest. Let your ears glitter, too, with big sparkling rhinestone flower earrings.

If you'd like to achieve a unified effect from your jewelry and scarves, look for similar design. A scarf with a circular design, for example, should be accessorized with a circular jewelry motif.

One particularly pretty set of beads features one two-tone grained bead interspersed with one smooth white bead. This set has matching earrings and bracelet.

Your evening accessories should capture the romantic mood of this spring's fashion season. Try as many variations as you like with those new hand-woven organza saris imported from India. Highlight your halter neckline with a gold orchid pin and matching earrings. For your arms, carry out this year's big, but delicate, jewelry theme. Pick lacy gold bracelets.

These are just a few of the possibilities you can try with your jewelry and scarves. As you experiment, you'll probably discover many, many others.

St. Jos. Nurses Put On Irish Program

Traditional Irish songs and dialogue and the "wearin' o' the green" were prominent at the St. Patrick's Day program put on by student nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital in the residence auditorium, where they assembled to the strains of a lively Irish air.

Comptition was keen in a game called "pass the spuds" conducted by Miss Shirley Clysdale and candy was given the winning team. A sprightly duet "Flight of the Leprechaun" played by Ann Stockloser and Thelma Dion. Miss Jacqueline Rogers sang the lovely Irish ballad "Danny Boy." A comic skit entitled "Once there were" was enacted by Madeline Young, Bonnie Sheridan and Rita Chapman.

"Mother Machree" and "Come Back to Erin" were the songs chosen by Mary Curtin. A merry Irish jig was danced by Marie Woodhouse, Jackie Molyneaux and Marguerite Lamey. Roseanne Morrow and Gwen Chatterton harmonized well the "Bells of St. Marye" and "Mother of Ireland" and "Last Rose of Summer" was played by Sirri Paeraid.

Hearty laughter greeted the efforts of the Shamrock Minstrels and McNamara's Band. Some well known Irish favorite songs and jokes were featured by the minstrels, Kay Naud, Marie Hogan, Roseanne Morrow and Betty Rumball with Mary Curtin at the piano. The band was composed of Betty Schiarrizza, leader, Joan Gray, announcer, Ruth Boyce, Eileen Boyce, Teresa O'Rourke, Marion Sprackett, Mary McCarthy with Kay Naud at the piano and script by Patricia Jackson.

A rousing sing song, delicious lunch and a social evening ended the program.

"Mrs. A." Says World Peace Could Be Gained By Prayer

Globe-trotting Kate Aitken was under scrutiny of a thousand pairs of eyes while she spoke for an hour in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, Wednesday afternoon. Mostly they were seeing her for the first time, though familiar with her writings. But the ears were well attuned to her voice from years of regular listening to her radio talks.

Evidence of the immense popularity of "Mrs. A." was this large gathering at an affair sponsored by one of the five groups in St. Paul's Ladies' Aid which has less than 10 active members. Some women were in their seats an hour before the program was scheduled to begin.

Mrs. Aitken was speaking on "It's a new world"—one which she said we are forced to consider on the brink of a third world war. Or, as the German women think of it, —"on an uneasy bridge between the second and third.

Pray For Peace

Her recommendation for a better world is for all women to kneel and to pray for a just and an honorable peace. This woman who is a "woman's woman" is not fussed about women getting into politics. "Let's salt ourselves down at home and look after our responsibilities" she says. "Stretch out in our own atmosphere and the ripples will go all over the world."

"If the world is to be saved, it will be saved by the simple, homely virtues" declared Mrs. Aitken. She emphasized the power of individual thought and the power of individual effort. "We are too lazy to think and too lazy to make an effort", she said.

Words of advice that she gives her two daughters were taken to heart by young mothers in the audience: "Don't become so wrapped up in your children, their diapers and formula, that you no longer think about the world around you." (Mrs. A. was meanwhile thinking that she would likely find she had become a grandmother again by the time she returned to Toronto.)

12-day Globe Trot

Next Thursday, March 27th, Mrs. Aitken begins her latest round-the-world trip—this one to take 12 days. She will be the first woman passenger on the RCAF Korean airlift service, flying direct to Tokyo, via the Aleutians, and will visit the Canadian troops in Korea. She will proceed to India and Pakistan, then to Cairo and Teheran, two notable "hot spots" in the Middle and Near East. From Iran she flies to Rome where preparations will be under way for the observance of Holy Week and from Rome to Britain. The RAF will fly her to Hanover, Germany, where Canada's 27th Brigade is stationed, and she will also visit Frankfurt and Berlin.

Mrs. Aitken described Berlin, from her visit in '49, as an island completely surrounded by Russian territory and in which there is absolutely no industry. She said the German women were not religious but very political minded.

She touched briefly on the International Women's convention at Amsterdam where she said she had learned the most. An account of her coverage of the last election in Britain led back to the election of the Labor party in 1945 and then forward to her meeting with Prime Minister Churchill while he was recently in United States, when he said "his biggest ace in dealing with the U.S.A. was the future of Canada." He was referring to the vast store of minerals. Mrs. Aitken understood fully for she had herself visited Ungava — so terrific, so big a weapon for peace."

Given "Lift"

The talk was taken as a spring tonic and the women felt they had been given a "lift" at a time when it was needed. Mrs. C. G. Boyd expressed the appreciation and also thanked Mrs. Aitken for pleasing remarks about Peterborough and its residents on her national broadcast Wednesday redeeming the city from its headhanging over being called "colorless" by a national magazine.

Chairman Mrs. C. G. Law called upon Mrs. John Hornal, president of the Ladies' Aid to introduce Mrs. Aitken.

Soloist Mrs. Donald Hendren of Lakefield rendered two selections, one unaccompanied, and organist Mr. Christopher Gledhill gave two renditions.

POETIC CLERGYMAN

Spring Flowers Brightly Accent Y's Menettes Tea

Lovely spring flowers brought in the much-anticipated season a few hours earlier at the Y.M.C.A. dining hall where Y's Menettes were holding their annual tea and variety sale Wednesday evening. Mrs. F. Spencley had decorated the tea table with an effective arrangement of daffodils and carnations, the latter tinted green in honor of St. Patrick's Day this week. She had centred the small serving tables with bowls of tulips and daffodils and to complete the favorites she had placed pots with several pretty pastel hyacinths in each on a background ledge.

Tea pourers wore gift corsages of pink roses. They were Mrs. G. H. Roper, Mrs. J. G. Wharry, Mrs. J. A. Dewart and Mrs. Ivan Morgan.

Mrs. Stanley Johnston was in charge of serving and her assistants were Mrs. Jack Richardson, Mrs. N. C. Munro, Mrs Gerry Garten, Mrs. Lee Selkirk, Mrs. Wally Davidson and Mrs. Bill McFarlane replenished the plates. Mrs. Woody Roberts was convener of the refreshments.

Raffle tickets were sold on the table centrepiece and the draw made at conclusion of the evening by Mr. N. C. Munro awarded it to Mrs. W. Hanes of 465 McDonnel St.

The door prize was an engagement ring which had been donated to the club for such a purpose. The draw was made by Mr. Joe Barnard, president of the Y's Men's Club, and the winner was Mr. Fraser Wade of the Y.M.C.A. staff.

Aprons and used clothing sold well at the shamrock-decorated table attended by Mrs. Joe Watson and Mrs. Bob Miller. The candy table sold out under convenership of Mrs. Spencley but Mrs. Barnard and Mrs. Osborne were not so lucky with their home cooking. Mrs. Grant Gillespie and Mrs. D. P. Moes sold some knick knacks and used books.

The club has a total membership to date of 25 and its project is to help with the boys' camp sponsored by the Y's Men's Club. President Mrs. Steve Csumrik and Mrs. Charles Forsythe, general convener of the tea, received the guests and the tickets were taken by treasurer Mrs. J. Rowan.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Can Help Him Regain His Confidence In People

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl in my late teens, and for the past three years have gone with a boy whose background is entirely different from mine. He was raised in a home that was shattered by divorce and has been, more or less on his own for many years. He is a gentleman, of more than average intelligence and has a sense of fine values, which he acquired on his own, not from home example.

When I first met him I was not quite 17 and therefore took delight in making him jealous. Now that we love each other, and I want him to believe in me, he is still jealous. I can't mention even a male business acquaintance without having him flare up. When he was in the Marines he was jilted, and I wonder if that might have something to do with his obsessive jealousy. He has, unfortunately, seen a great deal of female infidelity in his life. Do you think I could be happy, married to him? He is 26.

RUTH R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You have drawn a picture of a man who needs help desperately. If you can restore his confidence in mankind (and womankind) and overcome his feeling of futility, you'll have accomplished a fine job and will have yourself a wonderful husband. Reaching the age of 26 with a background so full of deceit, disloyalty and distrust is not a happy state. To have been betrayed by family and friends alike is enough to make anyone bitter. The job of rehabilitation is up to you, though you, of course, botched it considerably with your adolescent efforts to make him jealous.

Talk Out Problem

Have you tried a frank discussion, admitting just why you acted as you did in the early days of your friendship? This might clear the atmosphere a little. I am assuming that you really are a girl of integrity and loyalty; if you're not, let the boy go before he suffers more heartache.

If, in spite of your youth, you have the maturity to feel compassion at another's trouble, do your best to convince the boy that there is good in the world. If your mother is an understanding person, she can help immeasurably too, by welcoming him into the home and spreading around him the warmth and hospitality of a contented family. Actually, the boy needs mothering even more than he needs dating. Try to give him both; don't let him down!

DEAR MISS DIX; My husband deeply resents me trying to make my older girl mind. She is 1½ and very spoiled. I'm afraid if I don't exercise some discipline now she'll be very difficult to handle later. I am 20 and have been married three years.

V. A. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Perhaps you are expecting too much from an 18-month-old baby. While it is true that she should be taught to mind, discipling can be overdone. You have your hands full with two babies so close together; both you and your husband need patience to bring them up carefully. Read a good book on baby care and see just how much you should expect from your daughter. Don't strive for perfection at the expense of the family's health and happiness.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife and I are happily married, with just one problem. She smoked when we were married five years ago, and though she stopped while carrying our baby, she began again a few weeks ago. I don't like her to smoke, and she felt much better when she did stop.

J. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Be thankful that there is only one small rift in the heaven of your happiness. In an age when so many women do smoke, it can't be regarded as a habit bad enough to ruin your marital bliss. However, if it does annoy you so much, it seems to me your wife could make a sacrifice and give it up, particularly when she admits herself she feels better when not smoking. This is a personal matter and should be left up to her. Just be grateful for her virtues and overlook the one fault.

Special Fund To Aid Defence In Provinces

OTTAWA, March 20 (CP). — The government is proposing to set up a special $1,400,000 fund to allow it more flexibility in helping the provinces in the field of civil defence through special money grants.

Discussions now are going on between Ottawa and the provincial capitals to see if it is possible to arrange a joint conference on use of the money—if it is voted by Parliament.

The estimates tabled Wednesday gave the first indication of the plan by including an item of $1,400,000 to provide "for grants to provinces for general civil defence purposes."

A Health Department official said the key word is "general." Under present arrangements, he said, the Federal government spends money for specific purposes—air raid sirens, hose couplings, and the like—to help provinces and municipalities.

There are, however, various problems which come up which fall outside these specific fields. The new fund is aimed at covering that no-man's land.

The $1,400,000 figure, he said, is tentative. The government wants mainly to get approval of the idea.

That item is mainly responsible for boosting total civil defence estimates by roughly 50 per cent to $6,508,839 from $4,196,202.

Independent Indian Band Refuse White Man's Offers

CALGARY — (CP). — Despite pressure from many sides, there is a group of about 100 Indians in Northwestern Alberta who refuse to become obligated to the white man.

Biologically they are Chipewyan or Cree, but politically they are dependent on no man. The group which settles in the Whitecourt, Edson and Marlboro districts has no vote. They refuse family allowances and they have no legal trap lines.

One Indian Affairs official here said that legally, they don't exist. There is no death registration for them because there is no birth registration. Attempts to conduct a census among them have proved fruitless.

Legally, they can be refused admittance to an Indian hospital, although they are never turned away if they need medical attention and ask for it. Wherever they go, they are trespassers in the eyes of the law.

The situation was brought to light under the revised Federal Indian Act which specifies that a membership list of all Indians must be completed by the end of March. Officials tried to devise means of forcing this group to give the necessary answers to the census taker, but there is no proof that the answers obtained were anything more than an attempt to satisfy the white man who was "prying" into the Indian's private affairs.

The group has been labelled the John O'Chiese Indians after its main leader. It is divided into three components under three chiefs—John O'Chiese, "Big John" at Whitecourt, and "Little John" at Edson.

Cling to Independence

The main reason for their reluctance to become treaty Indians appears to be a feeling that by accepting such things as family allowances and other aid they would automatically obligate themselves to the white man.

Although a tiny minority of Western Indians, the little band stubbornly clings to independence. Their plight has become desperate at times, but when they have had to accept aid, they have taken it only if some payment is accepted in return, even if it is only 25 cents for a bag of flour.

About 50 of the original band have become treaty Indians in the last few years, and this element lives on a reserve purchased by the Indian Affairs Branch. The reserve, 35,000 acres of timbered land north of Rocky Mountain House is ready for the whole o'Chinese band.

But even the "converted" section has its idiosyncrasies. The Indians living on the reserve are called the Strawberry Band for Joe and Andrew Strawberry. The two leaders don't get along with each other, and their respective groups dwell at opposite ends of the reserve.

The problem remains of what is to be done with the Indians who refuse to sign a treaty. All laws currently in effect for Indians have been set for treaty Indians, who must accept them because they accept the services offered by the Federal government. The "gypsy" Indians won't come into the Act.

Old Lead Mine May Be Reopened

HAILEYBURY, Ont.—(CP)—A mine first discovered in 1686, lost for 164 years and found again, may be re-opened soon by a new company.

Just across Lake Temiskaming from this town, a party of French soldiers under Sieur de Troy's first stumbled on the deposits of lead and silver while on their way to attack the English post of Moose Factory on Hudson Bay.

De Troyes says in his journal of the trip: "We extracted a few small pieces with great difficulty and returned to camp." After the De Troyes party left, the deposits were lost.

In 1850, E. V. Wright, an Ottawa lumberman, gouged out a few small chunks of galena with his hobnailed boots as he was making his way along the edge of the lake. He started operations and sank a shaft to a depth of 12 feet.

The project was abandoned when the second shipment of 10 tons on a raft was smashed to pieces at Deux Rivieres.

In 1895, the mine was worked again; with concentrates going to Swansea, Wales, after travelling by boat down the Ottawa river.

Timmins - McMartin interests drained the property in 1925 and did some diamond drilling but unfavorable prices for lead, zinc and silver forbade further exploration.

Jury Says Negligence Cased Electrocution

SUDBURY, March 20 (CP) — Negligence by Sudbury hydro management caused the electrocution of lineman Morley McGinn, 26, last Feb. 27, a five-man coroner's jury ruled Wednesday.

McGinn was killed while handling lines which a short time previously had no power in them.

The jurors deliberated 30 minutes. The verdict read: "The death of Morley McGinn resulted from negligence on the part of hydro management in failing to establish and enforce definite safety regulations governing the control of power in circuits on which employees are working."

Reconditions Clock Victoria Gave Turk

TORONTO — (CP) — A clock, given a Turkish Ambassador by Queen Victoria more than 100 years ago, is telling the time again after 45 years of silence.

C. W. Usherwood of Toronto recently completed a repair job on the three-storey gilded brass clock, now owned by a descendant of the court jeweller of the Sultan of Turkey with whom the clock was left for repairs but never picked up.

The clock, operated on a chain drive, tells the time, strikes the hours and indicates the calendar date. The tower is a thermometer.

Mr. Usherwood, a collector of antique clocks, says the clock was made entirely by hand and would be the gem of any collection.

"There isn't a man alive who would set to work to make a clock of this quality today," he said.

Doctor Saves Actress After Overdose

NEW YORK, March 20. (AP)— The New York Journal American says today that Actress Barbara Payton swallowed sleeping pills after a quarrel with husband Franchot Tone a few days ago and was saved by quick action of a doctor.

The newspaper says the blonde swallowed the pills "in a fit of frustration and despondency" in a west-side hotel.

The story came to light almost simultaneously with a report from Los Angeles that Tone has revived his divorce suit against the actress.

The story, by Cholly Knickerbocker, says Miss Payton and Tone had been together here in a reconciliation attempt that "almost ended in a tragedy."

Bang-On Fight

It says they got into another of "their drag-out fights" in a fashionable, unidentified hostelry.

"Barbara suddenly tore the phone from the wall and swung it at Tone's head," the story says.

"Tone, who evidently has learned a thing or two since he took a beating at the hands of Actor Tom Neal overa Barbara's affections, ducked."

It said Miss Payton swallowed the pills and that Tone, in alarm, called for a doctor.

"The physician arrived and Barbara was saved."

New Building Expected Soon

Plans of Principal Investments Limited, Toronto, for a store on the site of the Zacks Building, central George St., appeared Wednesday to be cleared of all but one impediment.

Purchase from the Braund Estate of the lane at the rear of the property was said to be the only detail of negotiations remaining to be settled. Discussions took place in Toronto.

The proposed two-storey building will extend across the lane to the rear of the Peterborough Lumber Co. property, and will require removal of part of their building.

Information today further confirms the first reports that Metropolitan Stores will be the tenant of the entire ground floor of the building to be constructed by Principal Investments. It is to be one of the largest and finest retail store buildings in the province.

The brightest feature of the news from the Wednesday discussions was to the effect that final settlement of side details may be arrived at in less than a week. If that is the outcome, it is expected that the beginning of the work of construction should soon follow.

Appoint Philip Hunt Trade Commissioner

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP).— Philip Bodley Hunt, 36-year-old United Kingdom Board of Trade official, has been appointed as a British trade commissioner at Montreal, it was announced today.

Mr. Hunt joins a U.K. trade promotion force that has been tripled in the post-war period to expand markets for British exports in Canada. U.K. trade commissioners and assistant commissioners in Canada total 22—up from only eight in 1945.

Obituary

MRS. ALBERT SCOTT

The death occured on March 13 in Vancouver of Mrs. Albert Scott, the former Emma Louise Darling, who was born and raised in Smith township.

Mrs. Scott spent most of her early life here and was an active members of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church until her marriage in 1906 to Albert Scott. She went out west with her husband and they lived for several years in Brandon, Man. Later they moved to Vancouver where she lived until her death.

Besides her husband and several nieces and nephews, Mrs. Scott had two brothers and a sister, in the community: Russell Darling of Fraserville and Stuart Darling and Miss Mabel Darling of South Monaghan township. A sister, Mrs. S. Blewett died in 1939 and a brother, Howard Darling was drowned in October 1918 when the Princess Sophia, sank near Juneau, Alaska with all on board.

Mrs. Scott would have been seventy-nine in April. She had been in poor health for some time.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL, March 20 — (CP) The United States dollar today opened at a discount of 17/32 of one per cent in terms of Canadian funds, unchanged from Wednesday's close. That is, it took $0.99 15/32 Canadian to buy $1.00 American.

The pound sterling was $2.79 1/18, down ¼ from Wednesday.

No Political Prisoners

HAVANA, Cuba, March 20 — (AP)—A spokesman for Fulgencio Batista's revolutionary regime said Wednesday night there is not a single political prisoner in Cuban jails as a result of Batista's 10-day-old revolution. Spokesman, Interior Minister Ramon Hermida, said many persons were arrested but all were turned loose after questioning.

Unique Ferry Designed Bay Of Fundy

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—(CP)—A A special car ferry has been designed to cope with 30-foot tides in the Bay of Fundy and avoid the expense of building high wharves. The new vessel, a unique development in ferry service history, will have its own built-in ramps and land on beaches.

The idea for the novel craft came after the New Brunswick government commissioned a father-and-son firm of Vancouver naval architects to survey the province's ferryboat system. The firm's younger member, Robert Allan, Jr., conducted the survey.

When the plans are completed, the vessel will probably be built in New Brunswick or Nova Scotia. In addition to the British Columbia designing, the wood for the hull is expected to be Douglas fir from the west coast.

The ferry, to be used on a three-mile route between the mainland village of L'Etete, Charlotte county, and Deer Island, will replace a scow towed by a power boat. The scow accommodates only four cars. In the busy summer season reservations days, and even weeks, ahead have been necessary.

To Carry 14 Cars

Plans for the new ferry call for a craft 92 feet long and capable of carrying 14 automobiles with their passengers. Two diesel engines, with a pair of propellers at each end, will push the vessel along at a 10-knot clip—fast enough to buck Fundy's strong tides.

Avoiding expensive wharf construction or landing stages in a high-tide area by using beaches as terminals brought up the problem of propeller placement and ramp design. This has been solved by the Vancouver architects. The ferry will simply land on the beach at each end of its route and the special ramp will be lowered, enabling cars to be driven off and loaded.

Mr. Allan says the beaches involved are "made to order" for the job. They are covered with the right kind of gravel, have the proper grade, and because of the tidal currents are kept free of marine growth.

Cost of the ferry is estimated at $125,000.

If the experiment proves successful, it may be extended to other routes in the province's ferryboat system where similar conditions exist.

UNWASHED BUT UNHURT—It wasn't his morning to use the apartment house laundry, but Benjamin F. Kennedy, of Detroit, Mich., dropped in anyway, car and all. Unhurt, and unwashed, he was able to walk away from the wreck. Kennedy said he was trying to avoid a collision, and lost control of his car.

Prices Tempt Sale Of Seed Potatoes

The comparatively buoyant spirit in which farmers saw the last of winter a year ago has drooped across Ontario recently largely from adverse effects of the U.S. embargo on Canadian livestock following the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

Potatoes are the exception in present rural business, as shown in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Dufferin comment: "Potato prices are climbing. Some farmers say they will sell their seed if the prices go any higher."

Perth county: "Grade Holstein cows are selling $100 less than a month ago at farm auctions. Weanling pigs at community sales are bringing only $5 to $7, about half the price of four months ago."

Victoria county: "Weanling pigs have been down as low as $3 each; young sows, due to farrow, have been selling for $40 to $50."

Stand To Lose

Durham: "Those who bought feeder cattle at the high prices stand to lose some of the profits they made in the last few years. Farmers and everyone concerned are puzzled by the hog grading regulations."

Huron seed fair had 160 entries. Prices at the auction included: registered Erban oats $2.50; commercial oats $2; commercial barley $2.90; grand champion bushel of Erban oats $10."

Waterloo: "Prices have been holding fairly well at dairy cattle sales."

Essex: "Farm stocks of clover seeds are changing hands as extensive seeding of fall wheat is being carried on."

Lambton: "Cattle breeders remark,—'just wait and see'."

Middlesex: "Marketings of finished cattle are being kept at a minimum. Animals purchased at high prices last fall and sold on today's markets are resulting in considerable loss to the feeders."

Oxford: "Prices of good dairy females are holding up reasonably well at local auction sales."

Frontenac: "A large number of cattle already purchased and paid for by U.S. buyers are still on Frontenac farms."

Glengarry: "Uncertain livestock prices continue to be the subject of conversation wherever farmers congregate."

Fenella Couple Celebrate 57th Anniversary

ROSENEATH, March 20 (ENS) —Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Leach, Fenella, are today marking their 57th wedding anniversary. The day will be spent quietly at the Leach homestead southeast of Fenella where they have resided for 57 years, with the exception of a few weeks in the summer spent in the later years at a summer cottage at Harwood.

Mrs. Leach, the former Lucy Beswetherick, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beswetherick, Oak Heights, and Solomon Leach, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Leach, Fenella, were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage, Castleton, on March 20, 1895 by the Rev. Leitch, resident Methodist clergyman.

In a reminiscent mood, the bride and groom recalled it was a bright, cold winter's day, lots of snow with drifts from fence to fence and the roads full of pitch holes as a result of the snowdrifts. The trip to the parsonage was made by horse and cutter.

The bride's dress was floor length with high neckline, leg-o-mutton sleeves, tight fitted bodice and yards of material in the skirt.

Mrs. Leach is a charter member and life member of Fenella Women's Institute and Fenella W. M. S. Mr. Leach served on the school board and church board and his holidays were spent on the annual deer hunt in the Fall.

Mrs. Leach is 78 and Mr. Leach is 81. Both are exceptionally active despite advanced years.

They have one son, Clifford Leach on the homstead, two grandchildren, Mrs. Ken McKee, Peterborough and Don Leach, Hastings and two great-grandchildren.

Rescue Wheat Did The Job

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. — (CP) — Rescue wheat did just what its name implies for sawfly-cursed western farmers. Another solid-stemmed wheat—it may be called Chinook—is reported ready to take its place.

Dr. C. W. Farstad, head of the field crop insects leboratories at the Dominion Science Service laboratories here, says the new wheat numbered CT 708, has been recommended for licensing.

CT 708, the entomologist says, equals Marquis wheat in quality and yields better than both Rescue and Marquis. In the areas where it will be grown it will yield as well as Thatcher and has a higher bushel weight than the latter.

One of the biggest difficulties with Rescue wheat is that although resistant to sawfly it has low-baking qualities compared with Marquis. For this reason it can be graded no higher than No. 3.

CT 708, like Rescue, is resistant to most classes of stem rust. Neither are resistant to the new rust, 158. The new wheat is slightly less resistant to sawfly than Rescue.

Dr. Farstad says it is felt that slightly less resistance can be accepted to obtain the advantages of better milling qualities. Rescue is low in protein and absorption qualities.

Started In 1938

The new wheat was started from a cross made at the Ottawa greenhouses in 1938 by A. W. Platt of Lethbridge, from Thatcher and S615, a low-quality, solid-stemmed wheat from New Zealand. Mr. Platt, no longer with the government service, also was instrumental in bringing out the solid-stemmed Rescue wheat.

The cross was carried from 1938 until now. It was not licensed in place of Rescue because it was felt the added sawfly resistance of the latter would be necessary. Today, immunity to the sawfly is not the only consideration.

"CT 708 will be grown in the same area as Rescue, from Lethbridge through to Moose Jaw and north in the region of Saskatoon on the dryland central plains," says Dr. Farstad.

Among those who took part in the development of CT 708 were Mr. Platt, Dr. W. F. Hanna, head of the plant pathology laboratories in Winnipeg; F. R. Peterson, head of the cereal breeding laboratories in Winnipeg; A. G. O. Whiteside of Ottawa, senior cerealist who did the original screening for quality; and Dr. Farstad, who headed the insect investigations on the co-operative project.

Two Clauses In Kingston Bill Deleted By Committee

TORONTO, March 20 (CP). — Two clauses of the city of Kingston's special bill were deleted today by the Ontario Legislature's special bills committee.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar opposed one clause permitting the city to expropriate land to prepare industrial sites.

Mr. Dunbar said the government was opposed to municipalities "buying land for $10,000 and selling it for 50 cents."

Hugh Gibson, city solicitor, said the city didn't intend to bypass ratepayers. It wanted to provide a revolving fund, under which money from sales of industrial sites would be used to buy more land.

Mr. Dunbar assured him that the Municipal Act now provides for such a revolving fund.

To Delete Section

Mr. Gibson then said he was willing to have the section deleted.

A second section permitting the city to control trailer camps was dropped because such control is provided under general government legislation in a bill now before the legislature.

The Kingston bill, as amended, will permit the city to charge a sewer rental rate, based on the amount of water used by homes and industries.

Mr. Gibson said the city is trying to clean up the waterfront, where 75 to 100 places were dumping sewage.

A further section will permit the city to order removal of condemned buildings unless alterations can be made to make them safe.

The city will also be empowered to require houses to be connected with a sewer, if the land fronts on a sewer, within two years after construction of the sewer.

The bill also confirms the annexation orders joining Portsmouth Village and parts of Kingston township to the city.

THIS "BABY" WAS A TERROR—Paul Johnson surveys the remains of his car and garage in Santa Monica, Calif., following a "baby tornado" which swept through the area leaving a wake of destruction. The twister wreaked havoc on walls, chimneys and plate glass windows and buffeted a number of small boats, one of which was seen to "sail" through the air.

Board Approves Air Freight

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP)—Canada's first major development in the aerial field of exclusive cargo carrying has been approved by the Air Transport Board, it was announced Wednesday.

The board has authorized an air cargo licence for Dorval Air Transport Limited of Montreal, allowing it to carry freight only in large aircraft in Canada and abroad.

The board said the service, to be based in Montreal, will be restricted to carriage of cargo and may only carry passengers when they are incidental to the cargo being carried, such as attendants with cattle shipments.

In its announcement, the Board said that it "considers that this type of service might well be exploited with success and feels that it should encourage the introduction into the industry of an air carrier or air carriers proposing to confine their activities primarily to large-scale operations."

The company will be limited in the number of planes it will be permitted to operate to a total aggregate disposable load of 25 tons.

The cargo planes will not carry mail. And if it wished to carry passengers beyond those incidental to the cargo, special permission of the Board will have to be sought in each case.

Most Of Canada's Navy Given Atlantic Role

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP)—All Canada's navy except that part needed for defence of her two coasts will be assigned to over-all Atlantic Pact command if war should come, senior defence officials said Wednesday.

The R.C.N. would do its ocean fighting in the North Atlantic. Its sole concern in the Pacific would be coastal defence. Canada would have no role in general Pacific naval warfare.

This was made clear today as Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, the Atlantic Pact's first naval chief, met Prime Minister St. Laurent and they went into conference with the chiefs-of-staff and other senior defence authori-authorities.

He arrived here Tuesday for two days of conferences.

The proceeds will go towards renovating the hall basement and furnishing kitchen equipment.

FREED IN SLAYING—Airline hostess Betty Lou Tracy, 21, was freed in the St. Louis, Mo., slaying of Lawrence Gell, described as her married lover, when a coroner's inquest returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. She said she shot the 43-year-old airlines executive after he threatened to torture her for associating with other men.

Sees Russ Army In Siberia Greatest Threat To Japan

How Sincere Is Desire To Help Fred Brant?

As reported to our readers yesterday, The Examiner interpreted the interest of Flash, a Toronto weekly devoted to personal journalism, as a desire to be helpful in the case of Fred Brant. Heartened by this show of humanitarianism, we suggested by telegram that the paper make a contribution to the fund which The Examiner has set up for Brant. Judge, then, of our dismay when we received the following reply:

YOU FLATTER US STOP BUT FLASH INDEED WILL BE REPRESENTED CETERIS PARIBUS STOP THEREFORE BEFORE FORWARDING CHEQUE MAY WE ENQUIRE WHAT THE EXAMINER IS DONATING STOP WE WILL PAY FOR YOUR FUROR POETICIS STOP REGARDS
JOHNSTON EDITOR FLASH

Somewhat stunned at receiving a telegram partly in Latin (even with an error in the second instance) but not to be outdone by a big city paper of national circulation, we dispatched the following reply:

EXAMINER'S GIFT IN PETTO BUT AMPLY PRESENT STOP SEE MATTHEW SIX VERSES ONE TO FOUR STOP IN ADDITION WE WILL GIVE EQUIVALENT OF YOUR GIFT PROPORTIONATE TO CIRCULATION STOP BIS DAT QUI CITO DAT
EDITOR EXAMINER

Perhaps we should explain that "in petto" is a phrase applied to something which is done, but still a secret. We will keep no secret from our readers, however; our contribution to Brant's fund will equal that of Mr. D. A. McGillis, and will be added to the fund just before it is closed. Our Biblical reference directs Flash to the famous passage which commends quiet and seemly almsgiving. Our final snatch of Latin, being translated, is "He gives twice who gives quickly."

At time of going to press, however, we have received no further message from Flash. We are tortured by an unworthy suspicion that Flash does not really want to help Fred Brant, but only to create its own particular form of uproar about him. Fight it as we may, we cannot subdue a feeling that the metropolitan paper lives in an ivory tower, from which no window looks into Brant's hospital room. And we feel that our trusting spirit has been trifled with by a big-city paper which has no regard for the feelings of a humble, provincial daily.

Bogart and Vivien Leigh Awarded Oscars, American In Paris Best Film

HOLLYWOOD, March 21. (CP)—Humphrey Bogart and Vivien Leigh Thursday night won the top acting Oscars in Hollywood's annual Academy Award Festival which produced its biggest surprise in years in the choice of "An American in Paris" as the best picture. Bogart was an obvious sentimental selection for the best-actor award as the gin-loving skipper in "The African Queen." Miss Leigh was a pre-award favorite for the best-actress Oscar for her portrayal of a faded beauty in "Streetcar Named Desire."

But the selection of "An American in Paris" was completely unexpected. And while it was a good musical, it was not classed with "Streetcar" and "A Place In The Sun."

The selections had a sentimental flavor and Bogart best summed it up when he said:

"I've been around a long time. Maybe the people like me."

Karl Malden, the disillusioned lover in "Streetcar," won the award for the best supporting actor, and Kim Hunter, the wife in the same film, won the prize for the best supporting actress. Both were favorites.

"American in Paris" won Oscars in several other categories:

Costume design, art direction, set decoration, cinematography (all these in color films), musical scoring, story-aid-screenplay.

Honorary Award

In addition to these, Gene Kelly the picture's star, won an honorary award for his "brilliant achievements in the art of choreography on film."

The Irving Thalberg Memorial award went to producer Arthur Freed. Producer Darryl Zanuck said in presenting it that two of Freed's pictures "Showboat" and "An American in Paris," are "perfect examples of creative art."

The one sure bet of the evening who came through was George Stevens who took the best direction award for his "A Place in the Sun."

36 Passengers Hurt In Brazil Rail Crash

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Mar. 21—(CP)—Some passengers leaped to safety but 64 others were injured, six seriously, in a railroad accident near here today. One commuter train rammed into the rear of another which halted to build up steam at Traigem, five miles northwest of Rio De Janeiro.

The engineer of the approaching train said he was able to slow down enough to avoid a major disaster.

Preliminary reports said a passenger train with wooden coaches coming from Caxias ran into a stationary train carrying railway workmen at Triagem, a few miles outside Rio. The accident was believed caused by fog.

It was the fourth railroad accident in Brazil in recent months.

On March 5 Brazil's worst rail disaster took 119 lives with nearly 300 persons injured.

Fear 10 Dead In Plane Crash

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., March 21 (AP).—A four-engine navy patrol bomber with 10 men aboard crashed into Corpus Christi Bay today shortly after take-off from the naval air station.

Two bodies had been pulled out of the wreckage by mid-morning. Divers said recovery of the remaining bodies would be a long, tedious process.

Like a huge thumb, the giant rudder of the P4Y-2 stuck out of the bay. Personal effects of the flyers floated to the surface. A winter flying suit, a baseball cap, a navigator's brief case and a fuel cell washed ashore.

The plane, leaving the naval air station on a routine training flight to Alameda, Calif., went into the Gulf of Mexico less than a mile off shore.

All crash boats of the station and several planes searched the area, near Demit Island, but more than an houg after the plane hit the water no survivors had been found.

R. M. McDonald, at the Alameda naval air station, said he heard the plane very low over his residence. He said he went to the window and saw the aircraft in what appeared to be a slight climb. "All four engines seemed to be missing fire," he said.

Gen. Ridgway Foresees New Danger

Believes Soviet Heads Will Try Fear, Then Armed Blow

TOKYO, March 22. (Saturday)—(AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said Friday Japan's "greatest problem" is the threat of strong Russian military forces already assembled north of this island country.

The supreme allied commander told a group of Japanese newspaper executives the Russians have completed the stationing of strong forces "including many fighter planes" at two points facing Japan.

One massing point was given as near Vladivostok, the big port and base in the Siberian maritime province. The other was on southern Sakhalin, formerly held by the Japanese. Sakhalin lies north of Japan.

The editors said Ridgway assured them he was "not upset" by unfavorable comment of some Japanese on the Japan-U.S. security pact.

Ridgway was quoted as saying the purpose of the Russian concentration was to generate fear but adding that when fear is not enough the Communists use power.

China Good Example

The general then referred editors to the case of China, where the Communists have organized a powerful military machine. Yet 30 years ago China had no real military force.

Ridgway said there was evidence of the same methods in Japan. He pointed to Communist influence in labor unions, to Red infiltration into various organs of public opinion, and to the party cells organized for violence.

Ridgway said the Communists by these methods succeeded in building up the equivalent of a military organization.

"The sole purpose," Ridgway concluded, "of maintaining American garrison forces in Japan is nothing more nor less than to check the Russian threat to Japan."

One of the newspapers, Yomiuri, in its story of the interview, quoted Ridgway as saying Russia has 5,000 modern jet planes in the Far East and is in position to "exhibit their military power."

Miffed At Officials In Nfld.

CHICAGO, March 21. (CP)—The Chicago Tribune quotes its editor and publisher, Col. R. R. McCormick, as complaining strenuously about a customs delay at Newfoundland's Gander airport. But it says his landing there Thursday was not on the flight plan of the pilot flying McCormick's personal plane. McCormick said his first difficulty with customs authorities during a 20,000-mile trip came when the plane was held up at Gander for 4½ hours. His newspaper adds, however, that Canadian authorities were ready to clear the plane quickly at Newfoundland's Stephenville airport bu the plane landed at Gander instead.

In a story datelined Baie Comeau, Que., the newspaper says McCormick and his party of 10 landed at Gander Thursday after visits to South America, Africa and Europe.

It quotes him as saying "we were detained 4½ hours by the moronic customs officers and torpid baggage handlers," and it attributes to him some criticism of Newfoundlanders.

The story adds:

"The sting of this treatment, however, was largely removed when it was learned that the flight plan called for a landing at nearby Stephenville. There, Canadian authorities had arranged for all courtesy facilities in clearing the ship for a Canadian stopover when the plane landed at Gander at 3 a.m. No one authorized to speed clearance could be contacted."

Hard On Crew

McCormick was quoted as saying on reaching Baie Comeau, where he has newsprint interests:

"I didn't mind the wait so much for myself but I felt very sorry for the crew. They had been on the job for more than 10 hours when we got there, and needed some sleep; then the 4½-hours wait there, and another three hours flying to here from Gander, is too much."

The Tribune story adds: "Ironically enough . . . the first difficulties with custom authorities . . .

Communist Compromise Hinted On POW Deadlock

MUNSAN, Korea, March 21. (AP)—Communist truce negotiators indicated today they may be ready to compromise on the deadlock issue of exchanging prisoners of war. The Reds submitted a formal two-sentence version of their March 5 plan for trading prisoners. It made no mention of voluntary repatriation, the only important issue blocking agreement.

There is "absolutely nothing new" in the Communist proposal said Brig.-Gen. William Nuckols, U.N. spokesman.

On the surface, he said, it does nothing to break the deadlock over whether prisoners should have the right to choose whether they are to be repatriated.

However, other observers interpreted what the Communist proposal did not say as significant. They said the Reds may want to compromise, but are not ready to say how.

The Reds suggested that negotiations proceed on the basis of prisoner rosters exchanged Dec. 18. Under the Communist plan the U.N. Command would return 132,472, and the Communists 11,559.

To Put In Details

A second group of staff officers working on truce supervision exchanged maps of 10 ports of entry through which troops and supplies will move into Korea during an armistice.

The Communist maps failed to show exact areas in which neutral inspection teams would be allowed to operate. But the Reds promised to draw in the necessary details overnight.

An Allied staff officer said he expects "no trouble." He indicated final details may be worked out Saturday.

Hospital Board Names Lawyer

WINDSOR, March 21 — (CP) —The Board of Governors of East Windsor Hsopital has appointed a Toronto solicitor as its representative during an investigation into hospital affairs ordered by Attorney-General Porter.

The appointment of Norman L. Mathews was made at a meeting Thursday night over the protests of several board members who insisted that the board needed no counsel.

The board authorized a second audit of the hospital's Christmas Cheer Fund. The Windsor Daily Star has stated the investation concerns "alleged mismanagement" of the hospital building and Christmas cheer funds.

(The Windsor accounting firm of Brokenshire, Scarff and Company, which conducted a previous audit on the Christmas fund, declared that a complete accounting is impossible because of the lack of certain records.

Dr. P. J. G. Morgan, hospital superintendent, told the Board that $15,540 had been spent from the hospital's building fund for the purchase of 70 television sets for hospital rooms. Sets retailing at $359 had been purchased for $222 each.

Sets had been placed in every hospital room and some 12 were still in storage.

Send Bulldozers To Aid Cattle

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21 (AP)—Army bulldozers went to the rescue today of 600,000 head of starving livestock in North and Central Nevada. Twenty machines were sent from Ogden, Utah, to attack ranch roads clogged by snow.

Meanwhile bulldozers from the naval base at Hawthorne, Nev., opened a 35-mile-long lane through snow to 2,000 marooned residents in Mono county, east-central California. Residents were low on fuel but had food.

Snow drifts on California's northern mountains are so unusually deep—20 feet and more—that the Pacific Gas and Electric Company issued warnings to ski fans to watch out for buried high voltage lines.

The company warned that any skier would be killed if he came within seven feet of any snow-buried lines.

Lively Jet Battle Staged In Korea

SEOUL, Korea, March 21 (AP) —American Sabre jets destroyed or damaged 13 to 18 Red jets in a series of fights Thursday climaxed by the longest battle in jet history.

Darkening skies prevented exact assessment of results of a 40-minute dogfight over North Korea. But pilots of F-86 Sabre jets said they damaged at least three MIG-15s and possibly eight.

In two earlier engagements on Thursday the Sabres reported they shot down five MIGs and damaged five.

In the 40-minute battle 28 Sabres tangled with 40 MIGs in a fight running over 70 miles from Sinanju to the Yalu river border with Manchuria. The longest previous jet battle lasted 35 minutes.

The fight brought the Sabres' three-day record to at least 31, and possibly 36 Red jets hit, including 11 shot down.

Delay Steel Strike Till April 8, Union Takes Offer

WASHINGTON, March 21. (CP)—A strike of 650,000 steelworkers in the United States, scheduled for this weekend, was postponed at least until April 8 when the union voted early today to accept a government pay boost proposal. Whether the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) will be called out in April depends on the steel industry reaction to the recommendations. The steelworkers jubilantly approved a Wage Stabilization Board plan for settling the dispute which has been going on since last November.

Voted by public and labor members over stiff industry objections, it calls for a three-instalment pay boost that will eventually total 17½ cents an hour, plus other concessions including the union shop.

The union had asked for 18½-cent hourly pay boosts with other concessions estimated to bring the overall increased costs to around 35 cents an hour.

Steel companies gave no immediate reaction to the plan; promising to do so later today. But the W.S.B. industry members earlier denounced the proposal as unfair and inflationary.

Renewed Negotiations

Steelworkers' President Philip Murray, announcing his fourth delay in strike plans, called for renewed negotiations starting on Monday with steel companies here and at Pittsburgh. Murray said if no settlement with steel firms is reached by April 4, the unions will give 96 hours notice and strike April 8.

Thus if the industry refuses to go along with the W.S.B. recommendations, an eventual strike appears inevitable. The steel firms have claimed all along they can grant no wage boosts unless they get compensating price increases.

Steelmakers have said an expected $2-a-ton additional price allowance is too little to cover anticipated extra labor costs.

Steelworkers now have average earnings including overtime of close to $2 an hour. Their pay rates average about $1.81 an hour, ranging from $1.31 to about $2.50.

The W.S.B. proposal calls for 12½ cents hourly dated back to last Jan. 1, an extra 2½-cent rise effective next uly 1, and another 2½-cent boost on Jan. 1, 1953. This would all become part of an 18-month contract.

Boyd Ringed By Police Guns While In Court

TORONTO, March 21 — (CP)— Edwin Alonzo Boyd, bank robbery suspect captured last week, appeared briefly in court today handcuffed to two Toronto detectives and ringed by police guns. He was remanded to March 29.

Boyd faces charges of bank robbery, of escaping from Don jail last November, of possessing offensive weapons and of car theft. But he was not asked to plead.

Chief of Detectives Archie McCathie said it was "one of many, many remands" for Boyd. A court official said he doubted that Boyd would be tried before next autumn.

Wearing a dirty grey shirt, rumpled blue coat, no tie and a pair of baggy pants, Boyd stood pale-faced in the dock chained to two detectives. He glanced about the courtroom cleared of spectators but did not smile, in contrast with his jaunty spirit when captured.

Earlier, he had been whisked from Don jail with an escort of three police cars and several detectives. More detectives and uniformed policemen guarded the hallways leading to the city hall courtroom as Boyd passed through.

Sought for nearly three weeks throughout Ontario and Quebec after the shooting of two Toronto detectiyes, Boyd was captured in a police net early last Saturday as he slept in a newly-rented apartment in north-central Toronto.

The former Second World War commando was the last of three wanted men flushed out by police in a series of raids. The others, Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, were nabbed in Montreal after bloody gunfights. Both still are in hospital recovering from their wounds.

Also appearing in court today were Boyd's 32-year-old wife, Doreen, and his younger brother, Norman, both charged with conspiracy in connection with the bank robberies. They also were remanded to March 29.

No Early Settlement Likely With Teachers

KITCHENER, March 21—(CP)— No early settlement seemed likely today in the salary deadlock between Kitchener Public School teachers and the school board.

The board refused a request that the salary maximum for regular grade teachers be raised $600, that specialists be increased $900, and that there be one maximum for all principals.

The Board has indicated unwillingness to meet with federations representing the teachers. The federations said only they are empowered to discuss the dispute with the Board.

The Board said it wanted to deal only with the teachers.

Fly Jackson Back To Toronto

TORONTO, March 21 — (CP) — Leonard Jackson arrived shortly after noon today by air from Montreal.

Under a heavily armed guard, Jackson, in a wheel-chair, was whisked into a waiting ambulance and taken back to the Don Jail from which he escaped last fall.

He still has not recovered from bullet wounds suffered in the brisk fight with police which preceded his capture 10 days ago in Montreal.

Jackson will face a charge of attempted murder of two Toronto detectives together with various other charges which include bank robbery and escaping from custody.

South African Crisis

Demand New Election Held After Malan Law Upset

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 21 (Reuters).—Opposition leader Jacobus Strauss today demanded the Nationalist Government resign and new elections be held as a result of the country's "grave constitutional crisis."

Head of the United Party, he said the crisis was provoked by Prime Minister Malan's refusal to accept Thursday's supreme court judgment which dealt a blow to his racial segregation policy. The court ruled unconstitutional the government's law cutting down voting rights of colored (mixed race) voters in Cape Province.

Strauss moved adjournment of the Assembly. The speaker of the house said he did not consider the motion to be one of "urgent publim importance" under the house's rules and dismissed it.

The court Thursday ruled that the government's act placing colored and white voters on separate electoral roles is invalid because it was not enacted by two-thirds majority of a joint session of parliament.

Malan said his government will "take the necessary steps" to put an end to the "intolerable" situation caused by the ruling.

Since Malan does not command the two thirds majority in either the House of. Assembly or the Senate required to push through an amendment to the constitution, it was believed he will introduce legislation — requiring only a simple majority—to deprive the courts of the right to test the validity of parliament's laws.

The court's ruling has been welcomed by non-white organizations.

The Colored People's National Union said here today that "much deep animosity against Europeans has been lifted" by the decision.

Political Plans Uncertain

Truman Rebukes McKinney For Talking Out Of Turn

WASHINGTON, March 21 (CP) —President Truman's 1952 political plans were more clouded than ever today as a result of his public rebuke of Democratic party chairman Frank McKinney.

Whatever else may be deduced from the president's press conference at Key West, Fla., vacation headquarters Thursday, Truman left three things clear:

1. He is still considering seeking another term.

2. He still considers himself the boss of the party and isn't letting anyone else speak for him.

3. He will make his decision and his announcement in his own good time despite pressure from Democrats for an early statement.

McKinney had told reporters he believed Korean developments would play a paramount part in whether the president would seek re-election. He said he didn't think Truman would run again if the Korean war were settled soon.

Asked about this, the president declared that Korea does not enter into United States politics at all. It has no bearing on what he would decide to do. Truman also reiterated that he would decide when to make an announcement on his plans. McKinney had said he expected a decision before May 15.

While Truman dropped no hint of his plans, there was plenty of speculation from other sources.

Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, secretary of agriculture in Truman's cabinet from 1945 to 1948, told a reporter he believes Truman will run for re-election.

Despite the president's denial, he sided with McKinney's belief that Korea would have a bearing on Truman's decision.

"I believe if we could achieve complete peace the president would not run," Anderson said. "But we are not going to have complete peace by July. The president will be asked by the Democraatic convention to run again and he will heed the convention's plea."

Eden Says West Making Satisfactory Progress

PARIS, March 21 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain said today the western powers are making "very satisfactory" progress in their study of a reply to Russias latest proposal for an all-German peace treaty.

Eden, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France and Ambassador James Dunn of the United States met with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany in the French foreign ministry.

Dunn indicated he and the ministers will probably not finish up the text of the joint reply until sometime Saturday. The reply, it is reported, will insist on free elections throughout Germany as a condition for the formation of an all-German government as proposed by the Russians.

Manitoba Partially Eases Ban

Allow Hogs, Meats Move Freely; Embargo On Cattle

By The Canadian Press

Canada's livestock industry took another step towards normality Thursday when Manitoba followed the lead of British Columbia and relaxed its restrictions on movements of hogs, sheep and meats.

However, the province retained its embargo on cattle, rawhides, wool, skins and bones and the transport of livestock through the province to eastern markets.

Manitoba's step, announced in the legislature by the province's Agriculture Minister F. C. Bell, was the second such by a Canadian province in two days. Nevertheless livestock marketing still appeared to be a long way from what it was before foot-and-mouth.

British Columbia was expecting the first shipments of beef and pork since it relaxed its ban. Live animals and dressed meats were marked for immediate slaughter. No feeders will be allowed into B.C. and all meat and livestock that does get in must be certified healthy by federal inspectors.

Permit System

That left B.C. in a position similar to that of Quebec where a permit system was in effect with permits issued on the say-so of provincial rather than federal officials.

In Ottawa, federal officials felt that Manitoba was the key to the whole question of interprovincial embargoes which the federal government said were unnecessary right from the start.

Economists made guesses that varied widely in trying to assess what the total loss in price drops and markets will mean to the industry. Some said the loss might be $10,000,000 while still others thought it would possibly be $100,000,000. However, all said it was sheer guess-work.

One effect of the relaxation of the bans was that 300 packing house workers in British Columbia could look forward to steady work again. Another 300 returned to work in Alberta, one third of them in Calgary and the balance in Edmonton.

Meanwhile, in the House of Commons Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Trade Minister Howe answered questions of members concerning the situation.

Mr. Gardiner said he did not think the quarantine regulations around Regina would be relaxed to allow free movement of seed and seed-cleaning equipment.

Western Oils Climb Highest In 15 Years

TORONTO, March 21 (CP)—Strong mid-session support today pushed the stock exchange's western oil index to the highest level in its 15-year history. Industrials, golds and base metals made little headway.

In western oils Western Ashley was a standout as it climbed pennies in a turnover of about 175,000 shares. Gains reached from pennies to about 75 cents.

Calgary and Edmonton, Canadian Atlantic, General Petroleum A, Model Oil, New British Dominions, Pacific Petroleum, Sapphire, Trend Petroleum and United Oils climbed strongly.

Refining oils and retail stores posted a scattered list of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Steels and liquors also drew firm support but textiles, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues slipped.

Base metals were mixed as Coldstream Copper, Estella, Mindamar, Hellens and Quemont strenthened while Fdlconbridge, Quebec Manitou and United Asbestos weakened.

Senior golds were firm. Hollinger, Lamaque and Teck Hughes turned upward. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Police Fire 15 Shots In Highway Chase

HAMILTON, March 21 (CP)—Police fired 15 shots in a wild chase on district highways early today after a three-ton truck carrying a stolen safe. No one was injured.

The truck was finally forced off the road near the intersection of No. 20 and No. 53 highways.

Police arrested two men in the truck. A third escaped across deserted fields.

Robert Smethurst, 24, and Frank Paulick, 19, were remanded one week in magistrate's court today on charges of shopbreaking and theft, and truck theft.

The safe contained $10.

Have No News Of Outbreak

OTTAWA, March 21 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in the Commons Thursday he has not been notified of an outbreak of anthrax among livestock in Indiana.

G. K. Fraser (P.C., Peterborough West) asked the minister if his department was aware that a notice from the government of that state said the deadly disease —a form of blood poisoning—had gone into that state from Ohio.

Saying he has not been informed, Mr. Gardiner added that "if there is any information to that effect, it is being properly taken care of."

Anthrax is a contagious disease which strikes both humans and animals. The disease is usually transmitted by spores. The symptoms are high temperatures, chills, loss of appetite, muscular weakness and hot, painful swellings over the body.

In some cases, there may be blood discharges from the mouth and nose. The animal may stagger, collapse and with a few convulsive movements suddenly die as a human would of a stroke.

U.S. Ratifies Japanese Treaty

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP) —The U.S. Senate ratified the Japanese peace treaty Thursday, 6½ years after the end of the Second World War. The vote was 66 to 10.

The treaty formally ends the war between Japan and the Allies and recognizes Japan's full sovereignty over her home islands, but needs still another country to ratify it before it goes into effect.

By voice vote, the Senate also ratified two security pacts—one with the Philippines and one with Australia and New Zealand.

Court Awards $10,500 To Man Who Lost Arm

A $15,000 award was made Thursday night favoring Gerald Hill, 33, an ex-mechanic from Brighton township, by an assize court jury.

Hill was suing George R. Cameron, and Edward S. James, both of Belleville.

The jury found Cameron 70 per cent negligent, and Hill 30 per cent. This means the award boils down to $10,500.

Both sides claimed the other was driving on the wrong side of the highway. Contradictory evidence carried the case through three days, until Thursday night, when the jury retired. The jury gave its findings shortly after 9 o'clock.

Sideswipe

The suit arose out of a sideswipe collision between cars driven by Cameron and Hill on Highway 7 two miles east of Havelock.

Hill's elbow was protruding from the window of the driver's seat. In the crash, his arm was so badly mangled that it was amputated at the elbow next day in Civic Hospital.

The father of five children, ranging up to 10 years of age, Hill has been unable to get steady employment since his discharge from hospital, he told the court. He could no longer be employed as a mechanic, nor could he farm.

3 Fishermen Trapped 60 Hours

MEAFORD, March 21 (CP) — Three fishermen trapped for 60 hours in the middle of a Georgian Bay icefield were rescued Thursday when a tug bashed through the ice and threw a lifeline to their fishing vessel.

"I'm tired, sleepy and cold," said Captain Lloyd Howell of the fishing ship Mary Lorraine, as he and his crew stepped ashore at this harbor 18 miles east of Owen Sound.

Capt. Howell, Victor Garvie and Tad Madista set out from Kemble on the shore of Georgian Bay Tuesday morning to lift whitefish nets. "We were almost upset as the boat was shoved up on the ice floes," said Capt. Howell. "There was nothing we could do to alter our position."

Wind drove the ice farther offshore with the Mary Lorraine trapped in the midst of it.

The tug Wanda Goldie, owned by Clem Lougheed, Thursday rammed through two miles of ice, threw a line to the Mary Lorraine and towed it free. At times the steel fishing boat road up out of the water as it was pulled over ice floes.

The crew had a three-day supply of food aboard and 600 pounds of fish they pulled up in their nets, but no heat.

Have New Device For Testing Concrete

TORONTO, March 21 — (CP)— Use of a new device for locating flaws in concrete up to 50 feet thick was outlined by two Toronto research men Thursday night before a joint meeting of the American Intitute of Electrical Engineers and the Engineering Institute of Canada.

J. R. Leslie and W. E. Parker, both of the Research division of the Ontario Hydro Commission, said the seniscope is a portable two-unit device.

It has been used in the United States to test pavements, as well as on hydro projects in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

The proposal calls also for improved vacation, shift, holiday and Sunday pay improvements. The board disallowed many union demands outright, and recommended future bargaining of others.

It recommended against the union's longtime guaranteed wage demand, but suggested continuing industry-union dickering on the idea with a view toward reaching agreement on it in a subsequent contract.

The board's public-labor majority favoring the union shop arrangement—which would require all employees of steel firms to be union members and pay union dues—drew angry protest from board industry members.

The newspaper quotes McCormick as saying when the plane reached Mont Joli, Que., Thursday:

"Our transoceanic hegira has come to an end. We were detained at Gander 4½ hours by the moronic customs officers and torpid baggage handlers and another half hour on the runway by a flier with engine trouble. The lunatic had gone off in this dangerous weather with a defective engine.

People Half-Witted

"We are told to excuse them because Newfoundlanders are so inbred as to be half-witted. That does not help our tired crew whose planned 12 hours flight has been lengthened to 17 hours or give us back the day we must lay over to rest them.

"If I again resume my travels, they will not include Newfoundland."

At Ottawa, Canadian government authorities said they will investigate the publisher's criticism of the Customs.

(Canada's State Secretary, F. Gordon Bradley, who also is Newfoundland's representative in the Dominion Cabinet, suggested McCormick should return to Newfoundland "and we'll teach him some courtesy."

(At St. John's, Premier Joseph Smallwood, had a mild reply. He expressed regret that "a distinguished citizen of the U.S.A. was inconvenienced" and said if the publisher should return to Newfoundland "we would be glad to . . allow him to see Newfoundlanders under happier circumstances."

British Fight Reds With Pen And Sword

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya — (AP)—Bandits who lurk in Malaya's jungles and emerge in little groups every day to murder and pillage are being fought with the pen as well as the sword.

Little publicity has been given to the psychological war effort of the Malayan federation authorities, but on a long-term basis it may be more effective than military or police measures.

The propaganda-battle is under the direction of the Emergency Information Service which is trying to undo Communist indoctrination of the bandits through word-of-mouth, leaflets, posters, broadcasts, newspapers and movies.

Leaflets and pamphlets are dropped by air into otherwise inaccessible terrorist country. More than 1,000 of these have been printed and editions of each have ranged from 5,000 to 2,000,000 copies.

Most of the leaflets are in Chinese, since the Chinese form 90 per cent of the terrorists.

A typical leaflet shows a recently-captured bandit appealing to his former friends to surrender. The leaflet contains a photograph of the bandit and a message in his own handwriting.

However, not many bandits are literate.

Many leaflets offer rewards for the capture of well-known bandits. These leaflets shown not only the face of the wanted bandit, but also for the benefit of the illiterate include a photograph of the money offered, in banknotes and coins.

Another leaflet shows half-a-dozen photographs of a typical Chinese enjoying himself at the Chinese mid-autumn festival. The text reads:

"Think what you're missing by staying in the jungle."

Eisenhower May Resign To Campaign

By PRESTON GROVER.

PARIS, March 21 (AP).—Pleased by primary returns, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower now is considering giving up his European command and returning home before the Republican convention to campaign actively for the presidential nomination.

"The mounting numbers of my fellow citizens who are voting to make me the Republican nominee are forcing me to re-examine my personal position and past decision," the general said Thursday.

Just a little earlier there were two developments in the United States bearing on Eisenhower's bid for the presidency:

1. The withdrawal of Senator Robert A. Taft from the New Jersey presidential primary, in which Eisenhower has the blessing of the state's Republican Governor, Alfred E. Driscoll.
2. President Truman's statement in Key West, Fla., that Eisenhower is at liberty to return to the United States any time he deems it safe and proper.

Eisenhower's statement was directed to reporters who had asked him whether the shower of write-in votes he got in the Minnesota primary, coming on top of his victory in New Hampshire, did not amount to the clear-cut call to political duty that would take him away from SHAPE.

General Astonished

"You gentlemen probably realize how astonished I was by the results of the Minnesota primary" he said. "The mounting numbers of my fellow citizens who are voting to make me the Republican nominee are forcing me to re-examine my personal position and past decision."

The personal position Eisenhower mentioned is this: At least in the eyes of his supporters he has now become a political figure so important as to overshadow his job as commander of the North Atlantic defence forces in Europe.

Going To Fight "Filthy" Literature

OTTAWA, March 21 (CP)—The member of parliament who inspired the ban on crime comics in Canada gave notice to the Commons today that he is going to war against "filthy literature."

The notice said he thought this could be done "without improperly restricting the freedom of the press or of genuine literature or artistic expressions."

Mr. Fulton succeeded a couple of years ago in winning parliamentary approval of a private bill to ban crime comics in Canada.

Ballerina Says Won't Raise Child Dancer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 21—(AP) —Ballerina Moira Shearer drops this unusual comment: She won't raise her child to be a dancer.

The flame-haired English dancer is expecting a child in August. Her confinement will mark the first extended vacation she has had from the ballet in 16 years. And therein lies the reason she does not want her child to be a dancer.

"Usually a dancer starts in the ballet at the age of 10, as I did," she remarked. "Of course, I was carrying on my usual schoolwork at that age, but much of the time was spent in learning the ballet. After five years, I started dancing professionally. Then the grind really began.

"A ballet dancer doesn't merely perform before the audience and let it go at that. There are three or four hours of exercises and practice every day, added to time spent on stage. That is utterly necessary, if one is to continue in the peak of performance. You can never let down. If you do, you are soon finished."

Miss Shearer remarked that the average child does not know what he or she is getting into when starting on ballet careers. Usually it is the mother or father who supplies the drive for a child to get started in ballet, she observed. She added that she doesn't intend to perform that service for her expected offspring.

That is particularly true if her baby is a boy, she remarked.

"Aside from other reasons," she said, "what future is there for a male ballet dancer? He is generally through dancing at 40 or before. Since he has spent most of his life in training for the ballet, he is unsuited for anything else."

Miss Shearer seemed to relish the idea of a few months away from her ballet slippers.

"We have our annual holidays —usually about four weeks," she said. "And there is the time out for torn muscles and other mishaps. Otherwise I have been dancing without let-up since I was 10."

Now 26, Miss Shearer isn't even having the usual easy time of expectant mothers. Last week she finished a ballet number for "Story of Three Loves." She also plays a dramatic role in the film, as she did in "Red Shoes." After a fishing trip to British Columbia with her husband, writer Ludovic Kennedy, she'll return to England to await the arrival of their first-born.

Dr. R. C. Burr Queen's Scientist Talks On Cancer

A capacity audience in the Public Library auditorium heard Dr. Ronald C. Burr, director of the Canadian Cancer Foundation give an address on cancer Thursday night.

Dr. Burr is also director of the Cancer Clinic at Kingston and associate professor of radiology at Queen's University.

In a frank discussion of this disease, this noted cancer authority explained that cancer is the growth of malignant cells in the body. What causes the growth of these cells is as yet unknown.

"Statistics show that one person in eight in Canada suffers from cancer," he said. Fifty per cent of these cases can be treated readily and cured. The important aspect of treatment of this disease is its early discovery."

Dr. Burr thoroughly outlined the organization for dealing with the problems of cancer in the province.

There are 26 organized cancer societies in Ontario which have as their main work educating lay persons about the disease and raising funds for use both by the local societies and for research.

Treatment of cancer and research are carried on at the same time in eight clinics in the province. These clinics are situated at Windsor, London, Hamilton, Kingston, Toronto, Fort William and Port Arthur and Ottawa.

During his address, Dr. Burr showed colored slides illustrating various types of cancer and results of treatment.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. L. Zacks and thanked by Dr. W. J. Gordon.

The film, "The Doctor Speaks His Mind," was also shown at the meeting.

Chairman of the meeting was Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the Peterborough Cancer Society.

Canadian Steps Into Lead Wins Praise From Critics

John Colicos, a 23-year-old Canadian who has his heart set on becoming a great Shakesperean actor drew a rave review from a well-known British critc today for his performance in the Old Vic Theatre Company production of "King Lear."

Colicos, who once cavorted on a Bermuda stage in his underpants, took over the exacting title role last Friday. Today critic Alan Dent of The News Chronicle praises the Montreal actor as an "astonishingly fine" Lear.

Calicos got the part—and the famous No. 1 dressing room in the Old Vic Theatre — after Shakesperean star Stephen Murray came down with laryngitis.

"For much of the time," writes Dent, "Colicos is quite obviously a very young man playing a very old one. But in the novel scene . . . in the wonderful meeting with the blinded Gloucester, and in the three final scenes with Cordelia, this is an astonishingly fine Lear, and his movements as well as his tone are here truly aged.

"His pathos at the end is piercing and deep, and he has throughout the looks and the pain-tossed beard of Lear . . . . The performance was received at the end with real and spontaneous enthusiasm."

The prospect of a 23-year-old playing King Lear in an Old Vic production also caught the attention of the Communist Daily Worker, which said in a front-page review:

"His performance in the last scenes was of a stature to be mentioned in the same breath as (Sir) Laurence Olivier's and Donald Wolfit's Lear."

Colicos himself, relaxing in his one-roomed Chelsea apartment, said today he hadn't even read the reviews.

He said he was "pretty nervous" when he first took over the role and finds that the demented rages the part calls for take a lot out of him physically. But the role still represents a dream come true for the moustached young Montrealer who came to Britain last November to study Sakespeare on his own home grounds.

Colicos won the best-actor award in last year's Dominion Drama Festival. He donned the underpants mentioned above for his role in the farce "See How They Run" in Bermuda last year.

Until last week, he had been playing a three-line part in "King Lear."

Helpful Provincial Spirit

The attitude of the Frost Government to the Federal Government is a shining example to other provinces. Several times during his budget speech yesterday Premier Frost referred to the co-operation and helpful attitude of the Federal Government. This can only be achieved by a reciprocal spirit of co-operation on the part of the Provincial authorities. They have given it in good measure. In his speech, even when adversely criticizing certain Ottawa measures relating to housing and credit restrictions, the Premier's words were amiable, his tone judicious. This sort of relationship—friendly, even cordial—does more to provide smooth-working arrangements at the Dominion-Provincial level than quires of written agreements.

• • •

Premier Frost made this comment on Dominion-Provincial relations: "There has been a spirit of co-operation and appreciation of the problems of others on all sides which I do not think has been present for many years. This spirit of understanding, and the wealth of experience upon which it is based, will be of great benefit to us all in future dealings. That real success has attended negotiations between the governments of Canada and Ontario on fiscal, constitutional and other subjects is a matter of record." Mr. Frost cited agreements on old age pensions, housing, the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Development, the Niagara Treaty, the Trans-Canada Highway, conservation and other matters.

• • •

In any other year in this century has there been such harmony and so many important agreements concluded between Ontario and Ottawa? The collaboration has been impressive and has had excellent results, for the good of Ontario and Canada as a whole. Mr. Frost said that while his Government is primarily responsible to the people of Ontario "we are all Canadians and we shall play our full part in promoting the general, sound economic advancement of Canada." This is the important matter, and not that the Provincial Government is Conservative, the Ottawa Government Liberal.

Rearmament Lagging

The Conservative Opposition press are attacking the St. Laurent Government because the numbers of planes, guns, squadrons in the air and men in the field, and the general rate of military expenditure scheduled a year ago, have not been reached. Canada is falling behind in her commitments. This gap between plans and fulfilment has to some extent put industry and employment out of kilter but it is purely a temporary dislocation. The orders are on the books; factories and workers will have the military jobs to do when supplies and machine tools are available.

Canada is not the only NATO country whose military contributions have not come up to plans. Italy, France, Britain and event the U.S.A. have not been able to keep abreast of the plans either, for political reasons (as in France and Italy); for economic reasons (as in Britain and France) or because of the sheer weight of them. It has been physically impossible. Re-armament on a great scale, as required in 1939 by Canada and Britain, cannot be accomplished in a twinkling or merely by having plans. It was a year after war broke out that Britain was at all prepared to fight it; and five before the Allied powers were able to launch the Second Front.

The present re-armament is big in design. According to the original plans of various countries for 1951, the following percentages of their net national incomes were to be spent for defence:

U.S.A.	17.0 per cent.
U.K.	13.4 per cent.
Canada	10.0 per cent.
Netherlands	9.7 per cent.
France	9.3 per cent.
Italy	7.0 per cent.
Norway	4.9 per cent.
Belgium	4.6 per cent.
Denmark	2.9 per cent.

That was the 1950 plan. Since then the United States, Britain and Canada have increased them, as other NATO countries have done. But in none of them has the 1950 schedule yet been fulfilled. A country like Canada cannot plan to spend ten to fifteen per cent. of her national income of billions on military machines and squadrons, and get the machines from the factories and men into planes or training camps overnight. It is not a simple matter to spend two billion dollars.

The figures above give the lie to Canadians and others who might believe that Canada is not prepared to take a fair share in the defence of the West. They show, too, the vast military commitments of Britain, even in these years when she is economically crippled. Her 1950 planned defence expenditures were increased last autumn from £3,600 million to £4,700 million, that is, about fourteen billion dollars. It is to this kind of [illegible] which Mr. Aneurin Bevan has objected, and which even Mr. Churchill now recognizes to be impossible without extraordinary effort and help from the U.S.A.

The Industry Gets Its Cut On High Cigarette Prices

Cigarettes retail in most of Canada for 42 cents a package. In the United States, before a new tax increase was imposed resulting in a one-cent rise in the retail price, a package of cigarettes cost 18 cents in states without a state tax on them. The difference between the Canadian and American prices has been so great that wholesale smuggling has taken place. Thus fewer Canadian cigarettes are being sold and the national purse is getting less, by way of tax, that it did before the last price rise.

Mr. St. Laurent has said that there is little chance of general tax reduction in the next budget. However, it is generally believed that the tax on cigarettes will be reduced, if only for the sake of the national exchequer.

High Canadian taxes on cigarettes and tobacco do not alone account for the high Canadian retail prices of 42 cents, leaving 17 cents to the industry and vendors. In the United States, with a retail price of 18 cents, the U.S. Government takes eight cents. That leaves 10 cents a package to the industry and retailers. Thus, while the Canadian tax is very much higher than the American, so is the amount left to the industry. In Canada it gets 17 cents retail on a package; in the U.S. 10 cents. If the Government does reduce its tax on cigarettes, is it too much to hope that the industry will cut its high share of the retail price of a package? Probably it is: it is too easy for the tobacco merchants, manufacturers and distributors to blame the Government for the high price, and not share any of the blame themselves.

New Post Office

The half-million dollar item in the Federal Government's estimates of expenditures for 1952-53 docketed for Peterborough is encouraging. We may in fact see work started on the proposed Federal Building on Charlotte Street before the year is out. Half a million dollars will pay for the spade work at least. The allocation includes the $200,000 placed in the estimates last year, and not used. Of course the same thing could happen this year to the increased sum, but if the Government really does not intend to get on with the building this year, why would it bother to increase the estimate to half a million?

The Deputy Post-Master General was in Peterborough to see some of the plays during the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival, and took the opportunity to inspect personally the existing old post office with its crowded quarters and perpetually chaotic working conditions; he also visited the site for the new building. Between intermissions at the plays, Peterborough people, discovering who he was, preached the cause. We feel that Mr. Turnbull went back to Ottawa ready to raise the roof of the new building, or raise other roofs on Capital Hill if the walls of the new Post Office again failed to rise.

When Peterborough Went West

The colonization of the Canadian West was one of the great movements in this country during the last thirty years of the last century, and to this movement Peterborough made a rich contribution. We were reminded of this by the following item, reproduced in the "Looking Backward" section of the Winnipeg Free Press for March 8. The date of the item is March 7, 1882, and it reads as follows:

At the concert given by the Holman Opera company in the city hall theatorium, the knell of which was being sounded by hammers and saws erecting the Princess Opera house on Princess street, a gentleman from Peterborough stood up during intermission and counted 79 former Peterborians in the audience.

Our link with the West, formed then, has been most cordially maintained ever since.

NOTES AND COMMENT

An expert on odours says that there are three basic kinds—fragrant, burnt, and acid. The Detroit News wants to know which is the classification for a wet goat?

Tests of the saliva of expectant mothers may soon make it possible to tell the sex of the unborn child. And, of course, to ensure that it will be the spitting image of one of its parents.

If your medical expenses amount to more than 4 per cent. of your yearly income, you can get a slice off your Income Tax. It's a nasty way to cut taxation, but we may come to it, sooner or later, in self defence.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: Who was this Madame St. Laurent you mentioned last week, mistress of the Duke of Kent for thirty years before he left her to get married so as to have a legitimate child, Queen Victoria?

ANSWER: Little is known of her. It is a splendid opportunity for any of my younger readers who wants to earn a Ph.D. She was a Canadian. Her full name was: Madame Alphonsine Therese Fortisson. Out of respect for Queen Victoria, the Duke of Kent's only legitimate offspring, it was politely recognized that Madame St. Laurent never existed. Historians have a gap to fill here, for Madame St. Laurent and the Duke lived as husband and wife for nearly thirty years, in Canada, in Europe and in England. When the Duke decided to marry, Madame St. Laurent retired to a convent. It is thought that she may have been related to the de Salaberry family of Quebec. No scandal was ever attached to Madame St. Laurent. One of the de Salaberry sons was christened Edward, and both Edward, Duke of Kent and his mistress Madame St. Laurent stood as godparents.

Most of the Royal Dukes, sons of George III, had illegitimate children but the Canadian record of the Duke of Kent's is a closed book. The Duke of Clarence, afterwards King William IV, had a large family of bastard children by Mrs. Jordan. The eldest was created Earl of Munster after Clarence became King, and younger sons and daughters (there were ten in all) were given the rank and title of the younger children of a Marquis in 1831.

The legitimate son of the second youngest Royal Duke, Adolphus Frederick Duke of Sussex, (Sir) Captain d'Este wanted to be made a Duke, if not a Royal Duke, but did not get the title despite the honours given to the Fitzclarence family, bastard offspring of William IV. This is an historical quirk, because the Duke of Clarence (William IV) had never married Mrs. Jordon, yet the Duke of Sussex had married and was faithful for a while to his wife Lady Augusta Murray. The marriage was never recognized as legal under the Royal Marriages Act—in those days royalty could not marry commoners.

It is very likely that the Duke of Kent had illegitimate sons and daughters while he was in Canada—rumour in Halifax and Quebec says so—and some children by Madame St. Laurent. But none of them has been given title and precedence such as were given to the bastard children of the Duke of Clarence.

DEAR ALPHA: On the 'Calculations of Income Tax' there is a 10% Defence surtax to add to the tax on the taxable income. Is the 10% on the total income (heaven forbid) the taxable income, or the tax on the taxable income.

I have been told that it is possible to deducts some charitable donations without any receipts. Is this true?

ANSWERS: (1) Ten per cent of the tax. For instance, if you have worked out your income tax to be $115.00, your special "defence tax" would be $11.50, which you add to the income tax, making the total $126.50. This extra ten per cent was introduced in last year's budget, to help meet the two billion dollar cost of rearming.

(2) Any exemptions you claim for charitable donations must be documented by official receipt from the church, Community Chest, or other charitable organizations. These receipts must be attached to your income tax return.

ALPHA: Did you ever hear or see the the phrase "a devout Protestant"?

ANSWER: No. But as I have heard of a a "devout Catholic", so have I heard of a "devout Quaker", "devout Baptist" etc. Because one does not speak of a devout Protestant does not mean that there are no earnestly religious Protestants. They are devoted to a denomination. Anyway, "devout" and "Protestant" are not seemly together: the adjective which should properly go with a good Protestor is "militant" or some other such aggressive word.

DEAR SIR: Can you tell me the name of the German song which the Nazis used to sing? I don't mean Lilli Marlene.

ANSWER: I suppose that you refer to the Horst Wessel song. The words were written by a student named Horst Wessel who was born in 1907 and was killed in 1930 in a Communist section of Berlin in which he lived as commander of a Storm Troop section of the Nazi forces. The story of his death was sufficiently garbled to assign in turn three persons to death at the hands of Nazi courts—when Hitler came to power.

The tune is that of a music-hall song popular among Germans in 1914.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: Are there any bootleggers in Peterborough?

ANSWER: Really, what a naive question. Of course there are. I am not able here to furnish addresses.

On one trip to the West Coast (it was during the war and several of us in uniform were travelling together) it fell to my teetotaller lot in Regina to provide a convivial bottle. There was only a fifteen minute stopover. Liquor stores were closed. I dashed to the station entrance and asked a taxi man in uniform where the nearest bootlegger was to be found. He gave me a cold stare. I stared at the uniform. He was a policeman.

Bootlegging in Peterborough consists chiefly in selling Liquor Control Board stuff out-of-hours at a dollar or so more than the bootlegger bought it. Bootlegging is not the profitable business it was in prohibition times. In fact, it is pretty small potatoes, not worth the time of a capable operator. The gents who have a craving to run illegal businesses do much better as bookies—placing bets on races—and operating gambling joints. Peterborough people are law-abiding; or indulge in their mild illegalities in their homes; or at church bingo games. It is only when they go on the rampage through places like Regina that they become inept and foolish.

FOR THE RECORD: Peterborough's most notorious resident now is Fred Brant, the young man who between two incarcerations in the county jail on vagrancy charges, suffered frost bite and as a result had both feet cut off surgically to the ball. He is a Lindsay-Victoria county charge usually, but now he is in the Civic Hospital. When a war was fought over Jenkins' Ears (1783), it is not to be wondered that a tempest has risen over Brant's feet. In case your history is wobbly, I remind you that Jenkins, the master of a small trading vessel, alleged that the Spaniards had boarded his vessel, ill-used him, and torn off one of his ears. The Opposition took the matter up, and Jenkins was brought before the Commons, where he produced the unfortunate ear. Although the ear is generally believed to have been lost in the pillory (Jenkins also had been in the hands of the law), so great was the hullabaloo that Prime Minister Walpole was shortly afterwards obliged to declare war against Spain.

"Mind a Suggestion That'll Help Us Both?"

Mr. St. Laurent As A Historian

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

IN MANY public addresses, Prime Minister St. Laurent reveals a keen historical sense, an understanding of Canada that enables him to illuminate the path this nation has followed. A well-remembered instance of this talent was the speech at Battleford last August in which he put Riel in better perspective as the leader of a protest movement against injustice, rather than as the unmitigated rebel of prejudiced chronicles. Again, at St. Michael's College in Toronto last week-end, Mr. St. Laurent suggested persuasively that Canada was born in 1841, the year of the Act of Union, instead of in 1867. Had he leisure for essay writing, he could evidently further enrich the appreciation Canadians have of their country's colourful history.

The union of Upper and Lower Canada to which Mr. St. Laurent referred came about because Lord Durham could see no other solution to the problem of "two nations warring in the bosom of a single state." Britain, where interest in imperial problems had waned, disregarded the settlement of the Quebec Act and washed its hands of troublesome Canada. It prescribed English as the sole official language and hoped the French-speaking minority would become assimilated. But Mr. St. Laurent recalls that almost the first act of the Canadian Parliament, after responsible government had been won in 1848, was to secure removal of this discrimination. In the new Province of Canada, the majority did justice to the minority and paved the way for the larger federation of 1867.

It is noteworthy that Canada's great prime ministers have been students of history, understanding well the background of Canadian life and the promise of Canadian future. In the midst of diversity, they have focussed attention on a heritage to share, a community of interests, a future to build together. To the task of political leadership, Macdonald and Borden brought the strength of national pride, Laurier the warmth of national feeling, and King an intuitive grasp of national statecraft.

The result of more than a century of "living together in a sometimes uneasy union," as Mr. St. Laurent says, has been an increasing respect for one another's faiths, customs, and traditions, and "even one another's peculiarities." "A common love of a common homeland" has grown in this "distinctively Canadian nation" of which the Prime Minister is an eloquent spokesman.

Ladies And Legislators

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

IF REPORTS from Toronto reflect the disposition of a majority in the Legislature, the silly obstinacy with which some politicians have obstructed the sale of margarine is to continue for a while.

However, there are signs that the anti-margarine element is fighting in its last ditch, because some hon. members began to lose their tempers under the cold logic of two women who asked them to explain their stand.

Mrs. Gordon Kerr of Windsor, acting head of the Provincial Council of Women, and her associate, Miss Muriel Wright, evidently had the male members of the House agricultural committee on the irritated and irritable defensive a good deal of the time. Not one sound argument did the mere males advance; not one M.P.P. had the courage to admit that the ban on colour in margarine in this province was a butter-monopolist dodge, persisted in after it had been found that the federal prohibition of margarine was illegal.

Instead, one hon. member, Roy Connell, so far forgot his manners and was so thoroughly devoid of sensible argument that he had to fall back on the claim that the place of women is in the home! The place of so backward and mid-Victorian a member, even though he classes himself as a Progressive Conservative, is certainly not in any legislative assembly in 1952.

Another Government supporter, James Allan of Haldimand-Norfolk, one regrets to say, is quoted as wanting to know what the Provincial Council of Women was, what it represented, how it got its members and whether it accepted donations from commercial firms! This member, one takes it, is now considerably better informed and perhaps somewhat abashed as a result of the reply he got from Mrs. Kerr! Were one disposed to be unkind, one might express wonder that an Ontario citizen could grow to adulthood, let alone get himself elected to one of the Seats of the Mighty, without some knowledge of the Local Council of Women in his nearest town, what it represents and how it functions.

Such beside-the-point chattering, however, was characteristic of the "hearing" given by the agricultural committee. As already remarked, the performance revealed the bankruptcy of the anti-margarine position. Also, it was a remarkably poor demonstration, politically. If the members think their unchivalrous reception of two ladies representing one of the most influential feminist organizations in the country was good for vote-getting, their line of reasoning must be just as feeble as their case against margarine. This is not to suggest that the Council of Women is in any respect a political association, but it is probable that an affront offered the Council may be taken as an affront to the entire Sex. In that case, let the politicians look out at the next election!

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. (Ps. 133: 1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.

For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office: so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another. (Rom. 12: 3-5.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you. (Phil. 3: 13-15.)

An Old, Old Story

(Edmonton Journal)

People who think things were better in the good old days may be disillusioned by a couple of clay tablets, dated about 1600 B.C., recently dug up in Iraq. They are covered with inscriptions in the ancient Babylonian language, consisting mostly of collections of proverbs—some of which, with only slight alteration, are still in common use today.

One section, however, was obviously a letter to the editor. Translated, it reads:

"The poor man is better dead than alive. If he has bread he has no salt, if he has salt he has no bread. If he has a house he has no stall, if he has a stall he has no house."

It sounds as if they had inflation and a housing problem thirty-five hundred years ago in Babylon.

A Good Conceit Of Ourselves

(Montreal Gazette)

A professor in England astonished his class the other day by saying: "The trouble with you young men these days is that you're not conceited enough!" After the first astonishment had died down, he went on to explain what he meant. A good conceit, he said, helps a man to make something of himself, to take his chances in the world, and to recover from the shocks of disappointment. Unless there is a healthy self-conceit, he is likely to go down under the poor opinion other people always have of a man until he proves himself. The trouble today, this English professor went on, is that too many people feel the world is too much for them, or that they are no match for the world.

BUDGET CUT

POPULAR "TAX" STAMP — Harried U.S. income tax collectors have a new burden to bear as thousands of these "protest" stamps, right, printed in red ink, begin to show up on income tax return forms. They are issued by the Citizens' Public Expenditure Survey, an Albany, N.Y., private taxpayers' organization. The idea caught on and is sweeping the country. Ann DeGolyer, left, of Albany, has mailed out more than 100,000 stamps to date.

Doctor, Senator Can't Agree On Birth Control

OTTAWA, March 21—(CP)—An Ontario senator Thursday disagreed with persons advocating birth control as a cure for the world's ills and said the miseries of mankind are caused mostly "by an utter disregard for the moral code and the laws of nature".

Senator Joseph Lacasse (L-Ontario), 62-year-old Tecumseh physician, said he does not agree with Senator J. P. Howden's references to birth control in his speech in moving the address in reply to the Speech From the Throne.

Senator Howden, also a doctor, had said the population rate could be controlled by "painless and harmless" means and mentioned that Prime Minister Nehru of India had said birth control was the only solution for India's overpopulation.

"Although I would trust his (Senator Howden's) advice as a medical man", said Senator Lacasse, "I admit I would not have as much faith in his diagnosis".

Praises Appointment

Speaking in the throne speech debate, he praised the government for appointing a Canadian governor-general and expressed satisfaction at the rise in the value of the Canadian dollar.

He hoped he never again would see Canadians crossing into the United States from Windsor to Detroit being "told with utter contempt that their money is next to Patagonian currency".

Canada should be careful about immigratoin, he said. He didn't believe she was ready to absorb "as much new blood as some interested countries would like to get rid of".

Canada should ensure that subversive elements "which are causing all the trouble in foreign lands are not allowed to seek shelter and protection on our shores".

BC Dairymen Don't Want Willi Working Near Them

VANCOUVER, March 21 (CP)—Dairy farmers in suburban Richmond Thursday night protested the presence in that area of Willi Bruentjen, German immigrant cleared by federal veterinarians of carrying foot and mouth disease to Canada.

At a meeting Wednesday night a dairyman said: "We don't want to be unfair to Bruentjen, but the government should have found him a job in some other line of work, to be on the safe side."

Bruentjen now is working on the farm of Jack Diamond, Vancouver packinghouse owner.

The meeting also protested lifting of the importation ban on livestock from Alberta, announced by Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman.

At Ottawa, Dr. Thomas Childs, veterinarian-general of Canada, said Bruentjen is perfectly safe. He had been thoroughly examined and no trace of the foot and mouth disease virus had been found on his person or effects.

"Even if he had the virus at one time, there isn't a chance in the world that it would be alive all this time," Dr. Childs said.

Budget Debate Starts Next Week

TORONTO, March 21 (CP) — The Ontario Legislature next week launches its detailed study of the province's first $300,000,000 budget.

Today, following Premier Frost's presentation of his budget Thursday the legislature will limit itself to dealing with several government bils.

On Monday the first of the $304,208,000 in estimates to be voted for the fiscal year starting April 1 will come before the House.

The next day the Liberal Opposition will launch the debate on the government's fiscal policies. The lead-off speaker will be a former premier, Harry Nixon (L-Brant), who has taken the role of Opposition financial critic. Mr. Nixon was former provincial secretary and was premier for three months in 1943.

The budget debate is expected to be extensive.

Premier Frost, who is also provincial treasurer, left out of his budget speech the usual reviews of government departments. He announced that each cabinet minister will be given the opportunity to give a comprehensive review of his department when his department's estimates come up for study.

Offer Free Tablets

BLOOMFIELD, N.J., March 21 (AP)— Three-million tablets of the new anti-TB drug were offered free Thursday to 255 United States hospitals for human tests. Selected Canadian hospitals also will receive some of the drug. That amount is enough to treat 2,500 patients for six months. The offer came from Schering Corporation.

Big Butter Import

OTTAWA, March 21 — (CP) — Canada imported 19,000,000 pounds of butter and 12,000,000 pounds of cheese in the 12 months ended Jan. 31, government statistics tabled in the Commons showed Thursday. In the same period, she exported 580,000 pounds of butter and 30,000,000 pounds of cheese.

BERLIN, March 21—(Reuters)—East Germany is developing the largest shipbuilding industry ever undertaken on the German Baltic Coast with a view to increasing her trade with China. Leaves Money To Pope PERUGIA, Italy, March 21 — (Reuters)—Don Attilio Bellachioma, 75-year-old priest who went mad after winning 40,000,000 lire (about $64,000) in a lottery and died in a mental hospital, left his entire fortune to Pope Pius. The priest won the lottery last summer. Hounded for months by hundreds of self-styled relatives, he died three months ago. His will was found Thursday night in a pile of papers.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

"It would take a lot of persuasion to get a Legion branch interested in sport sponsorship these days." So says the London, Ont., scribe, after recalling the first few years after the war when Legion teams were in all kinds of spectator sports. Not many Legion branches go in for such games now, finding that they cost plenty. We well recall when George Gimblett, Bob Hotrum and the rest at Branch [illegible] contending teams in O.H.A. company, men's softball, soccer [illegible] few others. Their senior "B" puck club won an Ontario title and next year went to the finals. But the financial burden proved too much and they dropped out several years ago. Signs of the times. .

Dave Leether, Frank Wood and Fred Scates form a nominating committee to bring in a suggested slate of officers in the men's City Softball League. They'll report at the annual loop meeting at seven p.m. Monday in the "Y." Election of officers then, reports read, entries taken and plans for the season discussed. No closing yet of entries, but those interested should attend and say their piece. Also O.A.S.A. delegates will be appointed at this time. Orphans last year won the city title and the Wm. Taylor Trophy, while U.E.W. captured the Geo. Dormer Trophy for finishing the schedule in first place. It is hoped to have at least four good clubs in this summer.

There Or Thereabouts

This city and district year after year, season after season, comes up with some fine athletic clubs. Canadian champs, Ontario winners, runners-up, group victors, and so on. Right now, Towne Togs are having a go at provincial girls' cage semi-finals in the intermediate "B" bracket. Down six points to Toronto lasses, they hope to overcome that here Saturday night and go into finals. It's an 8.30 tilt at the Y.W. Local girls' loop moves into finals in their group, too, with Neill's seniors opening the sawoffs at eight tonight against Lindsay in the Y.W.C.A., while Black's follow up 'gainst Nurses in the intermediate opener, points counting. Juniors commence next week.

Otonabee Wolves are in provincial bantam "B" puck finals now and can take it all tomorrow night at 8.30 in Civic Arena if their beat Brampton again. They edged 'em 9-8 in the first of the best-of-three set for the O.M.H.A. title. As they won the toss, they'll get the third game as well, if it's necessary. Meantime, Marmora plays Havelock at 8.30 this gloaming in Civic, a game transferred from soft ice in Havelock. It's fourth of the best-of-five T.V.L. semi-finals, Marmora leading by a game. Havelock must win or hang up their skates. Coach Jack Harris has a bunch of Peterborough puckists on his Havelock crew. Hockey fans are advised to drop around and see these two playoffs on local ice this weekend.

Odd Hockey Association

Toronto Telegram, discussing Eagles' new evidence on Goalie MacDonald of Kingston, winds up its story quoting D. A. McGillis: "This is just sop to Kingston. The O.H.A. got themselves in a jackpot over the suspension of Nylons last year. Then that chap from Kingston got up in Parliament and said the government should supervise the O.H.A. Now they're trying to salve Kingston at our expense." Tely said Mr. McGillis will carry his case through regardless of the cost, and it adds: "He may get his chance but not until April 10 when the O.H.A., says president John Roxburgh, will deal with the suspension. By then, if the Eagles win, it will be too late to play in the O.H.A."

* * * * * *

Isn't that great stuff? Determined at all costs to keep Eagles out and let Kingston proceed, the O.H.A. president is acting in a bullheaded and spiteful manner. He could well have this suspension and Eagles' protest dealt with at a meeting in Toronto this weekend. But no, he's going to shelve it until it's too late for Eagles to get back in contention if they do prove the O.H.A. was wrong in allowing MacDonald to play for Kingston. Well, if by any chance Kingston should take this present series over the Petes—though that is a remote possibility—the Petes could lodge a protest that the K's are using a senior "A" goalie. Then Mr. Roxburgh would really be on the spot!

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

When our boys were in Winnipeg playing in the MacDonald-Brier bonspiel they attended divine worship Sunday evening. The minister was the Rev. Allan R. Huband, chaplain of the Dominion Curling Association.

Following are some of the excerpts taken from his sermon:

"Now, I don't want to put a hex on the teams from the other nine provinces, but I feel I must warn you. There is one verse that describes the prowess of the boys from Manitoba. Ezek. 28:14—'Everyone of them could sling stones at an hair-breadth and not miss.'

"Curling does not trace its history to the Bible, yet it is astonishing how many verses in the sacred writings can be given a curling application."

Further, he said of champion Billy Watson—Gen. 16:12—"His hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him."

And then of the opposing skips: "Behold, I am against thee, O Rock of the Plain." (Jeremiah 21:13).

If you have wondered why Senator Haig must throw the first rock, the answer is in John 8:7—"Let him that is without sin cast the first stone."

"The clinching blow in favor of curling is we don't have to import the stars who take part in it."

The Padre concluded his sermon with: "I believe there are sermons in stones. The skip is Christ, the world's greatest teacher, and incomparably the noblest example. He holds the broom. We take our direction from him, and the strategy of our lives is to be in accord with the mind of the Master."

Tomorrow's program — 2:00 p.m., men's bonspiel; 7:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m., continuation of the Sturgeon Trophy.

Hornets Edge Bears 3-1 To Take Lead

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets, Cincinnati Mohawks and Cleveland Barons are hitting the victory trail in the American Hockey League playoffs.

At Pittsburgh Thursday night, the Hornets came from Behind to down Hershey Bears 3-1 and take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven "A" series.

At Cincinnati, Emile (the cat) Francis returned to the nets for the Mohawks and turned in a brilliant performance as the Hawks shaded Buffalo Bisons 2-1. It was the second straight victory for the Hawks in the best-of-five series.

In the third contest, at Cleveland, the Barons won the first game of their best-of-five series, edging Providence Reds 3-2.

Winning Marker

It was Ray Hannigan's goal at 16:09 of the second period that was the winning marker for the Hornets who won the western division championship. Bill Ezinicki and Bobby Hassard also tallied for the winners. Hershey's only goal was scored by Sam Bettio.

At Cincinnati, Ian MacKintosh scored the winning goal at 18:08 of the third period when he knocked in Paul Masnick's rebound from six feet out.

Eddie Harrison poked in the other goal for the Hawks and Lorne Davis rapped in Buffalo's only counter.

At Cleveland, the Baron marksmen were Steve Wochy, Jerry Couture and Eddie Olson. Chuck Scherza and Ray LaPlante tallied for the Reds.

Cleveland Manager Annoyed At Feller

LOS ANGELES, March 21—(AP)—Cleveland Indians' manager Al Lopez is slightly ruffled over Bob Feller's decision to start out the season throwing the ball "nice and gentle."

Lopez said that Feller will start against the Chicago Cubs here Sunday, but: "if he doesn't exert himself more than he did Wednesday, he won't pitch more than an inning or so."

Lopez' mild peeve was over Feller's allowing Pittsburgh Pirates to score three runs in one inning Wednesday night, not because of the runs but because he isn't throwing the ball hard.

But Feller says: "This is the way I worked into shape bofore the war. Make it nice and easy. Don't throw hard until the weather gets warm."

K. Dorrington Leads

Karl Dorrington topped men in the Mercantile Bowling League at Duffus' this week with high single of 347 and best threesome of 719. Marcelle Lake led lasses in threes with her 704 effort, as Kay Curtain's 276 was tops in singles. High team pinnage went to Austin's with a 2,996 total.

The whitewash brush was used liberally with 4-0 victories hung up by Braund's No. 1 over Bond's, Loblaw's over their opponents, Utilities against Braund's No. 2, and Prudential over Neill's. A 3-1 triumph was taken by Austin's against Crowe's.

Teepees Roar Back To Life, Clip Irish 5-1

By The Canadian Press.

St. Catharines Teepees, one of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit's most unpredictable teams, Thursday night ran true to form, even though deep into the playoff semi-finals.

Avenging that 4-0 Wednesday shutout at the hands of Toronto St. Michael's, the Teepees roared back to life with a convincing 5-1 victory in a packed hometown arena to deadlock their best-of-five semi-finals at two games each.

The date of the final game in this series will depend upon the outcome of tonight's Toronto Marlboros - Guelph Biltmores clash at Guelph.

Noranda Leading

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals, Noranda Copper Kings Thursday night edged Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 4-2 in the Quebec mining centre to take a 2-1 lead in that best-of-seven series Fourth game will be played tonight in Noranda.

The winner of this Northern Ontario championship will move south to meet the survivor of the O.H.A. Senior A final between Owen Sound Mercurys and Stratford Indians. With the Indians leading the best-of-seven round 4-1, fifth game is scheduled tonight in Stratford.

Gord Myles led the St. Catharines attack with a pair of goals while Buddy Boone, Chuck Marshall and Bill Young scored the others. Eddie Plata clicked for the lone St. Mike's marker.

Norm Connelly, Moe Savard, Jim O'Shea and Roman Vesidowski tallied for Noranda while Hec Pozzo and Husky Hodgsen banged in the Sault Ste. Marie goals.

Olympic Prospects On Show

MONTREAL, March 21—(CP)—Olympic prospects from three countries will have a chance to show their stuff tonight at the Canadian Legion's sixth annual indoor track and field meet for Eastern Canada Championships.

Canada's top aspirants for a place in the 1,500 and 5,000-metre Olympic races at Helsinki, Finland, next summer will compete tonight in the two-mile race and the Legion mile.

Don Scott McEwen, the Ottawa runner who captains the University of Michigan's track team, is favored in the two-mile. He may better his own Canadian indoor record of 9:03.2, set at last year's Legion meet.

McEwen will have 14 competitors. They include his Michigan teammate, George Lynch of Toronto, considered the fourth-best two-miler in the United States, Valdo Lillakas of Montreal, the Canadian six-mile champion, and Rich Ferguson of Toronto.

The man to beat in the Legion mile appears to be John Ross of Oakville, also a Michigan track performer. Ross is one of the few Canadians who have bettered 4:10 in a recorded mile, and in tonight's gallop at the Montreal forum he has a chance to beat the Canadian indoor record of 4:10.6 set by Gil Dodds, American star.

There is a wealth of international talent in the 500-yard event. Montreal's Jackie Carroll, another track - performing Michigander, finds himself up against three world record-holders in the field.

Toronto League Won't Play For Cup

TORONTO, March 21 (CP). — The 10-team Toronto and District National Football League will not enter this season's play for the Football Association of Canada Cup, emblematic of the Canadian Soccer championship.

The finals are scheduled for Vancouver late in August and the National League feels it is financially impossible to enter. This means that Toronto Ulster United, the 1951 Dominion title-holders, will be missing from this year's play.

This is the second time within the last three years that the National League has refused to enter. Previously, it refrained from playing because the finals were scheduled too early.

Howe Breaks Own Record As Wings Whip Rangers

By The Canadian Press

Floral is a tiny village in Saskatchewan and its citizens of that "hidden" town are mighty proud of their Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' muscle man, scoring champion of the National Hockey League and considered in some quarters as one of the game's all-time greats. The 24-year-old right-winger, N.H.L. scoring champion for the second straight year, broke his own record as the Wings' all-time scorer on Thursday night. He potted his 43rd and 44th goals of the season —one more than the club record he set last year—as Detroit whipped New York Rangers 7-3.

It was just a tuneup for the forthcoming Stanley Cup playoffs but Howe played it for keeps with his two-goal effort. The two points gained by the victory put Detroit within striking distance of last season's 101 point-total.

The Wings now have 97 and close out the 70-game schedule this weekend with a home-and-home doubleheader against the second-place Montreal Canadiens.

Second Place Settled

Ted Lindsay practically settled the runner-up spot in the league scoring race with four points, manufactured on two goals and two assists. He now is three points up on Montreal's Elmer Lach. Lindsay has 65, Lach 62 and it's a cinch the nifty Montreal centre will receive more attention than usual this weekend to keep him off the scoring sheet.

Despite the lopsided score at Madison Square Gardens, Detroit twice had to come from behind and led only 4-3 with less than 12 minutes to play.

Allan Stanley put the Rangers ahead 1-0 early in the first period and Johnny Wilson matched it. Herb Dickenson gave New York a 2-1 edge in the second period before Lindsay hit for the first time to knot it. Howe added another and the Wing's didn't look back.

Marty Pavelich and Tony Leswick got the other Detroit goals. Arnie Kullman scored the final New York goal.

Last Night's Stars

Gordie Howe of Detroit, who scored twice and picked up one assist in the same game.

Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings, who scored two goals and collected two assists as the Wings blasted New York Rangers 7-3 at Detroit.

When life is in your hands
If someone's breathing stops from gas, drowning, electric shock—could you save his life?
April Reader's Digest tells about a new, surer method of artificial respiration the Red Cross and U.S. Army now use — with pictures to show you how.
The new technique takes so little strength a child can save a grown man. And because it forces air into the lungs as well as out, it's more effective than the widely used Schafer method.

Find Colleges In Bowl Circuit Not Getting Rich

By WIL GRIMSLEY.

NEW YORK, March 21 (AP).—There may be evils in football bowl games as contended by a committee of college presidents asking their extinction, but one of these evils apparently isn't money.

The Associated Press took a peek today at the swag that came out of the four big shows of last Jan. 1 and discovered none of the colleges involved is getting overly fat on the returns.

For example, take Illinois, the Big Ten champion which slaughtered Stamford 40-7, before nearly 100,000 fans in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

After the Illinois group have finished sharing their prosperity with other conference schools and paying extra expenses for a special Bowl party that included cheer leaders, etc., athletic director Doug Mills figures the university's net take at about $14,000 or $15,000.

Better To Stay Home

Except for the prestige involved, Illinois would have been better off to have stayed home and played a neighborhood rival. The Illinois team averaged a net gain of about $70,000 in three Conference games last fall with Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa. The Michigan game grossed around $158,000, of which Illinois got some $85,000.

One of the criticisms against Bowl games has been that it enabled some colleges to fatten their athletic coffers and build up progressively stronger teams.

Georgia Tech, 17-14 winner over Baylor in the Orange Bowl at Miami, is probably another that won't buy that reasoning.

The Yellow Jackets brought around $92,000 away from Miami. But the Southeastern Conference took its 25-per-cent cut—$23,000—right off the top. After trip expenses, which included accommodations for all the players' wives, Tech was left with around $25,000.

This money was used to help pay off the loan on Tech's stadium. The engineers reap a profit of $45,000 to $50,000 on each conference game at home.

Norwood Triumphs

A fast display of hockey took place in Warsaw arena Wednesday night, when Norwood defeated the Warsaw-Douro Combines, 4-3.

In the first period, Norwood took the lead with Virginia Ellis scoring; then Dora McMillan tied it up for the Combines.

In the second, the play roughened up. Virginia Ellis netted another to make the score 2-1 for Norwood. Della Carlow came through with another for the Combines to tie the score. Helen Carlow netted one of Combines to put them in the lead.

In the third period, Beth Thompson scored one for Norwood. This period of play roughened up, with Della Carlow getting a penalty for tripping; then Madeline Carlow was carried off with an injured leg. Virginia Ellis came through with her third goal of the night to make the final score 4-3. Teams:

Combines.—Goal, Mae McMillan; defence, Ethel McMillan, Madeline Carlow; centre, Bernadette Carlow; wings, Kathleen Carlow, Helen Carlow. Alternates: Eleanor Davis, Wilma Freeburn, Della Carlow, Dora McMillan, Sylvia Bolton.

Norwood.—Goal, Lou Hie; defence, Jean Walden, Shirley Rusaw; centre, Beth Thompson; wings, Muriel Gough, Virginia Ellis. Alternates: Marie Whitney, Siz Warrener.

Hodges To Catch

TAMPA, Fla., March 21—(AP)—Gil Hodges, Brooklyn's home-run slugging first-baseman is going to find himself catching this week, manager Charlie Dressen said today. Hodges came up to the Dodgers as a catcher, but has been on first base since 1948. Since the Dodgers will carry only two catchers, Roy Campanella and Al Walker, Dressen wants to have insurance in case of injuries.

LINE RE-UNITED—Together again for one game, the famed Kraut Line of past years paced the Boston Bruins to a 4-0 victory over Chicago. Milt Schmidt, left, scored his 200th goal and picked up three assists; Porky Dumart, centre, had one assist; and Bobby Bauer, right, had a goal and an assist.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

In "England" a team, made up mostly of Canadian players, on Thursday night scored a 6-4 upset victory over Edmonton Mercurys, Canada's world and Olympic hockey champions, to win the Churchill Cup.

The three-club competition in London also involved the United States Olympic team, beaten by both Canada and the English entry. The cup was offered for the first time last year when Lethbridge Maple Leafs won it.

Mercs were ahead 2-0 in the second period when the English team blew the game wide open by scoring three goals in three minutes.

Bill Glennis of Manitoba scored three goals to lead England's attack. Milt Swindelehurst of Winnipeg and Ottawa's Dave McGuire and Les Anning each scored once.

Edmonton scorers were Sully Sullivan, Jack Davies, Billy Gibson and Engelbert Miller.

Ken Church, Windsor, jockey setting a fast pace for Miami's Gulfstream Park, rode his 16th winner of the meeting yesterday when he completed a double win on Roman Fair. His mount won by only a nose and but for the jockey's perfect timing and coolness might have been beaten.

After a study of British Columbia's weather for the last 50 years the 1954 British Empire games in Vancouver were scheduled by the games committee to open July 28 and close Aug. 6.

Royal Tan, one of the two horses that didn't fall in last year's Grand National Steeplechase, was ruled Thursday night in London the 10-to-1 favorite in this year's race in a callover of odds by British bookies.

In Copenhagen Thursday night the European lightweight championship fight between Danish titleholder Joergen Johansen and Britain's Tommy McGovern ended in a draw after 15 even rounds. Officials announced Johansen will remain European champion.

Goalie Jim Henry of Boston Bruins will receive the Dufresne Trophy as the National Hockey League club's outstanding performer in home games, general manager Art Ross announced on Thursday in Boston.

Cincinnati Reds have offered to trade pitcher Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell to Brooklyn Dodgers for three players, it was learned Thursday in Tampa, Fla. Neither club would admit the names of the Brooklyn players involved.

The New York State Legislature Thursday in Albany killed a bill which would have given the State Harness Racing Commission the sweeping powers over the sport in New York now delegated to the United States Trotting Commission. Its sponsor, Republican Elmer Kellam of Hancock, requested that it be "laid aside" until today. The Legislature adjourned Thursday.

Ernest Cook

The funeral for Ernest Cook, 52 McDonnell St., who died Tuesday was held Thursday from the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were K. M. Sine, R. R. Ford, G. Noyse, G. F. Thompson, H. Devey, C. I. Richardson. Burial was in Lakefield cemetery.

Hoppe Tied In First Place

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21 — (AP).—Champion Willie Hoppe bounced back from two defeats and a severe case of nerves to tie for first place in the world three cushion billiard tournament.

And in thumping rotund Art Rubin of Brooklyn 50-46 Thursday night he eliminated a dangerous threat from the possibility of a five-way tie for the championship.

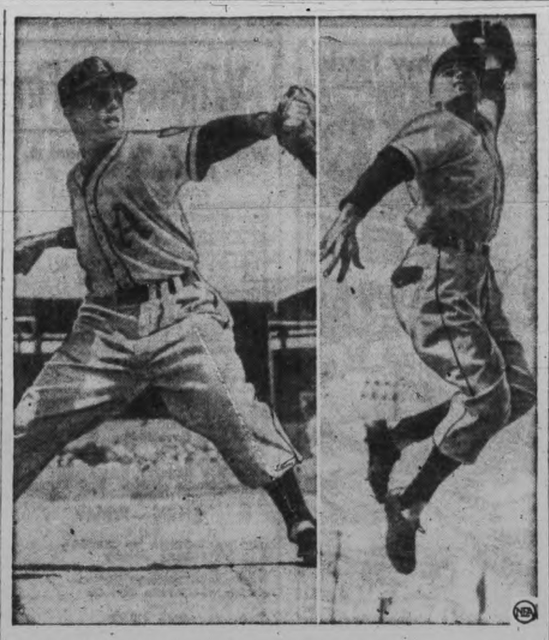
Hoppe's victory elevated him into a tie with Jay Bozeman of Vallejo, Calif., for the lead. Each has a 6-2 record. Each has one game left in the round robin tournament.

Two other players, Kinrey Matsuyama 5-2 and Ray Kilgore 4-3 still are in the running—posing the possibility of a two, three or four-way tie for first place after tomorrow night's finale.

Bozeman, just resuming billiards after six years retirement, meets Kilgore, the San Francisco giant killer, Saturday afternoon. Hoppe plays Matsuyama in the final regularly scheduled game Saturday night.

Willing Workers Meet

WARKWORTH, March 21 — (ENS)—The Willing Workers Group of the Women's Association of St. Paul's United Church met in the church basement on Thursday afternoon in the form of a quilting. During the business period it was decided to hold a home cooking and baking sale on April 19.



ALL-AROUND—The Philadelphia Athletics can't decide what to do about rookie Bobby Williams, play him in the outfield or infield. At left, he works out at shortstop, can also go far and high to pull down long drives to the outfield. He's up from Lincoln, Neb., of the Western League.

1,070 V.O.N. Visits In First Two Months

V.O.N. Nurses made 1,070 visits to 170 patients during January and February Miss Harriet McGeary nurse-in-charge, reported today.

In these same two months in 1951 1,517 visits were made to 207 patients.

The average number of visits per patient in January and February this year was 6.45 as compared to 7.44 during the same two months last year. There were 214 educational visits during the two months.

Fifteen undergraduate students from Civic and St. Joseph's hospitals made 94 visits in the two months.

Lakefield Rink Nears Reality

LAKEFIELD, March 21 (ENS)—The hope of a curling rink for Lakefield promises to become a reality. This note of optimism was struck Wednesday evening when members of the building committee met in Memorial Hall to bring in recent estimates. Committee chairman Gordon Dunford presided.

Originally planned was a frame structure, but members now feel the building would be better made of cement blocks. It is hoped to purchase all material to be used in the village.

To cut building costs, a low pitch roof was considered, similar to that used on modern schools, and members felt this type of roof would prove satisfactory.

The committee now has about $2,500 on hand and are optimistic of raising the rest. Original plans called for a two-ice rink, but it is now felt that, considering the size of the village three ices would be more desirable, and increased costs would not be prohibitive.

Building Road To Save Salmon

VANCOUVER — (CP)—A road 50-odd miles long is being pushed through in northern British Columbia so that a rockslide can be cleared to save millions of dollars worth of sockeye salmon.

The road starts at Hazelton, on the mainline of the Canadian National Railway, and cuts into the little known northwest corner of B.C., through forest, mountains and glacier 400 miles north of Vancouver.

It clambers over bluffs at a slope of more than 30 degrees and over ledges which drop 300 feet to the Babine river.

The slide is in Babine canyon and the full effect of it on the salmon run will not be known until 1955 when the 1951 spawn return.

The road was started last autumn and is expected to be finished this spring. Work on the slide will being immediately.

In a normal year 500,000 sockeye pass through the Department of Fisheries counting trap at Babine Lake entrance; last year only 135,000 got through. If the slide is not cleared by this summer, the loss will be great.

The 13-man crew has already covered all but 10 miles of the road.

They have found the country rich in minerals and some plan to return to the area later. Coal is plentiful, great quantities jutting out from the grey rocky bluffs.

Sent To Institution

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21—(AP) — Henry Von Morpurgo, former public relations man charged with diverting to his own use $93,000 from the Sister Kenny Polio Fund, was committed Thursday to a federal institution until he recovers mental competency. His lawyers reapeatedly had attempted to prevent Von Morpurgo's trial by declaring he was so "emotionally upset" he was incoherent.

Saskatchewan Seeks Change To Prevent Loss Of Seats

By The Canadian Press.

A constitutional amendment to prevent any province from losing more than 10 per cent of its Federal members in any redistribution was requested Thursday by the Saskatchewan Legislature.

The resolution, which drew support from both sides of the house was aimed at preventing Saskatchewan from losing more than two seats in the coming redistribution.

Supporting his resolution that the Alberta government has erred in overemphasizing "progressive" education in the province, Hugh John MacDonald (L.-Calgary) said that the "comic book" is the symbol of the depth of interest in most public school students. He contended that the present system does not endeavor to give a broad understanding of literature and history.

The government members of the Manitoba house defeated six want-of-confidence motions—four by the Progressive Conservatives and two by the C.C.F. The Legislature also approved capital supply of $22,469,000 and supplementary estimates totalling $61,444.

The water rights of British Columbians in the Columbia river—covered in a treaty more than 100 years old—was discussed in the B. C. house. C.C.F. leader Harold Winch called on the government to protect the rights of the province under the terms of the 1846 treaty between the United States and Britain. The treaty, which has never been revoked, gives residents west of the Canadian Rockies free access over any tributary of the Columbia to the ocean, just as though they were American citizens. Mr. Winch said the damming of the Columbia at Libby, Mont., would break the treaty.

Completes Negotiations

Nova Scotia has completed negotiations for borrowing $12,000,000 on the New York market, Premier Angus L. Macdonald told the Legislature. The money, to retire maturing debentures, pay bank overdrafts and meet other past commitments, has been obtained at 3⅝ per cent interest. The issue is for 12 years.

In its redistribution resolution, the Saskatchewan house noted that it was likely to drop the province's representation in the House of Commons from 20 seats to 15. The impending cut is a result of the drop of Saskatchewan's population.

A parliamentary committee normally redistributes seats every 10 years—following the decennial census. Until 1947, Quebec was used as the basis for fixing representation. The province had 65 seats and the quotient reached by dividing that figure into the province's population was used to fix representation in other provinces.

New Formula

The new formula will use the population of the country as a whole, rather than just Quebec. Exceptions are that the Yukon is guaranteed a seat and no province may have fewer members of the Commons than it has Senators.

Preliminary figures indicate that the 262 seats in the Commons will be divided in the next parliament in the following way, old representation in brackets:

Newfoundland seven (seven); Prince Edward Island four (four); Nova Scotia 13 (13); New Brunswick 10 (10); Quebec 75 (73); Ontario 85 (83); Manitoba 14 (16); Saskatchewan 15 (20); Alberta 17 (17); British Columbia 22 (18); Yukon one (one).

The Saskatchewan figures may affect some of the leading personalities in the federal House. Those holding Saskatchewan seats which may disappear include Agriculture Minister Gardiner, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and John Diefenbaker, leading Progressive Conservative member.

Tightening Law

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP) —Legislation designed primarily to check the flow of wetbacks across the Mexican border into the United States was signed into law Thursday by President Truman. Those entering illegally from Mexico are called wetbacks because many wade the Rio Grande to cross the border.

She said it was customary to have a speaker from the department once a year, usually in the month of June. At that meeting there were 215 present. Ladies came from far and near to attend these meetings.

Mrs. Allan Linton gave the motto, "Rich gift of God, a year of Time." Miss Lorene Timlin sang "An Irish Lullaby."

At the close of the program Mrs. Keith Harper, president, thanked everyone for their co-operation during the year. Mrs. Allan Linton conducted an Irish contest. Mrs. Cephas Brisbin, and Mrs. H. Eagleson of Cobourg, were judges of the apron contest. Prizes were won by Mrs. Mathew Linton, for the most practical one and to Mrs. Everett Jamieson for fancy apron.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Brisbin and Mrs. Eagleson by Mrs. Harper and Mrs. McKinley.

TORONTO, March 21—(CP)—Planning Minister Griesinger said Thursday night that decentralization of industry and greater fabrication of raw materials are two trends designed to promote growth of Ontario's industry.

Finds Maritimes And Ontario Well Represented In Brazil

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The Maritime Provinces, Ontario and British Columbia seem particularly well represented among Canadians living in Brazil.

Two Dalhousie University law graduates of the early '20s, for instance, now head the executive team of Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Co. Ltd.

They are Henry Borden, native of Halifax, who is Hamilton's president, with headquarters in Toronto; and J. R. Nicholson, executive vice-president of Brazilian's management company in Brazil. Mr. Nicholson, a native of Newcastle, N.S., practised law in Vancouver for 15 years and headed Polymer Corporation, Ltd., at Sarnia, 1942-50.

Mr. Borden's wife is the former Jean MacRae, of Halifax, daughter of former Dean D. A. MacRae, of Dalhousie Law School, now living in Toronto. Mrs. Nicholson is the former Jean Annand, of Halifax.

Third Graduate

A third Dalhousie law graduate (1933) in the Brazilian team is Robert T. Donald, the company's secretary, who formerly practised law in Halifax. He is a native of Malpeque, P.E.I., and his mother, Mrs. James Donald, lives in Kensington, P.E.I.

Switching across Canada for birthplaces, there is Malcolm Mcdonald, native of Vancouver and graduate of the Sao Paulo Light and Power Co. Ltd.

And in Rio: W. E. McBride, assistant to the vice-president of administration in Brazilian's management company, and his wife, the former Elizabeth Hutchinson, both of Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McBride, of Vancouver, Mr. McBride's parents, were visiting them.

High on Roster

High on any roster of Canadians in Brazil must come Major Kenneth H. McCrimmon, native of Kincardine, Ont. Major McCrimmon is a director of Brazilian Traction and is given credit for much of the goodwill the company has in Brazil.

He was recently decorated by the Brazilian government. At this ceremony, Dr. Oswald Aranha, former foreign minister and former finance minister of Brazil, said (as translated from Portuguese): "As much or much more so than any other Canadian in our country, Major McCrimmon knew how to serve Canada's interests, which never were nor can be anything else but those of Brazil . . . I am not aware of any Canadian interest which cannot be legitimate in Brazil, or a Brazilian interest which might hurt Canada."

One of our most enjoyable Sunday afternoons was at the home of the Canadian ambassador; E. H. Coleman, and Mrs. Coleman—like a breath of Canada abroad. Incidentally, both Mr. and Mrs. Coleman are members of the Bar of Manitoba.

Meredith G. Glassco, general executive assistant of Brazilian, travelled with our party. He is a native of Winnipeg, both a graduate and former teacher at Ridley College, St. Catharines, Ont., and a graduate of McGill.

Business Club Hears Report On Store Hours

WARKWORTH, March 21 — (ENS).—The Business Men's Club held its regular supper meeting in Carlaw's Hotel on Wednesday evening. President J. E. Edgar presided. A report from the business hours committee was given and it will be handed to the village commissioners for approval. A donation of $25 was allotted to the public library following the reading of a communication from the library.

The Bowling Club also is to receive a $50 donation to make needed repairs on the green. A discussion regarding better fire protection for the town resulted in a committee being formed to get a price on more adequate equipment and give a report at the next meeting.

The group then adjourned to the Council Chambers to join a public meeting in support of the Easter seal campaign.

Miss Margaret McEwen, a nurse representing the Society for Crippled Children, was introduced by J. E. Edgar, and she gave a vivid outline of the work being done by that society in Ontario. A film in color was shown by N. McKenzie of Cobourg, giving an outline of the wonderful work being done at Merrywood Camp on the Rideau Lakes, where crippled children are given training to become useful citizens under responsible supervision. There are three of these camps in Ontario.

Music Swells Behind Bars But Artist Can't Remember

VANCOUVER, March 21—(CP)—Music swelled through the corridors of the city jail Thursday and prisoners stopped talking and listened raptly.

It came from an ancient organ in the jail's hospital ward and was played by a nameless young man with professional finesse.

An amnesia victim, he walked into police headquarters Thursday night and asked officers to help him identify himself.

The man, in his late 20's, played boogie-woogie and semi-classical music, but couldn't remember the names of the songs.

"I can't remember, I just can't remember the names of those songs", he told police.

He had a vague recollection that he came here two days ago from Seattle. He carried no identification papers and the only money he had was an American nickel.

Better Education Scheme Sidetracked In Commons

OTTAWA, March 21—(CP)—The question of giving Canada's children a better chance to obtain an education ran into a constitutional sidetrack in the Commons Thursday.

In a debate that waxed more academic than practical, government and opposition members tossed the question back and forth across the floor for six hours. When the debate ended, their opinions were as wide apart as ever.

The discussion arose on a private resolution by R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) urging the Federal government to consider making grants to the provinces as a means of "expanding and equalizing" educational opportunities across Canada.

The motion was "talked out"—parliamentary device for making sure it does not reach, perhaps, an embarrassing vote. It had been debated two days, Wednesday and Thursday.

Government members, led by Justice Minister Garson, contended the government should supervise the spending of such grants and that would be an interference with the provinces' constitutional authority over education.

Could Help Out

Opposition members, agreed the provinces must remain supreme in that field, but suggested the Federal authority could make grants without influencing their expenditure.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader and former Ontario Minister of Education, called for a Federal-Provincial conference to readjust tax fields to provide the provinces with more money for education.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the nub of the problem was that education required more and more financing and the municipalities and the provinces could not carry the burden.

In the opening stages, Prime Minister St. Laurent served notice that he will propose that parliament recess from Wednesday, April 9, to Monday, April 21, for Easter.

Revenue Minister McCann announced the Federal government will appeal a British Columbia court ruling that income tax returns may be used as evidence. The revenue department regards the returns as confidential.

Mr. Garson suggested the grants the Federal government now makes to universities should not be taken as an admission that it should contribute to primary education. Universities were non-political while primary schools were under the direct control of the province.

Would Have Responsibility

If it made large grants for primary education, the Federal treasury "simply could not defend handing out these large sums of money to the legislatures without assuming some responsibility as to the manner in which they would be spent."

He suggested the provinces already have enough money to expand educational expenditures if they wished.

Mr. Drew argued that the Federal government could accept the motion "without in any way infringing" upon Provincial jurisdiction. The future of the country was "dangerously" threatened by the possibility the provinces might not be able to advance their educational facilities.

"We are confronted with the imminent danger that education is going to go back rather than ahead because of a shortage of teachers, and because of the increasing difficulty encountered by municipal and educational authorities in providing the money to meet heavy educational costs."

Andre Gauthier L—Lac St. Jean) expressed his determination to oppose any attempt by the Federal government to interfere with provincial rights in that field. He doubted that Quebec ever would ask for aid for primary education.

Provinces Must Agree

Leonard Tremblay (L—Dorchester) said there should be no Federal aid unless the provinces agreed to it.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon), former assistant professor of social science at Brandon College, blamed the church and the home for the crisis in education. They were not doing the job they should.

J. H. Harrison (L—Meadow Lake) suggested the Federal government would become nothing more than a "collection agency" if it collected taxes and passed the money on to the provinces.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said the resolution did not call for Federal interference with education. It merely paraphrased an old saying: "Federal assistance ever, Federal supervision never."

George Hees (PC-Toronto Broadview) suggested any federal grants, which should be unconditional, should be used by the provinces to raise the salaries of teachers. In that way, the grants would not interfere with policy-making and would serve to equalize opportunities across the country.

Predicts Crisis

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF-York South), warning that a "crisis" is developing in the availability of teachers, said it is the heritage of every child "to get the best education that Canada—not any particular province—can provide." The burden should no longer be left to municipalities and provinces.

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) felt the provinces that needed help should be able to get it. If Ontario and Quebec and the wealthier provinces did not want assistance, they did not have to take it. Federal grants would not mean an invasion of provincial rights.

Gordon Churchill (PC-Winnipeg South Centre) said the government was to blame for educational difficulties because its rising tax structure had reduced the sources of revenue available to the provinces.

Barricades Down, Egyptians Start Returning Home

ISMAILIA, March 21 (Reuters)—Egyptians crowded eagerly around Thursday as British troops pulled down the barbed wire barricades which have kept them from their homes in a former terrorist area for two months.

It was the start of Gen. Sir George Erskine's three-day operation to withdraw his troops from a mile-long strip of territory bordering the Sweetwater Canal, wired off when an Irish-American nun was shot dead in the grounds of a near-by convent.

Hundreds of Egyptians who have been living in requisitioned buildings elsewhere in the town will be allowed back. But Erskine, British commander-in-chief, has made it clear to the Egyptian authorities that his gesture in withdrawing the cordon will be revoked unless the nationalists keep the peace.

Continue Patrols

British troops will remain in the European quarter and continue to patrol the town. Any attempts to stir up frouble or to turn the Quay Mohammed Ali into a "front line" again will be answered swiftly by reoccupation and rebuilding of the barricades rolled aside Thursday by men of the Royal Sussex Regiment.

After they had inspected their homes, nearly every householder claimed looting and destruction of property ranging from hundreds into thousands of dollars.

When the known terrorist area was searched for hidden arms and ammunition two months ago, quantities were found. The searchers left a wake of disorder and damage to furniture and fittings. As allegations grew, Egyptian police prevented demonstrations.

I suppose we have all been reminded that it is good to store for a rainy day, and of course that means winter as well. This was brought very much to mind when travelling through the country recently, and inspecting equipment in a farm home.

Storage Bin

This farmer did not agree with the old type bin in the corner of the cellar, he had built an airy one for better results. The framework of the bin was out from the wall about three inches, firmly constructed with sliding shelves or trays for fruit, bulbs, and vegetables. Plenty of air worked up through the trays as each had a slat bottom. It is well to keep in mind that the room should be cool and dry for best results, and free from frost.

Stove-pipes for Stakes

Over in another corner of the basement I spied a storage place for stakes. These had been used for dahlias and tomatoes; some of bamboo and others of cedar. Stove-pipes had been fastened to the wall with heavy wire, and the stakes stood upright to prevent them from falling all over the place.

Protection for Cheese

Invited to partake of a little hospitality I was interested to note how the folks protected the cheese. A new flower-pot had been soaked in water, then placed over the cheese to keep it from drying out, and to protect it from flies.

Small Tool Chest

The principal of a school nearby invited me into the manual training room. One of the junior pupils had constructed a very neat tool box from pieces of lath. Given a little extra touch this could have been converted into a fine box for gloves, ties or handkerchiefs.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ANNUAL P-C MEETING

Annual meeting of the Peterborough Progressive - Conservative Association will be held April 28, it was announced today. Choice of the date was made Monday night at a meeting of the association's executive.

CEDARS WELL TRIMMED.

Residents of Woodview, Little Cedar Lake area, note that cedar brush has been trimmed to the height of five feet by browsing deer herds. The wintering animals are appearing in the clearings and the Highway 28 in great numbers these days.

NAME DELEGATES.

The Young Progressive-Conservative Association Thursday night named Dick Batten and Gordon Lupton as its delegates to the Y. P. C. convention Monday in Ottawa. The convention is held on the first day of the three-day Progressive-Conservative convention.

CIVIC APPROVED FOR INTERNS.

Doctors can now serve their period of internment at Civic Hospital. Superintendent John Hornal read a letter from Dr. A. D. Kelley, deputy general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association at the March board of governors' meeting Thursday night, approving the hospital for intern training.

LINEUP

Approximately 100 people were lined up at the Chamber of Commerce office this morning at 10 a.m. waiting to get their 1952 car licenses. The lineup started at 8 a.m. and since the office opened at nine it is estimated that the rate of issuing licenses has been about one a minute. A policeman is in charge of the lineup and three extra girls have been employed at the office for the rush period.

RESIGNS FROM HOSPITAL BOARD.

At its meeting Thursday night the Civic Hospital Board of Governors accepted the resignation of W. C. Ackerman. Mr. Ackerman has served the board of governors since he was appointed by the Lieutenant Governor to represent the provincial government on the board five years ago. His letter of resignation stated that he was resigning, because of persistent ill health.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY DONATIONS

In approving the Women's Auxiliary's request for permission to purchase another oxygen tent, the Civic Hospital Board expressed its appreciation to the auxiliary for the contributions it has made to the patient's library and the work the organization has done on the rumpus room in the Nurses' residence. The auxiliary also informed the board that it has recently spent $329.94 for a movable partition door in the Women's Auxiliary room and also $1,078 for library shelves and cupboards in the room.

Civic Hospital Has Surplus Of $6,381 In First 2 Months

If the first two months of 1952 are any indication, the Civic Hospital may end the year with a surplus instead of its usual deficit. At the end of February, the hospital's accounts show a surplus of approximately $6,381.99, for the two-month period, Treasurer T. T. Rodger told the board of governors Thursday night.

Revenue is not only keeping pace with expenditures, it has even exceeded the budget estimate by $6,511.88, totalling $170,970.85 for January and February.

Expenditures amounted to $158,588.86, which is $5,869.25 below the budget estimate.

For February, the financial statement which includes salaries up to February 25, shows a surplus of $5,802.75, but Mr. Rodger said that accrued salaries for the remainder of the month amounted to an estimated $6,000. This would actually mean a deficit of $197.25 for the month. However, the interim city grant of $18,577.56 boosted the revenue enough to enable the hospital to show a surplus of more than $6,000 for January and February.

Sounds Caution

Tempering his report with words of cautious optimism, Mr. Rodger said, "Although this is encouraging, we must not lose sight of the leaner months, May and June, when there is lower patient occupancy."

Accounts receivable which stood at $128,693.84 at the beginning of February have been reduced by slightly more than $4,000, to $124,546.01.

There were 671 patients treated during February, 16 fewer than January, and less than the 1951 monthly average of 690. In spite of this however, net patient revenue, after the usual allowance for doubtful accounts was $55,767.20, bringing the total patient revenue for the two months to $111,993.94, which is $8,554.79 above the budget estimate of $103,439.15.

The board was advised by the medical staff, that the doctors had unanimously agreed to pay the board for Blue Cross payments made on their behalf for the coming year.

Anxious To Help

Commenting on the recent request of city council to all bodies to re-examine their budgets in order to keep the tax rate down as low as possible, Mr. Rodger said, "We are anxious to be most co-operative but there is no useful purpose in saying we could do with less, when we first asked for the minimum required." In view of the saving of $3,158 as a result of the medical staff paying for their own Blue Cross insurance, Mr. Rodger said he felt the board could reduce the $223,000 they have asked for from council in grants by $4,000.

"On the basis of present information available, and in view of the revenue of the first two months, we can do this without embarrassing ourselves in any way," said Mr. Rodgers and the motion authorizing the reduction was passed.

Superintendent John Hornal said that he had directed that county patients be billed at $1 per day extra as of Thursday afternoon. Chairman Max Swanston said that the delegation of himself, Mr. Hornal and Mr. Rodger had been very favorably received by the county council.

County council has decided not to pay the $1 per day per patient for county patients that it paid the hospital in 1951. However, the county intends to continue its practice of paying the full cost of indigent hospital care.

"We appreciate the way the county is making up the loss of indigents," Mr. Rodger said. "It is really a big help."

3 Crash Victims Claim Expenses

A damage action arising out of a truck crash in 1950 started today before an assize court jury and Mr. Justic LeBel.

Three plaintiffs—Sadie Jessup, Mr. and Mrs. George Jessup of Lakefield — are suing Clarence Liscum, of Warsaw, for medical expenses resulting from their injuries in the crash.

The accident occurred December 7, 1950, on Highway 28, a mile-and-a-half south of Lakefield. The Jessups all suffered concussion and cuts.

Miss Jessup testified today she had lost her sense of smell. Her nose had been cut and broken, and later, the septum (partition in her nose) was removed because it interfered with her breathing. She was in hospital for 10 days after the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessup were in hospital for three days each after the accident, they told court.

The case is continuing. T. J. Carley, Q.C., is representing Liscum, and Gordon H. T. Farquharson is counsel for the plaintiffs.

SPRING MEANS MUSKRAT TRAPPING for Joe Vinette, well-known Peterborough guide and trapper. Although the ice in the swamps is holding up trapping this year, Vinette will be tramping and canoeing along a five-mile trail twice a day in about a week's time. Some of his traps can only be reached by canoe and Vinette (left photo) checks his cedar-strip canoe in last-minute preparations. Vinette (right photo) lays a trap beside a small log along the Otonabee river.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Small Orchestra Concert Of Highest Rank

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

The concert given on Thursday evening by the Little Orchestra Society of New York ranks among the three of four finest that the Community Concert Association has brought to this city. Piatigorsky, William Primrose, Kathleen Ferrier, the Little Orchestra Society—the concerts that these have given for the local audience would be peaks in the musical experience of any audience, anywhere.

Because it was an orchestra, and an uncommonly fine one, the Little Orchestra Society had an air of novelty for us which no soloist can have; we are not accustomed to hearing an orchestra in the P.C.V.S. auditorium. But the size of the orchestra and the size of the auditorium were well matched, and the concert was an unmixed delight.

The concert began with a firm, brilliant, muscular performance of the Brandenburg Concerto No. 2.; how welcome the edge and bite of this performance was in a work which is sometimes sentimentalized, especially in the exquisite second movement! There followed a revealing performance of Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll"; revealing because it was performed by the ensemble for which Wagner wrote it, and not by a large symphony orchestra, which gives the effect of forty auctioneers reciting a lyric by Wordsworth through megaphones.

Fine Bassoon

One of the surprises and special pleasures of the concert was Bernard Garfield's performance of the Mozart Concerto for Bassoon. This instrument has too often been called the clown of the orchestra; Mr. Garfield working with Mozart, let us hear its beautiful, masculine middle register and some of its lovely high notes, as well as its honks and rumbles.

Walter Piston's Divertimento for Nine Instruments brought a welcome, stimulating modern work into the program, and as encores the orchestra played a Ballet from Gluck's "Orfeo", and the Scherzo and Minuet from Beethoven's Septet. The final work on the program proper was Schubert's Symphony No. 5, a work of joy and tender beauty; if we ever hear it better played than it was played last night, we shall think ourself luckier than any critic should expect to be.

This orchestra, organized and conducted by Mr. Thomas Scherman, plays music written for small ensembles in its original form. We must not quarrel with large orchestras and large concert halls, but this sort of music is not for them; it is for small orchestras like Mr. Scherman's, and halls the size of our local one. Present in its playing at all times was a splendid strength; sensitivity and tenderness were there also, when they were needed, but there was no sentimentalizing of the music. It was a noble concert, and a great evening in music for Peterborough.

The audience received the concert with enthusiastic and sustained applause, and the rapport between the artists and the listeners was admirable at all times.

Step Lightly Muskrats Trapping Season Open

There's more than one way to catch a muskrat and veteran trapper Joe Vinette has even hauled one out of the river with his bare hands. Spring arrived Thursday, but to Joe Vinette, March 20 meant the opening of another muskrat trapping season. Joe has been trapping muskrats on the Otonabee and Trent Rivers for 47 years. He first started setting his traps along their marshy shorelines when he was 16. And Joe is 65 now.

During those years he's pelted thousands of the little marsh dwellers.

Expects Good Run

On Thursday, Joe was busy in the shed behind his house at 10 Lisburn St., getting his canoe and traps ready for what he expects will be a "good run."

Although Joe admits anyone who tries to catch a "rat" as it's slithering through the water, is liable to get a ducking, he recalled that he accomplished the feat a few years ago.

A friend was going around the trapline with Joe in a punt, and while Joe was leaning out to see if he had caught anything in a trap under a hollow stump, he spotted Mr. Muskrat huddling inside the stump.

"Scare him out with the paddle," Joe told his companion. When the muskrat tried to get away, Joe reached into the water, grabbed him by the tail and whacked him on the side of the boat, as he brought him up. That was an unexpected catch for Joe that day, and "I didn't get dunked either," he adds.

Pick Spot Carefully

Picking a good spot to set the the trap is the key to success, Joe explains. "They should be set about one inch under water, on the lowest root on a stump, in about two feet of water." If the trap is not in enough water to drown the rat, he will chew the leg off that is caught in the trap and get away."

Bait is seldom used on the single jaw traps, but Joe says he sometimes uses carrots which the muskrats go for a like fish for worms.

When a muskrat crosses Joe Vinette's trap line, he'd better watch where he put his foot down, because when it comes to trap setting, Joe is an expert.

Fish and game regulations forbid anyone placing a trap within five feet of a muskrat house, or within ten feet of a "push-up" (where a muskrat pokes a hole in the ice for air) or within the same distance of a runway.

"It's important that everyone observe these laws," Joe points out. "Some fellows disregard them and put traps inside a muskrat house. When one gets caught, the others won't use the entrance, and the whole family of six or seven may drown."

Week Yet

It will be about a week before Joe starts setting his traps. The ice isn't out of the river enough for a canoe yet, and he has to use a canoe to make his rounds, an account of the current, which is too swift for a punt.

For the next four weeks, Joe will paddle around his trapline twice a day. The route will be about four or five miles, and on a good day, he hopes to find 15 or 20 rats in his more than 100 traps.

"The big run lasts about four days, then there are the stragglers. The stragglers are bull rats and they make the best pelts. They're more thickly furred and the underside of the hide is better for tanning.

As Joe makes his rounds, he pelts his catches with a few deft strokes of his keen hunting knife, then stretches the skins on metal stretchers when he gets home.

This year, Joe expects to get about $2.50 a pelt. The best year for rats and prices, he reminisced, was 1917. "That year, we got $15 apiece."

Guides In Summer

For more years than he can remember, Joe has spent his summers showing American tourists where to catch the biggest fish in the Kawarthas, and it's an easy switch for Joe to turn from a muskrat tale to a fishing yarn.

Joe thinks he can still catch a muskrat by the tail from a boat if he gets the chance but his guiding experience has taught him one thing—no more gaffing hooks in canoes. It seems Joe and his party almost ended their fishing days a year or so ago, when an over-zealous fisherman sank the gaff through the canoe bottom instead of the fish. The result,—well Joe is still an ardent fisherman, but he never uses a gaff.

65-Mill Tax Rate Likely Hoped-For Help Fails Pruning All Completed

Ald. Doug Miller To Present Bylaw Fixing Rate To Council Monday New Rate 9½ Mills Higher Than In 1951

City council will strike the tax rate at 65 mills, or fractionally less, Monday night. That was the prospect as the finance committee adjourned Thursday night after another revisory and sifting session of nearly four hours. Ald. T. D. Miller presided as chairman. Apparently a 64-mill rate is forced out of the thinking of the council. The difference might be split at 64½ mills, but some salary items are still outstanding, such as that of City Hall employees.

It is understood that the contingency fund for unpredictables that usually crop up as the year progresses will be $32,000, the same amount as last year.

Pay as City Goes.

On a budget of $2,000,000, it is the opinion of the council that the margin for unforseeable requirements that may arise should not be reduced. The council has no intention of budgeting for a deficit. Their policy is to try as carefully as possible to adjust the revenues to the estimated expenditures.

The salient problem of the council in its approach to the tax rate has centred upon the swollen item of salaries. They stand out in every department, and account for as high as 78 per cent, or thereabouts in some of them.

The setting of the rate has been delayed by the efforts of the council to determine the extent of appropriations for salaries. The special committee headed by Ald. J. E. Gillespie devoted sessions to that detail of expenditure. Finally, circumstances advised the return of that problem to the finance committee as whole, because all the aldermen are members.

That diversion through February is part of the cause of the delay in arriving at the totals that are now in sight, Mayor Waddell commented today.

Expectations of supplementary help for the Ontario government's budget brought down Thursday by Premier Frost have not been realized.

The provision for taxation of government properties is a substantial aid to the city of Toronto because of the extent and assessment of government buildings in the capital city.

Some extra revenue will be obtained here, presumably collectible this year, although that detail is not fully clarified. Properties which may now be taxed for the first time included the Normal School, and the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

Assessment Commissioner Davis remarked today that the Liquor Control Board was already paying a business tax.

There are some belated phases of revenue that was hoped for, but it is unlikely that they can affect the rate.

The provincial budget did not indicate any extra grant for Civic Hospital. At a recent meeting at City Hall, M. J. Swanston, chairman of the Board of Governors, said that if anything extra emerged from the provincial treasury, the Board might be in a position to pass on any such advantage to the council.

Mayor Waddell and Ald. Miller were again reviewing the estimates, including income, this afternoon.

Finance committee has felt itself in a straightjacket in its recent burrowing through figures. Their hands were tied as to salaries, and essential services have to be maintained in the degree of efficiency to which the citizens have been accustomed.

Appropriations have been clipped here and there, and in every instance that kind of pruning had to be aimed at the municipal services.

That is a brief outline of the essence of the statement which Ald. Miller will present when the bylaw for setting the rate and adopting the budget is presented by him Monday night.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Peterborough Forums Conclude Long Season With Social Monday, March 24 at Normal School . . . Jersey Breeders Meeting April 4 . . . Louada Manor Shorthorn Tops Lindsay Sale . . . 9,000 Farmers Ask For Poultry Marketing Vote.

Members of Peterborough's fourteen Farm Radio Forums may now discard their schedule cards for the 1951-52 season of broadcasts. The last entry on that sheet is for the date of March 24 and is the final review night entitled "What the Forums Say".

Probably some attention will be given to the summarizing of the winter's meetings, but the general committee has sent out a call for a social evening at Normal School.

Wellington Sutton expresses the hope that all Forum groups will be largely represented. After nineteen Monday nights of discussion of questions relating to farming, Forum members are entitled to this wind-up social. The program includes an hour's program of review, a talk by Wilson Gemmell, dancing and lunch.

After deliberating on such subjects as community living, international relations, and the industry of agriculture, Forum members must have profited from their unique institution which extends from sea to sea in its innumerable listening and study groups.

Opportunities of broadening membership outlook and in applying thought to such disparate matters as: opportunities for rural cultural activities as on Nov. 26 and: are hunger and poverty the real causes of war, on March 17, indicate the educational service of the Canadian Farm Forums, especially in Ontario with its paramount groups.

36 At Pine Grove

Pine Grove Forum in the Lakefield area reports 36 members at their March 10 meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Bullock. They have had consistently large attendances, and it might be considered advisable to set up two Forums in that neighborhood. The company was divided into two discussion groups, and Mr. Bullock was leader.

Their opinion favored export enterprise to both Britain and the United States, recommending purchase of goods from both countries; sustained production the year round in both quantity and quality, with an accompanying policy of advertising Canadian agricultural products.

Seventeen Coldsprings members at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ballantyne, Otonabee, with Mr. W. W. Sutton leader, arrived at conclusions similar to those at Pine Grove. They attached the general comment: "The problems involved in this question needed more than an evening's discussion to arrive at definite answers."

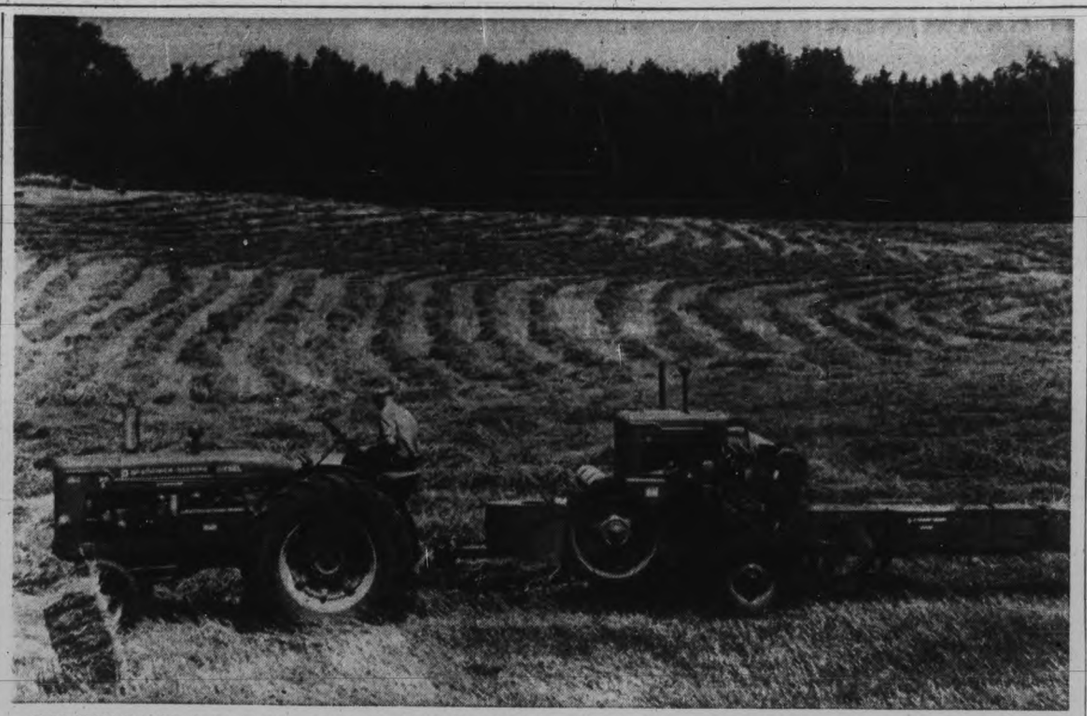
Forum headquarters and local press reports throughout the province manifest a correspondence of ideas and also ideals among members. Foxboro, with four new members that night, proposed that some money should be put aside for helping the farmer to promote the sale of his products in other countries.

Hazzards, another Hastings county group, said: "Have a good honest system of grading, and do not try to beat the grade. It is bound to backfire in any market."

That general policy was similarly expressed at the Central Smith meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bulmer, with 14 members present and Milton Clark leader.

"We would like to have both British and United States markets available, but we think the United States is our best market, taking the long-term view . . . We should always ship the highest quality produce to other countries; we should buy what we can from Britin, especially manufactured goods . . . We can promote other markets by good salesmanship and attractive products. . . "

So much for the last phase of the serious side of the Forum series. The end of the season Monday night, Mar. 24, will place pleasant stress on the social life which Forums have incidentally been cultivating in the southern townships of Peterborough county.



THE HAY BALER is one of the new machines of Grassland farming, which shares with the seed fair the main interest in the Central Ontario Spring Show at Peterborough Exhibition Park, March 25-28.

Harvesting mechanics of the old days were confined to the mower, the rake, the pitchfork and the big horse-drawn wagon that hauled the field's dried forage from the haycocks to the barn.

As farming lost its labor forces to the manufacturing industries, it was forced to adopt such new machines as the hay baler in this photograph. At the same time, scientific branches of agriculture took charge of the commonplace hay, and gradually raised its rating to the most improved crop that is grown today in Canada.

Hay in its grasses and legumes, pasture, silage, has come into primary attention of the farmers of the ten counties of Central Ontario.

The growing of better hay, improving pasturage, properly utilizing green crops for silage,—these are some of the details of this branch of farming that will be discussed, illustrated, displayed and talked about at the Spring Show in Peterborough next week.

The storage of the bales in the barn has been an easy detail of work, and the mechanical drying of the hay, now compressed into smaller space, is a new technique that is being recommended to farmers.

The essence of Grassland Farming is to get the utmost of nutrient and roughage value from the forage crops in the planned, economic production of livestock and dairy products.

LINDSAY SHORTHORN SALE

The yearling bull, Louada Duncan, from the Cadesky herd in Harvey township, brought the top price of $525 at the Victoria county Shorthorn sale Tuesday in Lindsay.

Total receipts for the ten males and nine females was $6,080. Second high price was $375 for one of the two offerings consigned by Mr. and Mrs. Cairns Lee, Omemee, RR-4. The bulls averaged $352, and the females $284.

Reports of the sale indicated that bidding began somewhat cautiously, but gathered pace as it went along.

Effect of the temporary dislocation of the beef cattle markets of Canada as a result of the foot and mouth disease in Saskatchewan was noticed in the prices which averaged around $30 less than a year ago. In the 1951 sale, 22 Shorthorns totalled $8,000 in receipts.

9,000 SIGN FOR VOTE

More than 9,000 Ontario farmers have signed a petition for a poultry marketing scheme. Only 5,000 were required under the Farm Products Marketing Act authorizing the Minister of Agriculture to arrange for the taking of the proposed vote on the scheme which may be at the middle of April. Information from the Ontario Federation of Agriculture indicates that the low egg prices in recent months has been a spur to producer response.

Meanwhile, Frank Ellis of Woodstock, president of Oxford county Federation, says the marketing scheme "will make suckers out of us." Formerly of Peterborough, and one time editor of Farm and Dairy, Mr. Ellis has become prominent among Ontario poultry producers.

F. C. Luckham of St. William, president of Norfolk county Federation of Agriculture, and one of the best-known poultry men in the province, commented: "I am scared stiff of the powers that might be embodied in this scheme."

"EX" DIRECTOR HONORED

As the only woman on its board, the directors of Peterborough Exhibition were especially interested in the recent honor paid to Mrs. G. K. Fraser at the annual meeting of the Ontario Horticultural Society.

Mrs. Fraser was presented with the Society's service diploma and silver medal for leadership in provincial horticulture. The presentation was made by Major Foote, V.C., M.P.P., representing Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture.

The speaker at the convention dinner in Toronto was John C. Diefenbaker, M.P., who was introduced by Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., in the unavoidable absence of Premier Leslie M. Frost.

Official delegates from the Peterborough Horticultural Society were Mrs. Clara Baker, Mrs. A. W. Clysdale and Mrs. Floyd Curtis. Twenty-nine members travelled by bus, and five others by car. The Ontario Society reserved four tables to accommodate the thirty-nine members from the Peterborough Society who were present for the tributes to Mrs. Fraser.

Mrs. Fraser is interested not only in the flower show at the "Ex" but also in the domestic products and other sections now housed in the newest building. As president of the Horticultural Society she supported its directors' proposal to combine their summer show with the floral department of the Peterborough Exhibition thereby enlarging the flower show at the "Ex".

Entries from 50 farmers who are exhibiting grain in the seed fair section of Central Ontario Spring Show at Peterborough Exhibition Park next week have been listed by Oliver Dalrymple of Stirling, agricultural representative in Hastings county and secretary-treasurer of the show.

Durham county heads the list with 16 prospective exhibitors, and Ontario county is second with the names of 12 farmers who will be competitors. Eight others are from Lennox-Addington.

Judging of the seed exhibits in the main building at Morrow Park will begin at noon Tuesday, March 25, and the entire display will be sold by auction Friday, March 28, beginning at 1.30 p.m. Gordon Peterborough, Northumberland and Hastings will each be represented by two exhibitors. Prince Edward, Victoria and Frontenac Hancock will be auctioneer.

The seed show was the main feature of the former Quinte District Seed Fair, which has been replaced by the Central Ontario Spring Show.

Mr. Dalrymple expected the seed section to be equal to the average of competition in quantity and quality with the entries of other years.

LEARNING THE MINUET

Junior Farmers report one of the largest attendances of the season at their meeting Tuesday night at Normal School. Program included a period of folk dances in which members improved their performance of the graceful minuet. Blanche Quinn and Burritt Mann were in charge of the recreation hour.

R. E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, estimated the attendance at 40 girls and 60 young men, figures that indicate some disbalance in the membership.

STARVING LEGUMES

The first signs on alfalfa of potash deficiency appear as numerous small white or yellowish dots around the outer edges of the tips of the leaves. As the deficiency becomes greater, these edges begin to turn yellow and the chlorosis proceeds around the entire leaf margin. The tissue then dies and becomes brown and dry. In the more advanced stages the edges of the leaves become broken and ragged.

Potash deficiency on alfalfa and other legumes can be distinguished from nitrogen hunger by the distinct yellow around the tip of the leaves. In nitrogen dificiency, the green color gradually assumes a yellowish tinge over the entire leaf.

Warm Welcome To New O.A.C. President Request Of Warden Richard Stewart

"I sincerely hope that the people of Peterborough county will turn out for the Central Ontario Spring Show next week," Warden R. R. Stewart said to The Examiner Thursday.

"We are the central county of all that district, and with the Show in our midst we should try to set an example in attendance.

"The Ontario Agricultural College and the Ontario Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Dominion Department are putting a big effort into making the first Spring Show a success. I do not need to say that it has been planned for the benefit of farmers, and we can help a whole lot by being there some time between Wednesday and Friday.

"As Warden of Peterborough county, I'd like to see a real crowd present Wednesday afternoon to greet Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, the new president of O.A.C. As an agricultural institution that continues to contribute so much to our material progress, O.A.C. is appreciated today more than ever by our farmers.

"Peterborough's welcome to Dr. McLachlan on his first visit among us depends largely on our rural people, and I am hoping to see a large number of both men and women present next Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m.

Rural Girls' 4-H's Began With Sewing Classes By Mothers 40 Years Ago

Ontario Junior Farmers changed their name this week, adopting the title "4-H Club" from their association with rural young people in the United States.

The four H's signify: Head, Heart, Health and Hand, elements of character and personality that are regarded as vital pursuits in the development of junior farmers of the nation.

Purpose of the change of name is chiefly to give junior work the "international touch," said R. G. Bennett, associate director of extension with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, at a club leaders' conference at Ridgetown Agricultural School.

Reference to the similarity of the 4-H and Junior Farmers' programs was made by Miss Jean Noble, district Home Economist, as recent guest speaker at Lindsay Rotary Club luncheon.

Primarily, Miss Noble discussed the growth of the Department's projects for groups of rural girls. Her headquarters are at Bowmanville agricultural office for the counties of Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria.

Incidentally, Achievement Day for Peterborough Homemaking Club girls will be Saturday, March 29, beginning at 9 a.m., at the Y.M.C.A. It is entitled "The Cereal Shelf," indicating its emphasis on phases of cooking. The members will also decide that day on their project for the new season. Interest of girls who are not yet members, and their parents, is invited.

To the Lindsay Rotarians, Miss Noble said that junior homemaking clubs for girls of the farms emerged from sewing circles casually formed by their mothers of 40 years ago.

"These mothers encouraged their daughters to attend meetings, and arranged for two of their members to teach sewing. Darning, patching and making buttonholes were taught, and occasionally hemstitching, embroidery and crocheting were introduced.

As the merit of this work was demonstrated, help was sought from the Women's Institute branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Short courses were held in various centres for one to three months in winter, attended by groups of young men and women taking separate courses. Girls learned cooking, sewing, home nursing and millinery.

25 Groups In 1924

"In 1923 Miss Ethel Chapman organized garment-making clubs. The following year, 25 groups sponsored these clubs with a local leader to carry on the program outlined in the prepared manual. The members were required to make an apron or work bag, a one-piece dress or kimona and a pair of bloomers. Well, times have changed since then, and so with it the program. In 1935 the present set-up was started and the Junior Homemaking clubs came into being officially. Garment-making clubs were revised, and the 'Cotton may be smart' project came into being. It was first completed by 1,000 girls. Probably no other year in club work has given the members, leaders, and coaches a greater thrill than that one, for more than 50 per cent of the girls had never used a sewing machine and 80 per cent of them had never made a dress before.

Garden and canning clubs were organized first in York county by the agricultural representative and the county coach. Since then all the counties in Ontario sponsor Garden Clubs and since that time the program has been increased to make it a three-year project. It includes such topics as planting flowers, tidying up the home surroundings, preparation of vegetables for the family meals, special projects, storage and finally freezing of vegetables. Last year more than 2,000 girls took part in this program.

First Dietary Clubs

Nutrition projects were introduced. They are not just clubs to teach the girls how to cook, but to realize the importance good food plays in good health. Recognizing Canada's food rules as a basis, they learn to plan and prepare well balanced, attractive and interesting menus. The part economical foods can play in family budgets is stressed. Today there are five projects offered stressing milk, vegetables, meat, cereals, and supper dishes.

The Social Graces

Every girl is a potential hostess and a favorite project is "The Club girl entertains'. In this, they learn how to do things the correct way,—inviting guests for an afternoon, week-end or wedding, and how to be a good guest. Members learn how to prepare food for parties even to those fancy sandwiches many of you wish were larger and more substantial.

A useful topic is 'How to pack a weekend bag'. This might some day save many a male numberless trips carrying baggage, which often happens when some woman cannot decide what to take.

In all there are 17 projects offered to girls between the ages of 12 and 26. Clubs are formed where there are four or more girls who are willing to attend an average of eight meetings and carry out the program prescribed for the project. A local leader must attend the two-day training school in the project conducted in a county by the Home Economist. To these volunteer workers goes a great deal of credit for making the work possible. The time, interest and patience required represent something more than money can buy. Each project is completed by the members attending an Achievement Day where they display the work they have done. They take part in the program planned, which gives them an opportunity to evaluate their work, to think for themselves and express themselves and their ideas.

As well as learning skills and techniques and useful information club members have other opportunities. Trips of an educational nature are arranged from time to time, such as the one last year for this county. The greatest reward is to attend the National Week held during the Royal by the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Work. Fourteen boys and girls from each province are privileged to come together for a week of fellowship, education and recreation. As well, delegates from Ontario are guests of the 4-H Clubs in the United States at their 4-H Congress where around 1,600 get together. These delegates are chosen for their record in club work and their community leadership.

Miss Eadie, Supervisor

The Junior Extension is under the supervisor, Miss Florence P. Eadie, who has devoted over 20 years to the work. She has as a rule 16 Home Economists in the province. It is the hope that some day there will be a trained staff member in each county to help both present and future homemakers. I feel that this work is important especially in a county like Victoria, where they have not adopted the policy of teaching Home Economics in any of the schools.

The U.S. 4-H Clubs

Club work is not unique in Canada although we feel that we have one of the best programs offered in this province. Internationally it is known as 4-H Clubs. Their pledge is:

"My head to clearer thinking,
My heart to greater loyalty,
My hands to larger service and
My health to better living, for my club, my community, and my country."

This is basically the aim behind the extension program offered. To build the character and citizenship of our youth is foremost. We offer them opportunities and privileges. They in turn accept the responsibilities expected of them. Thus they are becoming better citizens to take their places as the homemakers and leaders of the future."

MISS JEAN NOBLE, Home Economist since 1949 with the Women's Institute Branch and Home Economics Service, Ontario Department of Agriculture for the counties of Northumberland, Durham, Victoria and Peterborough, has headquarters in Bowmanville. She was born on a farm near Shelbourne, attended Orangeville High School, taught for a year at Everton, near Guelph, and was graduated in 1949 from Victoria College, University of Toronto, in Household Economics.

Old Testament Advises Seed Cleaning

John D. McLeod of Dunvegan, former director of the crops, seeds and weeds branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, went back to Leviticus for sanction of the sowing of good seed in farming.

He quoted the 19th chapter and 19th verse: "Thou shalt not sow thy fields with mingled seeds," in a talk to Elgin county Crop Improvement Association.

Mr. McLeod is remembered by many farmers in this district for the consistently diligent manner in which he advocated the cause of sound and clean seeds. He has been succeeded by Ken Fallis, who is another ardent counsellor of farmers.

Emphasizing the reproductive capacity of seeds, including weeds, Mr. McLeod said that one grain of barley was capable of producing 50 bushels in three years, and one grain of oats could produce 100 bushels in the same time. He said the seed cleaner was closely linked with the farmer and had a definite place in good agriculture. Next to the agricultural representative, the seed cleaner was the most important individual in providing information to farmers.

Mr. McLeod said he was opposed to the sowing of small seeds of any grain. Small seeds produce small grain. That was the law of nature. Good seed should be plump and uniform grain, free from all impurities.

Responsibility rested on the farmer in taking sufficient seed to the cleaner to ensure a thorough job, and in not asking the cleaner to go easy on the cleaning. The good farmer sowed the purest and best seed possible.

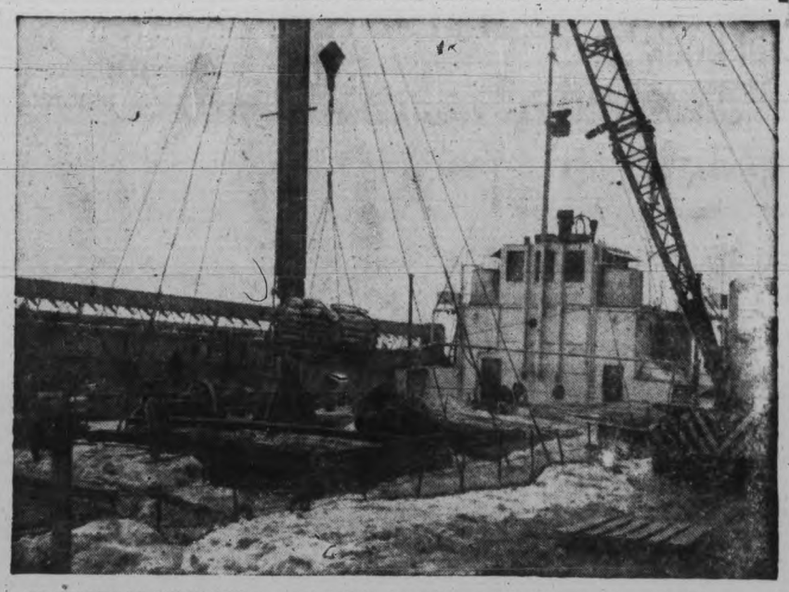
Chinese Hero Dies

HONG KONG, March 21 (Reuters)—Hsu Wei Yang, 70, a hero of the Chinese 1911 revolution, has died in a Communist prison, according to a newspaper report here. Wei, a leader of the Canton uprising against the Manchu dynasty, was a survivor of the abortive revolt observed annually in China as "Yellow Flower Rebellion" in which 72 of his comrades were killed.



FIVE FEET OF SOLID ICE, packed tightly around the inner harbor docks, still holds a wintry grip on the Montreal's ice-bound fleet, but two ships are already loaded and ready to go with the spring break-up. They are the Shelter Bay and Prescodoc filled to the hatches with cement for construction work on the new Manicouagan power development at Baie Comeau on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Loaded with a total of more than 5,500 tons of cement, the ships will sail early in April to signal the beginning of navigation for this port. Shore workers had to saw their way through the five-foot ice to free the propellers and rudders so the ships could find their own water level as the cargo added to their weight. It took several hours of sawing before the ships finally were freed.

A commission spokesman said the Tennessee-Niagara application may be considered at a hearing on gas-from-Canada proposals April 8.

War Book Lauds Canadian Troops On D-Day Fight

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, March 21 (CP)—Canadian troops made faster progress on D-Day in June, 1944, than any other Allied invasion forces, says a book on the Second World War by Australian author Chester Wilmot.

Wilmott, a former BBC correspondent, writes in his "The Struggle For Europe" that the Canadians overcame formidable difficulties; including in some cases treacherous reefs off-shore, choppy seas, non-arrival of armor and tremendous congestion on the beaches.

"In the circumstances," he writes, "it was remarkable that the Canadians made as much progress as they did; more progress, in fact, than any other division on D-Day."

Wilmot's 766-page book, due for publication shortly in Canada and the United States, is sprinkled with several other references to Canadian engagements. The author tells how the Germans drove the Royal Winnipeg Rifles out of Putot after a day-long battle and how Kurt Meyer, commanding an S.S. Division, rode on the back of a Panther tank in leading an attack on Canadian positions in Bretteville, shortly after D-Day.

"The Regina Rifles were overrun but they held their ground and maintained such a steady fire that no German infantry could get through to support the armor," recalls Wilmot. Then the 1st Canadian Scottish made a brilliant counter-attack and retook Putot.

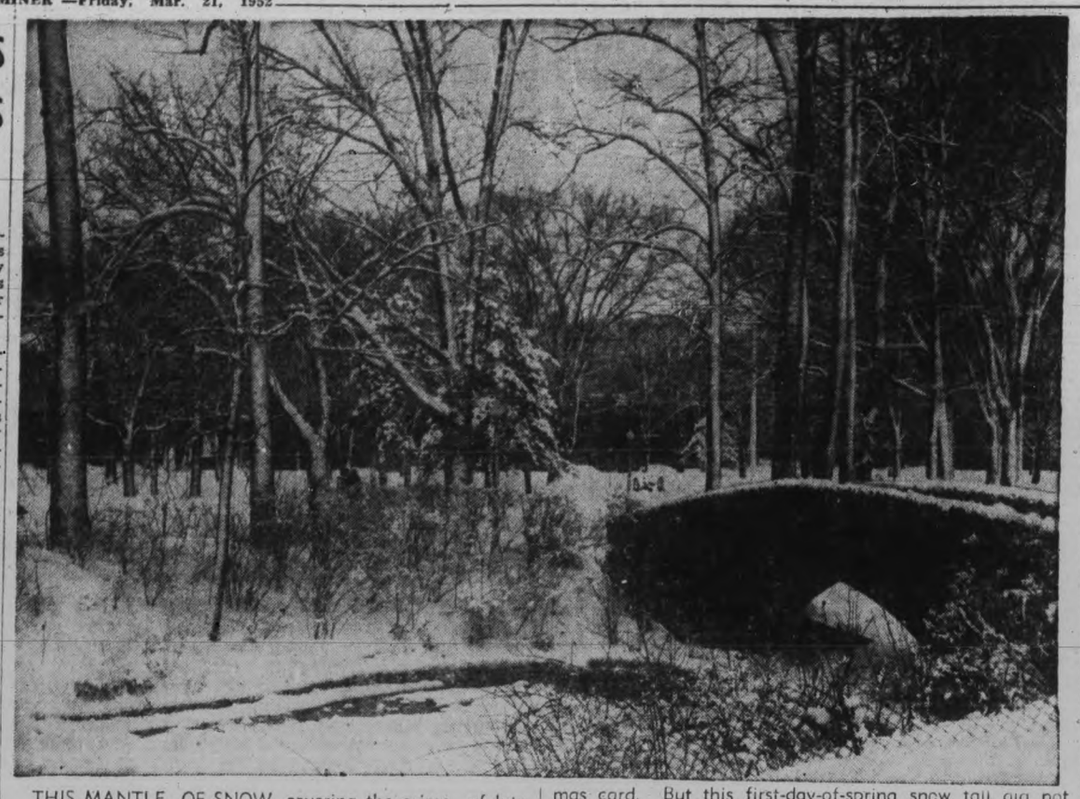
Simonds Praised

Wilmot devotes several pages to the Canadian army's major offensives in Normandy, noting in particular that part played by Meyer in checking an early Canadian plan to break through to Falaise. Meyer was imprisoned in Canada for war crimes after the war and recently was interviewed in Germany by a Canadian Press reporter, Douglas How.

Of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, then II Canadian Corps commander, new chief of the Canadian General Staff, Wilmot says:

". . . a most able, forceful and original soldier. Ambitious, reserved and ruthless, Simonds was not an easy man to serve, for he was intolerant of minds less capable than his own, but he certainly commanded confidence and respect."

Earlier, in a reference to the Canadian assault of the French coastal town of Dieppe in August, 1942, Wilmot says the sacrifice of the 3,369 casualties was not in vain. They proved that no fortified Channel port could be taken by direct asault with the resources then available and provided experience "which was to save hundreds of allied lives within the next two years."



THIS MANTLE OF SNOW, covering the grime of late winter, turned Montreal parks into an out-of-season Christmas card. But this first-day-of-spring snow fall did not last as high temperatures and rain turned the fairyland scenes back to the grime and slush of spring.

Giant Snails

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 21 — (CP) — The U.N. was told Thursday that giant snails still are a problem on all Pacific Islands and efforts to have chickens eat them and wasps sting them to death haven't worked out. Elbert Thomas, United States Civil High Commissioner for Pacific Island trust territory, reported the pest threatens the cocoanut crop on all Pacific islands.

Police Net Closing In Big Bank Robbery

MONTREAL, March 21 (CP) —A police net is reported to be closing in on the participants of one of Canada's largest single bank robberies.

However, despite rumors and reports going the rounds in the fabulous looting of a St. Jerome, Que., branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada last November, police have little to say beyond "investigation is being pressed".

On the weekend of Nov. 3 some 60 safety deposit boxes were looted of $200,000—some reports go as high as $500,000—in the manufacturing centre on the fringe of the Laurentian mountains, some 30 miles north of Montreal.

Reports have it that several prominent citizens of the town, including a former mayor and a former police chief were detained for questioning.

Long Underwear Has M.P. In A Dither

LONDON, March 21 (Reuters) —The tax on long underwear has Norman Dodds, Labor member of parliament, in a dither.

Not that he wears the things, he explained Thursday. "Wouldn't touch 'em with a barge pole," he added. "I favor shorts."

It was the principle of the thing that bothers him.

Short underwear, he explained, will be free of sales tax under the government's new clothing scheme. But longies, because they cost more, come in a different bracket and will be subject to tax.

Thieves Get Jewelry

HAMILTON, March 21 (CP)—Thieves Thursday broke into an automobile parked near a busy intersection and carried off between $20,000 and $25,000 worth of jewelry and wrist watches. Jewelry salesman E. G. Cunningham left the valuables in his car while he had a cup of coffee.

8-Foot Drifts Welcome Spring To Saskatchewan

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., March 21 (CP)—Weary travellers saw spring come to this southwestern corner of Saskatchewan with eight-foot snowdrifts.

The drifts—stretching 60 miles south from here on Highway No. 4—have tied up all traffic.

An all-day storm Wednesday sent travellers scurrying for cover. Every available hotel room in Swift Current was filled.

Chairs in totel lobbies were converted into emergency beds. Spare beds in private homes were put to good use.

At least nine weary, jobless workers heading out for spring employment, spent the night in police cells.

One Vancouver man slept on top of a table in the court room. His companion curled up on one of the court benches. Travellers slept on cell floors when all cots in the cells were filled.

"We haven't seen a sight like this since the hungry thirties," said a constable on duty at the police station.

Two buses did not arrive from runs because of high drifts. One bus was dug from drifts 20 miles southwest and arrived hours behind schedule. Another was being dug out 50 miles southwest.

Two plows are tied up near Climax, 80 miles south, and two more were dispatched to plow out cars that spent the night on the highway north of here in drifts as high as the cars.

Canadian Chiefs To Confer With Eisenhower

OTTAWA, March 21 (CP)—The three Canadian chiefs of staff will go to Paris shortly for a general Atlantic Pact conference and exercise with Gen. Eisenhower. It is the first time top officials have met since Gen. Eisenhower took command in Europe.

Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, chief of the general staff, left Thursday for New York to sail for Europe with two of his senior generals. He has been presiding over an annual meeting of army officers here this week.

Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, air chief, and Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, naval chief, will leave together by air within the next week or so.

The purpose of the Paris meeting was said to be a command exercise, one in which Gen. Eisenhower is expected to discuss with military figures of the Atlantic Pact powers the sort of situation and problems that would arise if war came to Europe. It won't involve any troops or air units.

Has Company

Gen. Simonds took with him both Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, his senior general, and Maj.-Gen. S. F. (Finn) Clarke, quartermaster-general and an expert on N.A.T.O. matters. Gen. Vokes now commands the Western Regional Command, with headquarters in Edmonton.

They are expected to visit the 27th Brigade in Germany before returning here.

This marks the first time in some years that the three chiefs of staff have attended an international meeting together and it is expected to give them a chance to bring themselves up to date on the current situation in Europe.

Growth Of Ont. Forestry Outlined To Kiwanis Club

Forestry and Conservation in Ontario was the topic of an address given by Matt Adamson at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting Thursday.

Mr. Adamson is director of the Midhurst Provincial Forest Station, situated near Barrie.

In his outline of the history and development of reforestation in [illegible] said that the [illegible] n at the turn of the century.

"At this time it was realized that something must be done to offset the devastating effect of cutting off forest coverage which was resulting in erosion both by water and wind, Mr. Anderson said.

The first nursery was established in connection with the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph in 1904. Three years later the nursery was moved to Fort William and the project was transferred from the Provincial Department of Agriculture to the Department of Lands and Forests.

Forest Stations

Following the First World War, two Provincial Forest Stations were established at Orono and Midhurst and a seed collecting, extracting and storage plant at Angus.

In this same year a county forest system was organized whereby a county in the province would purchase a tract of 1,000 or more acres and the province would plant it and take care of it for a period of 30 to 50 years. At the end of this time the county could pay the province for its expenses and gain full ownership of the tract, or the province could pay the county the original price of the land and gain possession. The third course open was a co-operative agreement whereby the county and province could share in both cost and profit.

As the demand for trees grew, more Provincial Forest Stations were established, until today these stations have a potential annual output of 35 to 40 million trees. This output is mainly evergreens and includes red, white, jack, Scotch and Norway pine, white spruce, cedar and tamarack.

"These trees are supplied free to any landowner for reforestation purposes," Mr. Adamson said.

Colored Slides

Following his address, the speaker showed colored slides illustrating the work carried on at Provincial Forest Stations.

Mr. Adamson was introduced by Milford Hardill and thanked by Norman Armstrong.

Members of the County Council were guests at the luncheon and were introduced by Clarence Mann. Other guests at the meeting included A. B. Wheatley, district forest ranger; John Bedford, Jim Hendry and Jack Payne.

DOROTHY DIX

Disregard Persistent Rumors In The Absence Of Evidence

DEAR MISS DIX: A friend of mine recently took a job at a nearby college. There she met a very nice young man and began dating him. They have grown quite fond of each other. He began taking her out about the time for examinations, and people told her his interest in her was really to obtain copies of the midterm exams. At first she thought this was a joke but the story has been told so persistently that she is beginning to believe it.

ALMA F.

ANSWER: The answer to the girl's problem will come when, and if, the boy approaches her for information on the exams. I doubt very much that he will do so. Her informants are, I think, practical jokers trying to stir up a little excitement. Tell her to ignore them.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a divorcee, 22 years old, with two children. I have gone with several different men since my divorce, and as soon as my children are mentioned they lose interest in me. One even said that men want their own children, but I claim that if a man loves a girl he would be glad to take care of her youngsters. AUDREY F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your problem cannot be answered with an arbitrary yes or no. Many men are willing to accept the responsibility of another man's children, but they are usually sure of getting a fine woman as a wife. You haven't the stability to interest a man seriously, therefore the men who do take you out are the type who want a good time—not the care of a family. Before you lose all chance of ever getting a second husband, you'd better settle down and acquire some common sense.

✧ ✧ ✧

Daughters Are Inconsiderate

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 45, and have three daughters, aged 20, 17 and 15. They are always telling me how fat I am, how old I look and so forth. I do all my work with no help from anyone, then they have the nerve to tell me I look old. Outsiders think I look much younger than my age, but my own children ridicule me.

MRS. S. N.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your children are most inconsiderate, but have you ever tried to train them to consideration? You say you do all your own work with no help from anyone. With three daughters as old as yours, you should be able to depend on a great deal of help. They are lax not to give it, and you have been even more lax in not demanding it from them. Why not surprise them and try to reform your appearance? Your weight problem could be handled very well through your doctor, and by losing the excess poundage, you will automatically lose years from your appearance. Then when you have acquired a glamour girl look, turn the dinner dishes over to the girls at night while you go out for fun. Their tune will change very suddenly!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: There's a boy across the street whom I like very much. He seems shy and I'm wondering how I can go about getting introduced to him. He seems to want to meet me, but he probably thinks I'm shy, too.

GLENDA A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Here's a situation in which mother could be of invaluable aid. If she doesn't know these neighbors across the street from you, inveigle her into meeting the lady. Then it's just a step to having you and the boy introduced.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you advise me to wait two years to marry, which will make me 18? I have been going steady with a 19-year-old boy for the past year, and we want very much to get married. He earns enough to take care of me but my parents are hesitant about giving their permission. EVALEEN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means wait. Yours is the perennial problem of adolescence. Marriage has a better chance of success when the couple are at least in the late teens, and have acquired a fairly good education. Stick to high school until you finish; you'll have a much better beginning to wedded life. Remember all the many, many years ahead and you won't begrudge a short wait now.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend is my brother's best friend. I am 25, and he is 10 years older. I have known him for many years, as he and my brother, Tom, have been chums since they were in school together. I have been in love with him all that time, but he has never paid much attention to me. He takes me out occasionally, but his visits here are usually to see Tom. About a year ago we began to go steady; now he tells me he won't be around to take me out as often and I should go out with other boys. He hints that perhaps in a year we'll go steady again. Do you think he's handing me a line?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you enjoy the prospect of spending the rest of your life seeing your friend come around only to go out with Tom, go ahead and swallow the line! And believe me, it is a line! You have made a very convenient little footstool of yourself. Always available when wanted, but quite willing to be pushed out of the way to make room for something more important. Wake up, girl! The man's interest in you is very superficial and eventually you'll have to make way for someone he falls completely in love with. Don't wait for that day! Take matters in your own hands and go out with other boys.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Lamb Or Young Mutton For Irish Stew

QUESTION: The women's association of our church has planned to put on an "Irish" supper and concert in March. Our main dish will be Irish Stew (beef for meat). Could you please help us out with a recipe for a large amount. I enjoy your recipes very much and thank you in advance. Mary McD.

ANSWER: You did not mention the number of people you are planning to serve so I will give you a quantity that will serve 70 people.

As you doubtless know normally Irish Stew is made from lamb or young mutton.

Beef Irish Stew (Quantity for 70)

Seventeen lbs. lean neck or shank or shoulder beef (or young neck mutton), 1 lb. fat, 3½ quarts water, 4½ lbs. each carrots (cut in 2-inch lengths), quartered potatoes, 3 lbs. whole small onions, 1¾ cups flour, 1½ pints water, 2 51-ounce tins condensed beef noodle soup (undiluted), 1 lb. cut-up green beans.

Carefully brown in the fat the cut-up and floured meat, onions, carrots and beans, stirring constantly until they are just golden brown. Do not include the potatoes? If desired you may use turnips too or reduce the amount of carrots and use turnips to replace them. Add the 3½ quarts water, cover, simmer 2¾ hours. Now add potatoes and cook 15 minutes, then add the condensed soup. Stir the flour and water to a paste without lumps and thicken the stew with this. Taste the stew for salt and pepper and add if it needs them. To stretch this stew further a delicious addition would be dumplings—Irish sew usually contains dumplings. Dumplings require a confident cook.

QUESTION: Please print in your very wonderful page recipes for sour cream—cake and biscuit recipes preferred. K.I.C.

ANSWER:

Prize Chocolate Nut Cake

(This is a beauty and since it came to my attention this week I thought it just fitted your letter.)

One-half cup shortening, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 large eggs, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 2/3 cup water, 2¼ cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and salt, 2/3 cup heavy sour cream, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 2/3 cup finely chopped nuts (preferably walnuts or pecans.)

Cream shortening until very light then cream in the sugar, and beat in the eggs. Beat very well. Make a paste of the cocoa and water and stir in. Sift together the sifted flour and the soda and salt, then stir these in alternately with the sour cream and vanilla. Stir in nuts. Pour into pans which have been greased with a mixture of 1 teaspoon butter and ½ teaspoon cocoa. (Keeps outside of cakes brown.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 30 minutes for layers or 45 minutes for 1 square or oblong pan.

Sour Cream Cookies

One-half cup best quality shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 beaten egg, 2 cups unsifted but stirred flour, ½ teaspoon each baking soda, nutmeg, cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sour cream, ½ cup raisins or mixed nuts and raisins chopped. Cream the shortening and sugar well and beat in egg until light. Sift together the flour, soda, and spices and salt and add alternately with cream to creamed mixture. Stir in raisins and nuts if used. Dry by teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 10 or 12 minutes.

Accent Practical In Gift To Lady Alexander

TORONTO, March 21—(CP)—The women of Canada will accent the practical rather than the glamorous in their traditional gift to a chatelaine of Government House.

In the past, diamond bracelets and earrings, even a mink coat, were the presents given to the wife of a retiring Governor-General.

At a press conference Thursday, however, officials of the Lady Alexander gift committee said the popular British woman who has been lady of Rideau Hall for the last six years always has preferred practical items as gifts.

Mrs. Douglas Abbott, wife of the Finance Minister and chairman of the committee, said that, depending on the funds raised, these will take the form of electrical equipment—a stove, a refrigerator and probably other items—to outfit a new home in England.

In Charge Of Meeting

Mrs. Louis Breithanupt, wife of Ontario's Lieutenant - Governor, was in charge of the meeting, held in the Lieutenant-Governor's quarters at Queen's Park.

It is expected that similar meetings will be sent to the Lieutenant-Governor's office in each province.

June 1 has been set as the closing date for the fund.

Gifts Canadian women have contributed to the wives of Governors-General in the past include a mink coat to Lady Tweedsmuir, a replica of an 18th Century gold cup to Lady Bessborough, diamond and emerald earrings to Lady Willingdon and a diamond bracelet to Lady Byng.

Mercy Flight Doctor Retires Will Try Mink Ranching

ILE A LA CROSSE, Sask. (CP)—Dr. P. E. Lavoie, 66, has sent notice to the Saskatchewan health department that he is ending 17 years of emergency flights and trips by snowmobile, car, truck, motorboat, dog team and horseback to patients who live above the 55th parallel in Saskatchewan's northland.

On March 31, Dr. Lavoie will end his practice of medicine and surgery at Ile a La Crosse hospital.

Thousands of plane trips as far north as Athabasca Landing earned Dr. Lavoie the name "mercy flight doctor."

"Things are different now," he remarked recently. When he arrived at Ile a La Crosse, which is about 375 miles north of Regina, gas lanterns were a luxury.

Then, the Ile a La Crosse hospital had no X-ray equipment and was short of nearly everything that a surgical practitioner required.

Shortly after taking charge, the doctor had a patient who required a serious operation. He hadn't had time to gather surgical equipment and there wasn't enough light. But the resourceful Cree Indians rallied to contribute extra lamps and needed materials, enabling a successful operation.

Stays In North

Now, more than 5,000 babies later, Dr. Lavoie is going to retire and start mink ranching as a hobby. At Fort Black, four miles from Ile a La Crosse, the doctor has spent holidays and other spare days gathering a stock of mink.

Dr. Lavoie says the thing he most missed in the north was another doctor. Many times, being isolated from civilization, he had been faced with a difficult problem and would have welcomed the viewpoint of another medical man.

Dr. Lavoie was graduated from Laval University in Quebec 38 years ago. For a time he practised medicine in Quebec province, then came west.

Through the years, Mrs. Lavoie has raised a family of three boys and one daughter, as well as a Cree boy, recently adopted. At the same time, she kept a light burning in the window for her doctor husband.

Even looking back on the long hard trips in 60-below-zero weather, Dr. Lavoie says: "I'd do it all over again. It's been a hard 17 years but a grand, worthwhile fight."

BRIDGENORTH SCHOOL

Dr. Donald Clarke was guest speaker at the Bridgenorth Home and School Association meeting Thursday evening. His topic was "Accidents in the home and the community" and he told the parents that more children lose their lives by accident than by all diseases put together.

The type of accident follows a set pattern according to the age group stated Dr. Clark. He named guns, bicycles, drowning, burns, cuts, falling and poison as the most common causes.

The very young child must receive discipline and protection must be given by the parents in order that they be educated to avoid and prevent accidents. "Accidents should be fought—not feared" said the doctor.

Appreciation of the address was voiced by Mrs. C. Payne.

President Mrs. Earl Blewett conducted the largely attended meeting.

Community singing of several favorite Irish songs was followed by the solo "Mother Machree" by Mrs. Elizabeth Telford, who accompanied herself on the piano. A humorous Irish reading was given by Mrs. Don McKay.

Mrs. W. G. Ray reported on the recent showing of films. Many animal figures made by the children were on display and were later sold.

Miss Murphy's room of grades 3, 4 and 5 were prize winners for the most mothers present.

It was announced the annual meeting will be held Thursday, April 24th.

A social half hour was enjoyed with Mrs. E. Clarke and committee serving refreshments.

MARMORA

MARMORA, March 21 (ENS). —Miss Olga Wurm of Madoc, teacher of music at the Public schools of this district, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of Marmora Home and School Association held in Marmora Public School on Wednesday, choosing as her subject, "The Development of the Child's Voice."

She described and illustrated the methods of teaching children to sing from grade 1 to grade 8 so that when their school studies are ended they are fitted to be recruits in church choirs and other organizations where music has a part. In the first three grades, she said, pupils, according to their musical ability, are divided into three groups. Those with most ability are termed canaries and the other two are red birds and blue birds, the latter having disadvantages which are only overcome by dint of hardest work on part of the teacher. Miss Wurm was thanked by Donald Marett, chairman of the School Board.

In the absence of Mrs. Ray Frost, the vice-president, Mrs. A. F. Fraser, presided. Mrs. H. Mawer was pianist for the evening. There was a splendid attendance of parents who before the meeting were able to inspect their children's work and discuss problems with the teachers.

Following the usual preliminaries, a motion was passed that the two wastepaper baskets presented by Arnold Walker be fixed for serviceability. It was also decided to send two delegates, including the president to the provincial convention, which is being held in Toronto in Easter week. The date of the next open meeting was set for April 23.

The Rev. W. N. Crandall, who was present at the invitation of the executive, discussed the further planting of shrubs on the school grounds with those present. The parent attendance, taken by Principal E. C. Prentice, resulted in honors going to J. Trombley's room for the second successive month.

The nominating committee was then appointed to comprise Mrs. H. Mawer, Mrs. A. F. Fraser and Mr. J. Sproul. Miss Wurm's address followed, after which a humorous reading, "Passing the Buck," was given by Mrs. T. J. Bateman. Miss G. Cole read the story of St. Patrick. A two-fold contest, the first part of which constituted the identification of Irish melodies, was staged by Mrs. G. D. Young and Mrs. Mawer. Mr. J. Trombley was the winner.

Mrs. John Fox is the winner of the quilt in the drawing conducted by Marmora Women's Institute.

Nurse In Charge Explains V.O.N. To Local Council

An explanation of the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses was given by the Peterborough superintendent, Miss Harriet McGeary, at the meeting of Local Council of Women Thursday afternoon. She pointed out that the Order has particular significance to the council since the plan was originated on a national scale in 1897 by Lady Aberdeen who used her position as national president of the Council of Women to combat the stiff opposition she encountered.

The name comes from Queen Victoria who granted the charter, and Miss McGeary emphasized it is not a religious order but a "lay group" giving service to all creeds, all races and people of any financial standing.

Besides nursing in the home is the principal work. V.O.N. nurses are perhaps more successful in this than some others because they must have taken a social science course at university, as well as one of the prescribed nurses' training, and thus their minds are more open to the social side of nursing, Miss McGeary remarked.

A fee of $2 is payable for each call at the home, affecting people who are able to pay it. When the charge is being reduced or eliminated altogether the visiting nurse is required to get confidential information regarding the patient's ability to pay. The Order does not emphasize charity but the need for service, and calls are made wherever they are required. In Peterborough the nurses work closely with the Public Health Department nurses to avoid duplication of the services.

Night service is given on an emergency basis but while there are only three nurses on the local staff this must be kept to a minimum. Also, the Order cannot arrange appointments for the nurse to call at a definite time.

Miss McGeary outlined the complete set-up of the organization, pointing out particularly that nurses are appointed on the basis of their qualifications only by the national office. Local branches are responsible for their own financing but the policy and professional standards are set by the national board.

Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy introduced Miss McGeary to the meeting.

Report Proceeds Over $200 On Fashion Show

Mrs. A. W. Nelson, first vice-president of the Local Council of Women, was in charge of the meeting Thursday afternoon, in absence of the president, Mrs. W. Steinkrauss.

A report on the recent children's fashion parade by Mrs. E. B. McWilliams, showed a profit of $210.96 at the present date. Some further returns are expected and one bill is still unpaid. It was decided that the executive will meet to discuss the matter of having a similar parade next year.

Chairmen of the council were asked to have at least two persons named to their committees and to arrange meetings with them.

Convener of laws Mrs. F. Merrett read a letter from national convener Miss Grace Gordon which discussed several resolutions before council.

Mrs. E. Chambers, the convener of education, gave a very full report on the Royal Commission report on education. She expressed the feeling that if the suggestions are accepted it will pull down the cost of education.

The president and first vice-president were named the delegates to the Provincial Council annual meeting at Windsor in May.

Speaker for the April meeting will be a bank employee from Toronto whose topic will be "Budgeting and Financing."

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Fish Cheaper Dish Than Meat

By KAY REX,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fish, a traditional food in Newfoundland and Labrador, also is about the cheapest dish available in the Atlantic province.

The Jubilee Guilds of Newfoundland and Labrador have been keeping their 3,000 women members informed about new ways to cook fish in fresh, canned, pickled or dried form.

The 16-year-old association, the equivalent of the Women's Institutes in other parts of Canada, has published and distributed 15,000 free copies of a booklet of Newfoundland fish recipes in an effort to help homemakers with their cooking problems.

Among homemakers the real experts are those "who actually feed large families and keep prices down," said Anna Templeton of St. John's, Nfld., organizing secretary of the Guilds. They are the women "who manage to do a good job in day-to-day housekeeping."

Miss Templeton explained that in Newfoundland fish of any kind makes a cheaper dish than meat.

However, as far as meat is concerned "we all know that the best way for bringing down the cost of the main dish for any meal is to use cheaper cuts of meat, including ground beef.

Meat Stretchers

Miss Templeton recommends chop suey to housewives who must stretch their meat money to the limit.

Ingredients: fat pork; one-half onion; one-half pound minced meat; water; two tablespoons rice; one-half can tomato soup.

Brown the chopped onion in the fat pork. Add water, rice and meat. Let this simmer until meat is cooked. Add tomato soup when nearly done.

This individual recipe can be increased according to the number of persons to be served.

For dessert Miss Templeton suggests filling unbaked pastry shells with the following: one cup molasses (heavy); one egg.

Beat these together slightly and bake in a medium oven until set. Cook before serving.

"This mixture is good either in large pies or as individual tarts," said Miss Templeton.

Fish Dish

Kedgaree is a Newfoundland fish recipe recommended by the Jubilee Guilds.

Ingredients: Two-thirds cup uncooked rice; two cups cooked fish; one-quarter cup melted butter; two egg yolks; one teaspoon finely chopped parsley; one-half teaspoon salt; pepper.

Cook rice in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Remove bones and skin and flake fish. Add to rice and heat in double-boiler. Stir melted butter into slightly beaten egg yolks. Add parsley and seasonings. Combine with fish. Cook one or two minutes, stirring gently.

Describe Speech As "Nonsense"

WINDSOR, March 21 (CP). — An address by a Ford of Canada vice-president during which the proposed establishment of an Oakville Ford plant was attributed to that town's "healthy climate for capital" was described today as "naive nonsense."

Jack Taylor, president of Local 200, the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), was commenting on an address in Toronto March 13 by George H. Jackson, vice-president, Ford sales and advertising.

Mr. Jackson described Oakville's municipal government as "dedicated to all the people rather than to any special group or interest" and its citizenry as having a "will to ensure the enforcement . . . of law and order."

Because of these things, he said, it had been decided to move Ford's assembly operations to Oakville. The plant was expected to employ 7,500 men.

Mr. Taylor said that the move was being made because of "bad relations" which the company has created with its production workers' union. He called upon the company to "sit down with the union and work out a relationship that will be a model anywhere in Canada."

"Eleven months of disagreement —which involved two Ford plant strikes—ended last month with the signing by Ford and U.A.W. officials of a collective bargaining agreement.

Fund To Assist Fred Brant More Than $200

A $5 contribution from Donald E. Hendry, 499 Aylmer St., Friday morning boosted the total of the Fred Brant Fund over the $200 mark. By noon, another $17 had been turned in and the fund stands at $217 at press time.

Examiner readers are continuing to show that their sympathy for Brant who has had part of both feet amputated as the result of frostbite, has moved them to contribute to the fund set up to assist him.

On Monday, D. A. McGillis gave the fund a big shot in the arm, when he presented Major Harry Everitt, of the Salvation Army, with $100. Major Everitt is administering the fund which The Examiner opened March 14, to help Brant when he gets out of hospital.

Mr. McGillis' contribution still stands as the largest single donation, but between Monday and today, 13 donations were received, totalling $52.

Council approved a request from the Police Commission Monday night asking for an enquiry into the treatment given Brant and the circumstances of his release. No date has been set for the enquiry but the legal committee of council has been instructed to report to council on the assignment of the enquiry to a judge and assisting lawyer.

Court Ruling Eases Friction

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 21 (Reuters)—The Coloured Peoples' National Union declared here today that "much deep animosity against Europeans has been lifted" by Thursday's Supreme Court decision ruling against separate representation for white and colored citizens.

The union—with 43,000 members—said in a statement that "anxiety felt by thousands of colored people that their franchise rights were to be whittled away" had been relieved.

The organization aims to safeguard rights of persons of mixed and Negro blood throughtout South Africa.

Thursday's court ruling threw out legislation which struck colored voters from the regular lists and permited them to vote only for special representatives.

On learning of the decision, Premier Malan hastily summoned his cabinet and later told the House of Assembly that the ruling created an "intolerable" situation and that the government will "take the necessary steps to fend it. Presumably Malan would like to pass legislation forbidding the courts from ruling on acts of parliament. However, he would encounter difficulty in doing this because his supporters in parliament have not the strength to provide him with the necessary two-thirds majority for changing the constitution.

Aluminum Company To Spend $60 Millions

MONTREAL, March 21 (CP)—Aluminium Ltd., has filed a prospectus supplement with the securities and exchange commission outlining an additional $60,000,000 fixed capital expenditure between now and 1954, it was announced today. The original prospectus dated Oct. 15, 1951 offered 372,205 additional shares of capital stock.

The supplement says it is expected total fixed capital expenditures from 1951 to 1954 inclusive will be $360,000,000—an increase of $60,000,000. The increase will be split half and half between increased construction costs and additions not planned six months ago. Of the total, approximately $120,000,000 was expended as of Dec. 31, 1951.

Aluminum Company of Canada also is considering plans for raising approximately $90,000,000 of additional funds during 1952 from outside sources. Approximately two thirds of the amount is to cover an expected increase in fixed capital expenditures and the remainder for an indicated substantial acceleration in the rate of construction expenditure in British Columbia and a possible increase in working capital requirement."

Coalition Government Falls In Finland

HELSINKI, Finland, March 21 —(AP) — The coalition government of Premier Urho Kekkonen fell apart today over the price of butter and the premier submitted his resignation to president Juho Paasikivi.

Inflation has been plaguing this next-door neighbor of Russia. Kekkonen, leader of the Agrarian Party, has been premier since March, 1950. The present cabinet, the third under Kekkonen, took office in September, 1951, pledged to fight rising prices.

Kekkonen said he was "fed up" with discontent and repeated attacks from his own group. Reliable sources said he would not consent to head a fourth cabinet and had recommended to the president that Taavid Velhula, the party's parliamentary leader, be named premier.

Today's split came when Kekkonen and the seven cabinet members of his party voted against a slash in the price of butter but failed to obtain a majority.

20-Day Coma Ends For Hamilton Constable

HAMILTON, March 21 — (CP) A 20-day coma ended today for Constable Pat Kenney, 23, one of four officers injured three weeks ago in a two-cruiser collision.

"Could I have a cigarette, please," he said —his first words since the accident.

Then he asked for his mother and how the other three crash victims were. Two have been discharged from the hospital and one is in good condition.

Prov. President Speaks To PC's

Wallace Nesbitt, provincial president of the Young Progressive - Conservative Association, spoke Thursday night to the Peterborough association.

Mr. Nesbitt, who is from Woodstock, dealt mainly with two problems—the balance of social and political activity in Y.P.C. organizations, and getting out the vote.

For getting out votes, he suggested house-to-house canvassing as the best method. It was the system used in Woodstock in the last provincial election and he believed it had shown good results.

He said that one section of the city had not been thoroughly covered, and that section had shown the weakest vote in favor of the P.C. canditate.

Mr. Nesbitt, citing examples of other Y.P.C. associations, urged a better balance of social and political activity. Some clubs were top-heavy with social functions.

Chairman for the meeting, held in the Y.P.C. clubrooms, was president Paul Thompson.

Sydney Bus Drivers Reject Compromise

SYDNEY, N.S., March 21 (CP) —Drivers and mechanics of the Sydney and Whitney Pier Bus Company, rejecting a compromise wage offer, failed to report for work today and left this city of 35,000 without public transportation.

Fifty employees, 30 of them drivers, rejected a recommendation that the strike, originally scheduled for midnight, be postponed for 24 hours.

The postponement would have given time for talks on a compromise wage increase of 15 cents an hour—10 cents higher than previously offered by the company.

The union asked a 30-cent hourly boost, which would have made the basic rate $1.25. They also asked a gurauranteed work week of 54 hours.

Require County Ratepayers To Raise $309,817.28 For Levy Of 18.185 Mills

$19,000 Deficit In 1951 Adds To Total Demand On Taxpayers Increase Over Last Year $129,634

To meet their 1952 commitments the Peterborough County Council must raise $309,817.28, a figure of $129,634 more than in 1951 and an all-time high for the county. The levy will be 18.185 mills, 3.724 mills more than last year. Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer, gave two principal reasons for the record budget: the county assumed responsibility for paying debentures for the Norwood High School Area ($29,981.70) and the Lakefield High School Area ($25,369.13); also the county is trying to wipe out a $19,000 deficit incurred in 1951—$12,100 on roads and bridges and $6,900 on the current account.

Paid For By Areas

The two debentures, amounting to $55,351, are for the building and equipping of high schools in Norwood and Lakefield. While the county initially backs the debentures, actual payment will be made only by those ratepayers in the affected school areas.

Here is a summary of the rates during the last two years:

1951—14.461 mills on an equalized assessment of $12,300,477, with $180,183 to be raised for all county purposes.

1952—18.185 mills on an equalized assesment of $13,930,459 to be raised for all county purposes.

Mill Worth $13,931

For general purposes a mill raises $13,931 this year. The four northern townships of Burleigh-Anstruther, Chandos, Harvey and Galway-Cavendish, are not in the county roads system so a mill for road purposes raises slightly more than $12,000.

Mrs. Spurway said a mill and a half of the increase could be accounted for by the surplus of $16,954 carried over from 1950 and incorporated into the 1951 estimates; plus the current deficit of $6,900 at the end of the year.

To wipe out the deficit on roads and keep up the county roads system, county council appropriated $225,000—$45,000 more than in 1951. However this total appropriation includes the money raised by debentures and government subsidy as well as the money raised by taxing the ratepayers.

The Department of Highways pays a 50 per cent subsidy on the approved expenditure on county roads and 80 per cent on bridges and culverts.

Maintenance on existing roads is the major item, $113,800 of the $225,000 appropriation. Other county road expenditures: $39,300, new machinery $16,000, machinery repairs $7,000, and miscellaneous $18,900.

Construction on roads and bridges will cost $15,500 and maintenance will come to $14,500.

The road rate for 1952 has been set at eight mills, two mills more than last year.

The share allotted the suburban area commission is $20,000.

Four-tenths of a mill is to be levied for bridges and culverts; in 1951 the levy was half a mill.

A boost in wages to county workmen caused at least $10,000 of the overexpenditure in the county roads, it is estimated.

Of this $225,000 appropriation to wipe out the deficit and at the same time keep up the roads system, the 11 municipalities in the county roads sytem will levy their ratepayers a total of $104,735.

A summary of the estimates, approved Thursday, follows:

		Mills
Roads	$ 99,162.48	8.0
Bridges	5,572.18	.4
Debentures
1. Hospital	10,051.99	.721
2. Chemong Causeway	7,380.25	.529
3. Norwood High School	29,981.70
4. Lakefield High School	25,369.13
Education (Voc. and Academic for municipalities not in high school areas.)	13,379.48
Hospital deficits	24,222.55	1.738
General	94,697.52	6.797
Total	$309,817.28	18.185 Mills.

Apart from roads, the largest disbursement is $67,032 for the administration of justice and upkeep of the jail. This is more than $5,000 more than last year. Receipts are estimated to be $39,974.72.

This year the county refused to pay any more on the hospitalization account for paying patients. But deficits on indigent patients, paid by the county, come to $24,223.

Expenditure on the Old People's Home, Lakefield, is $14,500 with receipts $6,000, both higher than 1951. Hospitalization is a heavier expenditure—$14,500 compared with $7,000. Revenue will be higher by $4,400.

Child welfare is against the usual trend. The expenditure this years is estimated at $10,750; it was $12,500 last year.

Other estimated disbursements and receipts: reforestation $3,000 and $2,500; registry office (searches) $5,000 and $2,000; weed inspector $1,000 and $500; insurance, workmen's compensation etc. $3,200 and $1,000; county assessor $5,500 and $1,500.

Some outright expenditures: agricultural representative and societies $2,000; Federation of Agriculture $2,786.12; industrial schools $1,000; auditor $250; conventions and delegates expenses $300; Warden's fee $1,000; committee fees $2,000; council sessions $2,800; grants $1,325; legal fees $500; maintenance of county office $1,400; printing, postage etc. $500; salaries under general administration $4,800; family court $1,700; fox bounties $1,500; unemployment insurance $175.

Home Comforts

COPENHAGEN —(CP)—A Danish freighter has sailed the seas for six months with all cabins and messes decorated with potted plants. The object was to find out which plants thrive on board ship, before plants are provided by the Merchant Navy welfare organization to make Danish seamen feel "more at home."

NEW CLERK OF PRIVY COUNCIL — J. W. Pickersgill, 46, special assistant to Prime Minister St. Laurent, has been named Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary of the Cabinet. His appointment to the $15,000-a-year post is effective June 1. Thorold Man Killed Walking To Work

THOROLD, March 21 (CP) — Julian Tereshyn, 60, of Thorold was killed Thursday night as he walked to work at the Ontario Paper Company plant here.

Provincial police said Tereshyn was struck by a truck driven by Howard Hagar, 35, of Niagara Falls, Ont., who was not held.

First reports did not identify the victim, who died of a fractured skull.

Whip Feeling Against U.S. Over Germ War

MOSCOW, March 21 (AP). — The campaign against alleged United States germ warfare in Korea is being whipped to a high pitch here.

Izvestia, Soviet Government newspaper, today published a declaration by Patriarch Alexei of the Russian Orthodox Church and three leading metropolitans condemning alleged bacteriological warfare in Korea.

Russian press reports repeated previous charges in Peiping that the U.S. is using poison gas on the Korean front. Moscow papers reported a wave of protest throughout the Soviet Union.

Russia refused in the United Nations Disarmament Commission Thursday to support a U.S. proposal for an impartial investigation by the International Red Cross of the Communist germ warfare charges. The U.S. denies the charges.

Meanwhile, in Korea, Andrew Cordier, executive assistant to U.N. secretary-general Trygve Lie, said:

"After visiting these units in Korea, I think their (the Reds' germ) accusations are even more absurd than when I first heard them in New York. The United Nations does not have to and will not resort to germ warfare to accomplish its mission".

Heavy Load

ROCHDALE, England—(CP)—A policeman stopped a woman wheeling a baby-carriage in this Lanashire town when he noticed the springs of the carriage were weighed down. In it he found 36 pounds of lead stolen from the roof of a civic building.

TestMaking Newsprint From Sugar Cane

MADISON, Wis., March 21 — (AP)—Joaquin De La Roza Sr., president of a New York corporation bearing his name, said Thursday work has been completed for a test run on his process for making newsprint from sugar cane bagasse—the fibrous material left after juice is extracted.

De La Rosa said enough bagasse pulp would be shipped Saturday to turn out two tons of newsprint at the Herty Foundation laboratory at Savannah, Ga., the first week in April.

The pulp was produced at the U.S. Forest Products laboratory in Madison.

De La Rosa said work at the laboratory this week eliminated one of the major obstacles in his efforts to produce print from sugar production wastes.

The laboratory, he said, succeeded in carrying out his process to purify, rather than remove, pith—the short fibres in sugar cane.

SHADES OF CHRIS WELKIN!—A terrestial moon-ship hovers some 200 miles over the surface of the moon, as scientists in space take photos of "the man in the moon," in this artist's conception of space travel in years to come. The craft would base on a man-made space-station revolving in its own orbit about the earth, according to Dr. Werner con Braun, builder of the V-2 rocket. It would be a 5-day, 239,000 mile trip from the space station to the moon, according to the scientist. The envisioned project is one of several space-travel ideas outlined in an article in Colliers magazine.

Foot-Mouth Disease Moves Into Eastern Europe—Expert

PARIS, March 21 —(AP)— An epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease that has ravaged western European domestic animal herds for the last 18 months now is moving into Eastern Europe, a French expert on the subject reports.

Gaston Ramon, Director of the International Office of Epizootics, said the latest reports of outbreaks of the disease, which was reported in Western Canada last month, came from Czechoslovakia and Poland.

The epidemic started, Ramon explained, in Northern Germany in September, 1950. From there it spread into Denmark, The Netherlands, Belgium, France, Italy, Yugoslavia and Greece.

Some cases also were reported in Britain. These might have been caused by birds carrying the virus across the English Channel, Ramon said. There also were some outbreaks of the disease in South America, as well as in Canada, but there can be no positive proof that the disease was carried to America from Europe, according to Prof. Ramon.

Foremost Expert

Ramon is the foremost French expert on the subject. He is credited with discovering and developing anatoxines (toxoid) for vaccination against diphtheria and tetanus and a combined vaccination process, by which several immunities are acquired in one operation, which now is almost universally used.

"Foot-and-mouth disease breaks out at various places from time to time, but the present epidemic is the greatest since the scourge of 1937-38," Ramon asserted.

It would be impossible to estimate the damage, but he spoke of "hundreds of billions of francs," (1,000,000,000 francs is the equivalent of about $2,800,000).

It all started on Sept. 30, 1950, in Northern Germany, according to the professor's records. Then only one herd was known to be infected "but the situation changed rapidly."

At the end of February, 151, foot-and-mouth disease had struck 612 farms. It had spread to 51,300 by November, 1951, when it hit its peak in Germany. Belgium, free of the disease in October, 1950, had 161 farms infected in December, 1950, and close to 30,000 farms in December, 1951. In Denmark, in December, 1951, there were reported infections from 3,000 additional farms. In France, 66 departments were infected in December, 1951, and 82 departments by March, 1952."

Cases In Poland

The latest new cases in the extension of the disease in Europe were reported from Poland in February of this year. Meanwhile the epidemic is dying out of its own accord in the countries first affected.

"Only countries such as England, Norway and Sweden, protected totally or partially by natural frontiers, have been able up to now to escape hoof-and-mouth disease," he said. "The few herds where the disease broke out were promptly eliminated."

The single country in continental Europe to escape the disease is Switzerland, where swift, ruthless counter-measures are taken. The infected animals, and any animals that might have had a chance to be infected, are killed immediately. The Swiss measures correspond to the precautions taken in Canada, Britain and the United States.

One of the difficulties that has been encountered recently in vaccinating animals, Prof. Ramon reported, is that the foot-and-mouth virus has built up an immunity to the original vaccines. This has forced experiments in the type and quantity of vaccine to be used and no conclusive results are available yet, he said.

Germany Still Trouble Spot

OTTAWA, March 22. (CP)—Germany, the country that launched the First and Second World Wars, remains one of Europe's top trouble spots. That was the impression External Affairs Minister Pearson gave Friday in launching a Commons' debate on foreign affairs. While "reasonably optimistic" that Germany will be satisfactorily associated with western defence, Mr. Pearson said the question of Germany's rearmament "is very difficult, complicated and indeed explosive. There are two extreme trends which might develop dangerously in Germany at the present time," he said. "On the one hand there is the revival of militarism, Nazi militarism; and there is the other extreme, the rejection of all defence responsibilities by the Germans and the creation of a pure vacuum in the centre of Europe."

Then, with an apparent reference to Russia, he said:

"We know what happens when a pure vacuum is created in the centre of Europe, and I think we have a pretty good idea who would try to move into that vacuum in the present circumstances."

Many Difficulties

Mr. Pearson described the recent decision of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to include Germany in the defence community of Western Europe. While that decision was taken, there were still many difficulties ahead.

Germany demanded equality of status with other members of the European community. The Germans insisted on unity between East and West Germany. In France, there still was fear of a remilitarized Germany.

He added:

"Nevertheless the fact remains that Germany, as I see it, is bound to become stronger and is bound to become united ultimately.

"Surely it is better that this should be done in association with the Atlantic Powers than in isolation, or on a purely nationalistic basis, or in association with the Communist East which would have no scruples about a Germany armed to the teeth, with Nazi leaders back in harness, provided that was done by a Communist government under Moscow orders."

German rearmament was only one of many topics mentioned by Mr. Pearson in a one-hour speech. The foreign-affairs debate will be resumed next week.

Fire Damage Set At Million In Alaska Town

WRANGELL, Alaska, March 22 (AP)—A wind-fed fire early today wiped out more than one-half of Wrangell's business section, destroying 20 frame buildings and a residence all perched on pilings along the town's main street.

Loss was estimated by Fire Chief William D. Grant at close to $1,000,000.

Eighty-five persons were made homeless before the flames were brought under control at 3 a.m. (6 a.m. EST)—4½ hours after the fire mushroomed from a hardware store.

Firemen said a boiler explosion apparently was the cause.

Only one causualty was reported. Cpl. Darrell Miller was hit on the head by a timber sent flying by a dynamite explosion. His condition was not serious.

Dynamiting of buildings in the path of the raging blaze failed to stem its advance. Not until after the collapse of the only hotel in this community of 1,200 persons was the fire controlled.

One entire side of the town's business street was a scene of destruction. For four blocks the narrow beach was littered with the smouldering remains of the buildings.

The structures were of two-storey frame construction, with one exception of the three-storey hotel. Forty of the homeless, driven out in 35-degree weather, lived in the hotel.

Every able-bodied man in town turned out to fight the blaze. They were able to keep the fire from spreading to business buildings on the opposite side of the street.

Dynamite and all available water hoses could not check the fire until it reached the north end of the main street four blocks away.

Gone were the community's only bakery, barber's shop, frozen food locker plant, theatre, and hotel. Also destroyed were a new Elks Club and bowling alley, Redmen's Lodge, one of three large grocery stores, two liquor stores and two gift shops.

Special Delivery

PHILADELPHIA, March 22. (AP) — The Women's Medical College Hospital witnessed a new means of arrival for an expectant mother yesterday—she flew in the window. A pigeon alighted on the sill, laid an egg and calmly started building a nest. Maternity Registrar Annie Wells ordered a screen placed by the window to give the patient privacy and entered the "child" in the register as "Special Delivery."

Plan To Fight Court By-Pass

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 22 (Reuters)—Opposition leader Jacobus Strauss today said his United Party will fight "in the highest court in the land" any attempt by Prime Minister Daniel Malan to bypass the Supreme Court as judge of a law's constitutionality.

Malan said last night he plans legislation to establish laws of parliament as exempt from rulings by the court.

The Supreme Court, highest in South Africa, has just knocked down a major prop of Malan's apartheid (racial - segregation) program by invalidating the separate representation act which cut the voting rights of colored (mixed-race) electors in Cape province.

Strauss said Malan's proposals to put parliament beyond reach of the courts "are directed against both our courts and our constitution."

Strauss has called on the government to resign and hold new elections to give the people a chance to show whether they approve Malan's policies.

Labor Editor Describes Equal Pay Act' Shadow'

TORONTO, March 22 (CP) — Margo Thompson, Canadian editor of Steel Labor, yesterday described Ontario's equal-pay-for-women rights as a shadow without substance.

Speaking to the Toronto Business and Professional Women's Club, she said said if the operative section of the Act had any purpose other than one of making political gain, it was defeated in the wording of the Act which states women are to be paid at not less than men while doing the same work in the same establishment. She said the Act should use the phrase "for work of comparable character or comparable operations."

M.P.s' Knuckles Rapped

Deportment Becomes Issue

By The Canadian Press

Parliamentary deportment was an issue in two provincial legislatures Friday.

The Speaker threw the book at a member of the Alberta House, expelling him until he apologizes for a statement he made about a prominent civil servant.

And 37 freshmen in the Ontario Legislature received a lecture from their Progressive Conservative party whip on correct parliamentary behavior.

The offending Albertan was Arthur Wray, Independent Social Credit member for Banff-Cochrane and a stormy petrel in provincial politics since he broke with Manning government in 1946.

The legislature unanimously approved Mr. Wray's expulsion after he said during a committee session that he had seen chairman G. M. Blackstock of the provincial board of public utilities commissioners "under the influence of the Liquor Control Board." Mr. Wray repeatedly refused to withdraw the remark.

The complaints of William Murdoch, the Ontario government whip, against his parliamentary recruits were milder, echoing a gentle rebuke earlier in the week by Speaker Rev. M. C. Davies.

He felt the Progressive Conservative newcomers were guilty of lack of parliamentary decorum in referring to a colleague on the floor of the House as "My friend Joe" rather than "The Honorable Member from Sunnyside Beach."

A memo from Mr. Murdoch also contained a reminder that parliamentary etiquette applies to every member no matter what his party. It gave as an example of the proper address: "The Honorable Member for St. Andrew."

One government back-bencher, in the throne-speech debate, told the House he would decline to refer to Joseph Salsberg a Labor Progressive member for St. Andrews as an "Honorable Member."

Dutch Plane Crashes, Say 44 Dead

Crash Comes As Craft Nears Airport, Two Engines Drop Off

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 22. (CP)—Forty-four persons died today in the flaming wreckage of a Royal Dutch (KLM) airliner in a Frankfurt suburb.

Four of the 48 persons aboard escaped death but two were hurt so badly they were not expected to survive.

United States air force officials, who helped direct rescue work, said the plane, a four-engined DC-6 inbound from Rome on a flight from Johannesburg, was carrying 38 passengers and a crew of 10.

Cause of the crash was not determined. The day was grey but not foggy and the plane—named "Queen Juliana"—was making an instrument landing. The ship was the one Queen Juliana had intended to use on a flight to the United States next month.

Saved Four

A German truck driver, Willibald Hoffman, was credited with pulling at least four persons from the wreckage. He climbed inside despite the flames, cut safety belts with his pocket knife and passed the people out.

Firemen and rescue crews had to put down flames in the plane and in surrounding trees before the bodies of the dead could be reached.

Search crews dug from the wreckage three cases of gold consigned from Johannesburg to Amsterdam. They also found a book: "Point of no Return".

Two of the plane's four engines twisted off and dropped into the woods about 150 yards from the scene of the crash. It was approaching bustling Rhinemain airport for a landing to refuel for its flight to Amsterdam.

Eyewitness Tells Of Storm Path

By JAMES MEADOW
Arkansas Gazette Reporter

JUDSONIA, Ark., March 22 — (AP)—The worst scene of desolation I've ever viewed is this community.

The only unscathed building in this town of 1,100 is the Methodist Church, where an emergency first-aid station was established.

State police said there were 15 known dead. The town marshal told me that there were almost sure to be another 20.

It is easy to believe. The town, in the flickering light of emergency illumination, appears as if an angry giant smashed it as if it were a cheap plaything.

I had to go to Searcy to get the only telephone line open out of White county. Hurriedly I toured the two funeral homes and a make-shift morgue before I made my call and headed for Bald Knob, which was just as viciously wrecked as Judsonia.

I counted 15 bodies at one funeral home and 12 at another. The morticians were doing the very best they could under the circumstances, but were forced to stack the dead like cordwood. The wounded were getting priority over the dead in available ambulances.

This whole area is chaos. Rescue workers are toiling like madmen. It will take a fortune or maybe several to put the stricken section back on its feet. Whole communities must be rebuilt.

Monkey's Rocket Trip Immoral—Royal Society

LONDON, March 22 — (AP).—The Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said today it is immoral to send monkeys on a rocket journey into space.

Assailing recent United States rocket tests at White Sands, N.M., using mice and monkeys as passengers, the society asked "Where are these experiments leading us?"

"Is not the whole matter parallel to experiments conducted on human beings in Nazi prison camps?"

Tragedy, Luck Take Part In People's Lives As Vicious Tornadoes Sweep Through South

CARLISLE, Ark., March 22 (AP). — The Ray Jones family was packed up ready to move when a tornado struck their home yesterday. Two sons, Derald 15, and Doyne 9, had returned home from school shortly before.

The twister killed both boys.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — A 77-year-old blind man, Henry Wilkins, of Marked Tree, Ark., today told his story of the twister that demolished his house, injuring him and his wife:

"I don't know what kept us from getting killed," Wilkins said, holding a hand to his bruised head. He said he and his wife had gone to bed when the storm struck.

"It hit the house and broke off part of the roof. Another storm knocked the roof down on top of me.

"I hollered and hollered and hollered. Finally someone came. I couldn't tell how I lived. My wife was hurt pretty bad... I don't know how we got out."

THE LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Officials of Arkansas' largest Red Cross Chapter didn't have to be called together when first word of yesterday's tornadoes was received.

They already were in session here — holding a meeting in a fund drive.

Alberta Livestock Men Ask Federal Aid In Embargoes

By The Canadian Press

Southern Alberta livestock men appealed to the Federal government Friday to take a hand in British Columbia and Manitoba regulations on movement of livestock between the provinces. At the same time, they charged the two provinces with trying to pamper their own livestock industries through on-again, off-again embargoes.

The trouble was stirred up when British Columbia ruled out southern Alberta livestock as a source of supply. B.C. took the step in revising its stand on prairie livestock and meat which was banned from B.C. shortly after foot-and-mouth disease broke out in southern Saskatchewan.

The British Columbia government decided Friday to admit only northern Alberta livestock, sheep and swine but no meat. And they could come in only if certified free of foot-and-mouth disease by federal inspectors.

The action changed B.C.'s stand of the day before by ruling out southern Alberta livestock and barring dead carcasses, dressed and cut meats.

Ruled Out

Southern Alberta livestock were ruled out because they were too close for B.C.'s liking to the southern Saskatchewan area where foot-and-mouth disease was discovered. Meats and carcasses won't be allowed into B.C. because their source is too hard to trace.

A protest meeting of cattle men in Lethbridge, Alta., wired federal Agricultural Minister Gardiner urging that the federal government "exercise its constitutional powers to prevent contraventions of the British North America Act and assume control of livestock marketing and thereby restore orderly marketing of livestock."

Flagrant Restrictions

The meeting also said B.C. and Manitoba restrictions "obviously have nothing to do with foot-and-mouth disease. They are flagrant

Missionaries Say Reds Gave Fair Treatment

BRANTFORD, March 22 (CP) —Major and Mrs. Burton Pedlar, Salvation Army missionaries, said Friday on their return after five years in China that they were never treated unfairly by Red Chinese officials.

Mrs. Pedlar said they had had little chance to see the Communist government operating under normal conditions. However, the Reds had improved transportation and operation of civil courts.

Gov't Shuts Door To Immigrant Textile Workers

OTTAWA, March 22 — (CP).—Entry of immigrant workers for the textile industry will be cut off while there is unemployment in that industry, Immigration Minister Harris and Labor Minister Gregg told a union delegation on Friday.

However, Revenue Minister McCann said to the textile-union group that legislation cannot cure textile unemployment, which he said depends on world conditions.

The Revenue Minister denied that cheap foreign textiles are being dumped in Canada, as the union claimed in urging that the Federal government raise bars against these products.

The ministers spoke to a group of about 30 union delegates representing some 27,000 workers in Southern and Southwestern Ontario.

It was the third union delegation to approach the Cabinet in the last few weeks to ask action on growing unemployment among textile makers. The members said about one-third of the workers in their area had been put out of work recently.

M. W. Mackenzie Resigns Post

OTTAWA, March 21 (CP). — Max W. Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Defence Production and one of the government's top economic advisers, is resigning from his post, it was learned today.

After about 13 years of association with the government in various high-level positions, the 44-year-old economist is accepting an appointment with the Canadian Celanese Corporation.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is expected to make an announcement shortly on the resignation and the appointment of a successor.

Twisting Winds Expected To Run Damage Into Millions Of Dollars

Report 123 People Dead In Arkansas Alone, Houses Whirled Through Air As Deadly Funnels of Wind Strike States

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 22. (AP)—Spring tornadoes scattered death, destruction and untold suffering across four southern states Friday. The number of reported dead stood at 166 early today. More than 1,000 other persons were injured and still more were without homes in the wake of the terrific, twisting winds in Arkansas, Tennessee, Missouri and Mississippi. Property damage and livestock losses probably will run into the millions of dollars.

The dead in Arkansas alone was figured at 123 by the Arkansas Gazette. An area-by-area checklist compiled by the Associated Press showed 103 dead in Arkansas.

WASHINGTON, March 22. AP)—The Weather Bureau said today tornadoes may hit new areas in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama this afternoon, reaching western parts of Virginia and West Virginia tonight.

Fifteen persons were reported dead and 66 injured in the Caruthersville area of South-east Missouri. West Tennessee counted 30 dead and North Mississippi reported seven.

With ordinary means of communications disrupted, ham radio operators aided in getting messages into and out of stricken areas.

The storms, forecast by the United States Weather Bureau, swirled a deadly trail from Southwest Arkansas to the state's northeast tip.

Hardest hit was the famous strawberry-producing area of White County, Ark., where 62 dead were counted. The towns of Judsonia and Bald Knob, about 50 miles northeast, were practically levelled. The only building unscathed in Judsonia was the Methodist Church.

A portion of Searcy, the county seat of White County, was damaged but no deaths were reported there.

Suffering Terrific

"The damage and human suffering is terrific," said Marvin Crittenden, director of relief services for the Arkansas Welfare Department. "The whole highway south from Searcy looks like picture-show scenes of battlefields. It's awful."

Governor Sir McMath, who arriped at Searcy early last night, said the ruin and suffering in that area "is terrible, terrible."

Britain, Egypt Meet For Talks On Suez

CAIRO, Egypt, March 22 (Reuters)—The British ambassador and the Egyptian prime minister met today for talks on the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the Suez Canal.

Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson called on Prime Minister Hilaly Pasha at his residence.

The newspaper Al Ahram, quoting "a responsible source," said today that in secret Anglo-Egyptian contacts "there is practically agreement on the main issues."

Chair-Slaying Suspect Surrenders Self

MONTREAL, March 22 (CP).—A 23-year-old man is in police custody today in connection with the chair-slaying Friday of Mrs. Marcel Veilleux in her northeast Rosemount home.

Police said the man, whom they identified as Paul Martin, a roomer in the Veilleux home, walked into a police station last night and said: "I am the man who killed a woman in Rosemount."

Also injured in what police described as a "running fight" were two children.

The Veilleux' four-year-old son Leon-Jean, was taken to hospital suffering from bruises and rope burns about the neck. Denise Fouquette, five-year-old daughter of a neighbor, was also taken to hospital for observation.

Walked Into Station

Martin walked into the police station shortly after Mrs. Veilleux' body, lying in a pool of blood, was discovered by her husband in the kitchen of the couple's second-floor home.

Two broken chairs were beside the woman's body. Police also found two blood-stained knives.

Veilleux, who discovered the body, told police:

"I came up the back way so as not to trail mud into the house. I came into the kitchen and saw my wife lying on her side. It was terrible. There was blood everywhere."

Police said the place was a shambles. Blood splattered the walls and lay in pools on the floor. Bloody handprints were all over the place.

Smallwood Refuses Compete With Bertie

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 22—(CP)—Premier Joseph R. Smallwood said Friday he "would not hope to compete in the use of guttersnipe language" with Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

The Premier and two other members commented in the Legislature on a story in the Tribune, quoting Col. McCormick's complaints against a delay at Newfoundland's Gander airport. The story referred to "moronic customs officers and torpid baggage handlers" and said "we are told to excuse them because Newfoundlanders are so inbred as to be half-witted."

"We shouldn't take too much notice of Bertie McCormick," said the Premier.

J. R. Courage (L., Fortune-Hermitage) said: "The only difference between a village idiot and Col. McCormick is that Col. McCormick is a world idiot. That is, an idiot who makes himself ridiculous to more people."

Tory Weekly Offers New Words For Anthem

LONDON, March 22 (Reuters)—The Conservative weekly, The Spectator, which has been agitating for a new first verse for the National Anthem on the grounds that the present words are unsuitable to modern times, Friday published results of a reader competition for a substitute.

First prize went to H. C. Hopkion, who suggested:

"Not for these Isles alone
"Endures thine ancient throne,
"God Save Our Queen.
"In lands across the sea
"Proud nations, brave and free,
"One world-wide family
"Acclaim our Queen."

Last month the Spectator described the verse in current use as a "deplorable jingle."

Nearly Wrapped Up

Negotiators Near Agreement On Entries

MUNSAN, Korea, March 22 — (AP—Truce negotiators today virtually wrapped up an agreement on ports of entry as the Communists turned over detailed maps of five north Korean cities through which they would funnel troops and supplies during an armistice.

An Allied staff officer said the maps appeared to meet United Nations specifications and "looked in general to be following our pattern."

The maps, showing exact areas in which neutral inspection teams would operate during a truce, were flown to U.N. truce headquarters here for close study.

A second group of U.N. staff officers told the Communists their "new approach" to the prisoner exchange needed "a considerable amount of adjustment."

The Reds again made it clear they have no intention of abandoning the principle of forced repatriation of all war prisoners.

The U.N. command submitted maps of its five ports of entry Friday, but the Communists asked for another 24 hours to pinpoint dock areas, airports and other facilities.

U.N. staff officers made slight modifications in their maps overnight to conform to Communist requests.

The ports of entry were named Tuesday. Communist troops and supplies would move into North Korea through Sinuiju and Manpojin on the Yalu river border with Manchuria, Chongjin and Hungnam on the east coast and Sinanju, a rail junction in the northwest.

The U.N. ports in South Korea would be Pusan and Kangnung on the east coast, Kunsan and Inchon on the west coast and Taegu, an air base city in southeast Korea.

Col. George W. Hickman said Communist and U.N. staff officers working on prisoner exchange indicated that they wanted frank, full and informal talks.

Hickman added, however, that neither side suggested secret talks in an attempt to speed agreement.

The issue of voluntary versus forced repatriation of war prisoners is the only major dispute blocking agreement on prisoner exchange.

Two problems remain to be ironed out by negotiators working on truce supervision. They are Communist nomination of Russia to a neutral inspection commission, and an Allied demand for a ban on construction of military airfields in North Korea.

Fewer Accidents On Streets In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, March 22 (ENS) —A marked decrease in motor vehicle accidents during the year was reported by Lakefield's chief constable, Garnet Samis, in his annual report. In 1950 there were 33 accidents reported and 22 in 1951. Chief Samis attributed this to increasing traffic patrol and to the use of a stop watch in checking speeders. Breaking and entering were down from nine in 1950 to one in 1951.

Under instructions from Ken Morris, chairman of the Police Committee, Chief Samis maintained a more rigid night patrol from midnight on, and feels that this is the main reason for the big reduction.

There were no serious street disturbances reported and complaints re juveniles were approximately the same as the previous year. Twenty-three court summons were served on village residents for other police departments and five arrests made on warrants held by other police departments.

All traffic accidents were investigated by Chief Samis with one exception which occurred during one of his days off duty when he was absent from the village. A total of 660 telephone calls were received during the year at home and office re police matters. This included calls from other police departments.

Only 13 Days Off

Although Chief Samis is entitled to one day off each week and his regular holidays, he has taken but 13 days off during the year with exception of regular holiday period and five days for sickness. This means that the chief has served the village 36 days gratis.

During the year 84 informations re Highway Traffic Act were laid with 73 convictions, one dismissal and 10 withdrawn. Informations where the charge was withdrawn, was through the inability to locate the person charged or through a mistake being made in the licence number of the vehicle.

Under the Liquor Control Act 12 informations were laid with 11 convictions and one withdrawal. The information withdrawn was because the person charged was convicted under the criminal code, (drunk driving) and was sent to jail.

Two informations were laid re village bylaws and two convictions made. In the juvenile court five informations were laid with four convictions and one dismissal. Family court saw one information and one conviction.

In the 22 traffic accidents reported property damage amounted to $3,590.00. Six persons were injured with two hospitalized for a short period. Parking tickets netted the village $40.00 and fines $255.10.

Property Stolen

Loss through breaking and entering was reported as $40.00. Value of property reported stolen was $790.00, but of this $730.00 value was recovered. Petty complaints were of a minor nature and numbered 110. Three cases of wilful damage to public property were reported and arrests made in two cases and convictions obtained.

During a night patrol Chief Samis found a man or men attempting to jimmy the door of the office of the W. J. Charlton mill. At his approach they made their escape and no serious damage was done.

Operation costs for the police department which includes salary and all expenses, the use of car, telephone, clothing and other equipment, meals for the prisoners, etc., is $3,594.98. The government subsidy is 25 per cent or $898.74. Total receipts to village through fines and parking tickets $295.10, leaving the total cost to the ratepayer for police service $2,401.14.

REPORTERS TO BE BARRED — Court reporters at Edmonton courthouse soon will be behind bars, but aren't worrying about it. Overcrowding of the courthouse has made it necessary to move the reporters into the basement cell block, now vacant but used years ago for prisoners awaiting trial. The cells will be renovated before the reporters move in. Here are three of them trying it out for size, left to right: Russell Klesko, Jack McMann and Ron Craig.

County Pays $6,350 For Court

Peterborough County Council has approved the paying of their share of Family Court costs for 1951. Total costs were $6,350, of which the county's share was $1,620.

Altogether the Family Court, under Magistrate W. R. Philip, Q.C., looked after 243 cases. The county's share was 62, or 25.5 per cent.

In a report to County Council, Magistrate Philp said that there were fewer cases on the whole. The ratio of city cases to county cases remained fairly constant from the previous year, though there was one more on the county list than in 1950.

Family Court statistics for 1951:

	City.	County
Children:
Juvenile Delinquents' Act	72	28
Childrens' Protection Act (neglected children)	24	5
Adults	85	29
Total	181	62

Total payments made for the support and maintenance of deserted wives and children amounted to $7,957.

Magistrate Philp also pointed out what he thought was an undesirable feature of the present Juvenile Deliquents' Act.

Rarely Pay

Only in exceptional cases can a parent of a child who damages property be made to pay for that damage, said the Magistrate.

"It is my personal feeling that parents should be made to some degree responsible for such damage caused by their children," he said.

The problem has not been a big one in Peterborough, he said, but it has troubled law-enforcement officials elsewhere during 1951.

He asked the County Council to draw this to the attention of the Minister of Justice. However, because of an oversight, no action was taken by County Council at the March session.

WINNIPEG, March 22 (CP) — Grain prices were lower Friday across the board on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Local selling was prompted by declines on United States markets. Prices for I.W.A. and Class 2 wheat were up one-quarter cent.

Smelt Run Starts

COBOURG, March 22 (ENS) — Netted by commercial fishermen out in Lake Ontario for the past week or so, the smelt are just starting to make their way up the many streams which empty into the lake. At Gage's Creek near Port Hope and also near Colborne, small catches of smelt were caught this week. The streams are still muddy, making visibility poor for the fishermen but the weather is rapidly becoming about right and it is expected that this weekend will see the start of the season.

Three C.G.E. Workers Win $1,118 In Awards

Three men at the C.G.E. collected a total of $1,118 in award money for suggestions adopted by the plant to cut down costs.

The men are Ray Clifford ($647), Hiram Briggs ($365), and Nels Howlett ($106).

Mr. Clifford, industrial control division, won his money for suggesting that arc shute slides be purchased directly from a new seller.

Mr. Briggs, armature department, suggested a new sorting device. Mr. Howlett, ordnance, suggested that a boom crane be installed to service a machine in the tool room.

Other award winners were: G. A. Nicholls, $48; Dennis Garrod, $21; E. Duchesne, $16; J. R. Teevins, $12; N. Whyte, $11; W. J. Booth, $11.

Workers Bustle Preparing For Seed Show

Bustle of preparations for the Central Ontario Seed Show at Exhibition Park next week was continuing today. Booths are being erected in the main building, and Frank C. Paterson said today that everything should be ready Monday and Tuesday when the grain exhibits arrive from the nine or ten counties comprising the district.

Door prizes are registered seed: two bushels of registered oats from Garnet Rickard of Bowmanville, two more from Mel McHolm of Port Hope area, chairman of the show and another two bushels of Robert Armstrong's best seed. Those draws will be Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and Thursday evening.

Ed Summers, Durham agricultural representative, who, as a hobby, grows some of the finest gladioli in this part of the province, is making up three sizable packages, to be drawn by attending women on those two days.

Warden R. R. Stewart has contributed two bushels of registered barley and half a bushel of flax that are also going into the Thursday draw.

Dr. Harold Worton, master of ceremonies for the Thursday night program, including inter-county square dancing, is wondering about space for the crowd which he expects that night, if the weather has the graces of spring in the air.

This is not a money-making show. It is an agricultural enterprise, but directors decided against throwing open to the public. There is a door charge of 25 cents for lapel buttons which must be worn. Any person seen without one might be liable to be being brought before Warden Dick Stewart, who is a member of the show executive, and incidentally is invested with magisterial power.

However, support for the show does not suggest any oversight of the buttons. The space has all been taken. The farm implement dealers of the district have a whole building to themselves.

Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, president of O.A.C. will open the show Wednesday at 2 p.m. and Gordon Hancock will close it Friday with the auctioning of all the exhibited seed.

Disappointing

Mr. Pearson, chairman of the North Atlantic Treaty Council, said that the Atlantic Pact has not fallen under military control. However, progress so far in non-military co-operation has been disappointing.

He outlined the military objectives of N.A.T.O. and listed Canada's contributions.

However, Gordon Graydon (P.C., Peel) said there still is need for a "clear and understandable" statement both on what Canada has been asked to do in Europe and what she has agreed to do.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the formal statement issued after the Lisbon meeting of the Pact Council was "deliberately designed" to mislead the people into thinking 50 divisions would be available in Europe this year.

He criticized Mr. Pearson and other for being 'tardy" in clearing up the fact that many of the divisions would be reserve units.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said his party supports the military objectives of N.A.T.O., but objects strenuously to the half-hearted attempts of some countries in the drive to make the west strong.

Danger To World

Mr. Coldwell also referred to the rearmament of Germany and said that it presented a danger for the whole world. He noted that Russia now has countered the Atlantic Pact plan for integration of West Germany by offering to establish a German army unattached to any other power.

He urged a continuous attempt to reach "a progressive disarmament agreement with Russia and said, with war not imminent "every attempt should be made to clear up international disputes and reach agreements to disarm".

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) raised the question of what N.A.T.O. members would do if Western Germany, after joining the European defence community, should invade Eastern Germany.

Mr. Pearson replied that there is nothing in the N.A.T.O. agreement which would obligate any member nations to go to the help of any country which takes "any offensive or aggressive action of any kind".

"It is purely defensive in character; the undertaking is to help each other if attacked, and on no other occasion".

Mr. Graydon, spokesman for his party on external affairs, called for clarification of the government's stand on Formosa.

Ontario Budget No Assistance To Cobourg Rate

COBOURG, March 22 (ENS) — Widening of the tax field is not going to make much difference to this town. While the province has an Ontario Hospital and a boys' training school here, there will be no tax levy on these institutions.

The liquor store premises has been paying a business tax and the ratepayers who own the store pay taxes on it to the town. All that remains which is taxable is the public utilities building and the water pumping station. The water department has been losing money and the rates will be raised. The electrical department which occupies the utilities building is well able to pay taxes as the department produces a good revenue.

Tax collector E. A. Hircock estimates that if all tax exempt buildings such as federal and provincial buildings and churches, paid taxes the tax rate could be reduced by 50 per cent. If all provincial institutions were taxable, the tax rate could be reduced by 20 per cent, he said.

Apsley To Build $20,000 Memorial Arena

By fall, the ratepayers of Burleigh-Anstruther township hope to have a $20,000 Memorial Centre built.

Plans have already been drawn up for the construction and operation of an indoor rink. Logs from Crown land in the district have been cut and are now ready for milling into lumber.

The basic design will be along the lines of the rink in Warsaw, with an ice surface 172 feet by 70 feet. There will be a straight compass roof of aluminum. And the inside will contain seats for spectators, ice surface, two dressing rooms, snack bar, and two lavatories.

Reeve Norman Wilson said the project would help the village of Apsley and the township of Burleigh-Anstruther to keep moving with the times.

Served Well

"The open-air rink served us well," he said. "It kept our youngsters off the streets; gave them good, healthful exercise, and we knew where they were.

"But we must move with the times. Bancroft and Wilberforce have indoor rinks; so have Lakefield, Warsaw and Keene. If we are going to carry on with our hockey we just have to have an indoor playing surface."

By getting their timber from Crown land, the Board in charge of building the Community Centre hope to save as much as $3,000 on the project. This, they feel, should offset the extra cost of using aluminum sheeting for the roof instead of steel.

"The people of Burleigh-Anstruther enjoy their hockey and sport and we're sure they'll get right behind this," said Mr. Wilson, who is also chairman of finance. Plenty of volunteer labor is expected.

Sidney McCauley is chairman of the Board in charge of building; Earl Trotter is chairman of the timber committee; and Roland Payne, who had experience in building the Warsaw rink, will supervise the job.

Provincial Help

The province will subsidize the $20,000 rink to the extent of 25 per cent. House-to-house canvassing, street dances, possibly a raffle or two, and other money-making projects are being planned to finance it.

Mr. Wilson asked the County Council to donate $500. But Council—complying with their rule that all money requests must be in at the January session—said they couldn't include the $500 in this year's estimates.

Instead, they recommended that the 1953 Council grant the $500 when the Community Centre is operating.

Ontario Municipalities Get Boost From Two New Bills

TORONTO, March 22—(CP—A boost to the finances of Ontario municipalities will be given by two bills introduced in the Legislature Friday by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar.

One bill implements a major change in policy announced by Premier Frost in the budget speech Thursday — that municipalities will receive grants in lieu of taxation on provincial property within their boundaries..

The bill does not give municipalities the right to levy taxes directly. "We have no power to tax crown properties," Mr. Dunbar said.

But provincial property such as buildings and offices would be assessed and grants paid on the basis of taxation on similar property.

The second bill, containing a series of amendments to the Assessment Act, contains two major provisions for added municipal revenue.

One, implementing a budget-speech announcement, provides for a new system of grants to mining municipalities which the government expects will give them an extra $480,000 next year. The second will make the property of municipal utility commissions liable for local-improvement charges and will make their land and buildings, used for retail trade, subject to the "equivalent" of municipal school and business taxes.

Another Assessment Act amendment permits municipal councils to exempt the land of any religious institution which is used solely for recreational purposes from municipal taxes, except for school taxes and local improvement charges.

A companion Bill to the one providing grants in lieu of municipal taxation on provincial property is expected to be introduced Monday. It will provide for similar grants in lieu of taxation on the property of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and local power commissions.

The first of the budget estimates will also come before the House Monday, together with some government Bills.

A debate on workmen's compensation developed yesterday during discussion on a Bill to extend compensation protection to citizens injured while helping police, to volunteer fire brigades, and to learners and apprentices. The Bill was approved.

Several members, however, urged the government to provide additional compensation payments to workmen injured in the past who now receive payments less than what is paid now.

Labor Minister Daley said he is "sympathetic" to the needs of such men. But employers paid the whole cost of compensation, he said, and it was not government policy to charge present employers for extra payments to workers injured in the past.

A report on pollution in the Spanish river at Espanola, in northern Ontario, was also tabled. The report, by a special committee of the Ontario Research Council, recommended that the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company at Espanola "under no circumstances" should discharge waste liquors into the river.

Twisting Winds

The American Red Cross reported it had ordered disaster workers "from all over the country" into the stricken areas.

At some points, hail, rain and fire added to the misery and hampered rescue operations. The power lines and communications also were knocked out, further hindering the grim chores of National Guardsmen, State police, and volunteer relief workers.

The Arkansas Gazette estimated 700 persons were injured in Arkansas, and hundreds more were reported hurt in the other three states.

Casualty Reports

Three deadly funnels of wind struck West Tennessee in the Dyersburg area, where 12 were reported dead. Other casualty reports in Tennessee had nine killed at Henderson, six at Moscow, and one each in Medina, Leach and Chesterfield.

The Mississippi highway patrol said seven persons were killed when a twister ripped through that small North Mississippi town.

This was by far the worst of many tornado disasters which have hit Arkansas through the years. The previous record death toll was 86 on June 5, 1916. The highest single day's death toll from tornadoes recorded is 689 killed in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana March 18, 1925.

Stacked Like Cordwood

Funeral homes were swamped. The dead were stacked like cordwood at Searcy. Hospitals likewise were jammed. Aid stations were set up in schools, churches, armories, and other buildings.

The first of the death-dealing twisters hit Dierks, a small lumber town about 110 miles southwest of Little Rock, about 2:25 p.m. (3:45 p.m. EST). Seven persons were killed there.

In addition to the dead in White County and Dierks, a breakdown of the known dead in Arkansas included:

North and west of Cotton Plant 10, Centre Point 5, England 8, Hazen 3, Carlisle 2, Marked Tree 2, Hickory Ridge 2, Wattensaw 1, and Trumann 1.

D. C. Phipps of Little Rock was driving a transport truck near Judsonia when the winds came. Suddenly a house [illegible] across the highway. Phipps [illegible] into the truck. Phipps [illegible] only scratches.

At Dyersburg, Tenn., a black funnel of wind snatched up the squad car of State Patrol Sgt. Joe Williamson and hurled it 300 yards. Williamson was killed.

At Judsonia, Ark., 15-year-old Glenda Fern Eadie went into town with her parents and two brothers to sell strawberry plants. They saw the storm bearing down on them and ran into a cafe for shelter.

The sturdy brick building was flattened. Glenda's mother, Mrs. W. E. Eadie, and her brother Ed were killed. Her father and brother Bobbie were pulled from the wreckage critically hurt.

After five hours of feverish digging in the ruins, rescuers reached Glenda Fern—dead.

At England, Ark., Nathan Davis said he saw the twister coming and ran outside and fell beside the car.

"The wind twisted me over and over but the storm went over the [illegible] and then it started tearing up the houses."

Black Bear Seen Vicinity Of Cobourg

COBOURG, March 22—(ENS)—The boys are oiling up their rifles and going hunting. Reports that a black bear has been seen south of Creighton Heights, which is only a few miles northeast of Cobourg, has got some of the hunters excited. Tracks of the bear were seen yesterday in the soft ground and it is recalled that last year in the same vicinity, two children saw a black bear and headed for home as fast as they could go. It is believed to be the same one whose footprints were seen yesterday. There have been persistent reports that another bear is holed up in a small woods just east of Port Hope near the shore of Lake Ontario.

Manitoba permits only sheep, swine and meats but no prairie cattle to enter its borders. The Alberta cattle men said this and B.C.'s embargo boosted those province's respective livestock breeders to the detriment of Alberta's.

They also claimed the two provinces could import just enough of either meat or livestock to prevent a scarcity but not lower prices.

Alberta's Agriculture Minister David Ure said B.C.'s change-about on its previous relaxation of the livestock embargo had "Balkanized the rest of Canada." He and Deputy Minister O. S. Longman flew to Victoria to talk over the embargo with B.C. officials.

In Vancouver, he hinted that Alberta might retaliate by refusing to ship oil through B.C.

Socialist Member Critical Famous Outfit's Officers

By E. S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (AP)—Britain's famous Brigade of Guards, boasting a brilliant record in several wars, has been accused of producing the world's worst officers.

Col. George Wigg, Labor member for Dudley, made the accusation during a House of Commons debate on army estimates. His blast came in the course of a discussion of a proposal to establish junior messes for non-commissioned officers in guards' regiments.

Wiggs, who worked his way through regular army ranks to colonel, saw a sinister move in the proposal.

"It means that the select few whose parents are wealthy enough or aristocratic enough to have influence, will never mix with the common herd when they arrive at the guards' depot."

Wigg, now 51, then let go with both barrels. "The standard of training in the Brigade of Guards has produced the best N.C.O.s and troops in the world. But it has also produced the worst officers—junior officers particularly.

"I say definitely," he added, "that this system of social segregation, of carefully hand-picking the selected few, will not end in the Brigade of Guards. It permeates the army."

The statement brought the colonel under withering fire from the Tory benches. Angry demands for withdrawal of the accusation went unheeded.

Maj. A. E. H. Legge-Bourke, Conservative member for the Isle of Ely, whose father died in action while serving with the Coldstream Guards in the First World War and himself a former Guardsman, described the attack as "outright effrontery."

He suggested Wigg might alter his opinion of the young officer type if he took the time to walk to Horse Guards parade to read the names on the war memorial there.

Another uproar followed when Wigg remarked: "If something is not done about the selection of officer material in all branches, we shall return to the situation where leadership in the army is not determined by efficiency but by the wealth and social standing of the parents of the officers."

Anthony Head, secretary of state for war, described as "rubbish" any suggestion that he was seeking to introduce a system whereby only the sons of millionaires could become officers.

"Col. Wigg has made a very unpleasant speech," he said. "If I thought what he said was typical of the British Army I should resign tonight."

W. Germans Eye Wistfully Trading With Soviet Zone

By LEON DENNEN.

BERLIN (NEA).—West Germans, with wistful eyes on the vast trading opportunities in the East, attach considerable significance to the Economic Conference scheduled to open in Moscow on April 3.

Ruhr industrialists and businessmen view the gathering in the Soviet capital as an attempt to "re-establish normal trade relations between the East and West."

But according to Soviet experts in Berlin—long a centre of illegal East-West trading—the Economic Conference is Moscow's current Number One psychological weapon in the hot-cold war.

"The conference bids well to eclipse the Kremlin's global peace campaign launched by the Stockholm Appeal to outlaw the atom bomb," West Berlin's Mayor Ernst Reuter told NEA Service.

U. S. and Allied officials, working to plug major leaks of strategic materials from Western Europe and Germany into Iron Curtain countries, see the Russians aiming at:

1. Circumventing Western, especially U. S., restrictions on East-West trade in strategic war goods.

2. Enlisting businessmen, industrial leaders, bankers, economists and merchants from the West in the violent Soviet anti-U. S. campaign.

3. Splitting the N.A.T.O. powers by exploiting the economic difficulties of some western industrial groups.

In the U.S., South America, Western Europe, India, Japan and the Middle East, the Kremlin's "Initiating Committees" are preparing the ground for the Moscow conference.

Originally, it was to have been an extension of the Cominform's World Peace Council, but this sponsorship was dropped to avoid intimidating non-Communists. New sponsor is an "International Initiating Committee" headed by Professor Oscar Lange, a former American citizen and ex-Polish Ambassador to the U.S.

"Having failed miserably to united the workers of the world, the Russians now seek to form a popular front of capitalists," a prominent western statesman told this correspondent.

The Russians need economic aid from the "capitalist" countries to supply the Communist armies in Korea, Indo-China and Burma and to keep up the intensive armament of the satellites.

The restrictions the U.S. imposed on trade in strategic goods with the Iron Curtain countries has already seriously affected the Soviet war industry. A slow-down in war production is reported by underground trade union sources from Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania and East Germany.

Moscow's satellites suffer from a drastic shortage of some raw materials, especially rare metals. Soviet "commercial" representatives offer fantastic prices for even small quantities on the black markets of Berlin, Vienna and Switzerland.

Major labor organizations in the U.S., Britain and France have already declined to swallow the Kremlin's latest bait of "more trade and easy profits."

Nor have the Russians made much headway with U.S. "capitalists." The world Communist press is giving considerable publicity to Beryl Lush, a Philadelphia importer of cotton linters from Russia, who said he will attend the conference. Lush described himself as a "capitalist" and said he hoped to enlist a "100 per cent capitalist delegation" to go to Moscow with him.

But so far no known American businessman, industrialist, or labor leader seems to be anxious "to secure personal contact" with the Russians.

The Kremlin, however, seems to have had much more success with industrial and business circles in Japan, South America and Western Europe.

The Paris Le Monde, which frequently speaks for France's heavy industry, said French industrialists and bankers are begging for a chance to go to Moscow.

In Britain there have been demands in Parliament and by former Labor Ministers that the government participate officially in the conference. Foreign Minister Anthony Eden announced that such participation would not be "favorable," but said private individuals were free to go to Moscow.

Similar demands have been made in the financial press of Western Europe from Paris to Stockholm.

Soviet "commercial" sources in Berlin say the Japanese have been invited to the conference as "guests of honor." Some Japanese insist they will attend. Premier Yishida is being pressured to send an official delegation.

SYMBOL OF TRADE BARRIERS between East and West are these trucks stalled by the Communist East German police at a border check point during a recent road tax dispute. Now Russia wants to break down the barriers to get her hands on badly-needed strategic war goods.

Make Test Last Year's Seed Before Spring Planting

By HENRY PREE, NEA

Most back-yard vegetable gardeners are generous souls and not only give away much of their harvest but also purchase each spring more seed than is needed.

Fortunately, old seed—at least that left from last season—may be used with success this year.

It is wise, however, to test it before sowing. Poor seeds cause failures and it is better to discard what you have rather than take a chance on untested seed.

Some kinds of seed germinate well after being kept several years but others such as pepper, onion, corn, lose their viability after two years. Testing seed is easily done by placing a given number, say 10, between two strips of blotting or soft white paper and inserting in a pan or flat dish of moist sand.

If the sand is kept moist and warm for several days, possibly a week, the best of the seeds will sprout. By counting the number of sprouted seeds the gardener can determine the percentage of germination.

With most vegetables, seven out of each 10 seeds is a splendid average and indicates that your seed may be sown with safety.

A very simple method is to place a wet blotting paper in a saucer, place the 10 seeds on it and cover by inverting a glass tumbler. This tumbler conserves moisture and in three or four days the fertile seeds will sprout.

By this method one can watch the seeds as they burst open and show signs of life. Seed testing must be done in a warm room where the temperature is more or less regular.

While some seeds, under specialized conditions, will hold their germinating qualities for many years, the average period is rather short. Wheat seed has been known to retain its viability for 30 years, but the stories that seeds removed from Egyptian tombs retained their power to germinate are not true.

Seeds of lettuce, peas, onion, beet, early cabbage and a couple of other vegetables may be sown as soon as the soil in the garden is ready, since they will germinate when the thermometer stands at 50 degrees. Tomato, pepper, corn, beets, melon and similar seed, however, will rot in the ground if sown before the earth and the air have really warmed up.

Gardening Questions

Q—Should one submerge house plants to the depth of the pot when giving them their weekly bath?

—B. C.

A—Yes—but make certain that the water is lukewarm. When bubbles cease rising from the soil remove the pot and stand aside to drain before replacing in the window.

This is a simple easy and fairly accurate way to tell what percentage of your last year's seeds are still good.

No Plums For Peterborough

Toronto papers have headlined the Ontario Budget as a grand provider of special financial aid to municipalities. It is true that the grants payable to municipalities and local agencies for education, roads, hospitals and other purposes will amount to an estimated $119 million for 1952-53 and that this is $19 million higher than last year. But this increase is due chiefly to increased school populations, hospital space and the like. The basis of the grants has not been widened; the proportion of the costs which the Province shares has not increased above last year. The very fact that the total money to be received from the Province for these services is increasing emphasizes what a body like the Board of Education already knows: that its share of the costs of increased school population and staffs likewise is also rising. Thus the Board of Education's estimates for the coming year are the greatest they have ever been. If the Province's grants were helpfully increased to take more of the load off city tax rates, why would the Council have to be budgeting for a mill rate nine or ten points higher than last year?

* * *

Peterborough will benefit somewhat from the increased grants for roads (already announced; already calculated in the city budget). It will benefit by a few thousand dollars from the special grant of $1½ million to be shared by all general hospitals in the Province. Beyond these two changes, there is little additional financial help for Peterborough. As we said editorially two days ago, the budget holds disappointingly little relief for this city.

* * *

Toronto is getting a few plums, and that is a reason that its newspaper headlines crowed about the budget's special aid to municipalities. Toronto is getting an extra half million dollars or perhaps much more from the new policy of permitting municipal taxation of provincial properties. The Province has vast office and business holdings in Toronto (the Parliament Buildings, the headquarters of the Liquor Control Board, of the Ontario Hydro; of a dozen special branches of government). The tax yield to Toronto on these properties will be significant. The only building that the Province owns in Peterborough is the Normal School, and the new policy excludes educational buildings. Other properties which the Province uses in Peterborough are rented. Therefore, Peterborough will not benefit one cent from the decision to pay local taxes on provincial properties in municipalities.

* * *

So it is that the Peterborough Council, fighting off a mill rate of 65, and hoping that the Budget would assist them—in fact, delaying their final figuring until the Budget was brought in—must now strike the high rate. No significant additional help came from the Budget.

Reputations Abroad Politically Useless At Home?

General Eisenhower is reported to be considering giving up his European command and returning to the U.S.A. to campaign actively for the presidency. What are his chances of being elected? If he does not return to campaign he may not even get the Republican nomination. If he does return, his nomination is pretty certain. Will it send him to the White House?

son is perhaps the best-known Canadian figure in international councils. Revered as he was abroad, President Roosevelt did not keep the presidency because of the breadth of his action in foreign matters. He kept his political fences in good repair at home, and won elections despite, not because of, his world statesmanship.

General Eisenhower has no political fences at all. And when voters get down to the ballot it is the man as he acts and is known in his own land, and not the international figure, for whom they vote. Despite the brilliance of General Eisenhower's reputation, none of it is owing to radiations from his actions within the American political home scene. He has no domestic record whatsoever. Lacking such a record, and lacking political fences, General Eisenhower must go back to the U.S.A., quit his military career and get on with a rapid job of campaigning, if the Republicans are to succeed in putting him into the White House. They may try to do it without the central actor, but it will be a hollow and ineffective campaign. An international reputation reverberates like a drum, but a drum does not carry the tune.

The Shakespeare Industry

With some astonishment we read that the season of Shakespearean plays at the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-upon-Avon has already begun and that the infrequently presented Coriolanus is to be the Birthday Play this year. The time is not very far past when the annual festival did not begin until Shakespeare's birthday, April 23, and did not continue after the end of August; during that time it was always possible to get a seat in the theatre, and only the most popular plays were presented. Now the season begins in mid-March and continues until November, and seats have to be booked many weeks ahead, for every performance is sold out.

This popularity brings a great deal of money to Stratford. We do not know how large that town's population is at present, but we think it would be moderate to say that fully one-third of them live directly off their great fellow-townsman, William Shakespeare. They sell copies of his plays, images and pictures of him of every possible kind, and they feed, house and wait upon the hundreds of thousands of visitors who come to the town because of him.

Nor is the Shakespeare Industry—if we may be permitted to call it that—confined to Stratford. Less than a fortnight ago a collection of early editions of Shakepeare's plays was sold in New York for a sum which is a secret, but which it is admitted is well over a million dollars. The books belonged to Dr. A. S. Rosenbach, the eminent book dealer, and the buyer was Dr. Martin Bodmer, of Geneva, Switzerland. Dr. Bodmer now owns the finest private collection of Shakespeareana in Europe.

Shakespeare, who was a good man of business, would be interested if he knew how many people were living off him today. He might even be a little resentful that there is no means by which he can get a proportion of the prosperity for which he is directly responsible. The causes of that prosperity are not easy to determine. A First Folio of Shakepeare's plays today fetches a price in the hundreds of thousands of dollars; a first quarto of Much Ado About Nothing brings about $21,000. And these are books which Shakespeare never touched; a real memento of the man—his nightcap, or a doublet, or his inkwell—would fetch an astronomical sum.

His grave does bring in a great deal of money, and there is something unpleasing about visiting it in Holy Trinity Church at Stratford. No just person will deny that it costs money to maintain a church which thousands of people visit every year, and no just person would refuse to give money for that purpose. But it goes against the grain to be, in fact, charged admission to a church, in order to look at the tomb of a great man. But that is part of the Shakespeare Industry.

THE COMPLETE SHORT STORIES OF W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM. (3 Vols., British Book Service)
THE WRITER'S POINT OF VIEW by Somerset Maugham (MacMillan)

ONE VOLUME OF Mr. Maugham's short stories has already been mentioned in this column. Today let us consider the three volumes which complete the set. Not that a great deal remains to be said; having made it plain that he likes Mr. Maugham's stories very much, the reviewer can do little more. But if we consider the short stories in the light of what Mr. Maugham has said in his address to the National Book League, which MacMillans have printed, we may be able to explain in some measure why the stories are the way they are, and why they appeal to so many people.

For these stories do appeal, in a most extraordinary way. Three or four of them have been told to us by fairly honest people as personal experiences; that means that Mr. Maugham has created legends, which is a very great feat. They are immensely popular, and their popularity ranges from the highbrows to those readers who confess that they "like a good yarn once in a while" as though admitting to some weakening addiction. But highbrow critics have particular charges against them, which we may consider briefly.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS SAID THAT they are cynical. This is because a great many of them deal with people whose behaviour is, in one way or another, shabby. But as Maugham himself explains, the world is full of good people, and ordinary people, but what they do is not the stuff of fiction. It is the people who depart from ordinary behaviour who provide the raw material of the story teller. And it may be said that virtually anyone who, over a professional life of fifty years, writes about people as he finds them will be accused of cynicism. People who do not find Maugham comfy and snuggly enough for their taste should turn their attention to a less honest author.

THERE ARE OTHERS, of course, who say that Maugham is not honest enough. They say that his stories are too pat, too complete in themselves, to be good art. It is the fashion nowadays to write stories of "mood", which tell no tale, but attempt rather to evoke in the reader a mood or atmosphere. Almost invariably it is a gloomy and unpleasant mood. Maugham adheres to the age-old belief that a story should have a beginning, a middle and an end.

Still other critics attack him as a stylist. His writing, they say, is flat and undistinguished. This is true in some measure, but it is also true that his style is admirably suited to his subjects and what he chooses to say about them. It is somewhat ungrateful to attack a man because he does not go in for fine writing. His tone is that of the well-bred, unemotional reporter of what he knows.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE ARE THOSE who complain that Maugham is bitter about "good" people, and particularly missionaries in the Far East. Mr. Maugham has travelled very widely in the Far East, and his experience of people there is in most cases greater than that of his critics.

And finally there are those who say that real artists never make money: Mr. Maugham has made a great deal of money: ergo, Mr. Maugham is not a real artist. Let these logicians examine the careers of Shakespeare, Dickens, Thackeray, Anthony Trollope and Thomas Mann.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHAT DOES MR. MAUGHAM himself have to say about the duties of a writer? Here are his words: "Let us consider for a moment what are the qualities a novel should have in order to afford the reader the intelligent pleasure he has the right to demand. It should have a coherent and probable story, a variety of plausible incidents, characters that are living and freshly observed, and natural dialogue. It should be written in a style that is suitable to the matter. If the novelist can do that he has done all that should be asked of him. His business is to please, not to instruct". Mr. Maugham pleases, and his three volumes of short stories are a mine of pleasure

FANCIES AND GOODNIGHTS, by John Collier (Doubleday)

JOHN COLLIER SPECIALIZES in fantasy, and he successfully rescues that delightful department of writing from the bloodless, the perverse, and nastily childish and the cute. He is master in the creation of the humorous but frightening bugaboo. There are those who admire the fantasies and ghost stories of M. R. James and Arthur Machen, and pretend that they are frightened by them; neither of these writers has ever raised gooseflesh on me, but Collier sends me under the bedclothes every time. He knows how to be frightening.

He does not pile on the agony. He keeps clear of screaming skulls and strange noises in the wainscot. But he can give ordinary and credible at once. His success, if I may venture a guess at his secret, lies in this: most writers of fantasy and ghost stories seek to get as far as possible from life, but Collier's most successful flights are those in which he keeps closest to life. I shall not make any clumsy attempt to describe his stories in detail; I shall be content with saying that the one called "Evening Primrose" which describes a group of people, defeated by life, who take refuge in a large department store, is one of the most successful flights of fantasy that I have ever read—and I am an avid reader of fantastic and ghostly tales. I am happy to recommend this book highly to anyone who shares my taste for tales of the uncanny.

LET TODAY'S QUOTATION be from Somerset Maugham's lecture, referred to above: "Many will object that to read merely for pleasure is nothing but what in recent years has come to be disparagingly known as escapism. It is. I don't know what bright critic conceived the idea expressed in that word, but it was seized upon by many people who should have known better and for some time to describe a book as escapist was roundly to condemn it. You will see the word used by the less intelligent reviewers to whom it has never occurred that all literature is escapist. In fact that is its charm.

Do we read Shakespeare's Sonnets or Keat's Odes for anything but the delight they give us? Do we read the novels of dear Jane Austen for any other reason? We may agree with the poet who said that life was real and life was earnest, but it has its lighter moments and there is no reason why we should not take advantage of them. I know no better way of doing this than by reading,

Alberta Lights The Cultural Fire

(CALGARY HERALD)

IT'S a long and amazing jump from Plato's olive grove of Academe to the Alberta Academy, but it has been done and we are rather glad it has.

Academies aren't usually to be found in what we fondly call the wild and rugged prairies. They are usually associated with centres of great culture and sophistication, whether they be among the splendours of Athens or in the glittering salons of Paris. An Academy in Alberta! We can just hear the chortles in Bohemian Toronto or Beaux Arty Montreal. Culture for the Cowboys, believe it or not!

We hope any such uncalled-for remarks by artists and "thinkers" in other less civilized parts won't discourage our government in its high purpose. That aim, according to a bill introduced into the legislature, is to establish an academy in Alberta, modelled in part after the Academie Francaise, to encourage cultural development by honoring creative achievements in the arts and humanities.

Premier Manning, acting as Cardinal Richelieu did three hundred years ago, is giving royal encouragement to the struggling writers, artists, and musicians of his domain. Quite logically he has said that if the significant achievements of Alberta's farmers can be recognized with Master Farmer titles, then the people who cultivate the province's cultural fields ought to be similarly honoured. This is the sort of thing we would have thought the federal government might have instituted long ago for the whole country. But, apparently, it takes the "hayseed" folks to start it.

Right off the bat we would like to say to the provincially appointed electors, when they are finally named, that some special niche should be kept open to honour the departed heroes of culture. And we would like to nominate to the first post of honour, Robert Edwards, writer, editor, raconteur and bon vivant, who contributed immeasurably to cultural development. With Bob to set the ball rolling ,this Academy could never be accused of stuffiness and literary conservatism.

Stuffiness has been the bane of academies—with the fine exception of Plato's—in every country in which they have been established as institutions to honour and encourage the arts. The Acadamie Francaise was singularly perceptive in ignoring such master craftsmen as Moliere, Decartes, Rousseau, Diderot, Balzac, Flaubert and Zola,

Is Crime Condoned In Public Service?

(Montreal Star)

A little while ago a number of Immigration Department employees were fired or assisting the illegal entry of immigrants to Canada. Not one of them was prosecuted, although their actions must have been an offence under the law or a punishable breach of public trust. The ease with which they were let down has become all too common. We are getting into the bad habit of thinking that public service confers immunity from prosecution.

Today another instance is reported. The National Revenue Department says it has fired five employes for misconduct and let out 227 others for failing to meet rating qualifications.

What kind of misconduct? Was it criminal? Did they get away, or try to get away, with public funds? We don't know; but surely the Government or someone should give the public more information than this. And if the misconduct was of a criminal nature the dismissed public servants should be prosecuted.

Decline Of The Horse

(Lethbridge Herald)

Alberta marked the peak of its horse population in 1921. The census showed we had 916,500 horses on farms and ranches. Today there are only 272,100 head. That means that horses have disappeared in the past 30 years at the rate of 21,500 head yearly.

Last year this disappearance was speeded up. There were 302,000 horses in December, 1950, against 272,000 in December, a year later. That is a loss of 30,000 head. Some were slaughtered for horsemeat, a lot died of old age, and there were very few replacements. It is estimated that only some 6,000 colts are born each year which will not make up for the various forms of mortality in the horse population.

In 1921, when our horse population was at its peak, Alberta farmers were cultivating some 11,500,000 acres of arable land. Last year it was 20,000,000 acres. The fall in horse population and the rise in cultivated acreage tells the tale of how horse power on the hoof has been replaced by mechanized horse

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts: I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God . . . Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? ye are even my witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any (Isa. 44: 6, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness . . . Behold, I will make thee a new sharp threshing instrument having teeth: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff. Thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them: and thou shalt rejoice in the Lord, and shalt glory in the Holy One of Israel. (Isa. 41: 10, 15, 16.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is . . . .

O Lord, the hope of Israel, all that forsake thee shall be ashamed, and they that depart from me shall be written in the earth, because they have forsaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters . . . Behold, they say unto me, Where is the word of the Lord?

Fame earned beyond the native land, and, although household words at home, great names whose brightness is a reflection of exploits afar, have often lost their lustre when applied to domestic politics. Their potency seems to vanish at elections unless invigorated from national springs.

Prime Minister Churchill was rejected by the voters in 1945, when he was at the very pinnacle of international fame and secure in the esteem of his fellow-countrymen. Field Marshal Smuts was defeated in South Africa. Schumann of France and Van Zeeland of Belgium were unable to maintain governments, despite their international reputations. Anthony Eden, admired at home and abroad for his foreign policies and statesmanship, seems to be losing his grasp as potential Prime Minister to a new star, R. A. P.C.I. English Master Earle Walked With A Browning And Bested Sir George Ross

By RICHARD F. CHOATE
PART 2

The Peterborough Earles, father and son, (Barton and A. P. Earle, Montreal financier) though differing in temper and genius, each contributed valuably to the life of their time. In our day when enquiring scientists are concerning themselves more and more with the phenomena of "The Field" it will perhaps not be an over-straining of analogy to remind ourselves that the radiations of Barton Earle's scholarship (which had little to do with Finance) exerted a quickening influence on the lives of people far from Peterborough. Speaking from personal experience, the writer, for one, is willing to affirm that the waves of thought which he set in motion in his teaching days are still rolling on in communities of children, even grandchildren, of his original pupils. His was the "Field" of literary inquiry and culture, perhaps just as important as that of finance—who shall say?

There was perhaps a good deal of logic in Mr. Earle's mode of thought. For him as a teacher there was no five-hour day or five-day week. He was interested in the ideas of his pupils and they in his. Class-room hours mattered little. Nothing so delighted him as to stop on a street corner, anywhere, anytime, and discuss with any inquiring pupil (or indeed any inquiring person) a Shakespearean passage in need of elucidation. Of the Elizabethan dramatists he had a profound knowledge and understanding, gained at the cost of midnight oil. His memory was stupendous. Beginning almost anywhere in Shakespeare, Ben Jonson or the others, he would recite extempore at almost any length.

INFANT JOY

"I have no name:
I am but two days old."
What shall I call thee?
"I happy am,
Joy is my name."
Sweet joy befall thee!

Pretty joy!
Sweet joy but two days old
Sweet joy I call thee:
Thou dost smile,
I sing the while,
Sweet joy befall thee!

William Blake.

And what an unforgettable experience it was to hear him read! Small wonder that he was called upon not infrequently to read the Lessons at Anglican services. A swarm of memories return to the writer of the long evenings of a winter in Toronto when the retired English master read again through the whole range of Shakespeare, pausing ever and anon to interpolate the best of the critical comment and adding some of his own.

Not A Narrow Pedagogue

Never a pedagogue in the narrow academic sense, Barton Earle was rigorous and unsparing in self-examination, or even self-flagellation. In later years he was wont to remark whimsically: "Sometimes I am almost persuaded that I should be put to death for the harm I have done in thirty years of teaching." In such a judgment none of his old pupils would have concurred. Here one may remark without hyperbole that they would, instead, not improbably have been fashioning for him a crown of laurel. Between this teacher and his pupils there was clearly a nexus of sympathetic understanding which was of the spirit and not merely of the intellect and which was never disturbed by intrusion of the pedantic.

In witness whereof one may recall the delightful meetings of the Browning Club held about 1908 when a number of Peterborough women prevailed upon Mr. Earle to prepare and present to them a series of expository papers upon the work of a poet some of whose nobler passages are so often referred to as "obscure." I have before me the text of his addresses, clipped from The Examiner which published them at the time. In his teaching days he wrote and published a small book of Critical Notes on Grey's Elegy which was widely used in the schools.

Mr. Earle was not over-fond of dictionaries. He refrained from using them on occasions in which he believed they would confuse rather than clarify thought. Nor did he look with favor on a pedantic drilling in grammatical rules. Good speech was a concomitant of good association. After a life-time of teaching English he was wont to affirm that he could teach all the English grammar that was necessary in 12 lessons of one hour each.

In the hey-day of his teaching career, Barton Earle who then was of powerful physique and wore a flowing beard, was never a laggard when he believed that a lusty lance was needed to uphold the Rights of the Spirit in community affairs.

On Political Platform

In the heat of one political campaign when a local speaker was required to face the Hon. George W. (later Sir George) Ross on the platform in the Old Opera House, Barton Earle was drafted into service. Ross, who was Minister of Education and later Premier of Ontario, was of top rank as a debater in the Legislature. The passage-at-arms was long remembered locally, Mr. Earle, who had been given no time to prepare an address, was nevertheless quite capable of taking the verbal tilt literally "in his stride", since it was his wont in his most impressive moments to walk slowly and firmly to and fro, employing no notes and few gestures. It was generally conceded that the local speaker, who was at his best in impromptu intellectual combat, so acquitted himself as to leave no margin of honors for the formidable, eloquent Ross.

In his later years, when his attention turned to Browning as a philosophic and religious teacher, Mr. Earle was seldom without a copy of the poet's works in his pocket. Meeting him in the street, one was sure to be invited into the nearest coffee shop or hotel lobby to discuss some newly-discovered passage which challenged speculative thought. Almost to the end his literary enthusiasms broadened though they never violated the perspectives of an ordered mind.

For none had a keener appreciation than Barton Earle of the "humorous sense of disproportion in the labors of devoted scholarship to its results", that was discerned by the beloved Browning at the funeral of his old Grammarian.

In mellow twilight years, there was no hardening of academic arteries. The Sometime Teacher was of a piece with the joyous Perennial Student, constantly refreshed by draughts at the Fountain of Perpetual Literary Youth.

The winds whispering through the trees of Armour and Smithtown hills and the mid-town parks surely will provide a fitting requiem for those who maintained well the traditions of the earlier family life in Peterborough.

(ED. NOTE: Through an inadvertence, it was mistakenly stated in the headline of last week's instalment of this article: "One Earle a Financier, Another Lost Millions of Dollars". On Tuesday she celebrates her 92nd birthday. The boy in the picture is P. G. Jameson, her son, now a retired bank manager and living at his paternal home. The girl, now deceased, was a daughter of Mrs. Jameson. Her husband, Francis J., right, outside the fence, has been dead for many years. He was in the employ of The Examiner. The present Jameson brick house had its front changed. The house to the left of the Jameson brick house still stands, but it has been moved back from the site it occupied before 1900. The sidewalk has been moved outside the young trees in the picture—trees now of considerable stature. The big tree, right in the photograph, behind the walk, is a locust and still gives pleasant shade to the home.

Axe-Slayer, 17, Hanged For Norwood Old Maid's Murder

By DON SWAIN

The hanging of 17-year-old Robert Henderson in the court yard of the county jail on June 30, 1910, ended a sensational murder story that made headlines in Peterborough 42 years ago.

At 7 a.m., that morning, Henderson walked calmly and firmly up the ten-foot ramp to the gallows. At 7.02, hangman Ellis tripped the trapdoor that sent Henderson to his death for the brutal axe murder of Miss Margaret McPherson.

For six months, the murder of the 77-year-old woman and Henderson's trial occupied the interest of district residents who followed the story.

Asked For Food

Shortly before noon on January 28, a well-dressed young man, wearing a dark overcoat, brown scarf and tan shoes knocked at the door of the McPherson sisters who lived alone two miles east of Norwood on the Norwood-Havelock road. He asked for something to eat. Both women were somewhat apprehensive of admitting a stranger, but their reluctance to turn away anyone asking for food on such a cold winter day, overcame their suspicions and they let him in.

After he had eaten a lunch, the man offered to split some wood to pay for it. He was told there was no wood to be split, and gave the women ten cents as he left.

A few minutes later, the sisters were still at the table, finishing their dinner when the same man returned. They saw him running as he approached the house. An axe was leaning against the wall of the house and he picked it up as he rushed into the house.

One of the sisters screamed. The man raised the axe and struck the elder sister, Margaret, with the axe. She fell to the floor, fatally injured. He then wheeled, and attempted to strike the other sister, Susan. She tried to ward off the blow with her arm, but the axe struck her a glancing blow on the head. Then the man fled.

Went For Help

There were no houses nearby, and Susan McPherson struggled to the home of another sister, Mrs. N. Graham, a quarter of a mile away.

A niece of the injured sisters relayed the news to a neighbor, John Rorabeck. Mr. Rorabeck sent a hired man to Norwood to obtain aid, and Mr. Rorabeck, and two neighbors, Richard Leifer and James Miller, started in pursuit of the attacker.

Footprints in the snow, led the three pursuers from the McPherson sisters' home to the railway tracks, and then in the direction of Havelock.

From this point the story of the pursuit and capture of the man who turned out to be Robert Henderson reads like a wild west thriller with a railway handcar in place of the posse being mounted on horses.

Saw Man

Henderson had a good head start. However, before the three men chasing him had gone far along the right-of-way, they met a gang of railway workers. These men remembered seeing a man answering Henderson's description go by a short time before, and from there the pursuers pumping a handcar.

As they neared Havelock, they saw their quarry a short distance ahead. It was an unequal chase, and as the handcar closed the distance, the man ran away from the track towards the woods. The men leaped off and ran after him.

As they closed in, the man pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to shoot. But the men continued to close in on him, as he stumbled through the deep snow. By this time, the chase had led to the outskirts of Havelock.

Constable Fred Bennett of Havelock had been notified by telegraph from Norwood that the man was headed toward the village, and constable Bennett arrived as Henderson wallowed in snow up to his knees.

"Don't shoot, I give in," he told constable Fred Bennett as he lowered his .32 calibre revolver without firing it.

Wrong Shells

It was not until the preliminary hearing in Norwood on March 10, before Magistrate Edmison that the reason why Henderson did not shoot at his pursuers to avoid capture became evident. The magistrate pointed out that the gun was loaded with rim-firing cartridges, while it was designed to fire centre-fire shells. Consequently, the hammer would not explode the cartridges.

When he was taken into custody, Henderson immediately asked about the women he had attacked. He admitted attacking them, and said his motive was robbery. He said he believed that because they appeared to be so poor, they must be misers and have money hidden in the house.

Both sister were critically injured by the axe blows, and it was feared for a time that both would die. On February 20, the elder sister, Margaret, died.

Norwood town hall was filled with curious spectators for the coroner's inquest on March 3. Everyone was anxious to see Henderson, but he did not appear. After hearing the evidence of Dr. A. H. Crawford of Havelock and Dr. A. M. McLelland of Peterborough who performed the post mortem, the coroner's jury deliberated for 15 minutes and returned a verdict that Miss McPherson had died as a result of an axe blow.

Murder Charged

Henderson, who had been on an assault charge, was charged with murder. The following Thursday, he was given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Edmison in Norwood.

The courtroom was jammed, but the spectators were disappointed. Instead of a tough-looking criminal, they saw only a boy of 17, and there was nothing about his appearance to suggest a vicious criminal.

F. D. Kerr, Q.C., now senior member of the Peterborough County Bar Association, defended Henderson, although Henderson had no money to pay for his defence.

The only new evidence introduced at the preliminary hearing was that of George Parcels, who testified he saw Henderson fleeing from the McPherson sisters' home the day they were attacked.

Magistrate Edmison committed Henderson for trial at the spring assizes in Peterborough which opened on March 29, before Mr. Justice Riddell.

Two Toronto specialists on mental illnesses termed Henderson a "high grade imbecile." They said he was "void of moral sense," but not insane.

Sister Testifies

By the time the trial opened, Susan McPherson had recovered sufficiently to testify, and she repeated the story of the attack, and identified Henderson as the man who struck her sister and herself with the axe.

On Wednesday, April 6, the trial ended. Mr. Kerr directed an eloquent plea to the jury to acquit Henderson on the grounds of insanity.

Crown prosecutor E. A. Duvernet, K.C., did not address the jury.

At 4.55 that afternoon, the jury retired. One hour and 21 minutes later, at 6.15, the jury returned an jury foreman Robert Cotterell announced the verdict, "Guilty." The jury added a strong plea for mercy.

When Mr. Justice Riddell ordered Henderson to stand up and sentenced him to hang on June 23, Henderson displayed the same stoic indifference he had maintained throughout his imprisonment and trial.

His Lordship complimented the jury on reaching an honest verdict and assured them that their recommendation of mercy would be passed on to higher authorities with a recommendation of his own.

After passing sentence, His Lordship commented on the evidence of insanity and mental instability in the Henderson family which had been introduced. "If all the man's ancestors from Noah down had been insane, it does not render him so" said Mr. Justice Riddell.

Skilfull Defence

He praised Mr. Kerr highly for his "skilful defence of Henderson and for defending him without payment."

Mr. Kerr carried Henderson's case to the federal cabinet. He did not succeed in getting the sentence commuted but he did obtain a temporary stay of execution to appeal the conviction.

On June 23, the court of appeals in Toronto refused to grant Mr. Kerr's request for a new trial. The federal Department of Justice refused to interfere, and on June 30, the sentence was carried out.

Jail officials and a few newspapermen were the only spectators who witnessed the execution.

The Rev. Canon Davidson, then rector of St. John's Anglican Church, who had visited Henderson frequently while he awaited execution was one of those present. He obtained special permission from the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario to have Henderson buried in Little Lake Cemetery instead of the jail yard as was customary in the case of anyone hanged for murder.

Later that morning, Canon Davidson conducted a burial service for Henderson at Little Lake Cemetery.

Today, more than 40 years later, older residents still recall the macabre story of the murder of Margaret McPherson. The corner where the McPherson sisters lived between Norwood and Havelock (now Highway 7) is still known as the Old Maids' Corners. The mention of the name to youngsters and newcomers to the district usually brings up the origin of the name and anyone who is familiar with the event which burned itself in their memory, can usually be coaxed into relating the story of the 17-year-old English steamfitter Robert Henderson who came to Canada in May, 1909, and ended his life on the gallows a month and a year later.

VARIOUS USES OF TAILS, AND OTHER PARTS

OX TAILS make an excellent Stew:— Take three tails, divide them at the joints, or, if sawed through the bones, all the better extract will be obtained; place them in a saucepan, and cover them with water; set them upon the fire to stew gently, and clear the scum as it rises; when it boils, put in a little salt, half a teaspoonful of white pepper, and half that quantity of cayenne; eight or ten cloves stuck in two small onions, two large or four small carrots, and a good sized bunch of parsley. Let it stew very gently, until the meat is tender, which will take three hours; then strain the gravy from the meat, thicken it, and serve with the tails in a tureen. When the gravy has been thickened, the vegetables may be returned to it or not, according to taste, and it may be sent to table, poured over the tails, or in a separate tureen.

Famous Deaths—II

Hamlet

Hamlet: I am dead, Horatio. Wretched queen, adieu!
You that look pale and tremble at this chance,
That are but mutes or audience to this act,
Had I but time—as this fell sergeant, death,
Is strict in his arrest—O, I could tell you—
But let it be. Horatio, I am dead;
Thou livest; report me and my cause aright
To the unsatisfied.
Horatio: Never believe it:
I am more antique Roman than a Dane:
Hamlet: As thou'rt a man,
Give me the cup; let go; by heaven, I'll have't.
O good Horatio, what a wounded name,
Things standing thus unknown, shall live behind me!
If thou didst ever hold me in thy heart,
Absent thee from felicity a while,
And in this harsh world draw thy breath in pain;
To tell my story.
(March afar off, and shot within)
What warlike noise is this?
Osric: Young Fortinbras, with conquest come from Poland,
To the ambassadors of England gives
This warlike volley.
Hamlet: O, I die Horatio
The potent poison quite o'er-crows my spirit:
I cannot live to hear the news from England;
But I do prophesy the election lights
On Fortinbras: He has my dying voice;
So tell him, with the occurrents, more and less,
Which have solicited. The rest is silence.
(Dies)
Horatio: Now cracks a noble heart. Good night, sweet prince,
And flights of angels sing thee to thy rest!

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

TORONTO: When my High Caliph ordered me this week to do a three-day stretch in Babylon-on-the-Don I found the sentence mighty harsh. The rush and roar gave me such headaches and the jittery lighting made my eyes so red that friends art apt to take my physical beating the wrong way. Gosh, folks live in tall houses up here!

All I did was allow myself to be swept along by hurrying crowds all going one way, to the Coliseum. Here the fifth annual Canadian National Sportsmen's Show was in full swing and a more fitting place for a bashful backwoodsman could hardly be found. Acres of things that he understands and of the utmost entertainment to the thousands of attending city slickers as well.

This Bazaar of the Great Open Spaces, this Fishermen's Fair, is the greatest and most complete affair of its kind on the Continent. Thousands of Americans this year converged on Toronto to see what a super-duper outdoor extravaganza is like. It held them, and everyone else, bug-eyed.

Peterburians cannot but help bust their vest buttons with pride at the amazing display of goods from their natives city. Familiar home manufacturing slogans and products caught their eyes at every turn.

Among the hundreds of boats from Mahone Bay, N.S., to Penetanguishene, Peterborough-made products predominated in craftsmanship and numbers. Canoes, skiffs, outboard boats and dinghies. Tom Hendry, Jack Richardson and Bill Hardwick smiled happily at sales prospects, though their feet, they said, were worn down to their ankles. Some nice craft from Lakefield, too.

In the maze of the mechanical section city-built outboard motors sparkled on stands everywhere or worked with watch-like precision in cutaway models. Outboard Mariners Tremblay, Madden and Maguire rubbed their hands with glee at the prospect of top summer sales. They also cemented dealer relations by feeding 150 of them at a hotel banquet on Tuesday; Travel and Publicity Minister, the Hon. Louis Cecile, was guest speaker.

Canada's largest trailer manufacturer, Harry McGinness, had three of his fine models on the floor and hundreds of show visitors each hour travelled through them from end to end and oh-ed and ahed at their appointments.

Many district Lands and Forests men were on hand to dispense information at the department's splendid wildlife display. Tank fish, wild fowl and small animals were constant crowd stoppers.

Program and Choongam

The whirlwind tank and stage show, emceed by Tommy McClure, was a spellbinder. Tops for my money, not only because he is a home-towner, is Herb Cardwell of Wallace's Point and his two boys, George and Robert. They skimmed through about 15 minutes crack trick canoeing to the thundering applause from the packed auditorium. A singing crow, log burlers, canoe tilters, precision swimmers, a pretty bait caster, trained dogs and vaudeville acts paced along quickly to climax with the antics of Sharkey the seal.

The acid test of any show comes from the frank opinions of hard-bitten publicity and newspapermen. In random remarks—

Harry Savage said: "The best yet."

John Boyd said: "What picture angles."

Ketch Ketchison said: "Nothing like it anywhere."

Shep Sheppard said: "Gives Montreal something to shoot at, I can tell you."

Pete McGillen: "Absolutely the best in North America."

Behind the Booths

. . . Asked how she liked the show, Awakening Dawn, 7, Six Nations Indian dancer from Brantford, snapped her bubble gum and replied, "It's okay." . . . The Hielan' Man J. J. Christie, Scot newspaperman turned importer, showed me some wonderful Old Country salmon flies that would be just the lure for our fish types. On all his splendid supply of Scotch goods he pays duty EXCEPT on bagpipes; they are classed as an instrument of war . . . Manufacturers and distributors offered every conceivable product for life and recreation in the outdoors EXCEPT boomerangs. The art of throwing these Australian hunting sticks has become very popular in the States . . . I would recommend that the Vacation Guide section of the Peterborough Examiner have a booth at the Show next year; they are missing a big bet. Feel somehow, it will be there in '53 . . . Harry Florence is going to razz his not-so-hot fishing pals this year. I saw him buying a sportsmen's crying towel . . . While doing a couple of reporting stunts at the Legislature was amused to see the Hon. Harold rise to the bait when someone referred to Peterborough as "some little Indian reservation east of Toronto." By looking over the Sportsmen's Show I would say that our city has come a long way out of the woods.

Kingston Goalie Senior "B" Says O.H.A. President And Eagles Out For Season

By Cec Perdue

The Peterborough Eagles are definitely through playing hockey for the rest of this season, President Jack Roxburgh of the O.H.A. stated last night. He phoned this writer from his home in Simcoe to explain why Eagles were suspended and why their protest on Kingston's use of Goalie Sonny MacDonald is not being considered. The matter of Eagles' suspension will be dealt with later at an O.H.A. meeting.

"MacDonald definitely was a senior "B" player in the Maritimes this season," Mr. Roxburgh said. "He was properly transferred from that branch to this and I okeyed him as a replacement for Dougall of Kingston when that player produced a doctor's certificate showing he was unable to play. The secretary of the Maritimes hockey association, Charles Campbell, wired us that MacDonald was a senior "B" goalie.

Checked Again

"Since the recent criticism of the O.H.A. by Mr. McGillis of the Eagles and by the press in Toronto and Peterborough, I phoned Mr. Campbel and said I had to be certain whether MacDonald was a senior 'A' or 'B' player, as we had a protest on it. Campbell again stated MacDonald was senior 'B' and explained that the Maritimes permit the winning teams in senior 'B' groups to go after the Allan Cup against 'A' teams, without losing their rating. MacDonald played for St. John Beavers, a senior 'B' industrial team which won out and then went against the senior 'A' St. Francis Xavier club in Allan Cup playdowns. St. Francis won in straight games."

The O.H.A. president went on to say that his association had tried that last year, the top team in each senior 'B' grouping going after the Allan Cup. The Petes represented this grouping and lost in straight games to Owen Sound. This practice has been discontinued in Ontario but is still in effect in the Maritimes.

The One Mistake

"We can allow a senior 'A' replacement for a senior 'B' goalie," Roxburgh pointed out, "but we never make a practice of doing so, and we didn't in this case. I do not blame you or the Toronto papers for criticizing us when you felt we made a mistake. We make our share and the press is expected to check governing bodies when they are in error. However, we weren't wrong this time. The only mistake made was by the Eagles in not playing that game scheduled in Kingston and letting us deal with their protest. By defaulting they were automatically suspended."

The Ontario Hockey Association head concluded his phone conversation with the writer by saying: "This is the first time since I've been president that I called a newspaper writer to give our side of the story. But I am doing it with the hope that you will present our point to the Peterborough public. We acted within our own rules all the way through in this case."

Local Puckists Rubbed Out

Peterborough's bantam and midget teams in the O.M.H.A. playoffs suffered elimination Friday night in Toronto at the hands of two Marlboro teams as a result of defeats in the return games of their home-and-home series. St. Peter's bantams dropped the opener of the twin-bill by a 7-0 count to lose the round 13-4 while Martin-Hewitt midgets took a 5-3 loss in a hectic duel against Marlies to take the short end of a 10-7 goals-to-count total.

Defeat, though hard, came only after a courageous struggle on the part of the Peterborough lads who gave their best and went down fighting all the way, in both games. Soft, sticky ice slowed down the play somewhat and made puck control difficult for all the boys.

In the bantam game, Toronto led 3-0 after a rousing first frame and added two in each of the second and third periods to win handily after being held to a 6-4 count in Peterborough. King led the marksmen with three goals, while Haughton tallied twice for Marlies; Smith and McAleese registered single counters. Lea Hickson shone in the net for St. Peters, despite the result, with some amazing saves; while the play of Paul Murphy and Bob Baker stood out in defeat for Pat Doherty's boys who all tried hard.

Martin-Hewitt midgets dropped a tough 5-3 battle to Flash Hollett's fast crew in the second half of the twin bill after a terrific two-way battle. The victory coupled with Marlies' 5-4 win in Peterborough March 13, enabled the Toronto lads to win the round. But it was a close fit and the Liftlock lads made it a battle to the wire. The entire team shared honors in a fine showing against an equally good club with the breaks a big factor in the final result.

The twin loss eliminated the local teams in O.M.H.A. semi-finals. Marines juveniles were previously ousted by Toronto in a semi-final series.

Neill's, Nurses Victorious In Playoff Tilts

Severe trouncings were handed out in the girls' city league finals Friday night by Neill's cagers and Nurses' quinfette.

Neill's, undefeated for the past two years and defending senior city champions, are headed in that direction again this year. In the first game of the finals they walloped Lindsay Merchants 51-26.

Meanwhile in the second game, the beginning of the intermediate city finals, the Nurses completely overpowered Black's 67-27. This was one of the highest scores rolled up in the league this season.

Neill's lost little time in showing who was going to win the senior game. From the start with a fast attack up the court, backed by a stiff defence, Neill's pressed.

Led by Sue DeWarga, playing her season's best, Neill's ran up a 29-16 score at half time. DeWarga whipped in eight baskets, backed by points by Pauline Stewart, S. Bestard, Joan Dunk, Wilma Byers and Marg Borland. Marg Owen was Lindsay's only effective scorer in that half.

DeWarga continued her scoring pace in the second half as Neill's again easily outscored Lindsay, this time 22-10. DeWarga looped in seven points, equalled in that half by Wilma Byers.

Got 15 Points

DeWarga led the scoring with 15 points while Marg Owen of Lindsay collected 12, scoring six on foul shots.

The Nurses-Black's game followed much the same pattern as the first tilt. Nurses, at full strength for the first time in recent games, outplayed Black's from the opening to closing whistles.

Jean Bell with 15 points and Anita Davis with 10 helped Nurses, who practically all scored, romp to a 37-16 halftime score. Only Carol Raper of Black's was hitting the hoop effectively.

Bell and Davis continued to dent the twine in the second half as again Nurses overpowered Black's, this time 30-18.

Jean Bell edged out Anita Davis for the scoring honors totalling 23 points while Davis accounted for 20. Joan Plunkett counted 10 points for Nurses. Black's best was Carol Raper with 11 points and R. Naylor with eight.

Lineups:

Like a throwback to the good old days when bike racing was popular comes a news release in the mail from the Canadian Wheelmen's Association. It tells of a 1,000-metre time trial and a scratch race ay 3 at Victoriaville, Quebec. And of bicycle racing championships late July in Winnipeg. Also a 150-mile open road racing competition from Winnipeg to Kenora, Ont., on Civic Holiday. A Canadian championship event. Finally, it mentions a 50-mile Canadian road bicycle racing championship in Montreal on Sept. 14. Any of you bike enthusiasts interested in a little 150-mile race? If so, write T. It is quite probably that the Petes' senior ball club will be represented tomorrow aft at the annual C.O.B.L. meeting in the Kingston city hall. They made application by mail a few weeks back, and that will be dealt with at the Sunday session. Several U.S.A. border towns in New York State have expressed interest, too, since the Can.-Am. pro ball loop folded a year ago. Also Kingston and Belleville, with Picton and Batawa other possibilities. The circuit may boil down to a two-section loop. The oldtime C.O.B.L. setup of Petes, Belleville, Kingston and Oshawa is out, now that Oshawa has entered a Niagara group.

A Fellow Known As Lu

Lu Kimm is the latest big shot to appear on the grappling horizon in Ontario. A large moustached Manchurian, he has been showing Toronto mat fans some fast and powerful work in quickly felling husky pro wrestlers from here, there and anywhere. He appeared here once this spring and is due back next Tuesday eve in the arena on the Rue Brock. Meeting, though not in a social sense, one Lord Athol Layton, he of the judo chop. Incidentally, what did Athol do with his friend Gerald? No doubt his nibs felt he had more protection by taking his scrappy trainer around with him than the gentle Gerald. Zorra, the French Tarzan, goes against huge Hi Lee in the semi-final, while newcomer Johnny Walker tackles Stan Mayslack in the prelim.

Accompanied by a number of their rooters, the Petes' puckists are off tonight for Kingston and the second of their best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" group finals. Third one is back here Monday p.m. If the series ends in either five or seven games, the Petes will have it on home ice. but the gate will be split betwixt the clubs—after, of course, all expenses. Including the O.H.A. bite. Why the O.H.A. should take a cut of group playoffs we don't know. These aren't provincial playdowns yet. Refs in this series also are getting an extra five bucks a game, so it takes a hefty crowd to clear the club in these tussles. Series winner goes into Ontario semi-finals.

Curtains For Eagles

Eagles are through for this season and their suspension will be dealt with at a later O.H.A. spring meeting. That's what Prexy Jack Roxburgh of the O.H.A. told us by phone last night. Seems that the Maritimes permit senior "B" winning clubs to challenge for Allan Cup playdowns and that's what St. John Beavers—a senior "B" squad—did, the team with which Sonny MacDonald played. He did not lose his senior "B" status by playing in an Allan Cup series, Roxburgh said, as that is allowed down east under C.A.H.A. regulations. So, he transferred to Kingston as a senior "B" player, which would wash out the Eagles' protest on his status. Suspension of Eagles was for defaulting their game to Kingston last week. That's the way we got it from the O.H.A. top guy, so we're sorry to say the Eagles are out.

Several hockey games of interest to local fans last evening. More than 1,200 thrilled in that T.V.L. semi-final at Civic when Havelock pulled out a 10-7 win o'er Marmora to balance their set at two wins each. No decision yet on the date of the deciding joust. Havelock squad is much the same as last year's Brintons, who took the loop title. Winner of this series goes against R.C.A.F. in the finals. Marlboros in Toronto last e'en erased our minor teams in O.M.H.A. semi-finals. St. Peter's lost in the bantam tilt 7-0 to drop the round 13-4, while Martin-Hewitt midgets were beaten 5-3 on the game and 10-7 on the round. Tough luck for these Peterborough teams after going so far along the provincial playdown trail.

Havelock Beats Marmora Before 1,200 Fans To Even T.V.L. Series

Civic Arena was the scene of a rousing hockey battle Friday night before over 1,200 rabid followers as Jack Harris' Havelock team defeated Toe Ivey's Marmora lads 10-7 to even up their best-of-five semi-final Trent Valley League playoff series at two games apiece, played next week on neutral ice, winner to meet Trenton for the group title later. The T.V.L. is divided into three sections: Havelock winers of the northern, Marmora the central, and Trenton the eastern champs.

Havelock's hustlers had to be at their best to turn the tide in the hard-fought duel over Ivey's sparkling Redbirds, but proved equal to the task, despite a strong third-period drive by the visitors. Down 8-3 at the third watch, Marmora fired three from the sticks of Bob Maynes, George Mantle, and Glen Lavender, with Ken Trumble twice assisting in seven minutes to bring hundreds of visiting fans to their feet as their favorites crept close. But the defending T.V.L. champs, who with almost identical personnel, played under Brinton colors last year, would have none of this. Led by Ace Reid, tricky former Peterborough centre, they scored two insurance markers near the three-quarter mark to force a fifth game. Fred Stewart tallied late in the stanza for Marmora, but it was Havelock's game all the way as their early lead held well. The homesters gained a 5-2 edge in the first on a fair territorial margin of play, outscored the Redmen 3-1 in the mid-frame, one that showed some ragged play in spots, though it was a torrid struggle with the finale fastest of all. Havelock miscued six times, the visitors but twice, and proved effective when shorthanded. Eakins scored in the first on a fast break, with McIndoo a penitent.

Play opened at a fast clip and the first line clicked in the early seconds for the Harris boys when Crowder took Reid's pass inside the blueline and whistled a 20-footer to the left corner on a great play. They made it two as Abbie Caravaggie and Lorne Eakins combined, the former cutting an even sharper angle, similar to Crowder's, and the squad showed fine team play, good defensively. Chuck Willshaw from Reid registered on a clean-cut effort, but Toe Ivey's crew struck back hard and found reward as Bill Jones tallied on a pass from Stewart, with McIndoo again in the sinbox. Eakins scored, then Berardi sank a Caravaggie pass past Kilian from well out at the three-quarter mark. Glen Lavender, who turned in a fine game for the losers, combined with Trumble to keep his team in the game, near the end.

Team play, drive, and determination on the part of both teams made it a dog fight, but Havelock continued to outfox their game rivals in the second and proved opportunists when skill meant goals. Led by Willshaw, McIndoo and Reid, with the whole team plugging, the Havelocks outscored their rivals 3-1 with Mantle clicking on the lone

All-Star Berth For Griffin In Cage League

Don Griffin, star basketball forward for Queen's University, Kingston, was unanimously selected today as first string forward on the Ontario intercollegiate all-star basketball team. This is the second time a Peterborough player has made the first string team, Griffin also making it last year.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Griffin, 304 Margaret Ave., Don was a star senior and junior football and basketball performer while at P.C.V.S. under Alex Londry and Bev Goulding.

He was the only unanimous first string choice, receiving the full 10 points available.

Three members of the University of Ontario intercollegiate senior champion Mustangs were selected on the first team. Glen Fettinger and Ray Truant were chosen for the guard positions, with eight and five points out of a possible 10. Bill Pataky, Mustangs' top scorer, was selected as the number one forward.

Second Centre

Doug McNicol, Mustang captain, was named centre for the second team, as Toronto's six-foot-six Ray Monnot edged him out for the first string position.

McMaster Marauders which finished second behind the Mustangs in league play, placed only two on the second team, Lorne Wrigglesworth and Gerry McTaggart, both guards.

Lou Lukenda, well-known to Peterborough cage fans for his performance three years ago for the Sault Ste. Marie Algos in the Ontario finals with the Marines, and McGill's Sheldon Merling were placed as forwards on the second squad.

The selections were those of the five senior coaches: John Metras of Western; Ivor Wynne of McMaster; Bob Masterson of Toronto; Frank Tindall of Queen's and McGill's Joe Anderson.

Here are the teams with the number of points received by each player:

First team: Pettinger (Western) guard 8; Truant (Western) guard 5; Monnot (Toronto) centre 8; Griffin (Queen's) forward 10; Pataky, (Western) forward 9.

Second team: Wrigglesworth (McMaster) guard 4; McTaggart (McMaster) guard 3; McNichol (Western) centre 6; Lukenda (Toronto) forward 7; Merling (McGill) forward 3.

New Teams Seek Entry In C.O.S.L.

COBOURG, March 22.—One of the oldest baseball leagues in Ontario will be asked to accept new members this year, President Roy D. Dodge of the Lakeshore League told the Cobourg Intermediate Baseball Club here at their annual election of officers.

Three of the teams seeking admission are Batawa, Napanee and Picton, who were members of the closing Central Ontario Senior League last year. Peterborough Petes, according to a Lindsay source, would like to be taken in by the Lakeshore League also until playoff time rolls around.

A Peterborough junior club will also seek entry, Dodge said.

A further hint of what will come at the league's annual meeting in the first week of April was imparted by the president when he stated that a vote to stay with or leave the O.B.A. will be held. It is no secret that the league is far from pleased over playoff treatment during the past three years by the O.B.A., which angered Cobourg and Colborne fans in the last two years in playoff arrangements.

Leafs Face Quiet Weekend With Hawks, Bruins As Wings, Canadiens Joust

With spring officially here and the four Stanley Cup playoff positions all but set, the National Hockey League will run off the final five clashes of its 70-game schedule this weekend. The most important pair of the final quintet is a home-and-home series between Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings. The Wings clinched their fourth consecutive N.H.L. championship two weeks ago while Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers have been mathematically eliminated from post-season play. Boston Bruins are snug in fourth position. However, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens are still fighting for the runner-up slot in the six-team standings.

The second-place Montrealers hold a three-point edge over Toronto with both clubs scheduled to appear twice during the weekend.

A single point on the Habs ledger would clinch it for the club, assuring them of the runner-up spot and an escape from the fate that awaits the third-place team—a bout with Detroit in the first round of cup play. On the other hand, Toronto needs two victories, coupled with a double Montreal defeat, to gain second spot and the right to meet Boston Bruins in the semi-final.

The Big Games

Thus, the big games will be the Montreal-Detroit clashes. The teams open tonight in Montreal and move into Detroit Sunday.

At the same time, Toronto entertains the tail-end Black Hawks tonight and plays at Boston tomorrow. The weekend's fifth struggle is a Sunday night affair between the Rangers and Hawks in New York. It means nothing to either club.

On paper, the weekend appears to lean toward the Leafs. With the Habs getting the rough-and-ready Wings twice, while Toronto spars with Chicago and Boston, the odds seem all in favor of the Smythemen. However, the Detroiters have nothing to gain or lose against Montreal while the Hawks have consistantly given Leafs trouble over the regular season.

In 13 games between the two teams this season, the Leafs have won six and lost as many while playing to a tie in the remaining fixture. They are one of the main reasons why Toronto is not in second place looking back at the Montrealers.

Habs Want One

If Conn Smythe's crew winds up in a point deadlock with Canadiens, the Montreal club will still retain second place on the basis of a better over-all winning average. In other words, Dick Irvin's team needs but a lone point of a possible four against Detroit to cement Leafs into third.

With Montreal coming through, it is considered likely the Leafs will be running for the train immediately after tomorrow night's game in Boston. They would arrive in Detroit Monday night for the Tuesday and Thursday Stanley Cup openers against the Wings.

However, if the Wings [illegible] themselves with the thought that it's nice this time of year in Detroit anyway.

through on the weekend and steal that runner-up slot right from under Montreal's nose, they would stay in Boston Sunday, ready to open the semi-finals Tuesday night. The second game would be Tuesday and in either case, the third back in Toronto next Saturday.

But most Leaf fans have conceded the Habs second, consoling

No Suggestion Of Equality Paul's Attitude To Women

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Saint Paul was in his ideas, ideals, and vision amazingly far in advance of his time.

On many social matters, such as work, mutual aid, citizenship, and social responsibility what Paul wrote is applicable to the world of today. Especially is this true of what Paul wrote concerning liberty, of which he had in every sense a glorified conception.

The one respect in which Paul was very much a man of his own time was in his attitude toward women and their position in the Christian Church.

Paul's enunciation of what has been called "the far-reaching principle" that in Christ there is neither male nor female (Galatians 3:28) might logically have led him to a conception of equality.

But there was no suggestion of equality in his injunction about women covering their heads (I Corinthians 11), and especially in that about their keeping silence in church.

Yet these opinions of Paul, restricting women, have had a deep influence down to our own times in establishing limitations and prejudices regarding women. The process of women's emancipation has gone far in some communities.

I doubt whether there is anyone today who would claim that there is anything un-Christian about a woman's bobbing her hair, if she wants to. But in some parts of the Christian Church other of Paul's restrictions are still in effect.

Women entering and worshiping in church must have the head covered, and when the brilliant woman-preacher, Maude Royden, wished to exercise her pulpit gifts she could not do so in her own Church of England, but had to find a place in the Congregational City Temple in London.

Ordained women as pastors and preachers are now numerous and recently a woman, Miss Kenyon, presided over the national Congregational-Christian Churches as moderator.

Paul himself reveals how greatly women assisted him in his mission, and in strengthening the church wherever it was begun.

A note of deep appreciation is in his references to Lois and Eunice, the mother and grandmother of Timothy. One perceives how important a place was occupied by Lydia, "the seller of purple" in the church at Philippi, where Paul was her guest.

Jesus, Himself, however in such episodes as that with the woman of Samaria (John 4) showed a freedom from customs and convention in contrast with the limitations and prejudices of many of His professed followers.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1952 VOL. CIV. No. 70

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ART EXHIBIT

An exhibit of paintings by the Peterborough Men's Sketch Club will be shown in the centre display hall and the auditorium of the Public Library, Monday.

$133,939 FROM METERS

Parking meter receipts to the end of February, from May 12, 1947, amounted to $133,939.77, as reported to the council by City Clerk Outram.

NEW RENT SCALE

The new rent for the Children's Aid Society, using the stone building south of the county courthouse, is $70 a month. Financing it will be decided on a basis of how many city and county cases are involved, respectively.

HOW MANY ROBINS?

Many Peterborough citizens have been phoning into the Examiner this week to ask if they are the first to see a robin. They weren't, but there is no doubt that the early robins who went south and left their more hardy cousins in Peterborough are back for the summer.

TAX GOVT. BUILDINGS

Government buildings should be taxed, urged the county council of Perth County. This was endorsed by the Peterborough County Council at the March session. Many janitors with their families live in post-office quarter, it is charged. And their children go to school.

$38,185 ADDITION

A contract to build a two-room addition to the King Albert school in Lindsay has been awarded to the T. G. Morrow Construction Co. of Lindsay. The Morrow bid was the lowest at $38,185.76. Highest of the four other bids was for for $47,283.

SEE SPRING SHOW

The rural makeup of the county council was indicated Thursday in the interest shown by the Central Ontario Spring Show being held here next week. Warden Dick Stewart of Otonabee township made a special point of asking all the reeves to attend the show and bring it to the attention of their ratepayers. Prize seed was sold Friday—the last day of the three-day show. The Central Ontario Spring Show is the successor to the old Quinte District Seed Fair.

BOARD APPROVES MACHINE PURCHASE

Purchase of an electrocardiograph machine at a cost of not more than $950 was approved by the Civic Hospital Board of Governors Thursday night. Treasurer T. T. Rodger told the board that patients can be charged for the service provided by the machine and it will pay for itself in two or three years. The machine will be paid out of the capital account, and it will not come out of the present's year's budget, Mr. Rodger said.

Ontario Cattle All Free Of Foot, Mouth Disease

Ontario cattle are free of foot-and-mouth disease, according to the evidence, R. H. Graham, livestock commissioner with the Provincial Department of Agriculture, said Friday at a meeting in the office of F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative. Mr. Graham was endorsing a statement by Prof. A. W. Baker of the O.A.C. Department of Entomology.

"Since Feb. 3rd," he said, "no cattle from western Canada have come into Ontario.

"The maximum period for the incubation of foot-and-mouth infection is eight days. Put those together and you have one fact.

"The animals that were brought into Ontario from the west since last November have all been traced and thoroughly inspected, and also the animals of the herds into which they came.

"One of the animals that were received in this province during that longer period was followed through the Watford community sale seven times, and was finally located.

"Those facts provide the evidence for saying that, on the face of it, it is reasonable to believe there is no foot and mouth infection in Ontario."

Prof. Baker and Mr. Graham discussed this season's warble fly campaign with representatives of the councils of the townships of Peterborough which are renewing the spraying of cattle for control of warbles. Municipal officers were clerks and spraying inspectors and the operators of the machines.

"Last year we had 80 townships engaged in spraying cattle for warble fly control," Prof. Baker said. "This year 103 have signed up, and we know there are more to come in. There should be at least 110 this season.

"Bruce and Grey have been doing this work for three years and are still enthusiastic about it its results. That is the answer to the whole question. The number of grubs have been greatly reduced, and the people are satisfied. Reports we get are that the majority of farmers find that the gadding of cattle has been lessened, and they are now able to put on more weight and produce more milk."

Prof. Baker said there was no danger whatever of cattle being poisoned by the active rotenone in the derris powder that is used in spraying. Neither are sheep affected, "but it is poisonous to pigs".

"Since this work has been started, hundreds of thousands of cattle have been sprayed, and there hasn't been a single case of poisoning."

Mr. Graham said that farmers had co-operated with the Department with hardly any friction. Inspectors had done their work well, and the entire effort was a credit to the rural people of Ontario because it was entirely a voluntary campaign on their part.

"This year of all years, we ask the inspectors and their spraying operators to lean over backward in their relations with cattle owners.

"The Act gives all the authority that is needed, but we are not emphasizing that. Goodwill is essential in co-operating with cattle owners or when a member of a family is around. Be exceedingly careful about disinfection. Don't [illegible] car into the barnyard. Stop in the lane, and walk in."

That was part of the advice during the discussion of methods and also the latest amendments to the Warble Fly Control Act.

Warden R. R. Stewart and Reeve James Humphries attended the meeting.

COLTS, CALVES AND LAMBS are neighing, mooing and baa-ing in farm stables throughout the district as Spring seems to have arrived on the farms. Hugh Stewart, well known for his horse stables, has been busy this Spring with 23 new additions. He holds (left photo) a long-legged colt, one of the latest. W. Clarence Mann's farm is busy with the calves and lambs. The farm's week-old lambs are with their mother (top right), while one of the many calves is seen (lower right) in its pen.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Barnyard Youngsters Arrive, Bring Spring Along

Signs of spring are so obvious in the country these days, it's easy to see that winter is over, even without looking at a calendar. Officially, spring began Thursday. However, by the second week in March, pussy willows were beginning to show their furry vests in sunny sheltered spots at the edge of swamps. Early in March, crows were serenading the countryside with their raucous chorus.

On the farm, Spring really begins with the first new arrival in the stables. When lambs, colts, calves and litters of young pigs start arriving about this time of year, stock farmers have a busy time. The animal mothers are able to look after their offspring, but the farmer is usually on hand to see that the gangling youngster does not get trampled upon, and shows him where and how to get at the ready food supply which the mother always has on tap.

First Lambs

It was about six weeks ago that the first lamb was born on the farm of Percy Moncrief, whose farm is on Highway 28, near Fraserville. Mr. Moncrief has about 40 sheep, which he raises for both mutton and wool. Black lambs are quite common among the Sussex breed which make up Mr. Moncrief's flock. However, the black sheep in the family usually change their color as they get older and full-grown ewes and rams are white, except for their black faces.

If the lambs are born in February or early March, when it is still quite cold, Mr. Moncrief says it is a bit more difficult to raise them. One ewe has been placed in a pen in Mr. Moncrief's stable, with two early-bird lambs and the ewe mothers them both.

Colts Aplenty

At Hilton stock farms at the west end of the city, horseman Hugh Stewart already has 23 colts in his horsebarn. One section of the stables is set aside as a "maternity ward." The mares are placed in these stalls which are warm and protected from draughts until the foals arrive, then the mare and her colt are placed in one of the large box stalls which line the stable corridors.

The names of the horses on the stall gates have won racing honors for the Stewart stables on tracks throughout Eastern Canada and the United States, and these colts will be trained to set new records in pacing and trotting events during the next few years.

On dairy farms, calves are arriving daily. Right after it is born, a calf is as unsteady on its pipe-stem legs as a drunkard after a weekend binge, but in a day or so the baby heifer or bull will be cavorting around the calf pen and bawling for its mother at feeding time.

In another month or so, these lambs, calves and colts will be running with their mothers as they are turned out to graze in pastures, greened by the warming rays of the strengthening sun as it moves steadily north. Until then, they will have to confine their playful energy to the restricted space of their stalls and pens.

Have you caught spring fever yet?

Local Reserve To Enlist Four Women

For the first time in the history of Peterborough reserve army units, women will be permitted to join the ranks. Authority has been received by the 50th H.A.A. Regiment to recruit four women as C.W.A.C. (R.) clerks.

This is part of a new program for reserve units in Canada, especially for heavy anti-aircraft and signalling groups. The announcement of the program was made last summer by Major-General H. D. Graham, officer commanding army's central command.

Although the allotment is small, more women are expected to be recruited by the reserve unit later this year.

Women have been attached to the reserve units in the past but were recognized as civilian clerk assistants. During the Second World War women served with the active forces in Canada, generally along the coasts to help man the shore defence.

Wardens Post Smelt Streams

COBOURG, March 21 — Conservation officers, accompanied by three deputy game wardens, are posting the streams that run into Lake Ontario in Durham and Northumberland Counties in advance of the smelt run.

It is alarming residents who see their first fishing sport of the year interfered with. The officials pointed out, however, that the measure is aimed at poachers who net trout in a few of the streams that are known to contain these sporting fish. Smelt fishermen are not being curbed, they said.

Willmott and Soper Creeks and the Ganaraska River all in Durham County, and Shelter Valley Creek at Grafton have rainbow trout in their waters and netting smelt fishermen who know this, and who go upstream, will be looked on with suspicion as poachers. Factory Creek at Cobourg was not posted.

Smelt fishermen are hoping this year for a better run of the little silver fish.

In 1951, due to weather conditions, they thought, the sport was disappointing because the run was far below average. Some thought smelt were on the wane. Their theories will not be proved this season until the run starts, officials say.

Recreation Com. Shaves Estimates Down To $15,700

The recreation commission has reduced the city's share of its 1952 budget by $2,300 and is now asking only $15,700, Alex Sinclair, recreational director, said today.

When the budget was sent to the council a month ago, the commission asked for $18,000, an increase of $1,000 over 1951.

The commission's new budget for 1952 was struck at $20,550. These estimates, paid by the city and province, are only $400 less than last year's.

The provincial grants to the commission are increased $400 this year to $3,700. The government pays grants amounting to one-third of the recreation director's salary, one-third of a full-time secretary's salary, one-third of the playground supervisors' pay and 20 per cent of the cost of playground supplies.

Cut Season

The main reduction in the estimates was in the playgrounds where $5,100 was spent last year. In the first budget the commission asked for $6,300 for playgrounds and in the second reduced the amount by $1,000.

The cut in playgrounds' estimates will mean an eight-week summer program instead of the nine-week program as conducted in 1951.

The Peterborough Citizens' Band which is an affiliate of the commission will receive $2,700, a decrease of $300.

Organized minor sporting groups also suffered a cut in annual grants when $300 was removed from their estimates. This year they will get $900.

In 1951 the commission paid out $900 to minor hockey, lacrosse and baseball groups, and to the ornamental swimming club.

Another $400 was cut off other activities such as swimming.

Townships Must Collect Own Back Taxes

From now on the townships, not the county, will be responsible for collecting the arrears in taxes. And they will conduct their own tax sales.

This was decided at the March session of the Peterborough County Council.

"We can no longer look after it; it's too big a job," said Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer. A larger staff would be required at the county office if this practice continued, she said.

The villages of Lakefield, Havelock and Norwood have continued to collect their own tax arrears and conduct their own tax sales.

"Too many of the so-called tax collectors are receivers rather than collectors," said one reeve. Now they'll have to get out and dig."

Descriptions Wrong

Mrs. Spurway said that many of the descriptions of lands were wrong and she was not as familiar with the individual lots as were the municipal tax collectors. She also said that in most counties the procedure is for the municipalities to do their own collecting of back taxes.

The proposal for this bylaw came from the township council of Asphodel. Reeve James Humphries said it was sent along to the county council as a suggestion.

Individual tax collectors, knowing their locality well and the people in it, could get better results than a central county office, Mrs. Spurway said. Some municipalities, because of their high percentage of uncollected taxes, are having to pay higher debenture rates for municipal projects, she said.

As treasurer, she must send each municipality a statement of all taxes, and inform them of the change, by May 1.

Discharged From Hospital 54 Days Ago Aged Man Quite Content To Remain

Veteran Lumberman Taken To Hospital Against His Will, Now Problem For County and Civic Authorities

By DON SWAIN

Out at Civic Hospital they have a patient who is so satisfied with the quality of the treatment he is getting, he has no desire to leave. Wesley Hall has been an indigent patient at the hospital ever since early in November, when he was found on the bed of his cabin on Katchacoma Lake, so crippled with lumbago he could not get up to get wood for his small box stove.

Officially Discharged

This week, 54 days after he was "officially" discharged on January 23, according to hospital records, a startling fact came to light. Wes was still in his bed in room 237 of the public ward. He had never left.

Now, Wes is the centre of a very delicate problem.

On Thursday, the county inforced civic hospital authorities that they would not accept responsibility for paying Wes' hospital bill any longer.

Thursday night, the hospital board of governors dropped the problem in the lap of hospital superintendent John Hornal.

Wes is an old timber cruiser over 80 who spent his entire life in the woods. He has always lived alone and has persistently turned aside the efforts of friends and relatives when they urged him to give up his hermit-like existence in his remote shack.

From October 1950, until June 1951, he stayed at the county home for the aged near Lakefield. That June, he slipped into Peterborough one day, and persuaded a friend to take him out to his cabin.

The tar-paper cabin where this same friend found Wes last fall is located in a very scenic spot on the shore of Lake Katchacoma, about two miles from the nearest main road.

The cabin is not winterized, but Wes had a good supply of wood in for the winter. Early in the fall welfare officials had tried to convince him that he was unable to look after himself, but he was adamant in his refusal to return to the House of Refuge. He has no fault to find with the treatment he received there, or the staff, but he simply refuses to go back.

In Bad Shape

When he was found, Wes was in bad shape. The friend contacted Dr. H. E. Gastle in Lakefield, and Wes was brought by ambulance to hospital in Peterborough.

Gradually, Wes regained his strength and recovered from the attack of lumbago. By January 23, Dr. S. Y. Walsh, who has attended Wes since he was placed in hospital, felt that he could be discharged.

Dr. Walsh pointed out Friday, that Wes' health is still such that he would not be able to look after himself if he were turned out on his own.

If he were willing to go to the old people's home or if a suitable home could be found for him, where he could board for his old age pension of $40 a month, Wes' problem would be solved.

Wes would probably be happy. The Civic hospital would be happy. The county council would be happy, and Reeve Peter Pearson of Galway and Cavendish townships, where Wes resided, would probably heave the biggest sigh of relief of all.

Independence Violated

However, Wes comes from stubborn pioneer stock. All he wanted in the first place was to be left alone. Now that his indepedence has been violated, he's in no hurry to leave hospital. He wants to return to his lakeside cabin when warm weather comes but in the meantime, Wes figures he's pretty comfortable, and has no inclination whatever to leave.

The county sent two plainclothes constables to remove him after he was discharged and take him to the county home. However, Wes told them firmly he had no intention of going. The constables did not see fit to remove him by force and he stayed on, unnoticed as far as Hospital Superintendent John Hornal was concerned until the first of this week.

County Paying No More

Now Mr. Hornal and Dr. Walsh are patiently trying to convince Wes that he should leave. The county has served notice they are through paying $7 a day for his "hotel" accommodation at the civic and since somebody will have to pick up the cheque from now on, Mr. Hornal is naturally anxious to get Wes a home as soon as possible.

He has written Reeve Pearson about the problem, because Mr. Pearson has no telephone. At the same time, Mr. Hornal is doing his best to try and find a suitable boarding place for Wes which he can pay for with his old age pension.

Wes refuses to live in Peterborough and he is equally determined not to return to the old folks' home. He has always been used to a life of seclusion in the woods, and at his age he doesn't change his mind easily.

However, if spring comes quickly, the whole problem will solve itself. Wes will be off to his Katchacoma cabin.

While the hospital board agreed that Wes simply could not be turned out with no place to go, one member of the board commented, "This is not a house of refuge."

However, until authorities can find some place where he is willing to go, or until he decides to return to the county home for the aged, Wes will probably continue to enjoy the comfort of his public ward bed.

Meanwhile, the $64 question remains: Who will be paying his hospital bill until he is actually discharged?

Halifax Gazette Observes Its 200th Year Of Publication

By KINGSLEY BROWN.

HALIFAX, March 22 (CP). — North America's oldest continuous newspaper, The Halifax Gazette, celebrates its birthday on Sunday as quietly as it came into the world 200 years ago.

The Gazette itself—now the Royal Gazette after several name changes and concerned almost exclusively with government matters—announced the occasion without fanfare with a few lines in a front-page box. In the Provincial Legislature, Health Minister Harold Connolly, a former newspaperman, informed members of the event.

The Gazette began almost with the founding of Halifax in 1749. Lord Edward Cornwallis arrived at this port in the sloop-of-war Sphinx with 13 transports. He brought with him the artisans to build the city, soldiers to protect it, tradesmen, clergymen, lawyers and doctors—but no printer or printing press.

Two years later Bartholomew Green, grandson of the man who established the first fully-equipped printing office in North America, came to Halifax from Boston with his press.

Small Beginning

He set up his crude equipment in a dingy, two-storey frame building on the slopes of Halifax fortress. Outside the building, where city hall now stands, were muddy streets between grubby houses, grog shops, slave markets and cows grazing in the fields.

Green died within three months at 52. A partner, John Bushell, took over early in January, 1752. By March 23 he had launched his first edition.

Bushell's work stood up well with Boston papers of the period—papers which long since have ceased publication. Two woodcuts flanked the masthead of the two-page sheet, one of a hunter pursuing game, the other a ship under sail.

Use European News

Most of the news was European, culled from English papers, and at least six months old. Local news was meagre.

The advertisements, for example, listed that Johua Maugler had several slaves to sell at Major Lockman's store, "all very able and sound."

Considerable revenue was obtained by advertising runaway slaves. One read:

"Ran away from her master, John Rock, on Monday, the 18th day of August last, a negro girl named Thursday, about 4½ feet high."

Eight years later Bushell, in debt, took into partnership Anthony Henry, a German-born printer who successfully managed the Gazette. Bushell died a year later.

Next to work for the Gazette was Isaiah Thomas, later the founder of the Worcester (Mass.) Spy and the historian of Printing In America, a rare book on early journalism.

John Howe took the reins several years later and changed the name to The Halifax Journal, and later became the King's Printer. He died in 1835, a few months after his youngest son, Joseph, gained his great legal and political victory that established responsible government and freedom of the press in the colonies.

Young Joe Howe, probably Nova Scotia's greatest journalist, gave his province a standard of reporting barely equalled in Canada. Through him the Journal's pages blossomed into a new, living journalism.

Later the Journal reverted to its old name and finally it was called Royal Gazette and became the official publication of the province.

Student Ministers Attend School In Cavan District

MILLBROOK, March 22 (ENS) —The parish of Cavan has been chosen by the Diocese of Toronto as the site of a school in rural sociology for Anglican theological students. The school will be held from April 30 to May 9.

Its purpose is the training of students for church work in rural areas. The school was started two years ago in Mono Mills and was the first of its kind set up in Canada. The experiment is being watched with interest not only in this country but in the United States as well.

In the past many theological students with a city background have been sent to rural parishes immediately after ordination, knowing little or nothing about the country way of life. The Students' Rural Training School gives an opportunity through trained leadership to learn of the need in rural areas, and to learn what can be done when men are consecreated to their work.

Live On Farms

The students will be billeted in the farm homes of the parishioners. It is expected that there will be about 18 students among them perhaps some of the junior rural clergy.

The curriculum of study will include lectures, practical work and field trips studying varied topics from rural sociology to soil conservation. The teaching staff will include as well as the Rev. A. A. Chote, of the parish of Cavan, the Rev. A. A. Read from Mono Mills, the Rev. W. Turner of Bowmanville, the Rev. T. A. Nind of Port Hope, and the Rev. L. Delaney of Lakefield.

Secular speakers will include Miss Colley, recreation director of Barrie; Mr. Richardson, Department of Planning and Development of the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, who will look after the field trip regarding the Ganaraska soil conservation scheme; Clair Burt, who will give the lecture in farm forums; on the work of the Children's Aid; Mrs. I. Pinner, who will tell of mothers' allowance work; Miss Florence Lamb, of the branch of religious education, who specializes in youth work; and Miss E. Raikes, who will speak on the work of the county nurse in relation to the rural church.

Lectures and services will be held in all three churches of the parish: St. John's Church, Ida; Christ Church, Bailieboro; and St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook.

If the school is a success it is planned to set up other similar ones in other parts of the Dominion.

CHAINED FOR 67 DAYS—Canadian seaman William M. Olynyk, 27, of New Westminster, B.C., left, asked $100,000 damages from Isthmian Steamship Co., in Superior Court suit at Seattle. He charged his captain chained him to the rail of the freighter Clyde L. Seavey for 67 days on a voyage half way around the world. With Olynk left, are his wife, Emily, and his lawyer, Sam Levinson.

U.S. Shuts Down Embassy Paper

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP) —The United States, in retaliation for an "outrageous" attack on the American government and Congress, Friday shut down a magazine published by the Embassy of Communist Poland.

State Secretary Dean Acheson at the same time ordered the embassy to issue no more press releases which exceed the "limits of propriety" established by international custom.

The action was a counter-blow for the circulation by the embassy of a Polish government statement of Feb. 29 which attacked as a "farce" a House of Representatives investigation of the massacre of thousands of Polish officers in Katyn forest in the Second World War.

The inquiry group heard testimony that Russia rather than Nazi Germany was responsible for the crime.

Size Of Nail Designated By English Penny System

Until early in the 19th century, nails were forged by hand and had not particular design—the shape being left to the smithy's judgment. The first important phase in nail manufacture was when square cut nails made by shearing from flat iron strip was developed. It was not until about 1850 that wire nails, as we know them, were produced on a commercial scale. Since that time, numerous sizes and patterns have been developed and improved.

The "penny" (d) system of designating nails, originating in England, is most commonly supposed to have originated through one hundred 6d, 8d, 10d, etc., nails costing 6 pence, 8 pence, or 10 pence. A more probable explanation is that one thousand 6d nails weighed 6 pounds. Under present usage, the penny size indicates a definite length.

Pnnyweight Sizes for Reference

2D	1 inch
3D (fine)	1⅛ inches
3D	1¼ inches
4D	1½ inches
5D	1¾ inches
6D	2 inches
7D	2¼ inches
8D	2½ inches
9D	2¾ inches
10D	3 inches
12D	3¼ inches
16D	3½ inches
20D	4 inches
30D	4½ inches
40D	5 inches
50D	5½ inches
60D	6 inches

Five of the most common types of nails, their main use and limitations are described briefly in the following:

DIAMOND POINT: The most common type of nail adapted for general commercial use. Has a high holding power and may be used satisfactorily in all but the harder woods.

CHISEL POINT: Designed to cut through wood fibres. This point is used on larger nails for driving into hard woods. The point reduces holding power but prevents splitting.

DUCK BILL: Supplied only on small size nails for veneering and clinching. Drives into hard wood with same facility as the chisel point.

NEEDLE POINT: Nails with needle points drive easily and are used on all but the harder woods. Holding power is similar to the diamond point, but is more apt to split harder woods.

BLUNT POINT: Designed for harder woods. Specified for hard wood shingles, hardwood flooring, etc. Holding power is slightly less than the diamond point.

Exporters Ask Protest Against NZ Bars

OTTAWA, March 22 (CP) — Canada's exporters Friday requested the Canadian Government to lodge strong formal protests against import restrictions imposed by Australia and New Zealand.

In a letter to W. F. Bull, deputy minister of trade, the Canadian Exporters' Association said the restrictions amounted to an embargo on Canadian goods and that they were placing considerable hardship on Canadian manufacturers.

Mr. Bull, commenting on the letter, said Canada was seeking clarification of the intentions of these countries on imports and until this had been obtained, no further action could be taken.

The Pacific Commonwealth countries, endeavoring to pare purchases in order to fight the economic crisis in which the sterling area is entangled, have temporarily withdrawn import licenses. Some of these may be reissued and others may not.

Mr. Bull said he has received word from New Zealand that its new import restrictions will not affect Canadian exports which now are on the high seas and which will arrive before April 12 next.

Australia has not made its position clear on Canadian goods which now are on their way to that country. These may face a closed door when they arrive.

Canada last year sold Australia $49,000,000 worth of goods and imported $46,200,000. New Zealand purchased $21,700,000 from Canada and sold $30,100,000.

Ducks Are Fat On Winter Food

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. — (CP)—What do the goldeneye ducks live on when they spend the winter in an ice-locked river?

Ordinarily these ducks eat vegetables and roots but these are hard to get in the winter time. Officials of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department would like to know the answer.

Each winter hundreds of ducks stay in the St. Mary's River, while smarter ducks are enjoying warm weather in the south. A count taken recently by the Department showed more than 270 ducks here this winter. Of this total, 226 are goldeneyes.

No one seems to know what they live on. They seldom touch fish, preferring the tender under-water roots of wild plants. A few years ago, kind-hearted workers on the shoreline fed them with handfuls of grain, stale bread and other left-overs. But a lot of the shoreline has been filled in for industrial purposes, and few people see the river during the winter months.

Flocks of hardy goldeneye and Merganser ducks always have stopped here and in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan when other birds continued their migration. The open waters of swift St. Mary's river, especially near the canal, afford ample feeding grounds. Largest numbers of wintering ducks are to be seen in the lower tail race of the power canal, near the locks, and close by the international railway bridge. The water is always open, and the boiling eddies often hide swarms of tiny fish.

The ducks are fat, healthy and swift of wing. Whatever it is they eat, it seems to agree with them.

Mission Band Wins Seal Of Approval

MILLBROOK, March 22 (ENS) —St. Andrew's Mission Band met in the Sunday schoolroom Thursday afternoon.

In place of the usual game the children read parts from the play "Barbara Goes To Vocation School."

The president, Judy Hobbs, pasted the seal of approval for the year 1951 on the certificate of efficiency. It is the fifth successive year that the band has merited the seal of approval. The minutes were read by Mary Mosher and the treasurer's report was given by Lenore Ouellette. Carol Ridge lighted the candles on the worship centre for the worship service which had as its theme "Sharing With Our Neighbors." Mrs. Arnold Fallis led in the discussion of the theme, and Mrs. Bert Gardiner gave a chapter from the study book.

Mrs. Fallis announced three prizes for those selling most greeting cards. Carol Ridge passed home-made candy.

Cities Can't Place Tax On Federal Buildings

OTTAWA, March 22 (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said Friday the federal government will not permit municipalities to tax its offices and buildings. He was replying in the Commons to Gordon Graydon (PC, Peel) who asked if the federal government would follow Ontario's example.

Mr. Abbott said municipalities are the "creatures of the provincial governments."

George Drew, PC leader, asked Mr. Abbott if he would examine the basis on which Ontario permitted municipalities to collect taxes on government buildings. It had nothing to do with the fact that municipalities were the creatures of the provinces.

"The minister of finance is always ready to examine anything," said Mr. Abbott amid laughter.

WHAT IS BETTER than a ball game for boys, yes and girls, to let off steam and relieve themselves of some of that mischief that is bound to test their parents' patience.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Children Can Let Off Steam With Plenty Outdoor Play

By NANCY CLEAVER

"A place for the children to play outdoors is more important to me than a lovely view!" one mother who was house-hunting said frankly. "Children who are cooped up indoors are bound to get into mischief and wear out their mother's patience!"

It is the surplus physical energy of children, small or large, which presents quite a problem to parents. Children in normal health seem to possess spurts of amazing vitality. Boys and girls in excellent condition have a seemingly nexhaustible supply of "pep". Youngsters love activity. They enjoy a noise—the louder the better!

Grownups are often weary after their day's work and they long for a restful atmosphere and quiet. Because children are so different from adults parents have a tough time renting an apartment or competing with childless couples for living quarters.

What can parents do about the tendency of their children to "let off steam"? It is useless to try to repress it completely. The "heavy hand" tactics result in an angry, rebellious child. Too strict prohibitions are only successful for short periods of time.

Neither can parents completely ignore their child's surplus physical energy. They realize that he is like a young colt eager to gallop around a field. The boy or girl needs to find expression for his pent-up spirits—but mother and dad also need a certain amount of relaxation and peace at the end of the day under the home roof.

If parents could see school children rushing out of school at recess they would realize that this "yen" for noise and activity is found in most youngsters. The scholars come bursting out of the school doors as if they were shot out of guns. They are so glad to be free from adult supervision and restraint that they yell and jump in the air and jostle against each other and run like deer.

Indoors is a poor place for children to "let off steam" unless they have a "rumpus room" or a play area of their own. If because of very bad weather or ill-health a child must play inside, mother must provide material for play and some supervision to prevent "mad-house". The out-of-doors is an excellent setting for children's shouting and play. Quite apart from the benefits of physical exercise in the fresh air and sunshine play, time out of doors gives children the chance to use some of their stored-up vitality. The opportunity to call out and laugh, without incurring the wrath of their parents or other adults gives them a marvellous feeling of release.

Every boy or girl should have an outdoor play space and some durable play equipment. The child on the farm or the youngster living in a village is fortunate in his comparative freedom. Even a little yard at home is a great boon to children and parents alike.

In large towns and cities, parks, school and district playgrounds, swimming pools and skating rinks under responsible sponsorship fill the bill. The movement of population from the farms into the industrial centres the necessity for children to have room in which to run and play has far too often been forgotten.

Lack of housing facilities and crowding of families into small quarters has had a serious effect on home life. It is almost impossible for the average family on a small or a medium income to provide adequate play space for their children, especially as they reach the older public school age and enter adolescence.

It is not good for a child to feel that he is a nuisance or in the road when he is playing. If homes have insufficient play area, parents should co-operate with other parents and public-minded citizens to see to it that outdoor recreation is provided for.

The chance to "let off steam" in a legitimate way at any age level is one way to secure good emotional health. Some families living in a crowded area cultivate a walking hobby. Mother and dad and the children all delight in going on hikes. Adventuring in the out-of-doors is a satisfying experience.

Skating, skiing, tobogganing, sleighriding, swimming and boating, roller-skating, tricycle and bicycle riding—the varied outdoors sports of modern youngsters present quite an array. Equipment sometimes seems rather expensive to parents harried by the high cost of living. But supervised athletics is one of the finest channels for physical energy. Strong physiques and attitudes of good sportsmanship under the direction of trained leaders are built up.

"The busy child is the happy child" is quite true—and it also follows that "the idle adolescent may easily became a recruit for the juvenile delinquent group." The Germans have an old saying "You can do anything with children if you play with them." In terms of growth and of "letting off steam" the chance for outdoor play is an important part of a child's heritage.

Hair Today Gone Tomorrow 'Problem Heads' Wear Wigs

By RICHARD KLEINEE

NEW YORK — (NEA)—If your new wig costs more, blame it on Adolf Hitler. Indirectly, it's all his fault.

Hitler started World War II. During the war, American GIs took American ideas with them wherever they went. They went to Europe and soon European women were wearing their hair shorter, the way the GIs liked it.

The continent, particularly the Balkans, had always been the big long hair supplier. Nowadays, there's very little of the real thing cultivated on Europe's female heads. So the long hair buyers have to go to remote villages, run contests with prizes for the best hair in each district and pay higher prices. These factors come out in wig costs here.

That's the sad story unfolded by Paul Fleischer, the fourth Fleischer generation to be in the hair goods business. To illustrate the current market value of beautiful long hair, he pulled out a carton about the size of a shirt box.

"Inside," he said, tapping it with a significant forefinger, "is about $7,000 worth of hair."

He opened it, and displayed hanks of hair, all neatly grouped in lengths and shades. There was glistening black and pure platinum, lush-looking shades of red and auburn and titian and some snow white.

Fleischer looked almost reverent as he folded the hair carefully and stowed it back in the box.

"Hair," he said, in a hushed voice, "is nature's masterpiece, but few of us appreciate it. Compare it with a diamond—if you close your eyes and feel a diamond, what is it? Just a sharp stone. But hair! Touch it, and you and feel its beauty. It's almost flesh-like.

"But American women tease, abuse, wave, tint, dye, cut and otherwise mess up their hair. They ruin its texture."

There are some exceptions, and Fleischer's eyes sparkled as he talked about Ethel Thorsen, a television actress. He says she has the most beautiful hair in America.

In case she—or anybody else—loses it, or wants to augment it with switches, curls, falls, top knots, bangs, pony tails or chignons, Fleischer stands ready to help. He calls people with sparse or non-existent hair "problem heads."

He can give a male "problem head" a new set of hair for somewhere between $75 and $250, depending on size and type. These "toppers" are usually made to look like junior grade baldness to make them look more realistic.

Fleischer says his toppers are "the most undetectable" now made, and that his "hair pieces" for women are virtually impossible to detect. That's because they're "fussier in the front," which is the hardest spot to disguise. Fleischer's best hair pieces—with each of the 100,000 to 150,000 hairs tied in separately by hand—cost from $500 up.

It takes up to two weeks to make one of these, starting with the raw hair, which first has a really permanent wave put in it. It's blended on a hackle to match exactly the hair still left on the problem head. Then it's knotted, hair by hair, on a ventilated base of silk and nylon.

Finally, stylists arrange the hair into the precise coiffure ordered. But, as Fleischer points out, the wearer-of-the-hair can change it to suit her mood.

"She can be demure Monday, soignee Tuesday, femme fatale Wednesday," says Fleischer. "She can style it herself, or send it back here to be restyled and cleaned."

One top Broadway star has three head pieces. One is auburn, one brunette, one white. She changes them as her mood dictates. Hers isn't a "problem head" —she just doesn't have time to keep her own hair freshly stylized, so she just slips on her coiffure like a hat.

Fleischer's business extends to such small items as widow's peaks, which cost about $25, and "streaks" of blonde, white or copper hair to jazz up an otherwise undistinguished head of hair.

There's no danger of any of these hirsute falsies blowing off, like they always do in the movies. Men's toppers are held fast with two-way plaster, and women's are snugly ensconced with elastic.

If you're blonde, you'll be delighted to know that blonde hair is more expensive than brunette. It's rarer.

WIGMAKER AND EXHIBITS—Paul Fleischer makes "hair pieces" like those in foreground for "problem heads," but not for Ethel Thorsen. He thinks she has most beautiful hair in U.S.

Discuss Causes of War

Westwood Farm Forum, meeting this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Graham, had a discussion on the basic causes of war which led by Mr. William Mood. They concluded that "unemployment, resulting in hunger and poverty or the fear of them, coupled with the greed for power, property or fame of an influenital few who can influence the masses with promises of employment and security, are the basic causes." Other causes are, they say: "over-industrialism in a country which wishes to be self-sufficient, racial hatred and religious differences." To conteract these influences toward war the Forum asks that there be a striving to feed and educate all peoples and applying of Christian principles in all dealings. The meeting was attended by 22 members. A nursery rhyme contest was conducted by Mrs. E. Pulfer and won by Mrs. A. Patterson. The winning charade was presented by the men. Next meeting of the forum will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Breckenridge, Westwood.

Ceramic Artist Zarko Zavi Interprets Canadian Style

Zarko Zavi, artist, sculptor and painter, who escaped with difficulty from Czechoslovakia in 1939, is a man who truly appreciates citizenship in his adopted country. He is now established in a small studio at a corner of the main street in Cobourg where he sells original art pieces designed to please Canadians. A man who studied and practiced the arts for years in Europe has set all of that aside to study and interpret the distinctive style of his new associates.

After he had spoken at the Women's Art Association studio meeting Friday afternoon a small collection of his original ceramic work was examined and very heartily approved. Some ladies were members of the group which has studied and worked with pottery clay and therefore were keenly interested in details of the pieces. Others were considering them only as beautiful objects for their homes. A large vase particularly drew their attention. They noted that the artist is a lover of horses and that his models were very fine.

Mr. Zavi pointed out "The ceramic artist does the finishing—adds to your taste. You create your home as you want it, furnish it in the colors you like, but it is his job to express you in the ornaments it contains."

Childhood Interest

From the age of four Mr. Zavi was interested in ceramics. He spent much time with his uncle who had what he describes as a "brickyard", but his uncle was a man who did outside building decoration on the "wine cellars." When a young man he took a university course in painting which on graduation made him a professional stage painter. This was a good business because every hall and school had a stage and required scenery. However he worked at it only two months.

A three-year course at Ceramic College in Germany fitted Mr. [illegible] the time of the German invasion he had a large studio of ceramic art, employing 82 artists. He left the country saving only his life, but Mr. Zazi does not consider he suffered great loss. He thinks instead of those who lost their lives and says "The value of human life cannot be estimated."

Since coming to Canada he has been happily married to a woman of his own nationality who was a teacher of ceramic art in Toronto. Perhaps another reason why he is so anxious to please Canadians.

Extensive Knowledge

His knowledge of ceramics is extensive and very detailed since his college course required him to know the history as well as the chemical and manual angles of the art. His lecture gave the history from its beginning in China until it was lastly taken up in France and in each instance he showed its relationship to man's development.

"Ceramic art is the forming of clay" Mr. Zavi defined. "Putting clay in any form from brick to statue or ornament, if it is afterward glazed and baked, is ceramic." It is important to know the mineral content of the clay and what will happen to it on contact with water, fire, etc., and the coloring that can be produced from it. So, careful and minute calculation is necessary. The cave man provided the basic knowledge and also knew the basic mineral for coloring and the method of design. It has simply been developed. The first "ceramic artists" were Chinese in about 1200 B.C.

Spring cleaning can be hazardous as well as helpful unless you take every safety precaution. Cleaning the hard-to-reach slats of your venetian blinds will be easier and safer if you always use a sturdy stepladder (above). If you have a vacuum cleaner with a special moth-proofing attachment, follow the directions carefully (upper right). Chipped and cracked glassware may prove dangerous if left on shelves. Keep only the useable pieces (lower right).

Carefully Planned Schedule Essential Before Commencing Spring Cleaning

In case you've been wondering about the anxious expressions on the faces of your family, they're probably caused by that seasonal hazard—spring cleaning.

A clean and orderly home doesn't make family living more pleasant, if it means suffering through accidents, exhaustion and general disorder.

The Natoinal Safety Council suggests "housekeeping—by plan" because the more order in housekeeping, the less chance there is for an accident.

Before you start taking the house apart, call your family together and talk the whole thing over. They may have some constructive ideas that will make the work a great deal easier.

Begin by making a list of all the things which must be done. Try to space the chores evenly over a period of two weeks. Take longer, if necessary.

Start with rooms which are easiest to clean. Put the kitchen in order first. Remove everything from cupboards and clean the shelves and cabinet walls. If the shelves are not permanently surfaced with clay tile, line them with some other easy-to-clean material, such as processed paper.

Wash all pots, pans, dishes, glassware and utensils in detergent suds. Rinse and place them on the drainboard to air-dry after a hot water bath. When the cabinets are back in order, wash the walls, drainboards, splashbacks and floor. Hang up fresh curtains or newly cleaned blinds, and the kitchen is ready for spring.

The dining room or dinette should come next. Clean and wax all wood. Wash leather, leatherette, plastic or cane chair sets with suds, followed by a clean sponging and drying with a cloth.

When you come to the living-room, reverse the old dusting idea. Always dust before you do your floor with sweeper, vacuum, or dust mop. Start with one clean, dry, lintless clothe and another wrung from warm soapy water. The damp cloth gets those fingermarks from tables, lamps, and woodwork. Next do the walls, then upholstered articles.

Dust and wax venetian blinds. Wash baseboards, woodwork and floor, in that order. Remember to use both hands to save time and energy.

Each member of the family should definitely lend a hand when it comes to taking care of his own bedroom. Cleaning out drawers, closets, dusting, changing curtains and bedclothes are all part of the job.

Use only time and energy saving equipment and supplies when you houseclean.

Learn to use your vacuum cleaner attachments correctly and to their fullest extent. There's a brand new liquid wax that dry cleans and waxes in a single operation.

Protect your hands while you work with latex gloves that have a "sueded" inner finish. They'll feel better and give you a surer grip. Another aid is a combination sponge and chamois-type cleaning cloth that is made of a new cellulose yarn.

Sit down for as many tasks as possible; schedule rest periods into every workday; and be sure all appliances are in good repair. And whatever you do—don't alienate the affections of your family during this all-out cleaning period.

DOROTHY DIX

Limits Of Endurance With Thankless Children

DEAR MISS DIX: Perhaps many other mothers have a problem like mine. When I was very young my husband died, leaving me with a baby daughter. I had very little, no close relatives, but in spite of everything managed to keep the baby with me and support us both. When she was 6 years old, I married a fine man. He didn't have too much either but we gave the girl every advantage, including music and dancing lessons. At 20 she married, had a nice home and car. Reverses came to me and my husband and I went back to work to help. In the meantime my daughter had three children, and with each one I left my work to help her.

Now, she and her husband expect me to do all the baby-sitting besides helping with her housework. This I can't do because of our business. One evening recently when I visited them, my son-in-law pounced on me and said I had no right helping my husband with his business—that my place was with my grandchildren. He said he and his wife had a right to enjoy life and it was up to me to see that they did. My daughter stood by and agreed with every word.

I am heartbroken over their treatment. I love my daughter and the children so much and have never interfered or done anything that could cause such feeling on their part.

A. V. W.

ANSWER: When you come up against a person who is so unreasonable in his demands that you know nothing you can do will please him, the sensible course is to stop all efforts of appeasement and decide from henceforth to suit only yourself. Your son-in-law is so obviously a man who wouldn't be pleased with heaven itself, that you're wasting time and money in wooing his favor.

No matter which way you turn in this dilemma, you'll be hurt but the least thorny path leads back to your own life. Leave your daughter and her family alone; concentrate your efforts on creating a comfortable home life for your husband, on building your business together, and on getting some pleasure out of life for yourself.

When your selfish relatives realize you are no longer going to neglect your own home and suffer insults from them, they may realize what a treasure you've been all these years. There is such a thing as doing too much for some people, and the intelligent thing is to stop when you realize that your only value is as a giver.

You most certainly have no responsibility towards your daughter's children beyond giving them the love of a grandmother, along with such care as you are physically capable of. That you have done, and there your duty ends. Why should you be a slave in order that your son-in-law can go out when he likes and have a fine time? Believe me, if you were in need he'd turn from you so fast you wouldn't even have time to ask for anything. Your daughter's passive acquiescence, I'm afraid, is as bad as her husband's open animosity. Let her try caring for the youngsters with no grandmotherly aid and see how she likes it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My mon and dad don't seem to trust me. Though I always tell them where I go and when I will be home, they still won't let me go with boys. I'm 18, and they say 20 is the proper age to begin dating. I'm not even allowed to go to the early show with a boy.

H. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Have you, at any time, done something that would make your parents distrust you? At 18, you are quite old enough to have boy friends, but there may be some underlying reason for your parents' objections. Honest discussion will bring it out.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've about given up hope on my problem, but perhaps there is a little comfort somewhere. I had been going out with a very nice boy, and though marriage wasn't mentioned between us, I took it for granted, as he said he loved me. Then suddenly he stopped coming to see me. He still phones once in a while, but if he has stopped caring I'd much rather he left me alone. I heard he had another girl, and if he's serious about her I'd like to know that, too.

MAYBELLE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the boy had expressed his love for you, you are entitled to know why his attitude has changed so suddenly. You'll be better off to know the truth, even if it is painful. Uncertainty is the worst condition we can endure, and if you clear up the question of his feelings for you, your mind at least will be at rest. Perhaps there is another reason, other than a loss of love, to account for his actions. Discount the story of another girl until you hear it from his own lips. That's the sort of thing that trouble-makers dream up quite easily! You're facing the problem with a fine, emotional balance; I hope it turns out as you want it to!

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: In your December column you printed a recipe for pound cake which was a grand cake but my cook threw out the recipe when she finished and as I hadn't written it down we are out of luck as we would like to have another. Olive W.

ANSWER: I think the following is the pound cake to which you refer. It appeared in my column on December 17th, and is called

Company Pound Cake

One and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, preferably butter, ¾ cup sugar, 5 unbeaten egg whites, ½ cup finely cut glace cherries, 1 cup bleached almonds (or ½ cup cherries and ½ cup almonds or a mixture of both plus chopped citron peel and light seedless raisins), ¾ cup shredded cocoanut is optional, ½ teaspoon almond extract, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour, measure, sift with baking powder and salt 3 times. Cream butter, adding sugar gradually while creaming; beat in egg whites 1 at a time. Add fruits, and nuts and flavourings. Sprinkle dry ingredients over and mix well. Bake in loaf pan, greased and paper-lined, and greased again. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. or 300, 1½ or 1¼ hours. Keeps well.

QUESTION: Would you please send me recipe for spud-nuts. They are something like doughnuts but contain potato flour and white flour and I think yeast is used.

Mrs. Ernest S.

ANSWER: These are made from a commercial formula hence it is secret. However I can give you a yeast doughnut recipe calling for potato flour.

Raised Doughnuts (Yeast)

One and ¼ cups milk, 1 yeast cake 3 1/3 cups bread flour, 1 cup potato flour, 2/3 cup sugar, 3 beaten eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, 4 tablespoons melted shortening. Scald the milk and cool to lukewarm, then add 1 tablespoon of the sugar to it and the crumbled yeast cake, and when the yeast has softened and begins to work beat in 1½ cups of the bread flour. Cover and stand aside in a warm place to rise until very light—about 1½ hours. Cream the shortening and the remainder of the sugar together, add the well-beaten egg, then turn this mixture into the raised sponge, adding also the remaining flour sifted with the salt and spices. Mix well, then knead on lightly floured board for 5 minutes. Cover, and let rise until doubled in bulk. Turn out on floured board and roll to ½ inch thickness, and cut out with regular doughnut cutter. Let rise about 45 minutes on floured board, covered. Drop them carefully in hot deep fat, and as soon as they rise to the top, turn them over so they become evenly browned without cracking. Drain on unglazed paper towels. When cool dredge with sifted sugar. Frying temperature of fat is 375 deg. Fahr.—bread test 60 seconds.

Potato Doughnuts (baking powder)

Mix 2 cups very light brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon each nutmeg and salt. Add 6½ tablespoons melted lard, then 3 slightly beaten eggs. When well mixed all 1 cup sweet milk with 2 cups very light mashed potatoes (unsalted and not flavoured with butter). Add sifted flour—first add 4 cups—sifted with 5 teaspoons baking powder. If dough is not stiff enough to roll out add 1 more cup sifted flour. Cut out on floured board and fry as directed above. These are "different" and absorb less fat than ordinary doughnuts.

Tricks To Help Relax The Nerves

Sitting on a chair or resting on the couch does not constitute relaxation. For if your nerves are still tense and your mind active, you cannot hope to benefit.

What you must do is get into the mood for relaxing. Assume your favorite rest position. Tighten your toes by drawing them together. Next tighten your leg muscles. Pull up on the buttocks; tighten your abdominal muscles; stretch your diaphragm; tense your back and shoulders; lift your chest.

Now make fists with your hands; tighten the lower arm and the upper arm. Clench your teeth; squint your eyes. Be sure that you have held each set of muscles as you work upward. Dont let go!

Relax

Now slowly start to relax. Release the clenched feet, tightened leg muscles. Continue until every part of your body feels almost liquid. Breathe in deeply two or three times.

Repeat the conscious tightening and then the release. Breathe deeply again. You might even try yawning several times. Stretch, too.

You will be amazed at how completely relaxed this short routine will make you feel. It will help to clear your mind because your attention will be directed to your tensing efforts. Get up, walk around, busy yourself.

Whenever you feel tense or overwrought by some problem, indulge in this relaxation. And don't overlook it as an aid if you have difficulty going to sleep.

Scorns Clothes In Zero Weather

SASKATOON — (CP) —Middle-aged Dick Rustemeyer, wearing only bathing trunks as he putters around his back yard with odd jobs, smiles as he watches shivering, fur-coated neighborhood women hanging out shirts and other laundry in sub-zero weather.

It's the shirts and socks that amuse him. There are no shirts or socks on the Rustemeyer clothesline.

Rustemeyer hasn't worn a shirt for about 15 years. While he is no cultist, he lives more or less the life of a nudist, even in 40-below weather.

It started with the practice of gardening and working outdoors without wearing a shirt. He kept up the habit as far into the winter as he could. Eventually, Rustemeyer became allergic to the weight and feel of clothes.

On his feet, even in winter, he wears a pair of canvas shoes with the tuppers cut away to form sandals. But when he goes downtown he wears an unmutilated pair of canvas shos, slacks and an unbuttoned jacket.

His chest is ruddy with summer tan and winter windburn, but hard. He says he's had only one cold in 15 years. And mosquitoes never bother him. His skin is too tough.

Now retired, Rustemeyer takes on light duties on his own time schedule. He's up at 3:30 a.m. every morning and goes to bed at 8 p.m.

A native of the Ruhr, he came to Saskatoon in 1912. His English wife, who does'nt have to worry about froning any shirts, says he's a "wonderful" husband.

Teach Home Life In Quebec Schools

MONTREAL—(CP)—Pretty 16-year-old Louis Gaudet of St. Hyacinthe, Que., says she hasn't time for boy friends—she's too busy learning to become a wife.

Louise, a third-year student in one of 100 domestic science schools in Quebec, can whip up a cake, plan a meal for eight with all the trimmings, decorate a home, weave a skirt and feed a family of four on $15 a week.

She says she can also organize a reception for any number of people, play tennis and other sports, tend children and carry on an intelligent conversation on numerous subjects.

For all this, Louis says she owes her thanks to the domestic school—sponsored by the provincial government—at nearby St. Lambert where 75 other pupils are receiving similar training under the direction of an order of Roman Catholic nuns.

Enrolment in domestic science schools, unique in Canada, topped 6,000 in Quebec this year. Their aim is to train young girls in the "art of earning a living"—with an emphasis on the belief that a woman's place is at home.

Some 15 years ago their were only 16 such schools in Quebec, with an enrolment of about 200.

They receive grants from the provincial government and students charged a "reasonable" monthly rate for room and board. If parents are unable to pay, the government offers bursaries.

Desire To Paint Sparks Recovery Of Woman Artist

VANCOUVER— (CP)— An attractive Vancouver artist, diagnosed as incurable after being fully paralyzed by spinal menigitis last summer, has literally painted her way back to health.

Sonja Basset has not only recovered, but it planning an exhibit of her paintings in Britain next year.

For 12 weeks, doctors held little hope for the recovery of the blonde artist, but they admit they didn't take into consideration her intense desire to paint.

'When I was able to move my arms a bit I started a few crude charcoal drawings and right away I began to feel better.

"I was so wrapped up in my sketches that I forgot all about my troubles", she said.

Miss Bassett, who is married but prefers the anonymity of her maiden name, thinks that many more could find happiness and help in art.

Born in Britain, she has lived in Vancouver four years.

She intends to go to Britain this summer to prepare for an art show.

—Deeply missed by his wife, Mrs. Joseph Bennett; also his son Frank.

FORSYTHE—In loving memory of our only son, Pilot Officer E. B. (Sonny) Forsythe, (425 Alouette Sqdn.), accidentally killed at Tholthrope, March 23, 1945, rests in Stonefall Cemetery, Harrogate, England.
Though out of sight, he's ever near,
Still loved, still missed, still ours.
—Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad, sisters Frances and Joyce.

GORDON—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Hosanna Gordon, who passed away March 23, 1949.
Please God forgive a silent tear,
A silent wish that our dad was here.
There are others yet I know
He was ours and we loved him so.
Three years ago we had to part
With one we loved with all our heart,
A wound so deep it would not heal,
Only those who have lost, know how we feel.
If we could speak with dad today,
Laugh with him the same old way.
And hear his voice and see him smile,
Then life indeed would be worth while.
—Sadly missed by son Norman and family.

LIPSETT—In loving memory of Mrs. Louisa (Lockhart) Lipsett, who passed away March 23, 1951.
—Ever remembered by son George, mother, brothers and sisters.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of our dear grandson, David Lawrence, who was killed three years ago today.
Three years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.

Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Lovingly remembered by Grandma and Grandpa Mahood.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of our dear nephew, David Lawrence Mahood, aged 7 years, who departed from this life so suddenly three years ago.
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by Aunt Frances, Uncle Keith and family.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of our beloved son, David Mahood, who died March 23, 1949.
Fondly loved and deeply mourned,
Heart of my heart, I miss you so,
Often, my darling, my tears will flow.
Dimming your picture before my eyes,
But never the one in my heart that lies.
The stars seem dim as I whisper low:
"My own darling boy, I miss you so."
—Sadly missed by Mummy, Daddy, Glenn and Evelyn.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of a dear grandson, David Lawrence Mahood, who was killed three years ago today.
It's lonesome here without you, David,
And sad the weary way,
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
If we had all the world to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear your voice and see your smile
And greet you at the door.
—Sadly missed by Grandma and Grandpa Quick and Teddy.

U.S. Leads Play In Shuttle Meet

CALGARY, March 22 (CP)—Al Williams of Calgary today leads Canada's bid for a second point in the North American zone Thomas Cup badminton matches here when he takes on Joey Alston of Fargo, N.D., in the opening match of the second set of action.

The United States built up a 2-1 lead in its Friday play on the strength of victories in singles and doubles play. Canada's single point came from a singles triumph.

Five of the possible nine points are required to win. The winner will represent North America in the inter-Zone tie at Singapore in May.

Don Smythe of Toronto gave the Canadian team its lone victory in the opening match Friday when he defeated Carmen Mendez of San Diego, Calif., 6-15, 15-11 and 15-13.

Darryl Thompson of Vancouver, Canada's No. 2 singles player, dropped his match with Dick Mitchell of San Diego, losing 15-6, 17-16.

The Vancouver ace, runner-up to Smythe in the Canadian finals, appeared off form and was forced to play the style of the American.

Smythe teamed with Budd Porter of Toronto in Canada's top doubles duo but were outclassed 15-8, 15-6 by the No. 1 team of Alston and Wynn Rogers of Arcadia, Calif.

Big Backlog In Diesel Orders

MONTREAL, March. 22. — Montreal Locomotive Works, Ltd. earned a net profit in 1951 of $516,000 or 74 cents per share, compared to $89,000 or 13 cents per share in 1950, an increase of about 450 per cent.

Current assets jumped to $21,997,100 from $15,186,225 and current liabilities to $7,743,231 from $1,279,503, leaving working capital of $6,810,875 in 1951 compared with $6,463,728 in 1950. Earned surplus increased to $21,605,679 from $15,186,225.

Duncan W. Fraser, chairman and president, pointed out that 1951 was the first full year in which M.L.W.'s locomotive building facilities had been devoted exclusively to turning out diesel-electrics. Shortages of material had hampered production in the first six months, but output had increased 60 per cent during the final half.

"The year's profits were earned intirely in the last half, reflecting anticipated economies from the changeover to diesel production as well as the increase in output," Mr. Fraser stated. Dividends of 80 cents per share were paid in 1951 at a quarterly rate of 20 cents per share.

The company's backlog of unfilled orders amounts to $18,500,000, a 39 per cent increase over the backlog of $13,335,000 last year at the time of issuance of the annual report. The backlog consists largely of orders for diesel locomotives, diesel renewal parts, steam locomotive parts, and equipment for the oil, chemical and steel industries.

Free Methodists Install Piano

MARMORA, March 22 (ENS)—Worshippers at Marmora Free Methodist Church had a new experience last Sunday. For the first time in the history of the local congregation a piano was used in the regular service.

Ninety-one years ago when the Free Methodist Church was founded, it was thought best by the leaders not to use instrumental music in the church's services.

In 1947 the regulation was removed by the general conference. The use of instrumental music was left to the wishes of each individual congregation.

At a meeting of the members of the local church held on March 7, it was decided to instal a piano in the church.

Malan Asks Law To Curb S. Africa Courts

CAPETOWN, March 22 (CP)—Prime Minister Daniel Malan said Friday he will seek legislation to curb the power of the courts to judge the constitutionality of South Africa's laws, after the Supreme Court struck down his racial segregation law. Malan's Nationalist Government promptly refused to accept the court's ruling.

When anti-government organizations announced plans to protest and to challenge Malan's position, the Prime Minister said the legislation curbing the courts will be made retroactive to 1936, when South Africa received her sovereignty from Britain. He said the legislation would protect the courts against the danger of getting involved in constitutional issues of a political nature, and would place the sovereignty of parliament beyond doubt.

Malan's announcement came after Opposition Leader Jacobus Strauss failed in an effort to bring the explosive issue in debate in the House of Assembly. Nationalist Speaker J. H. Conradie ruled that the matter was not urgent and threw out the motion.

The protest meetings have been called by Strauss' United Party and the "Torch Commandos," a powerful organization which seeks to oust the Malan government. The "Torch Commandos" are led by another Malan—a former Battle of Britain ace, Sailor Malan, who is, however, no relation of the Prime Minister.

Strauss demanded in the House that the government resign and new elections be held as a result of the Union's "grave constitutional crisis."

He said Malan provoked the crisis by his refusal to accept that Supreme Court judgment invalidating a key piece of his racial segregation law.

The court ruled unconstitutional the government's Separate Representation Act, which cuts down the voting rights of 40,000 colored voters in Cape Province. They previously had registered and voted with white electors, but, under the act, had to vote separately for special white representatives.

Strauss moved immediate debate of his demand. But the Speaker said he did not consider the motion to be one of "urgent public importance" under the House's rules, and dismissed it.

Malan, hinting that he will defy the court, said his government will "take the necessary steps" to put an end to the "intolerable" situation created by the court's ruling.

Since the Prime Minister does not command the two-thirds majority in parliament required to amend the constitution, he is expected to legislate by simple majority—to deprive the court of its rights to invalidate government laws. The court, in turn, might rule such legislation unconstitutional.

The ruling has caused great jubilation among non-whites and anti-Malan organizations—though it contained no moral indictment of the government's law. Instead, it simply said the law was unconstitutional because it was not passed in the proper way.

The South African constitution of 1909 says that any law affecting non-white voting rights or qualifications must be passed at a joint session of both Houses by a two-thirds majority. This is referred to as an "entrenched clause."

But Malan's government passed the law through the Senate and House of Assembly separately and by simple majority. The government claimed that the Statute of Westminster in 1931, which set up the Dominions as self-governing countries within the Commonwealth, wiped out the "entrenched clauses" since they were written in when Britain ruled supreme.

The Colored Peoples' National Union here said today: "Much deep animosity against Europeans has been lifted by the decision."

In Durban, 10,000 pamphlets were distributed by the "Torch Commandos" calling a citizens' meeting on Monday night.

On the Witwatersrand, South Africa's rich goldfield, the United Party has asked its supporters to revive the wartime "V" for victory sign.

This time it will signify victory.

The seat was left vacant by the resignation of L. O. Breithaupt, who held it for 10 years, to become Ontario's lieutenant-governor.

Bruce McCullough was chosen as president of the association, which plans to hold a convention soon to select a by-election candidate.

Arthur Laing, Liberal member of parliament for Vancouver South, was guest speaker.

Track Athletes Show Well In Montreal Meet

MONTREAL, March 22 (CP).—Canada's chances in the next Olympic games looked good here Friday night—even if the top-notchers did wear University of Michigan colors.

Out of seven major open events at the Canadian Legion's big sixth annual indoor track meet, Canadians from the Ann Arbor school took four firsts. University of Toronto produced two winners and a Detroiter, running for Michigan, accounted for the eighth title.

The 21-event meet, with competition ranging from midget through juvenile, junior and the classy international top brackets, produced five meet records.

Three of these new marks also wiped out the Canadian open and provincial records.

The biggest record-smashing performance was supplied by Don Scott McEwen of Ottawa, captain of the crack Michigan track squad, in winning the two-mile run. McEwen clipped more than four seconds from the record and lapped all but one of his 10 competitors—Toronto's Rich Ferguson.

Takes Third Spot

Jackie Carroll of Montreal, who holds the big ten 440-yard title for Michigan, came up from third place in the 500-yard run, when George Rhoden of Jamaica stumbled, and went on to beat out Mal Whitfield, the United States Army Air Force's star runner.

John Ross, of Oakville, Ont., won the Canadian Legion mile handily—for Michigan—with his nearest competitor, Jack Alexander of Montreal and Notre Dame University, 25 yards back.

George Lynch, a Torontonian, running for Michigan, won the 1,000-yard run. Van Bruner, Michigan's own product from Detroit won the 50-yard high hurdles in 6.3, equalling the meet record.

Toronto youngsters, representing three different clubs, romped off with most of the honors in the age divisions.

Walter (Pete) Sutton, a junior from the Toronto Track Club was the only double winner of the night, winning the 50-yard dash and 500-yard run.

Supplies Thrill

Rol Wallingford of Ottawa Glebe Collegiate supplied one of the biggest thrills of the night in winning the junior mile.

The race, with many in the field lapped, was soon a two-man affair. John Moule of Hamilton and Michigan had a 15-yard lead over Wallingford with half of the final lap completed. Then Wallingford called on all he had for his final bid and moved ahead in the final yard.

Toronto girls had an edge in the women's division, taking three events to Montreal's two. Shirley Eckel, a pretty blonde who has just turned 20, and the smallest in the field, caught the fancy of the crowd and was given a great hand for her win in the 50-yard open.

Joan Wood of Montreal Olympic Club won the 50-yard junior without difficulty, equalling the meet record in 6.2. She anchored her club's relay team in winning the junior relay.

The East York Club of Toronto won the women's open relay, Gwen Hobbins of the Toronto Track Club won the 50-yard dash in the juvenile class.

The University of Toronto two firsts were won by Doug Wilson and Varsity's relay team. Wilson won the 50-yard open dash in 5.6 and then, running second, helped his mates in winning the one-mile open relay.

Chambly County (Que.) High won the public school relay, and Delta Secondary School of Hamilton the high school relay.

Biltmores Trim Marlies 3-1, Take Semi-Finals

By The Canadian Press

Guelph Biltmores played second fiddle to Toronto Marlboros throughout almost all of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule. They gained sweet revenge Friday night.

The Bilts handed Marlies a 3-1 defeat before a packed Guelph arena and eliminated the Toronto Maple Leaf farm club from further Memorial Cup play. Guelph won the best-of-seven semi-finals four games to two and now awaits the winners of the St. Catharines-St. Michael's semi-final series.

This series is deadlocked at two games each with the fifth and final clash scheduled tomorrow afternoon at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

The defeat was a humiliating one for Marlboros, the league champions being out-played at every turn. In the course of 60 minutes of play, the Toronto club managed to get only six shots away at Marv Brewer in the Guelph nets. They went the entire second period without sending a puck in Brewer's direction.

Mercs Beat Stratford

In the O.H.A. Senior A finals, Owen Sound Mercurys hung on to their championship chances with a 5-3 win over the host Stratford Indians.

Indians lead the best-of-seven series 3-2.

The sixth game in this series will be played tonight at Owen Sound. Should Mercs win, the final class is scheduled Monday back in Stratford.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds bounced back into the thick of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals Friday night when they edged Noranda Copper Kings 2-1 in the Quebec mining community and squared the best-of-seven series at two games each. Fifth game is scheduled tonight in Noranda.

In the N.O.H.A. Junior A finals south Porcupine Combines made no mistake about it in taking a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven series when they drubbed Sudbury Wolves 10-2 at Timmins. The fourth game is scheduled tomorrow afternoon in Timmins.

Score Winners

Tom Stewart, Chuck Henderson and Danny Blair scored Guelph's three winning goals while Parker MacDonald spoiled Brewer's shutout with the lone Marlboro marker.

Tommy Burlington led the Owen Sound attack with a pair of goals while Roy Leckie, Mike Bukacheski and Bill McComb added the others. Denny Flanagan, Jackie White and Billy Flick were the Stratford scorers.

Ronny Lay banged in both of the Sault Ste. Marie tallies while Pat Petrucci garnered Noranda's lone goal.

Ross Kelly led the South Porcupine scorers with four goals. Bill Albert, Don Cox, Ab Demarchi, John McCord, Hi Chercoski and Jack Towers clicked for the remainder. Bill Burton and Mike Dozzi scored for Sudbury.

Edge Brockville 58-54

KINGSTON, March 22—(CP)—Regiopolis College Friday defeated Brockville C.I.V.S. 58-54 in the first game of their two-game, points-to-count Eastern Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball finals. The Kingston school holds an eight-point edge going into the second game, scheduled next Friday in Brockville.

Greenshirts Give Boot To Coach Lloyd Gross

KITCHENER, March 22 (CP)—Kitchener Greenshirts of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop Friday notified coach Lloyd Gross that he will not be retained in that capacity next season. No successor was named.

The Greenshirts finished in the sixth and final playoff spot in the 10-team Junior A circuit. They bowed out to St. Catharines in the first round of the playoffs.

PRECIOUS BONE

Sceptres and other insignia of early British kings were made of Narwhale bone, then a precious commodity.

Hank Thompson Hot With Giants

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22 (AP)—Hot news in the Giants' camp is the hitting and the all-around fire being exhibited by Hank Thompson, third-baseman who flopped last season and forced managed Leo Durocher to bring Bob Thomson in from centrefield.

Hank now looks like the fellow who hammered 20 home runs in 1950, drove across 91 runs and set a new National League double-play record for third sackers. Durocher doesn't know whether to believe his eyes. Hank, himself, says it's the McCoy.

"Of course I'm going to come back—all the way," he says. "That last year is just something you can forget about. I don't know how I could have been that bad."

Hank, who had played in 148 games the previous season, got into only 87 last year and was little help during the Giants' great flag drive. He drove in only 33 runs and wound up with a .235 mark.

Right now there is no crying need for Hank's services at third, but there will be when Willie Mays is told to don an army uniform. It will be extremely comforting to Durocher.

"I'm happy to play anywhere Leo wants me to," Bobby says, "but if I had my choice I guess it would be the outfield. Out there I feel there's a better chance of using my speed to advantage."

Cobourg Plans For Season, Names Officers

COBOURG, March 22. — Cobourg's intermediate baseball Legionnaires will be headed by the same slate of officers as in 1951, a meeting of the team decided here Thursday night. They are; president, Ed Campbell; vice-president, Jack Chapman; treasurer, R. M. McCulloch; escretary, M. Gordon; assistant treasurer, Fred Hempstead; transportation head, Ed Hogan.

The new executive is composed of G. Clinton, J. W. Burtt, Joe Delanty, Charlie Jackson, Lyle Willson, Stan Williams, Jack Ewart, C. Wilson, Bus Kelly, Jim Mason, Russ Taylor, R. D. Dodge, George Galbraith, Earl Hamilton, P. Gibson, Charlie Skelding, Max Smith, Doug Scott, Gord Stacey, R. Zealand, Dr. Gear and Bill Cosgrove.

Playing coaches this year will be Sonny Beckstead and George Campbell. Bob Crowe, a recent arrival from Peterborough, will turn out with the team and will consider a playing-coach role also. Several men are under discussion for the post of manager, vacated by Ross Zealand who led the team last year. Zealand, handicapped by lack of good pitching, piloted the club into third position but lost out in the first round of the league playdowns to Colborne.

Veteran catcher Zealand has announced his retirement from the game and with the departure of Dave Shorey the team needs a catcher. The meeting was told that a good receiver will be found in plenty of time for the opener here May 24, but his name was not disclosed.

Cobourg is a charter member of the Lakeshore loop which last year fielded six teams: Whitby, Bowmanville, Lindsay, Port Hope, Colborne, and the locals.

Lindsay, regarded as the strongest team in the group last year, are again looked upon as the club to beat. The arrival there of Karl Higgenbotham, star Negro U. S. hurler with the Colborne team last year, is believed to have given them the extra pitching strength needed to win an O.B.A. title, something they just failed to do last year.

G. Doherty Leads

Gord Doherty, of Austin's bowled a nifty three of 768 Thursday night to lead his team to victory at Playfair Lanes. Dave Taylor, of Grant and Loucks, led in single honors with a 297 effort. Other good scores among men were: T. Holyman 741 (278), W. Byrd 95 6(272), H. Foley 679, W. Gameby 673, F. Murray 660 (275) and G. Freeman and D. Whartman each with 651.

Yvonne Bartley captured top three among ladies with 658 while Jean Whiteside had high single of 256. Austin's led in total pinnage with 3103. Seven points were taken by A. & P. over Dominion Store and Austin's over Kesco. Combiens beat Grant and Louk's split 5 and 2.

With the league coming rapidly to a close, Knox are still in the lead with 149 points, followed by Austin's with 147, Harrison's 136, Kesco 132, Mustangs 127, J. J. James J. Braddock, then a comparative unknown, won a decision over Art Lasky in 15 rounds 17 years ago tonight to gain recognition as leading contender for the heavyweight boxing title. Less than three months later Braddock won the world crown with an upset victory over Max Baer, but he lost the title to Joe Louis in 1937.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The sensational four-tournament winning streak of Jack Burke, Jr., has shot the Houston, Tex., pro far ahead in the official Professional Golfers' Association money winning race for the winter tour.

Burke, 29, who scored consecutive wins at San Antonio, Houston, Baton Rouge and St. Petersburg, has collected $2,720, nearly $3,000 more than second place Cary Middlecoff of Memphis and better than $5,000 more than third place Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y.

The winnings, announced Friday in Chicago by the P.G.A., include competition through Thursday.

The 49th annual American Bowling Congress tournament opens tonight in Milwaukee. The tourney, which runs through June 14, will have a record prize list estimated at $450,000. Teams from 26 cities in the United States and Canada will start the ball rolling. The Canadian teams are from Toronto.

Madison Square Garden in New York has housed just about every type of sporting event but never has the big arena played host to competitors in five sports at the same time as it will tonight. There will be fencing, gymnastics, weight lifting, figure skating and a track meet all going at once. It's the Olmpic sports carnival to raise some $25,000 of the remaining $600,000 needed for United States athletes' expenses at the summer Olympic games in Helsinki.

In London a Ministry of Labor committee recommended Friday higher wages for England's professional soccer players and a limit of £15,000 on transfer fees. Most of the more than 3,000 players with the 92 English Football League clubs get less than the current top wage of £14 a week during the winter and £10 a week during the summer.

Willie Ketchum, manager of world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter, has been denied renewal of his licence by the New York State Athletic Commission. Robert Christenberry, commission chairman, said Friday in New York the action was taken Feb. 29 "for the best interests of boxing," but declined to elaborate. The ruling will prevent Ketchum from serving as manager or second in Ontario, with which New York State has a reciprocal agreement.

Sam Jethroe, fleet centrefielder of Boston Braves, suffered a possible chipped bone in his left wrist Friday in Clearwater, Fla., when he crashed into the fence during the Tribe's exhibition game with Philadelphia Phillies. He was assisted from the field and taken to hospital for an X-ray.

Indians Figured As Challenge To World Champs

LOS ANGELES, March 22 (AP)—Cleveland Indians, if you care for the advice of most of the major-league experts, will constitute a definite challenge to the defending New York Yankees.

Quite a few pick the Indians to finish in front in the American League scramble, a position they failed to reach by five games in 1951. And Al Lopez, starting his second season as chief of the Tribe, will admit that the Indians "could" win this time.

One astute critic of the game, Chicago writer Warren Brown, summed up the consensus in this manner:

"With their pitching, they ought to be a breeze—if—" he paused, and concluded, "if they get more hitting than they did last year."

Blessed With Pitching

Certainly the Tribe is blessed with pitching — three 20-game winners and one more who can return to the charmed group. They are Bob Feller (22-8), Early Wynn (20-13), Mike Garcia, (20-13), and Bob Lemon (17-14.

Add to these such men as Steve Gromek, who started or finished for a score of 16 wins, and possibly one or two more from the newcomer ranks.

The key man in the hitting department is Luke Easter. Handicapped by a lame left knee, the 230-pound Luke drove in 103 runs last year despite a batting average of .270.

Knee Mends

Easter's knee, operated on last fall, seems mended. He has looked sound of limb and agile afoot around first base.

Bobby Avila, the second-baseman, led the club with a rousing .305. Can he match it this year?

Third-baseman Al Rosen's .265 was below anticipation. But he knocked in 102 runs.

Surprise slugging comeback might well be outfielder Larry the year before got a lusty .326.

Doby, Dale Mitchell (.290) and Bob Kennedy (.246) are the outfield regulars. But a pair of youngsters might alter the picture a bit. They are Harry Simpson, who was often shifted from the outfield to Easter's first-base job, and rookie Jim Fridley, who hit .299 against Texas-league pitching last year.

Defensively, with Easter, Avila, Rosen and shortstop Ike Boone, the Tribe seems sound enough.

Hope Germany Build Barracks

OTTAWA, March 22 (CP). — Canada now is hoping Germany will finance construction of new barracks for the 27th Brigade as part of her contribution to joint Western defence.

Negotiations have been going on in Bonn as part of the general dickering over what Germany will provide when she joins the European defence community.

No final decision has been reached. The aim is to move the brigade from the Hannover area to the Soest area, east of the Ruhr industrial belt, this fall.

It was anticipated that Canada would have to foot bills for the new barracks, estimated to cost between $5,000,000 and $17,000,000.

No specific item for the bill is however, contained in the estimates for 1952-53 spending tabled in the Commons this week.

Canada has taken the stand that she should foot the bills for maintenance of the brigade.

SYDNEY, Australia, March 22—(Reuters). — A Liberal Party organizer, Douglas Date, was awarded $65 compensation because his little finger was broken in a handshake with another official. The Workers' Compensation Commission ruled that the Liberal Party was liable because Date was on duty when the "hearty handshake" took place.

1951 Drama Festival's Star Now Actor With Old Vic

By MURIEL NARRAWAY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 22 — (CP) — Sporting a luxuriant British-style moustache and speaking in clipped Cambridge accents, Canada's John Colicos came breezily to town to work for "peanuts" and study Shakespeeare on the poet's home grounds.

Now, installed in a one-roomed apartment in Chelsea and playing Shakespearian roles with London's famous Old Vic Company, the 23-year-old actor from Toronto and Montreal, winner of last year's Dominion Drama Festival best-actor award, is a stage nearer his ambitious dream. When he goes home he'd like to form his own, all-Canadian Shakespearian company.

"So far I've been extremely lucky," says the tall-well-built Colicos, who bears a facial resemblance, despite the moustache, to Britain's Sir Laurence Olivier. Within a week of his arrival in Britain last November, he had several outstanding offers—in Orson Wells' "Othello," in "Much Ado About Nothing" and a contract with the Old Vic Company.

When his present contract ends in June, there's a good chance he may land a part in "MacBeth," to be presented at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre in Stratford-on-Avon.

If he gets it, Colicos will work with such stars as Sir Ralph Richardson and film star Margaret Leighton, under the well-known Shakespearian dramatist, John Gielgud.

Plays in "King Lear"

"It's for chances like these that I came to Britain—to work for peanuts," said Colicos, who turned down a lavish American offer to study Shakespeare in the land where the poet lived and wrote. Some day, Colicos hopes, this experience will pay big dividends.

Colicos got his big chance a week ago. He had been playing the Captain in "King Lear" and understudying Stephen Murray in the lead role. Murray fell ill with laryngitis and the Canadian stepped in.

His performance was referred to by Alan Dent of the News Chronicle as "astonishingly fine."

The Communist Daily Worker said in a front-page review: "His performance in the last scenes was of a stature to be mentioned in the same breath as Laurence Olivier's and Donald Wolfit's Lear."

Colicos' Canadian home is a six-room cottage in Montreal (2584 Lacoste Ave.). If he gets the job in "MacBeth" there'll be a six-month tour of South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Canada, starting next January.

Colicos spends his free time wandering round old parts of London. He gets a kick, for instance, out of the fact his Chelsea apartment is within a stone's throw of the one-time residence of Nell Gwynn, Mistress of Charles II.

Colicos won his Canadian drama award for his portrayal of Charles II, in a play by the late George Bernard Shaw.

WORKS FOR PEANUTS — Twenty-three-year-old John Colicos, of Toronto and Montreal, last year's winner of the Dominion Drama Festival best-actor award, now is acting in "King Lear" with London's Old Vic Theatre Company. He says he went to London to work for "peanuts" so he can study Shakespeare on the poet's own grounds.

Movie Column

Sea Stories Popular Film Subjects

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (AP) —The movie industry is at sea.

War pictures seem to be on the wane. Westerns, which come and go in importance, also appear on the downbeat. The most notable trend in movie subjects is in the direction of the ocean.

The trend appears to be duplicating what has happened with best-selling books. The fiction leader for many months has been "The Caine Mutiny", and closely following it was "The Cruel Sea", aonther saga of the Second World War. The non-fiction leader has been "The Sea Around Us", a lucid account of submarine life and phenomina.

Now the movies are getting into the act. Every studio has sea stories in the works. And one ocean saga often leads to another, for an interesting reason. The construction of a sea-going vessel on a movie stage is an expensive matter, and studios like to use the set for more than one film.

For instance, Paramount built an 18th century English vessel for "Botany Bay". The set has since been used for two other films, "Caribbean Gold" and "Hurricane Smith". MGM has constructed a replica of the Mayflower for "The Plymouth Adventure". Now the studio is hunting around for other sea subjects. A sequel to "Mutiny on the Bounty" may be one of them.

Five Sea Films

At 20th Century Fox, there are no less than five sea films being prepared. They are "Single-Handed", a Second World War story by C. S. Forester; "Nearer My God To Thee", about the Titanic; "Face In The Deep", concering a deep-sea diver; "12 Mile Reef", a story of sponge fishing, and an untitled submarine opus.

Warners has "Sea Chase", the story of a German U-boat, and subjects concerning the U.S.S. Marblehead and the four chaplains who lost their lives at sea. U-I has made "The World in His Arms" with Gregory Peck, "Against All Flags" with Errol Flynn, and "Yankee Buccaneer" with Jeff Chandler.

Two producers have latched onto best-sellers. Howard Hughes bought "The Sea Around Us," and Stanley Kramer now owns "The Caine Mutiny." It's still doubtful whether the navy will lend cooperation to the latter subject, however.

TORONTO, March 22—(CP)—A Federal Bill of Rights for racial minorities was advocated last night by Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg.

Speaking in Holy Blossom Temple, he said the recent action of the South African Supreme Court in nullifying the anti-colored suffrage laws of the Malan government demonstrated the importance of making the protection of minorities as specific constitutional principle. He added:

"Race discrimination is being practised in Canada against colored persons, not to the degree of bias in the United States but to an extent inconsistent with the avowed aimed and principles of the United Nations."

X-Rays Reveal Two Saws In Jackson's False Foot

Many Homeless, Damage Heavy In Weekend Storm

TORONTO, March 24. (CP)—Wind and water went on a rampage during the weekend along Southern Ontario's Great Lakes shoreline. Hundreds of residents were driven out of their homes as winds that reached gusts of 60 miles an hour lashed the water. Huge waves pounded the shore. The storm was the tail-end of a disturbance that earlier stirred up tornadoes in the southern United States. Flooding waters of Lake St. Clair forced some 250 residents out of their homes in the Windsor suburbs of Riverside and Tecumseh Saturday night. Thousands of acres of land near Point Pelee, 35 miles southeast of Windsor, were covered with a foot of water after Lake Erie waves pounded holes through a half-mile-long dike.

44 Families Homeless

In the Toronto suburb of Long Branch, 44 families were made homeless as waves tore at their houses. Twenty-one houses were condemned as unfit for human habitation in an on-the-spot check by village councillors.

The worst flood in 30 years forced many families from their homes in the lake-front area of Oshawa. A motorist raced up and down the road with his horn blowing at 4 a.m. to warn residents of the danger.

In the Hamilton Beach area, two cottages were demolished and four others damaged by the storm. Lakefront roads were deep in water and many were impassable.

Volunteer Aid

Red Cross units, the Canadian Army Service Corps and municipal workers were called in at various centres along the Lake Ontario shore to aid and care for families forced to evacuate their homes. In Long Branch, six evacuated families were housed in the Salvation Army citadel.

Throughout the Toronto eastern beaches area, docks, boathouses and trees were damaged or knocked down by wind and waves. Residents said the unusually high level of the lake increased the amount of damage.

About 300 homes on the islands in Toronto harbor was flooded. The main street of Centre Island was three feet under water. Several houses had brick facing torn away by the wind.

At Port Stanley, 25 miles south of London, heavy waves broke up part of the east pier and washed away embankments where commercial fishing tugs dock.

King Farouk Dissolves His Parliament

CAIRO, March 24 (AP)—King Farouk today dissolved parliament's Wafdist-dominated lower house and called a new general election May 18.

The royal action was requested by the cabinet of independent Prime Minister Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha.

Farouk's decree also ordered the new chamber of deputies to meet May 31.

The dissolution did not affect the senate, which also is dominated by the anti-British Wafd faction. There was speculation, however, that the government might soon request Farouk to make changes in the senate membership to remove this Wafd majority. Only three-fifths of the senators are elected; the rest are appointed by the king.

Martial Law Continues

Interior Minister Ahmed Mortada El Maraghy Bey told reporters no provision had been made yet for the lifting of martial law, which was clamped on Egypt on Jan. 26 after the disastrous fire riots in Cairo.

He added, however, that the government would take "all necessary measures to ensure a free election."

Propaganda Minister Farid Zalouk said Sunday night that martial law would be lifted for the election period.

The dissolution came two days after talks began between Hilaly and British ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson, seeking a settlement of Egypt's demands that British troops quit the Suez Canal zone and that Britain surrender the Sudan to Egypt.

A British embassy spokesman said the elections would not affect the negotiations, which were still in the "exploratory stage." Another authoritative British source said Britain "certainly hopes that the negotiations will be concluded before election day."

Miners Want Italians Leave

DONCASTER, Yorkshire, England, March 24 (CP)—A meeting of some 500 British miners from nearby Bullcroft colliery voted Sunday for the withdrawal of 31 Italians employed at the pit.

About 200 voted for withdrawal, 300 abstained and 17 voted against. The colliery employs 1,600 miners.

The meeting followed a strike of English haulage workers who are under-age and thus receive less pay than the Italians.

Melandri Sant 26, spokesman for the Italian miners, addressed the meeting in broken English.

"When we came to this country last June you do not know what it meant to us," he said. "Your people gave us a chance to believe in life again. Do not condemn us for mistakes or blame us all for what might affect only a few."

Nobody spoke against the Italians. But posters chalked on walls outside the meeting hall said: "Bullcroft wants a good clean-out. What is going to happen [illegible] of unemployed? Our lads came out of concentration camps in Italy with no flesh on their bones."

Legislature Committee Approves Embargo Bill

TORONTO, March 24 (CP). — The Ontario Legislature's Agriculture Committee also approved a bill which will give the government power to put an embargo on all shipments of livestock from areas affected by disease.

C. D. Graham, Deputy Agriculture Minister, said the bill was the result of the recent Saskatchewan outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

The bill also provides for licencing of community livestock sales, and for records to be kept at sales yards of buyers and sellers of livestock.

Mr. Graham said that one steer which had come from the diseased area of Western Canada passed through three sales yards after arriving in Ontario.

Ask Congress To Admit 300,000 Extra Europeans

KEY WEST, Fla., March 24—(AP)—President Truman today asked Congress to open immigration gates to admit 300,000 additional Europeans during the next three years. Many escaped "victims of Communist tyranny" would be included.

This request highlighted a program drafted at Truman's vacation quarters here asking Congress to: provide aid for victim's escaping from Communist tyranny; continue United States partipication in the international effort to assist migration and resettlement of persons from the over-populaed areas of Western Europe; authorize additional immigration into the U.S. to aid in alleviating the problems created by Communist tyranny and overpopulation in Western Europe.

No estimate of the cost of the three-year "emergency period" immigration was contained in the message. It suggested immigrants be brought in at the rate of 100,000 a year.

The message followed a presidential directive Sunday allocating $4,300,000 of mutual security funds for immediate use to form able-bodied men and specialists escaping from behind the Iron Curtain into elements of the military forces supporting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Truman said as a result of repressive measures, "some 15,000 to 20,000 Germans are slipping over the border from the Soviet zone of Germany and crossing into Western Germany every month".

There are about 18,000 persons from other Communist areas already west of the Iron Curtain and they are coming in at the rate of about 1,000 a month, Truman added.

Union Expels McGuire In Dispute

Found Guilty By Board On Several Charges; Mosher Supported

OTTAWA, March 24. (CP)—J. E. McGuire, national secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other Transport Workers (C.C.L.) has been removed from office and expelled from the union, the union's national executive board announced today.

A board statement said the action was taken after Mr. McGuire was found guilty of a series of charge including circulation of false and misleading information, "villification of a fellow officer and member, namely the national president", A. R. Mosher.

He also was found guilty of "disregarding constitutional authority without proper approval" and "general disregard for supervisory authority".

Asked Postponment

The national executive said that the union's president, Mr. Mosher, withdrew from the board during the hearing of Mr. McGuire's case, except to appear as a witness. Mr. McGuire did not appear but sent a telegram requesting a postponement because of ill-health.

The executive of the 28,000-member union said that "despite his claim of illness" Mr. McGuire was "carrying on extensive activities from his home, was able to travel, organize and attend meetings". He will have the right to appeal to the next convention of the union, at Ottawa in September.

The excutive board said it is not unmindful of the many years of membership of Mr. McGuire on the board "but this fact cannot mitigate the seriousness of his conduct".

The board's action, predicted last week, is the climax of about four years of friction between the 71-year-old president of the union and his 54-year-old secretary-treasurer.

The statement said the "board's action is a vindication of the position taken by President A. R. Mo-

LAKEWOOD, Wis., March 24 (AP).—Two five-year-old youngsters perished in the winterbound wilderness of the Nicolet National Forest after becoming lost in a storm Saturday but a third child found alive today, huddled with her dead companions in an abandoned outhouse.

The dead were Mary Ann's sister Cathy, and their cousin, Steven Kennedy, both five.

Woman Confesses Planning Reno Theft

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., March 24—(AP)—Mrs. Marie Jeanne d'Arc Michaud said Saturday she made all arrangements for the Feb. 29 $1,500,000 robbery of the home of La Vere Redfield at Reno, Nev.

Mrs. Michaud, 36, a native of Ste. Agathe, Que., told Platt Cline, editor of The Flagstaff Daily Sun, in an interview before she started back to Reno in custody: "I planned the whole job and made all arrangements.

"My parents taught me to be generous and to help needy people."

"I intended to use the money for good purposes.

"That old miser had a couple of million lying around the house, besides many other millions. I decided this money should be placed in circulation."

Minden Crash Kills Woman

MINDEN, March 24. (Staff)—Fatally injured when a truck ploughed into a small English-model car driven by her son, Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Edythe Hicks, 51, Ingolsby, 10 miles northeast of Minden, died before she could be pried from the wreckage. Two of Mrs. Hicks' sons, Harold 11, and Charles 17, were also injured in the crash and were taken to Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay. Hospital authorities Sunday described the condition of Harold Hicks, who received compound fractures of both legs, and several cuts and bruises as satisfactory. Charles Hicks is recovering from chest injuries and cuts.

Reginald F. Hicks, 26, driver of the car, escaped with a shaking up.

Skidded On Snow

The accident occurred seven miles north east of Minden. Hicks, who was driving toward Minden, applied his brakes on the snow-packed road. The light car skidded into the opposite traffic lane, just under the brow of a hill.

An oncoming truck, driven by Leslie Reynolds, Guilford township, was unable to stop, and struck the car broadside, on the side where Mrs. Hicks was riding.

Police had to use steel bars to free Mrs. Hicks who died before she could be removed.

Reynolds received a slight bruise on his right knee and a passenger in the truck Reynolds was driving received minor scratches.

The Hicks car was a total wreck.

Dr. H. L. Carrol of Haliburton attended at the scene and said an inquest will be held.

OPP constable A. R. Edwards of Minden investigated.

Det. Tong Dies In Toronto 19 Days After Being Shot

TORONTO, March 24. (CP)—Eddie Tong, the sergeant of detectives who was shot down 19 days ago by two gunmen, died early Sunday. Charged with murder are Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, captured in gun fights with police in Montreal. They previously had been charged with the attempted murder of the 48-year-old Tong and his partner, Det.-Sgt. Roy Perry. Perry is in good condition in hospital, his arm shattered by the gunmen's bullets.

Tong died at 12:05 a.m. when a blood clot reached his heart. He had been wounded by a .45-calibre bullet that ripped through both his lungs and severed his spine.

Hopes had been held for his recovery, As late as Friday night his doctors expressed satisfaction with his progress and hoped to operate this week to remove the bullet. But Saturday night he took a turn for the worse.

The men charged with his murder were wounded in separate gun battles with police that resulted in their capture. Suchan is being held in a Montreal hospital until he is well enough to be removed to Toronto. Jackson was brought from Montreal Friday.

Burial Wednesday

Tong will be buried Wednesday with full police honors.

Mayor Allan Lamport, in Florida for a few days, said the city, through the police commission, would take care of Mrs. Tong and her two children, Margaret 21, and Raymond, 13.

A native of Leeds, Yorkshire, Tong joined the force in 1926 and in 1933 he became a detective. Since then he worked on every major crime in the Toronto area.

[illegible] suspicious car in the west end March 6. Tong stepped from the police car and was shot down. Before he lapsed into unconsciousness he told a witness that he thought he recognized the gunman.

The manhunt swung into action. The next night Suchan was shot and captured in Montreal. Four days later Jackson was also shot and taken prisoner in Montreal.

Decide To Keep Talks Secret

MUNSAN, Korea, March 24 (AP) — Allied and Communist truce negotiators huddled for three hours today, discussing possible secret talks on how to exchange prisoners of war. A United Nations spokesman said "we almost came to agreement."

"We decided to talk about it for only 20 minutes Tuesday," said Col. George W. Hickman.

He reported most of Monday's session was spent in debating "limitations that might be placed on each side during an executive session."

The U.N. proposed secret negotiations Sunday in a move to speed agreement on a Korean armistice. As a preliminary step the Allies ordered an immediate partial news blackout on the prisoner talks.

An official allied spokesman said U.N. negotiators felt preliminary discussions concerning off-the-record sessions should "be considered for the time being at least in a quasi-confidential status."

Use Two New Drugs

OTTAWA, March 24 (CP). — Two new drugs, rimifon and marsilid, developed in the United States for tuberculosis treatment, now are being used for clinical research in Canada and soon will be tried on Indian and Eskimo T.B. patients, Health Minister Martin said today.

Fire Threatens A-Energy Operations As Transformer Destroyed In B.C. Plant

TRAIL, B.C., March 24 (CP) — Fire threatened one of Canada's atomic energy operations for 45 minutes Sunday night.

Firemen quickly brought under contol a fire in the transformer room of the hydrogen section of a chemical plant at nearby Warfield. The transformer was a complete loss but no one was hurt.

Officials of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, biggest lead-zinc chemical producer in the world, said an investigation is planned.

The chemical plant is part of the company's huge operation in this area. Some heavily-guarded plants in the district produce heavy water for atomic energy.

But there was no indication whether the plant hit by fire is one of those engaged in the production of heavy water. Details of the hush-hush atomic project here have never been disclosed.

At the time of the fire, a tremendous power surge brightened lights throughout Trail, a city of 15,000 about 400 miles east of Vancouver. Warfield is a mile from the centre of the city.

Cause of the fire and amount of damage were not known.

Blades Detected In Demonstration Of New Equipment

TORONTO, March 24. (CP)—Two hacksaw blades have been found in the wood-and-metal artificial foot of Leonard Jackson, police said today. The foot was X-rayed in the Don jail hospital after Jackson was brought here from Montreal last week to face a charge of attempted murder in the shooting earlier this month of Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong. Tong died Sunday and the charge has been raised to murder. Jackson and Steve Suchan, now also charged with murder in connection with the shooting, were captured in Montreal.

The blades were detected in a "demonstration" for jail officials who have been considering buying the X-ray equipment as an aid in searching newly-admitted prisoners.

Well Hidden

Police said they searched the leg because they believe Jackson used the same method of concealing the blades when he escaped from the jail last November.

Police said the blades were hidden in such a way that only the X-ray machine could detect them. The foot had been carefully examined on several occasions previously by law officers.

Said one official:

"It shows you how ingenious Jackson is. You can't be too careful with him. I don't know where he obtained the blades. Probably they were there all the time."

After the discovery police made sure there were no more blades hidden and gave the foot back to Jackson.

Truman Tackles Steel Controversy

KEY WEST, March 24—(AP)—President Truman and Defence Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson waded into the steel controversy today, with Wilson declaring a steel strike "would have frightful results on the mobilization program and the economy as a whole."

Wilson flew from Washington Sunday night with a recommendation by the Wage Stabilization Board that the United Steel Workers' Union (C.I.O.) be allowed a three-installment wage increase that will amount to 17½ cents an hour by Jan. 1, and other benefits.

Coupled with this was the estimate by steel manufacturers that they would have to raise their prices by possibly $12 a ton to pay for the wage board's proposals.

BONN, March 24 (Reuters)—The big three western powers in their answer to Russia's note calling for a conference to draw up a treaty with a united Germany, will insist that Germany be left free to join the European army, a senior British source said today.

Won't Allow M.P's To See Atomic Tests

LONDON, March 24 (AP) — Britain's forthcoming atomic bomb test in Australia is going to be so secret that even parliamentary observers will be barred.

Prime Minister Churchill told the Commons today "I can hold out no expectation that parliamentary observers will be able to attend."

Clement Attlee, former prime minister, recalled that [illegible] ers "to the tests in the Pacific which the Americans arranged," and suggested that was "a useful precedent."

Churchill said that did "not affect the substance of the answer I have just given."

Investigate Reports Of Graft At Secret Base

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) —Reports that millions of dollars have been wasted on a super-secret air base in Greenland—described as near the North Pole and on an air route to Russia — are under study by United States Senate investigators.

Public hearings may be ordered this week by chairman Lyndon Johnson (Dec.-Tex.) of the Senate armed services sub-committee on preparedness.

Johnson's criticism of "waste, inefficiency and downright graft" on an air base project in North Africa brought a drastic military-headquarters order for reforms Friday.

Army Secretary Frank Pace directed the chief of army engineers to relieve the top officers in charge of the North African construction.

Widen Search For Five On Missing Plane

HALIFAX, March 24 (CP) — Thirteen planes took off today to renew the search for a Maritimes Central Airways plane that vanished Saturday with five men aboard. But the main search force was grounded by weather.

Six R.C.A.F. Lancasters took off from Goose Bay, Labrador, and were joined by seven United States air force, navy and coast guard planes from Newfoundland bases in scouring broken terrain for the twin-engined Dakota that disappeared on a hop from Saint John, N.B., to Goose Bay.

Some 30 R.C.A.F and civilian planes were grounded at Maritime bases because of freezing rain and snow over the search area south of Labrador.

At least 10 Canadian and U.S. bases from Massachusetts to Labrador are involved in the operation, described here as the largest ever on the east coast.

A 26-plane force Sunday searched 28,000 square miles of territory in the hope of spotting a trace of the missing plane. The focal point of the search is the Bay of Chaleur area.

Para Rescue Units Ready

A ground search party is standing by at Chatham, N.B., and para rescue units are ready at Westover, Mass., and Greenwood, N.S., to go into action if needed.

The crew members of the missing plane are Capt. John McClatchie of Charlottetown, former bush pilot and a native of Kenora, and J. E. Boudreau of Moncton, N.B. The plane's three passengers were identified today as James A. Robb, 51, of Westmount, Que.; David Herbert of Rexton, N.B., formerly of Shippegan, N.B., and B. A. Kaminski, a mechanic

Accident Foils Holdup Youth

BARRIE, March 24 (CP) — Charles Davison of Toronto deliberately caused an accident on a highway 20 miles south of here Saturday in an effort to thwart a 17-year-old youth who was forcing him at gunpoint to drive to Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The 26-year-old insurance investigator picked up Ernest Gilbert of Waubaushene on the outskirts of Orillia. The youth allegedly pulled a revolver from his pocket and ordered Davison to drive to Niagara Falls.

[illegible] found an opportunity to attract the attention of other motorists when a high wind wrenched up the hood of his car. After trying to sideswipe a passing truck, he ran into the ditch.

Gilbert was charged with carrying an offensive weapon.

Hams, RCAF Help Rescue Pair In Bush For Week

ROBERVAL, Que., March 24 —(CP)—Combined efforts of amateur radio operators, the R.C.A.F. search and rescue squadron and fellow-workers brought about the rescue Saturday of a bush pilot and his young assistant, lost in Quebec's northern wasteland for a week.

R. B. Lee, 29, of Oakville, Ont., and Richard Everett, 19, of Ville St. Laurent, a Montreal suburb, were found on the shores of Lake Evans, 250 miles northwest of here and only 100 miles east of James Bay. They were equipped to spend more than a month there.

Lack of fuel forced them to land their ski-equipped plane in the snow-covered wilds March 17 while returning from a flight to bring supplies to an Indian camp at Corvette Lake, 300 miles northwest of here.

Strong winds pushed them off course and they lost their bearings. They radioed their base and described the surroundings, but the description—a lake with clear, brownish water in flat country—fitted more than 100 in the region.

The R.C.A.F. search and rescue squadron at Trenton, Ont., sent two planes last week to help in the search. Three more aircraft followed Saturday, bringing to 40 the number of personnel working from the R.C.A.F. base at Bagotville.

At dusk Saturday, the plane was located by a pilot of Lee's employers, Mont Laurier Company of Roberval, although news didn't reach civilization until Sunday afternoon.

New Formula To Determine Milk Prices

TORONTO, March 24—(CP)—A four-point formula to determine fluid milk prices to be paid to farmers will be tried out this year Agriculture Minister Kennedy told representatives of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture today.

The Federation presented a brief to the Cabinet in which it asked for a formula for producer milk prices based on: Weekly salaries and wages of labor; the wholesale price index; cost of production on the farm, including labor and feed, and prices received on milk by cheese, concentrated milk and cream producers.

Premier Frost told the delegation the Cabinet is in favor of establishing some formula on a trial and error basis. He suggested it be tried out in several districts before any province-wide legislation is introduced.

Need Larger Zones

Cliff Weaver, chairman of the Dairy Producers' Co-ordinating Board which presented the brief with the Agriculture Federation, said larger zones are needed before a formula can be tried out.

"The government will take it as policy that this be tried out," Col. Kennedy said. "Zoning changes must go with it. The Milk Control Board should try it out."

The federation also asked a wide-open advertising campaign to sell more Canadian cheese.

The immediate future of the cheese marketing situation is dark, an official of the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board said. Cheese was piling up in warehouses, a surplus of 5,000 boxes was expected by the end of the week and the board had funds to buy only 6,000 boxes.

The brief also opposed any change in color regulations covering margarine, the use of substitutes in milk products and the sale of milk with low butterfat content.

It noted there was an "inspired opposition" to the present margarine-color regulations, which keep margarine paler than butter.

Burying, Building Task For Tornado-Torn States

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 24. (AP)—The living worked grimly at burying and rebuilding today in six tornado-torn, flood afflicted southern states in which 235 died and 1,100 were hurt. In small, partly-wrecked churches throughout the region Sunday half-dazed people clustered for funeral services.

The normal Sunday quiet of small towns was broken often by the chugging of bulldozers laboring at the debris, the rattle of trucks and the clumping of boards being piled.

Survivors of the disastrous weekend picked at what was left of their homes searching for something salvageable.

Arkansas alone reported 135 dead, 711 injured and 1,452 families—thousands homeless — affected by the winds.

In basements of churches, schools and armories, Salvation Army and Red Cross workers struggled to feed, house and clothe those left desolate.

Damage In Millions

An accurate estimate of damage was impossible but it was expected to reach into the tens of millions of dollars.

Doctors and nurses, eyes red from lack of sleep, worked to near exhaustion to aid the injured.

Arkansas' Governor Sid McMath appealed directly to President Truman for funds to help the state rehabilitate itself.

It was the most disastrous weekend of wind-swept terror since March 18, 1925, when 689 persons died in Illinois, Missouri and Indiana.

The storms ripped into Arkansas Friday afternoon and cut a deadly swath from the southwest corner to the northwest tip.

Other storms formed in Mississippi and skipped into West Tennessee the same day, reached a 300-mile-an-hour velocity.

Other storms boiled up in Kentucky and Tennessee. Then in North Alabama Saturday a twister kicked up at Hartselle.

Western Oil Support Strong On Exchange

TORONTO, March 24 — (CP)—Slowly strengthening western oil support today edged the Stock Exchange's index to another record high. Golds also strengthened but Industrials dipped.

Canadian Southern sparked the western oil advance, climbing $1.50 following reports of a light crude strike in Saskatchewan Central Explorers, Commonwealth Petroleum, Jupiter, Canadian Williston, Royalite and Western Homestead also rose strongly.

Agricultures, foods and constructions led industrials lower with a scattered list of fractional declines. Papers and manufacturing companies slipped but refining oils and banks turned upward.

Base Metals were mixed as Falconbridge, Ontario Pyrites, Sherritt-Gordon, United Asbestos and United Lead strengthened while Eureka, Labrador, Quebec Manitou and Torbrit weakened.

Senior golds sagged as Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore and Wright-Hargreaves eased. Secondary issues posted a majority of penny advances.

Besides Isachsen station on Ellef Island, flights will be made to Mould Bay on Prince Patrick Island and to Alert and Eureka on Ellesmere Island. Prince Patrick and Ellesmere are both a few miles south of Ellef but the former is bisected on the map by the latter by 35 degrees west longitude.

Ottawa Offers 63-Cent Price

OTTAWA, March 24 (CP). — The federal government has offered to buy canned pork at approximately 63.8 cents a pound in an attempt to direct Canada's meat surplus into canning factories, federal officials disclosed today.

However, the surplus, caused by inter-Provincial marketing disruptions and the United States embargo on Canadian livestock and meat resulting from foot-and-mouth disease is continuing to grow.

Officials said the problem may be brought before the cabinet with a recommendation for a federal meat disposal program under which marketing for pork, beef and lamb may be placed under the control of some federal agency.

The American embargo does not include canned meat and the decision to grant price support for his product was in line with federal hope that part of the surplus would be disposed of in U.S. and other foreign markets.

Discuss Lifting Livestock Embargo

By The Canadian Press

British Columbia and Alberta scheduled formal talks today aimed at lifting the west coast province's embargo on southern Alberta livestock and against any prairie meats.

Agriculture Minister David Ure of Alberta took the stand that B.C. shouldn't keep out southern Alberta livestock because foot-and-mouth disease never appeared in Alberta herds and the outbreak in Southern Saskatchewan was under control.

"Our farmers have been most patient and have taken serious financial losses," he said on his arrival in Victoria to attend the talks.

sher, who the board found, had been subject to repeated attacks by Mr. McGuire".

Unpleasant Experience

Mr. Mosher, who is also president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, commenting on the board's findings, said: "I do not think I am thin-skinned or vindictive. I can, and do, readily forgive any attack on me personally but my duty and responsibility to the membership which has honored me with its confidence since our organization was established in 1908, is something that cannot be brushed aside. I have had occasion to perform many unpleasant tasks in my 44 years in office, but this most recent experience was the worst".

There was no immediate comment from Mr. McGuire.

One point of resentment between the pair was believed to be the fact that Mr. Mosher is staying in office well beyond the 65-year-old mark at which the C.B.R.E. pensions officials.

The rift came to a head about a month ago when the C.B.R.E.'s official publication, edited by Mr. McGuire, came out with a sharp criticism of C. H. Millard of Toronto, Canadian Director of the powerful United Steel Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

Seek New Vote On Tobacco Bd.

TORONTO, March 24—(CP)—A delegation of Southern Ontario Tobacco Growers today asked the support of the Ontario Legislature's agriculture committee in obtaining another vote this spring on the question of an all-grower Tobacco Marketing Board.

Stanley Smith of Port Stanley, spokesman for the 11-man delegation, said that a similar referendum last year failed because of "unfair publicity" and a provision that any grower not voting was counted as opposed to the new plan.

Tobacco growers wanted to break away from the present Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association, Mr. Smith said, because they found that any change to improve the farmers' position could be vetoed by the five directors representing the buyers on the Association.

The price of tobacco crops was no longer negotiated, he said, but was on a "take it or leave it basis."

He asked that ballots on a referendum should be secret, and that any new plan should be adopted on a two-thirds vote of all growers voting, instead of two-thirds of all growers affected.

New Defence Weapon

Canada Building Air-To-Air Guided Missile

OTTAWA, March 24 (CP). — Dr. O. M. Solandt, Canada's top military scientist, says Canada is building a new type of air-to-air guided missile as one aspect of secret defence preparations against the possibility of new and unorthodox weapons being used should a third world war break out.

The chairman of Canada's defence Research Board told a gathering of some 450 professional civil servants on Saturday "there is a strong possibility" that not only atomic, but biological and chemical weapons will be used in such a war and that Canada is preparing to meet such an attack "and, if necessary, retaliate."

Speaking before the annual convention of the Professional Institute of Public Service, Dr. Solandt made these disclosures of Canada's hush-hush defence preparations:

1. The air-to-air guided missile which may be launched from a fighter aircraft to knock down attacking bombers is being developed for the R.C.A.F. at the Canadian armament research and development establishment at Valcartier.

2. New types of respirators and protective clothing to guard soldiers and civilians against atomic radiation and chemical attack are being planned at the Defence Research Chemical Laboratories in Ottawa.

3. The naval research establishments at Halifax and Esquimalt, B.C., are working on problems of anti-submarine warfare. New anti-tank guns are under construction at the Valcartier armament centre.

4. Problems associated with Arctic warfare, including movement of military transport over barren wastes and ways of protecting military forces against the Arctic's biting frost, are being worked out at the Churchill military laboratories on the western shores of Hudson Bay.

Even the Chalk River atomic project, geared to peacetime research, is doing work of importance to military strength, said Dr. Solandt.

"Although the work of the project is primarily directed toward the peaceful application of nuclear physics, it is inevitable that reasearch in this field will produce results of first-rate importance to defence.

"In addition, it has a direct responsibility for research and development on radiation detection instruments for the armed forces and for civil defence."

But a big block in the effort to prepare for any eventuality is the lack of agreement on the standardization of weapons among western powers.

"Canada," said Dr. Solandt, "has a vital intrest in standardization. Ideally, we would like to see the United States and Britain using identical weapons. Our forces then would be spared the recurrent dilemma presented by rival weapons and we could use our industrial resources to greatest advantage in support not only of our own services but those of our Allies."

Vancouver Father Says 2 Playmates Drowned Son

Vancouver, March 24 (CP) — The father of a boy, drowned in the Fraser River in 1950, believes his son was murdered by a playmate.

He has asked that the case be reopened and the Vancouver Police Commission will request Attorney-General Gordon Wismer to conduct an investigation.

Arthur Secora, 9-year-old son of Carl L. Secora, died in the Fraser River here Aug. 20, 1950. His death was listed by police as accidental drowning.

At a police commission meeting Secora claimed he was not permitted to identify his son's body in the city morgue and that an inquest was never held.

Police Chief Walter Mulligan, who gave the report of the case to the commission, admitted his detectives did not complete their investigation.

Chief Mulligan said a letter, believed to be from a crank, was sent to police charging that two playmates with young Secora threw him in the Fraser. The chief said his men had not interviewed the two boys reported to have been with Secora.

"The detectives told us to keep still until they found something definite. That is why we have waited until now, as we haven't heard anything more," said Secora.

Soccer Fans Wreck Walls In Rush To Get Tickets

LONDON, March 24 (Reuters).—Thousands of soccer fans stampeded here Sunday brushed aside police cordons and charged down two brick walls in a rusr to buy tickets for one of the capital's biggest sporting events of the season.

Dozens were trampled underfoot and at least two were taken to hospital.

The big event—to come off next Saturday — is Arsenal versus Chelsea, two London teams, in the semi-final for the Football Association Cup, the premier soccer award.

Crowds started to form outside the rival grounds, several miles aaprt late, Saturday night. Wrapped in blankets, they sang, lit fires, and cooked meals over crude stoves while they waited for the gates to open.

At dawn Sunday, other crowds descended on the two grounds. Subway and road transport was thrown into chaos.

Find Horome Helps Kill Some Cancers

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Reporter.

BOSTON, March 24 (AP). — The male sex hormones can change women's bodies so that their hopeless cancers are hit or killed by X-rays, it was disclosed today.

The change is mysterious, and occurs inside body cells. The body cells become vulnerable to X-rays which they weren't before.

Four out of five women getting the hormone plus X-rays are seemingly well today—a year later. Earlier X-rays apparently had done little good. All had cancers of the cervix, the next of the womb. Surgery wouldn't help.

This new hormone plus X-rays may open the way to more life-saving, possibly in other forms of cancer.

It was disclosed at the outset of tour of cancer centres sponsored by the American Cancer Society to help tell the public what their dollars for cancer research are doing.

This double treatment was described by Drs. John B. and Ruth Graham, husband-and-wife team of Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Ruth Graham found she could predict pretty accurately whether X-rays would really help women with these cancers. Her prediction was based upon learning how much the normal cells of the cervix were damaged by X-rays. Women whose cells showed little change were likely to die soon.

Animal tests showed that the male sex hormone made normal cells more easily damaged by X-rays. The same proved true of humans.

Gunshot Breaks Drugstore Pane

CAMPBELLFORD, March 24—(ENS)—Campbellford police are looking for the person who fired a shot through the plate glass window of Loucks' Pharmacy on Front St. Friday afternoon.

Arthur K. Loucks, optometrist and owner of the drug store was examining eyes at the time the shot was fired. No one in the store knew just what had happened for a few moments. The bullet could not be found inside the store, and did not appear to strike anything in the building.

Only evidence of a shot being fired is a small hole in the plate glass, clean on the outside but splintered for an area the size of a silver dollar on the inside. The size of the hole suggests an air rifle was used and police are of the belief it must have ben a high powered air rifle, as a pellet from an ordinary air rifle would bounce off the thick plate glass, unless fired at very close range.

Chief Constable George H. Hardy has been working on the case for two days, trying to locate the rifle, or anyone who saw a person with a rifle on Front Street.

Motorcyclists Plan New Constitution

COBOURG, March 24 (ENS)—Constitution of the newly-organized Northumberland and Durham Motorcycle Club was discussed at a well-attended meeting held Sunday in the town hall. There was a representation from Cobourg, Port Hope and Campbellford.

A letter from Don White of Toronto, chairman of the Ontario Centre of the Canadian Motorcycle Association, welcomed the new club to the membership of the C.M.A. and assured the club of the co-operation of the C.M.A. in staging competitive events. Mr. White said that he would ride down to Cobourg when the weather became better and would meet the club members and also look over the track at Baltimore.

"Did I agree to all that when I signed the contract?"

This is the sixteenth picture in the Examiner's Baby Picture-Quote contest. For the first five days of each week the Examiner will publish a baby picture and quote from the collection of Constance Bannister and on Saturday will publish the winning local pictures. In the Examiner's contest readers are being asked to submit baby pictures and the trick is to write a suitable caption implying what could have been on the baby's mind to create such an expressive picture. Every home where here are children has an unusual baby picture, so look over your family album, pick out and write the caption and send picture to Baby Photo Editor, Examiner, Peterborough. Pictures must be of babies two years and less. Two prizes of five dollars a week are given and a grand prize of ten dollars at end of contest.

Conservatives Meet In Ottawa

OTTAWA, March 24 — (CP)—Supporters of the Progressive Conservative party from all parts of Canada today launched a three-day study of party policies and plans for the next general election.

The supporters, members of the Progressive Conservative Associaiton of Canada, met privately to hear a brief welcome by George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

Following the inaugural session, committees were to be formed to draft policy resolutions and to discuss organizational plans for the next general election. The life of the present parliament does not expire until 1954, but some party supporters believe an election may be called late this year or in mid-1953.

The women's branch of the association and the Young Progressive Conservatives were to hold separate meetings, also behind closed doors.

Policy resolutions adopted will be made public at the conclusion of the meeting Wednesday.

Kept Royal Hotel In Marmora, H. J. Neath Dies

MARMORA, March 24—(ENS)—Horace J. Neath, proprietor of the Royal Hotel, Marmora, for the past eight years, died in Kingston hospital Saturday evening at the age of 51. After treatments for a lung disorder which brought temporary relief, he returned to hospital to undergo an operation last Tuesday. Although hope was entertained for his recovery, he became worse on Friday and died the following day.

His death is a distinct shock to the district, as since coming here from Toronto he had shown a deep practical interest in matters of public welfare. He was a charter member of Marmora district Chamber of Commerce, a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church, besides being fraternally a Free Mason.

He was born near Peterborough, England, and had made a few aerial trips to visit his aged mother since taking up residence in this village.

He is survived by his wife, who was born in Lancashire, England, and two young daughters, Shirley and Sandra, both at home.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's Anglican Church at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Canon J. M. Brownlie officiating. Burial will take place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

Absolved Of Blame In Flier's Death

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I., March 24 (CP)—A coroner's jury Sunday night absolved Harold P. Roberts of any blame in connection with the shooting of Lac. John F. MacGuire of Timmins, last Monday.

MacGuire was killed when a pistol accidentally discharged in another room, ripped through a partition and hit him in the neck. He had been writing a letter at the time.

Many Cities In States Plan To Add Fluoride To Water

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK — (AP) — One in every four persons living in U.S. cities will have sodium fluoride in their drinking water by next year under present plans to add the chemical for better teeth in youth children.

Sodium fluoride is naturally present in drinking water in 650 areas in the United States, with 4,000,000 drinkers. It is also present in most of our food.

Adding fluoride is under consideration in every State except Nevada, New Mexico and Utah. Those three have natural sodium fluoride in water.

Opposition has started. Congress is investigating because flourine, a lemon-yellow gas, one of the 92 natural chemical elements, is poisonous when taken in large enough amounts.

Most of the arguments centre on the amount—one drop of fluorine for every 1,000,000 drops of drinking water. That amount is the limit added to city water and is much less than the same chemictal naturally present in water of some small cities.

Nearly all health organizations and most doctors and scientists who have expressed opinions say that the one-drop-a-million ratio is absolutely safe. Forty-five State health boards have endorsed it.

An example of issues presented by the Antis came in Seattle March 11 when fluoridation was voted down two to one. Opposition was based on the following considerations: Benefits restricted to a minority (young children), anti-medication on religious grounds, personal rights, need for more extensive tests and a step toward state medicine.

Mottled Teeth

Fluoridation was discovered many years ago in communities with much fluoride in drinking water. Children there got mottled teeth, brown and chalky white, that lasted all their lives.

Later it was discovered that just a little fluoride gives children better teeth, without mottling. Two drops in 1,000,000 is supposed to cause some mottling.

U.S. Public Health Service scientists studied the evidence for six years, and then decided it is safe and will reduce tooth cavities in children 60 to 65 per cent.

Studies of the advocates of fluoridation show no difference due to fluoride in the nine leading causes of death, no change in birth rates, no difference in bone fractures and no effects on children's weight and height.

The Antis say fluoride is an accumulative poison, also a rat poison, that it inhibits enzymes, that too much makes soft teeth and soft bones. Fluoride is said to destroy will power, and some Antis report Stalin puts fluoride in babies milk to make slaves.

Weekend Rain Kills Chances Of Smelt Run

COBOURG, March 24 (ENS)—Rain on Saturday night and melting snow on Sunday raised the level of streams in this area which empty into Lake Ontario and removed any immediate hopes of seeing the smelt season get underway. Large numbers of smelt have been on local markets but these have been caught by comercial fishermen of Port Hope and Brighton, well out in Lake Ontario.

The fact that there are smelt out there is encouraging for those waiting to go after them with hand nets at the mouths of the streams which drain into the lake. All that is needed is a warmer spell which will take some of the chill out of the streams and will start the smelt heading upstream on their annual trek.

Start Court Action Against Salt Firm

TORONTO, March 24 (CP) — The Dominion Tire and Chemical Company of Montreal started a $5,000,000 court action Saturday against the International Salt Company of the United States and its subsidiary, International Salt Company of Canada, Ltd.

The Montreal firm filed a writ claiming that the American firm broke an agreement for the joint mining of rock salt along Lake Erie. Dominion Tire said it started preparing the action shortly after an announcement from Chatham March 8 said International Salt would erect a $3,500-000 plant at Erieau, 20 miles south of Chatham.

An Awkward Situation For Country Walkers

The Provincial Minister of Lands and Forests sees "a very awkward situation" developing between sportsmen and farmers. Mr. Scott pointed out that hunting licenses do not provide authority for trespassing on private property and that therefore hunters were largely dependent on the goodwill of the farmer for their sport.

"It should never be forgotten that access to private lands is a privilege, not a right, and this privilege should never be abused. An epidemic of 'no trespassing' signs could quite readily curb the hunting and fishing possibilities in any area."

The same awkard situation has developed between farmers and a much wider section of the population than sportsmen: anybody on two legs who wants to go for a walk in the country must almost always do so as a trespasser, unless he remains on paved highways or dusty, hard roads.

* * *

The circumstances are not acutely affecting many people yet, for the number of country ramblers is few compared with the thousands who are contented to tour by car. Nevertheless, as the population of Southern Ontario increases and towns debouch into the country there will be a greater need for rural paths and a greater difficulty in finding them.

* * *

Even in this Peterborough area it is no longer possible for pedestrians to ramble at ease in the country. "The First Wood" at the west end of Sherbrooke Street which used to be a haunt of children and an accessible Sunday walk, is now cut down and built over. The "Second Wood" at Greenhill and "Third Wood" are becoming subdivided housing areas. An hour's drive will take a rambler into still unfenced northern lands where he can begin his walk; but a drive in any other direction puts him into farmers' private fields. The countryside is rapidly being closed to the public.

* * *

In England there is a Society for The Preservation of Public Footpaths. In that crowded land the countryside has long been pre-empted by private owners, but private ownership (fortunately for the public) came after centuries of public use. Footpaths through fields and wood had been worn between hamlet and village, between the manor house and tenants' cottage. In the last century new proud property owners attempted to deny the use of these time-worn paths to the public. So a Society to preserve them was organized. Today people in town and country zealously guard the right to use the footpaths. We have seen a farmer, anxious to produce bigger crops on larger fields, plough over a footpath on his own property and seed it. In friendly but determined fashion, his neighbours made a special exercise of walking regularly over the land where the footpath had been, so as to keep it open. (A footpath may legally be closed off only if it has been in disuse for a stipulated number of years.) Thus have England's beautiful rural rides been preserved for the public enjoyment. It is even possible for the lowliest commoner to walk across the garden side of Prime Minister Churchill's country mansion, Chequers, within a stone's throw of the chief door. A footpath crosses the entire estate.

* * *

An Englishman's home may be his inviolable castle, but its grounds are not proprietary [illegible]. The Englishman's jealous care for personal liberties, his love of the countryside and the dense population, access through private land is not a privilege of private ownership but a right of prior public use. 'No Trespassing' signs cannot bar the countryside to people using a footpath through otherwise private property.

* * *

Ontario's need is not for a society to preserve footpaths, but to establish them. The private enclosure of lake frontages and of fields and woods should be examined, and perhaps our entire conception of property rights reassessed, before the population of southern Ontario becomes completely road and city-bound.

Revenue Bureau Reform In U.S.

The recent revelations of corrupt practices in the Internal Revenue Bureau of the United States has led to reform of a condition which people of this country would regard as almost fantastic. The reform consists of putting the sixty-four collectors of internal revenue under the U.S. Civil Service, which means that all of the bureau's fifty-seven thousand employees, with the sole exception of the Commission, will be under the Civil Service. The Commissioner remains a Presidential appointee.

Prior to this, the sixty-four collectors, who were, in effect, commissioners in full control of their respective regions, were all appointed by the President. The posts were considered among the richest of political plums; even though a collector remained within the law, a surprisingly heavy percentage of them became affluent to a degree which could hardly be accounted for by their salaries. A few were actually taxation experts, and by making their expert knowledge available to wealthy taxpayers, were thereby enriched. Others gained wealth by methods less ethical, although not downright criminal; still others were out-and-out grafters.

It is significant that seventeen of the sixty-four collectors were chosen from the Civil Service—and every one of these seventeen has been found free of any suspicion of improper handling of collections by investigating commissions. Of the remaining forty-seven, all strictly "political" appointees, eight have already been discharged or have resigned hastily, while charges of improper conduct are pending against about thirty others. The Senate noted the integrity of the Civil Service appointees, with approval, when discussing the reform measure.

The strange thing, to Canadians, is that such a system could have existed so long in the United States. Political patronage, as such, is probably not repugnant to most Canadians, but if anyone ever attempted to extend it to include the tax collectors, there would be thunderous protest across the land.

The Peterborough Audience

Some members of the orchestra which played in the P.C.V.S. auditorium on Thursday night commented after their concert on the excellence of the audience which had assembled to hear them. They did not mean simply that the audience was a large one, for they are used to packed houses; they referred rather to the manners of the audience, the sympathy and quality of the applause, and the feeling which the audience projected toward the artists.

This is by no means the first time that Peterborough audiences have been praised by visiting musicians. And during the recent Eastern Ontario Drama Festival several of the visiting companies, and also the adjudicator, said that the Peterborough audience was a particularly good one—sympathetic, critical, and quick in the uptake. It is a pleasure to perform for such an audience, and it calls forth the best in musicians and actors. A first-rate performance is not complete without a first-rate audience to appreciate it.

Such praise is worth having. It is no small thing for a city to be known for the good manners and the critical quality of its audience, for these things are a reflection of true appreciation. They are the signs of genuine culture, as opposed to the phoney culture which supports music and drama for social reasons rather than for the real pleasure that they give.

It is perhaps appropriate here to say a word on behalf of the Community Concert Association. There are elements in the "package deal" system of arranging concerts which may be irksome, but the advantages of the system far outweigh them. By what other system could a city of Peterborough's size have enjoyed so many concerts of the finest quality during the past ten years? The continuity of concert seasons which the system gives contributes to the development of such audiences as that which Peterborough now has. Living in our city of 38,000 we hear, as the years pass, the most eminent of concert artists without having to travel from home, or to pay the very high prices which pertain in the great centres. We are lucky to have such an organization in Peterborough, and it may be said without vanity that we pay for our luck by providing an audience for which artists of discrimination are prepared to put forth their finest efforts.

Private Army In Argentina

The ways of dictatorships, whether they lie to the right or to the left, are distressingly the same, whether the dictator be a Caesar, a Cromwell or a Hitler. A small minority rises to power gained by violent force or loud threat of force. Its ascendancy is secured for a time by a complete muzzling of personal freedom by tyrannous police or Gestapo controls. Finally, in the grace of God—but in some areas an unconscionably long time elapses before that gracious relief—there comes a complete collapse of the regime. The collapse is often world-shaking and brought about by desperate sacrifices of peoples.

The Argentine regime of President Peron bears hardly mistakable signs of historic dictatorships. It may be halfway along the patterned path already, or even beyond the middle point from which there is no return. It is reported that Peron has formed a private militia "to defend the government in the event of military action against it." It is said that five thousand supporters of "absolute confidence" have enrolled, in "shock troop" detachments, "special mission" units and "reserves." This is disturbing news.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

NEXT Saturday William Walton will be fifty years old, I expect that nearly all my readers must have heard some of his music at one time or another even if they are not aware of the fact, for Walton has written a good deal of music for the films, his best-known scores being for Major Barbara, the First of the Few and of course Henry V. British film producers have shown commendable zeal in commissioning composers of concert hall repute to write their scores, and though composers as a rule are none too happy to submit to the rigid time schedules of a film scenario it is an opportunity for their music to penetrate to a far wider audience than usual. Moreover the financial rewards are usually somewhat greater.

❖ ❖ ❖

WILLIAM WALTON was not an infant prodigy of the style of Mozart, but he showed unusual promise at an early age. When he was ten years old he won a choral scholarship to Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford. This meant that he received a free education at the choir school attached to the cathedral in exchange for singing in the cathedral choir under Dr. H. G. Ley. The composer says that he was bad at everything except music. Singing in the cathedral services twice daily, with daily practices and instruction in musical subjects, he would soon become acquainted at first hand with the corpus of English Cathedral music, which has been an important factor in the formation of his style, though this may not always be apparent. Later on he entered the university, having already completed the first part of his B. Mus. examination at the age of fifteen, a remarkable achievement in itself. Even more remarkable is the fact that from the age of sixteen he was entirely self-taught. It is as though he knew his own mind and inclinations so well that any formal tuition would have been a waste of time.

❖ ❖ ❖

HE SOON emerged as the Great White Hope of the Bright Young Things of the Twenties. His String Quartet, first performed in 1923, scandalized the old school and delighted the moderns. While at Oxford he met the Sitwells and formed an association with them that has lasted till the present day. His Facade, now known most widely as a ballet, was originally a background for some poems by Edith Sitwell that were recited through a megaphone placed behind a large mouth painted on a curtain. These witty and entertaining little pieces satirize various well-known musical forms, such as the Waltz, the Tango and so on, poking malicious fun at the stock phrases and stereotyped cliches. They are typical products of the gay iconoclastic Twenties and can be taken in conjunction with the earlier novels of Evelyn Waugh and Aldous Huxley as typical products of the era.

❖ ❖ ❖

WITH the onset of the thirties Walton's music assumed a more serious cast, becoming highly contrapuntal. His affinity with Elgar came out, not only in rousing marches such as "Crown Imperial", commissioned by the BBC for the coronation of George VI, but also in other aspects of his style. He has never flirted with the neo-modal style of Vaughan Williams except for special effects of parody or "local colour" in film music; nor has he been attracted to atonality as practised by the modern Viennese school. His one and only symphony, a thrilling piece of music, shows distinct marks of the influence of Sibelius, though it could only have been written by Walton. This symphony received its first performance in incomplete form. Walton has always been a slow and self-critical worker, and he ran into difficulties with the symphony, which had been commissioned by the BBC for performance by a certain date. It was therefore agreed to give the first performance without the finale, which had not been written, leaving the audience guessing the sequel to the gloomy and introspective slow movement. One can scarcely imagine Britten with his amazing fluency being "stuck" in such a way: in fact I remember at the time Britten remarking rather sarcastically to me that Walton might perhaps finish his symphony in the next world! When the finale eventually arrived and was played it showed clearly that it was worth waiting for.

❖ ❖ ❖

ONE OF the most-discussed of Walton's works is his oratorio, Belshazzar's Feast, which might be described as an oratorio to end all oratorio. Years ago, in the palmy days of Good Queen Victoria, it was the ambition of every respectable English composer (that was the trouble, they were too, too respectable) to produce at least one oratorio. Opera was the preserve of the Italians, and the Germans held a virtual monopoly in symphonies: moreover oratorio was genuinely popular, not only in London but also in the provinces, and choral societies wanted a change from Handel and Mendelssohn. The demand was filled by masses of dreary oratorios flanked by an equally imposing array of cantatas, secular and sacred. By Walton's time the vogue for this type of thing had more or less died out. Choral societies were looking around for new material, but of a more stimulating kind. To the bigger choral societies Belshazzar's Feast was a godsend. Scored for [illegible] full percussion department it depicts the smouldering hatred of the Israelites for their oppressors, the barbaric and lustful revels of the feast and the dramatic moment of the writing on the wall. No effort was made to tone down the starkness of the text, selected from the Bible: verses such as "Happy shall he be, that taketh and dasheth thy little ones against the stones" are sung with ferocious vigour. This is a far cry from the decorous effusions of the Victorians. Unfortunately it is so complex and demands such an array of instruments that it can be undertaken only by the big choral societies, but when it is adequately performed it is not only the noisiest but also the most exciting oratorio ever written.

❖ ❖ ❖

THIS IS to remind you that the closing date for entries to the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival is on March 31, that is to say a week from today. Entries so far have been coming in at a very satisfactory rate, but there is reason to suppose that many intending competitors have neglected to send in their applications. Well, time is getting very short. Nothing is more disappointing than to have one's entry refused on the grounds that it has arrived too late, and yet one cannot blame the organizers if they insist on the rule. If one exception is made it opens the gate to other exceptions, and then the arrangement and printing of programmes is held up. Incidentally, it is said that there is a possibility that the Kingston Music Festival may be resumed next year, an additional reason for Kingstonians to keep their hand in by competing in Peterborough this year. Moreover competition from Kingston may well induce Peterburians to try and beat Kingston on its own ground next year.

WHAT GOOD IS AN INVESTIGATION?

Sir: At this time of year when the Council is trying to arrive at a budget to allow the citizens a tax rate less than 66 mills, the Council accepts a request from the Police Commission for a thorough investigation of the circumstances of Brant's misfortune.

I think it would be very foolish on the part of the council to order an investigation at the expenses of the tax-payers. They would have to engage a judge and a lawyer to delve into facts and then pay these gentlement to act on our behalf. If we are urged to be realistic, let us deal with this one problem in a realistic manner. It seems to me, far more important to re-establish this man in a position, by which he will be able to earn a livelihood. After all, he has lost part of his feet and no investigation will return them to him. Let the Council apply the money to Brant rather than into a lawyer's pocket, for when all is said and done those concerned have already had their say. The Police through their investigator, Mr. Clarke, the Examiner, through its reporter and the Old Age Home also a statement.

What could we accomplish, except to find a head over which to hang the axe? This Commission, I presume would cost a few thousand dollars, which could be well used by Brant, the innocent victim. As all concerned have had their say, it would indeed be wicked to make a liar of any, for there are many ways to tell the truth and fear of retaliation hangs heavy over many a head put on the witness stand.

Yours truly,
A HOUSEWIFE

GOOD ROADS INVITE GOOD VISITORS

Sir: A reference in one of our local papers to an article in the Peterborough Examiner reminded me today of your wonderful Peterborough country, and prompts me to write you.

How Peterborough and district is developing! Many years ago, prior to 1930, I was first introduced to that wonderland of river and forest north of Peterborough. I well remember our first trip by motor north to Apsley and beyond. Rough, narrow, twisting corduroy road, more like a bush road than anything else. Slow travel indeed and somewhat dangerous on the blind, sharp turns. We wondered, at the time, what would be the best thing to do if we met a vehicle going the other way. There was no room to pass in many places, and certainly no place to turn off.

We liked the country, nevertheless, and make our holiday, year after year, in the all too unspoiled country.

Then, in the depression days, the road was straightened and widened, not too well, but nevertheless a great improvement over what was before.

And the country opened up. More cottages were built, many more people made this Peterborough paradise their summer stamping ground. As the years rolled by, this increase in Summer population meant more prosperity for the local residents, more work, and of course more revenue for the storekeeper in Peterborough, Lakefield and other centres northward.

Last year the Highway Department prompted further development by improving and rebuilding part of the highway north from Burleigh Falls for a few miles. And I couldn't help but wonder if this was just a token gesture, noticed so often across the province—piecemeal construction, bits of road work, here and there,—or the start of a real improvement that would continue to Apsley, perhaps even to Bancroft—a really good, wide highway with adequate bridges.

That is one real, sure way to open up a country and build prosperity for the residents. Invite the people in, and one way to do it is by adequate highways.

All that country north to Bancroft is crying for the opening up of it, and it is to be hoped that the Highways Department will continue the job they have started. There, I have said my piece. Finish what you start! There is too much of the bits and pieces that do nothing to develop a country. Youry truly,

O. D. SCOTT,

Toronto.

DOES LINDSAY SEWAGE CAUSE ALGAE?

Sir: May I call your attention to this quotation from the Toronto Globe and Mail of March 15?

"Weak laws and politics are the main allies of pollution in Ontario lakes and streams, Kenneth Clark of Kingston told the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters at their annual meeting in the King Edward Hotel yesterday.

"The need for pure water is of far greater importance to the people of Ontario than the selfish interest of businessmen and politicians," Mr. Clark, who is president of the federation, declared. "Clear and enforceable laws are the real answer to pollution by industry and municipalities, a matter which up until now has always been decided by political influence and expediency."

For the past two years we have had an abnormal growth of green algae in our lake. This is a very serious situation and will drive tourist trade to other places.

Last October the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce held a meeting where over 80 district resort operators clamored for a method of getting rid of this green scum.

Replying to President Jones of the Lakefield Chamber of Commerce, Mr. A. Rankin of the Department of Health suggested—"that an excess of domestic sewage 'might' be the cause and that the release of partly-treated sewage into the Kawarthas would not retard the growth of algae." Everyone please read that again. I regard it as a masterpiece of under-statement.

A great many people in the Kawartha district know that the sewage of Lindsay is dumped into the Scugog river and they have good reason to believe that is the cause of green algae in our lakes.

Nobody objects to a normal amount of green algae. That is one way old Mother Nature has of ridding our ditches and ponds of certain impurities. Chemong lake has a normal amount of green algae. Chemong is not polluted by Lindsay sewage.

The Scugog river empties into Sturgeon lake—this in Pigeon—into Buckhorn—thence to Lovesick and through Burleigh to the west end of Stony—into Clear lake and finally into our own lake at Lakefield.

The east end of Stony is remarkably free of green algae. Why? It is not polluted.

I have been told that Balsam lake and Cameron lake have no such abnormal quantity of green algae—they of course are not polluted by Lindsay.

It seems to me that there has been a certain amount of "hush-hush" about the pollution from Lindsay sewage. I wonder if it is because Premier Frost has his home in Lindsay? In my opinion Premier Frost would be the first man to say that such pollution must stop.

To blame the weather for this abnormal condition of green algae is 99 44/100 per cent pure bunk. The sun shines equally in summer on the unpolluted and the polluted water. On the unpolluted water it raises the temperature. On the polluted water it raises the temperature and also a tremendous crop of the green algae. This in turn raises Hell for the resort owners and people who have summer homes on our lakes.

Yours Truly,
C. J. DAVIS

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein. His work is honourable and glorious: and his righteousness endureth for ever . . . The works of his hands are verity and judgement; all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness . . .

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do his commandments: his praise endureth for ever. (Ps. 111: 2, 3, 7, 8, 10.)

❖ ❖ ❖

But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered in the the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God . . .

But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. (I Cor. 2: 9, 10, 14.)

A Tram Surprise

(Montreal Financial Times)

Montrealers are finding out very quickly, that municipal ownership of the transportation system is not all that many of them hoped that it might be.

Montreal Tramway Co., from which the city took over the system last year, was continually in hot water with the public over a long period of years. Criticisms of its operating policies covered a wide range, the chief of which were: Inadequate service, outdated rolling stock and lack of proper personnel training.

Now the city—or a commission responsible thereto—is operating the transit system, and citizens are finding out to their sorrow and dismay that conditions are considerably worse than they ever were under private ownership.

More to the point, despite the fact that, as a publicly owned system it is relieved of the heavy tax burden which the tramways company was forced to carry, the question of an increase in fares has arisen.

"And only last night Dad was saying that after the Budget things weren't much worse."

SIMIAN SHENANIGANS—Monkey business is on the increase, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, our jungle cousins are having themselves a time. Reclaiming Soil In Effort Increase Food

MELBOURNE, March 24—(Reuters)—A great soil reclamation project, designed to increase Australia's food production, is following a cloud of diesel smoke across the arid scrublands of Southeastern Australia.

The plan promises to dwarf even India's record-breaking 10,000,000-acre reclamation project.

Scientists have found the way through special fertilizers to unlock fertility in soil that for generations carried only stunted gum trees, heath and broom grass, thus opening new vistas of prosperity for hundreds of square miles of Australia's undeveloped territory and desert.

Backed by one of Australia's bigbest insurance companies, the project's immediate target is to make a 1,000,000-acre oasis of pasture land in the desert that sprawls across the Victoria-South Australia border.

But an insurance company spokesman indicates that eventually the project may be extended to include as much as 30,000,000 acres for reclamation.

Rainfall Plentiful

The barren areas have well distributed rainfall and railways to carry produce to market. But the terrain has unpromising, surface sand which blankets valley floors from two to 10 inches deep over a layer of deep clay.

The first reclamation work, started in 1949, was carried out on a 500,000-acre tract in the state of South Australia.

Huge Deisel tractors, working in pairs linked by chains and 50-foot logs, trundle through the scrub battering and flattening 30 acres an hour.

Other tractors drag eight-furrow ploughs in tandem, turning over 11 acres an hour, stump-jumping shares and disks slicing seven inches below the surface to root out stumps.

After three years, 45,000 acres of land have been cleared, 23,000 acres have been deep-ploughed, 10,000 acres of pasture and lucerne grow lushly, and another 4,600 acres have been seeded.

Fencing, irrigation and general development of the planned 1,000 to 1,500-acre farmsteads is going on concurrently with the clearing and seeding. By 1954, the first farms are exepcted to be allocated.

Wants Coronation To Be Most Colorful

LONDON—(CP)—Works Minister David Eccles wants next year's Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II to be the most colorful spectacle in living memory.

"See what you can do to help the Ministry of Works to make it a good coronation out of very little," he told members of the Federation of Painting Contractors.

"Next year we really have to do something tremendous, so bully your people into making it a really gay and attractive pageant. Don't let us have all this sombre business. Let us break out and have the best coronation ever."

Eccles also told the paint men it was time they departed from the tradition of sombre, colorless clothing.

"Eight out of 10 men," he said, "leave their homes to go to the office every morning perfectly dressed for a funeral. We ought to wear something more colorful and Elizabethan."

Preparing For War

Douglas MacArthur said Saturday the Truman administration "is preparing us for a war in Europe" after plunging the United States, unprepared, into the Korean conflict. In a speech, he said the present U.S. leadership is "leading us toward a Communist state with as dreadful certainty as though the leaders of the Kremlin themselves were charting our course."

Soviet Organs Beating Drums For Conference

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Mar. 24—(AP)—All organs of Soviet propaganda are beating the drums for the forthcoming International Economic Conference in Moscow April 3-10.

Europe's Stalinists are engaged in what appears to be their most important effort so far this year to lure business men and heads of small industries into rebellion against east-west trade restrictions.

Western observers do not underrate its propaganda strength, particularly in Asia where it appears bound to have some effect on trade-starved peoples.

There will be from 400 to 600 delegates from 23 countries. The agenda has been prefabricated so that Moscow will dominate it from start to finish.

Japan Target

The conference will attempt to build up pressure among western governments and business men against the United States to break down restrictions on strategic materials; it will try to get them to turn eastward for trade, and to persuade Asians that their future lies with Moscow.

Possibly there will be some sort of concrete offer to western business men, put out as bait in the hope that a single break in the dam will be followed by a flood. It will attempt to divide the United States and Europe.

Some observers think U.S. restrictions on trade with Communist countries have hurt the Soviet Union to the extent that Moscow is desperate to remedy the hurt.

Western Europe longs for a revival of normal trade relations with the east, so the Moscow theme has a strong appeal.

One long-range objective is an economic assault upon Japan, an attempt to wrest her from American influence in the end. This is regarded by competent observers as a serious threat.

Mixed Gathering

The conference advertises itself as a "gathering of industrialists, traders, agriculturalists, economists, technicians, trade unionists and co-operators."

It is not supposed to be on a governmental level but to devote itself, according to the published agenda, to such causes as "exploration of the possibilities of extending trade and other economic relations between all countries and improving, on this basis, the living conditions of the people."

The conference may boomerang in some respects. For instance, the Soviet Union never consents to on-the-spot inspection of goods it offers for export. Further, it probably will be unable to deliver many of the goods it promises.

Guatemala Reds Said No Threat To U.S. Security

By E. L. ALMEN

GUATEMALA, Guatemala, Mar. 24—(AP)—Communist control of the Labor movement and government complacency toward extreme Left-wingers are alarming this country's democratic forces and their friends abroad.

Guatemala has been called a "full-fledged Soviet beachhead" in Central America by John McCormack, Democratic leader in the United States House of Representatives.

This view is ridiculed by government leaders here, but there seems no doubt Guatemala's home-grown Communists have done an efficient job in a short time—with advice and funds from abroad.

They are not now and may never be strong enough to make this country, biggest of the Central American Republics, a military base threatening the security of the United States.

They do, however, constitute a growing irritation which could swell to serious proportions if permitted to spread southward toward the Panama Canal.

At present they countrol all labor unions and have infiltrated into the social security administration and the electoral board.

Since the 1944 revolution overthrew the dictator, Jose Ubico, no right-wing government could hope to survive without the use of force.

President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman, a military man who has been in office a year, has failed to move the Communists.

The acknowledged leader of Guatemala's Communists is Victor Manuel Gutierrez, a sallow, thin 28-year-old who heads the Labor movement of 80,000.

Control is exercised through the general confederation of Guatemalan workers. It is affiliated with the Moscow-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

The American-owned United Fruit Company, biggest private enterprise in the country, is the chief target of Red activity. United Fruit's wages are among the highest in Guatemala—a guaranteed daily minimum of $1.36 take-home pay compared with an average of 40 cents paid by private Guatemalan operators.

In recent weeks labor courts ordered the company to pay $700,000 in retroactive wages to workers dismissed because a hurricane destroyed the Tiquisate banana plantation. The court ordered the 23,000-acre plantation sold unless the back wages were paid.

The union at Tiquisate, however, accepted a compromise company agreement to pay the back wages and rehabilitate the plantation.

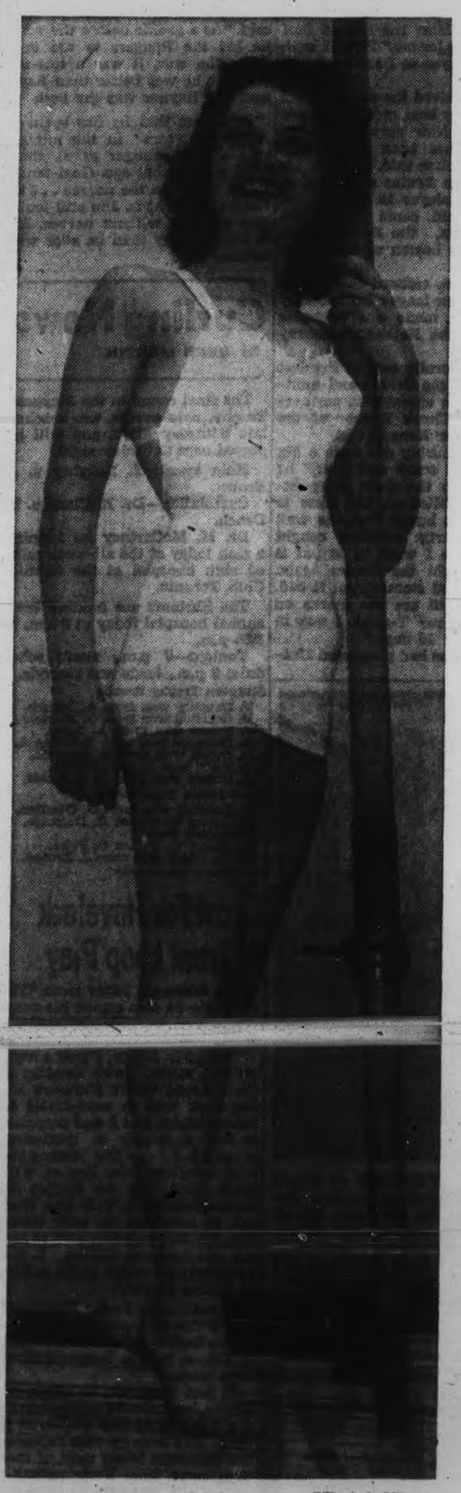
SCIENTIFIC FORMULA PROVIDES VITAMINS and MINERALS FOR FULL ENJOYMENT OF LIFE



Here at last – Formula 7-11 – the latest scientific development that gives you vitamins and minerals needed for maximum health, vitality and energy!

Formula 7-11 may be your answer to the vitamin deficiency that weakens your resistance to nervousness, insomnia, irritability, colitis and other ailments of advancing age. It can be just what you need to bring your run-down system back to vibrant health!

Vitamins--the "Spark Plug" of the Human Body Machine

A TINY fraction of an ounce of vitamins and minerals is all you need in your daily diet, yet its power for good is enormous. Without it your body engine does not function properly and your health can suffer.

VITAMINS differ from other food in this important way: they do not themselves build body tissues. They serve, rather to help you assimilate and get the full energy out of all the other foods you eat. A deficiency of one or more vitamins may keep your body engine from hitting on "all six cylinders".

LONG storage, over-refinement in processing and cooking destroys a large part of the vitamins in the foods we eat. That is why millions of "well-fed" Canadians do not get enough in their daily diet.

Are You Getting Enough Vitamins?

THIS is not so much a matter of the quantity of food you eat as the ly starve on three big meals a day if your food lacks vitamins and minerals—the vital spark that converts what you eat into the energy you need for good health. Supplement your diet with the regular use of Formula 7-11.

Avoid This-Pain

If you suffer the painful discomforts of neuritis, it's possible you haven't enough Thiamin (Vitamin B1) in your system.

"Thiamin protects against and aids in the treatment of neuritis due to Thiamin deficiency." If you suffer from a deficiency of vitamins and minerals, try R 7-11.

Here's what goes into R 7-11

RIBOFLAVIN (B2)
PYRIDOXINE (B6)
NIACINIMIDE

Strike The Source—Not The Symptom

It's necessary to strike at the source—not at the symptom. When an individual suffers serious ailments caused by a food factor deficiency, a one hundred percent improvement cannot be expected unless he is supplied with those elements which were lacking in his diet, the absence of which caused the degeneration in the first place.

To keep free from ailments, we must keep our tissues, blood, bone, and glands well supplied with the food elements they need. Our normal body chemistry must be maintained if our health is to be maintained. If we keep our body chemistry in normal balance, we can expect to possess normal health conditions.

HOLD BACK THE YEARS!

Thanks to geriatrics . . . that branch of medicine concerned with the body's aging process . . . we now have an excellent chance of advancing vigorously into the 70's and 80's.

Many of the ills of older people are unnecessary, according to physicians who specialize in geriatrics. They say selective therapeutic nutrition is part of their newer scientific plans for the defeat of aging and the continuance of youth and vigor.

Many doctors believe that the average diet is more deficient in calcium than in any other food element. This deficiency accumulates and becomes more serious as age advances. Calcium is a friend of youth at any age. A liberal supply, well beyond the bare daily necessity, makes every year of life fuller and stronger. It is one of the secrets of youth prolongation. Calcium poverty is one common cause of aging that can be corrected by properly guided therapy and by use of dietary supplements that are heavy in calcium content.

He was the most hated player in baseball, yet the greatest. The record books testify to the latter statement. Ty Cobb, of course. And today he has major league mangers, players and scribes arguing bitterly about him again. Because he recently wrote a piece in a big magazine knocking most present-day players. He never spared himself or anyone else when he dominated the American League for many years in hitting and base-running, and he hasn't changed. The old Georgia Peach isn't sparing anyone today. Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Star—having a nice touch covering spring training in Florida—devotes a full column to the controversy Cobb has stirred up.

* * * * * *

Whether he is right or wrong in asserting that baseball has declined in the last 20 years, the fiery Tyrus has them all in a tizzy with his hard-hitting article. They always hated the guy but they could never ignore him. Connie Mack once said of him: "My, my, I never thought I'd see the day when one man could beat a ball team." Catcher Muddy Ruel was asked once what he'd do if Cobb made a break for second on a pitch. Ruel replied: "I'd fake a throw to third but hold the ball and try to tag him at the plate, if he didn't cut me to ribbons!" Cobb was the unanimous choice for first entry into Baseball's Hall of Fame. But he's still a trouble-maker!

Well, Let's Swap Arenas

Third game of the best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" finals for Central Ontario is on tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena, Kingston vs. the Petes. All through the long season it was apparent that the K's liked the smaller surface here and were mighty tough to take when in Peterborough, whereas the free-wheeling Petes loved that acre of ice in Kingston. They really roll down there. Kingston forced the classy Ellis men to overtime to grab off a 5-4 win here to open the final sawoffs. Yet the Petes go back there Saturday and romp to a 5-1 triumph. Looks like the locals will take group honors in less than the seven games, but the Kingston crew will make their strongest bid on local ice. So, tonight's playoff should be a dandy one.

* * * * * *

Almost 3,000 fans—with a bunch from Peter's borough on deck—saw a snappy scrap Saturday, with Kingston penalties hurting. But the Petes earned the win all the way, especially in a furious drive during the middle heat. Again Ray Harding came up with some fancy minding in the visitors' rigging, and he had good support, too. The big ice is made to order for guys like Arn Dugan, Jake Wade and several more. Several of the veteran K's prefer to play it cozy on a narrow stretch and they can't come close to the faster Petes when all stops are let out. Dugan was in on a pair for the winners, while Steele, Floyd, Collins, Garvey, Gus Leonard, Mason and Jopling all hit the score sheet.

Kid Finalists Sewed Up

About 900 fans took in the provincial bantam "B" final at Civic on Saturday night and saw a lively tussle before Brampton took a 12-8 win o'er George Heron's Otonabee Wolves. The district squad is sponsored by Dave Kerr of Empress. That sews up the series for the A. A. Morrison Trophy at a game each, deciding one being here this week. Probably Thursday eve. Larry Lonsberry, Gary Darling and Eric Batten were the big guns for Wolves; while McCutcheon, Thompson and Kendall stood out for Brampton. They have a speedy young Jap, too, in Gen Hamada. Local teams lost out in 1948 and 1949 finals for this trophy to Preston and Crowland.

* * * * * *

Interest is high in what's left of district hockey finals. T.V.L. semi-finals will be wrapped up here tomorrow (Tuesday) even at 8:30 in Civic when Marmora and Havelock clash in the deciding game, winner to go into finals 'gainst R.C.A.F. Another hefty crowd sure to see these worthy rivals battle it out. The Havelock juves lost 10-3 in the O.M.H.A. final to Georgetown, but figure they were overmatched in meeting a club from a centre that large. The district lads did extra well in going so far. Brampton-Wolves bantam final is on here Thursday p.m., a colorful affair. Saturday's tilt saw highlanders piping it up and ladies on hand with cakes and sandwiches for the lads, but, alas, no trophy presentation yet.

Layton To Meet Tough Lu Kimm

Fans who have been clamoring for another look at the burly, moustached Lu Kimm will have their demands met Tuesday at the Brock, for the great Kimm will meet Lord Athol Layton that night in the main event.

Kimm, who has had a highly successful campaign since coming to Canada, will run into tough opposition from Layton. The Englishman also has an outstanding record, having lost only two decisions in his bouts here. He will have his work cut out to register another victory as Kimm is a powerful grappler, using the Manchurian Clutch as his specialty hold and possessing tremendous strength. Some figure he is stronger than Yukon Eric.

Zorro, the French Tarzan, and a great favorite here, will taken on gigantic Hi Lee in the semi-final.

A newcomer, Johnny Walker, is in the opener against Stan Mayslack.

NO! NO! MABEL! RUN WITH YOUR FEET!! — Mabel Gillen, Towne Togs' top scorer (left), seems to be playing basketball on her head in Saturday's game with Toronto Tops. Teammate Pauline Stewart, hand to forehead, appears bewildered at Gillen's antics. Actually Mabel's on the way to returning to her feet with a somersault. Mabel (right) is back to basketball as she drives in for a layup shot at the basket, making her total 17 points. Tops won the series 93-81.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Togs Lose Out To Toronto In Hoop Series

Action on Peterborough's basketball front is gradually coming to a standstill as another quintette, the Towne Togs, wound up the season Saturday night. Tthe Togs lost their Southern Ontario women's intermediate "B" semi-final series to the Tops Grill cagers, Toronto champions.

Tops, thanks to smoother passing and shooting, topped the Togs with a last-quarter drive to win the second of the two-game points-to-count series 50-44. Combining their victory on Wednesday night, the Tops won the series 93-81.

The six-point margin separating the teams in both games was about the extent of the strength between the two. The Tops, a fast, line-passing team, were slightly better on the passing and shooting and also threw up a stiffer defence.

At one time in the third quarter Saturday, Phil Macks' girls were three points up on the round, 11 points on the game, but within a minute the Tops had tied the series and were whittling at the game lead. Throughout the first half, Togs held a three- and four-point lead on the game but at the half the Tops tied the score at 15-all.

A Safe Lead

From the start of the fourth the Tops pressed and ran the round lead up as high as 17 points. They faltered only in that lead in the last two minutes.

Tops relied upon two types of offence, a fast break, featuring Nevin, and a passing attack employing the height of Jackie MacDonald in pivot or Turnbull in the corner with a deadly shot. Both these attacks were deadly, especially in the fourth quarter.

Toronto also threw up a stiff man-to-man defence which bothered the short-passing Togs on their shooting. Several times the Tops stole the ball out of the Togs' hands.

Meanwhile Togs were relying strongly upon the fast breaks of Mabel Gillen for points, but her 17 points were not enough to keep them in the game. She was the only Tog player scoring to any extent.

Togs' defence, which at times resembled a zone, had many holes for Tops to slip through. These holes were possibly there because extra attention was given to MacDonald and Turnbull, making the defence half zone and half [illegible] man.

MacDonald, with a hook shot from the pivot position and layup shots, was Tops' best with 12 points and a back-checking game which helped the Tops with her height. But Tops' scoring honors went to the fast-breaking Nevin with 14 points.

Lineups:

Towne Togs (44)—Stewart 4, Gillen 17, McIlhagga, Raper, Rumbell, DeWarga 4, Owen 5, Batley, Dunk 7, Jackson 2.

Tops Grill (50) — Nevin 14, Innes 2, Quinlan 8, Martin 3, Hendrickson, MacDonald 12, Turnbull 11, Sproat.

Sugar Jim Henry Acclaimed Saviour Of Boston Bruins

BOSTON, March 24 (AP). — On the eve of the Stanley Cup playoffs, coach Lynn Patrick of the fourth-place Boston Bruins wondered out loud today how the Bruins would have made it without goalie Sugar Jim Henry.

"He's at least the second best goalie in the league," Patrick said. "Second maybe to Detroit's Terry Sawchuk."

Lynn received the tacit support of his former boss, manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers.

"Henry has been the difference," Boucher said. "Weigh his value to the Bruins with that of any other player in the league. Henry would come out ahead. Without him, the Bruins never would have beaten us out of the playoffs."

Sugar Jim, rescued this season from a minor league existence by the Bruins, made a remarkable return to the National Hockey League.

Henry literally caught fire last summer at the fishing and hunting camp he operates in partnership with Chuck Rayner of the Rangers near Kenora, Ont.

"I was pouring gas from a big tank into a small container," he said, "when the darn thing exploded. I rolled on the grass to put out the burns. But one wall of the nearby building caught fire, too, so I went in to put it out. I caught the flames again. My arms and stomach got it bad. You can still see the marks on the rim of my T-shirt. I was in hospital for 16 days."

The Bruins had purchased Henry from Detroit's Indianapolis farm. It seemed his major league days were over when the Black Hawks, who had acquired him from the Rangers, sent him down in 1949.

"I always liked Jim," Patrick said. "As a rookie before the war, he led the Rangers to the top. After the war, it was a toss-up whether he was better than Rayner; and Rayner was the best.

"The fact that he has spent a couple of years in the minors makes him younger at 31 than most goalies that age. Goal-tending is tough on the nerves . . . in the majors, that is. Jim still looks like a goalie without nerves. He is better today than he ever was before."

ACE VETERAN — Frank (Drake) Jopling, veteran defenceman for the Petes, played a solid blue-line game Saturday in Kingston as they won 5-1 to run their semi-final and final group playoff victory string to six games. Drake also aided on a goal.

Boost For Havelock In Trent Loop Play

The following letter from "The [illegible] who signed his name was sent re T.V.L. semi-finals to the sports editor:

"Well, Mr. Editor, I took a night off and visited (with friends) at Civic Arena where Marmora and Havelock met in semi-finals on Friday night, and I was surprised to see (not only a good-sized crowd) but some fine passing and stick-handling. The line of Willshaw, Reid, and the Rocket did wonderfuly well. This line stood out in reference to both teams. Yes, Mr. Editor, being used to seeing professional hockey, I was pleasantly surprised at the calibre of hockey played.

"I could hear Foster Hewitt call out 'Willshaw has the puck, passes to the Rocket, who passed back to Willshaw, then to Reid—he shoots—he scores!'

"I just want you to know, Mr. Editor, how much I appreciate the fine type of hockey displayed by those fine fellows who represent the Havelock team; most of these boys come from Peterborough, I understand, and deserve more credit than they get. If the final game is played at the Civic Arena here, I would like to see the Arena filled to capacity. Well done, Havelock; do it again next game."

Brampton Gets Second One To Tie Wolves

Brampton downed the Otonabee Wolves—sponsored by Empress—12-8 here Saturday night before 90 fans in Civic Arena to square their O.M.H.A. bantam B final series. Third of the best-of-three provincial playoffs for the A. A. Morrison Trophy will be played here this week, probably Thursday night. Wolves had won the first at Brampton by a 9-8 score.

It was a speedy game, quite close and exciting in the first and third frames, with Brampton building up a fair lead in the second to earn the victory. Play was a bit rugged for 14-year-old puckists, and the visitors drew eight of the 11 penalties. One was an interference penalty on Goalie Bob Savage, served by Frank Loney. Two Lindsay officials kept play moving and made the boys stick to hockey most of the distance.

Close Enough

Brampton eked out a 3-2 edge in the speedy initial inning, but had a 5-2 scoring margin in the second. After they struck early in the third, George Heron's district squad battled back to dominate play the rest of the way and whittle the margin down considerably. They were led by Larry Lonsberry, who scored four goals—two of them beautiful, fast solos—and aided on three more. Gary Darling also shone with two markers and two assists, while Eric Batten was another ace on the attack with two markers and an assist. The whole team fought hard.

Bill McCutcheon sparked Brampton with four goals, Larry Kendall having three, Loney two, with G. Hamada, Bob Mulliss and Grant Smith getting one apiece. Wayne Thompson helped on three Mike Pullen two, single assists going to Smith, Mulliss, Kendall and Hamada. Both goalies made some nice saves as action built up before their nets. One Otonabee goal was called back when it was batted in.

Brampton — Goal, Savage; defence, Pullen and Loney; centre Kendall; wings, Core and Mulliss; alternates, Rawson, Hamada, Armstrong, McCutcheon, Hunter, Smith, Thompson and Miller.

Wolves — Goal, Little; defence, Revoy and Hamilton; centre, Darling; wings, Lonsberry and Batten; alternates, Heron, Hefferman K. Darling, Chase, Ruttan, Fraser, Scott, McIlwaine.

Referees—Wakelin and McIntosh.

The longest game in National Hockey League history was played at Montreal 16 years ago tonight, when Detroit Red Wings beat Montreal Maroons 1-0 after 116 minutes of overtime. The clincher after a total of 176 minutes of play was fired by Modere Bruneteau, then a 22-year-old rookie in Red Wing uniform.

Petes Two Up On the K's With a 5-1 Victory In Senior Group Playoffs

KINGSTON, March 24.—Peterborough Petes jolted Kingston's O.H.A. senior "B" group championship aspirations alarmingly when they sped to a convincing 5-1 triumph in the Community Memorial Centre on Saturday night and gained a 2-to-0 lead in the best-in-seven finals. The visitors, who excelled in teamplay, avoided the penalty bench as they would have the plague and thereof reaped richly-earned dividends whereas the Sacs paid heavily for breakages of the code.

It was a stunned crowd—there were 2,850 paid fans in attendance—that saw the Sacs falter and fall before superior foes. In the opener in Peterborough last Wednesday night, Stan Scrutton's proteges had forced the group leaders into overtime before bowing by 5 to 4 but on the much larger ice surface in this centre the wily Petes were the faster and better machine.

Harding Good

Don Murray, aided by "Gabby" White and Cliff Aitken, shot the locals into the lead at 1.29 in the opening period but thereafter Ray Harding, the Petes' veteran cageman, looked the equal of Detroit's Terry Sawchuck in keeping his net clear of flying rubber. The Peterborough defence, although easily penetrated, was sound in the pinches and relieved much of the pressure and danger by fast clearing.

Mason, who had taken a pass from Jopling, levelled the count at 5.51 to conclude the tallying for the initial session. At the 13 minute mark, Dave Latimer crosschecked young Don Floyd and received a major sentence which did the locals no good at all, although they did present stonewall resistance against well-executed passing assaults.

Three minutes and 40 seconds after the middle session began, Arnie Dugan, one of the stars of the night, was penalized by Referee Holway for using a high stick during a scramble near the side boards but the Sacs were not too dangerous while he was away. When restored to full strength, the visitors forced the issue and at 7.28 Gus Leonard relayed the disc to Steele and the latter evaded Latimer and racked up the winning counter.

All-Out Attack

White was penalized for using a broken stick and interfering with an opponent and, before he returned, Aitken was banished for holding. The Petes then launched all-out attacks which culminated with a goal by Floyd while Aitken was still absent. Collins and Garvey engineered the attack in which Floyd hit the rigging.

With the teams full strength, play was wide-open and both goalkeepers were kept busy. The Sacs, throwing caution to the winds, gave Harding some anxious moments and on two occasions bounced the puck off the posts. Their daring, however, backfired when Dugan, the opportunist, made a clean breakaway from his defensive zone and shoved the puck past the helpless "Sonny" MacDonald. Stan Scrutton sent on five forwards but they could not dent that strong Peterborough defensive system.

The Petes played cautiously from the start of the final period but altered their tactics after Latimer received a minor penalty for cross checking young Red Peters during the attack by the locals. It was Latimer's second offence and he had the dubious distinction of serving seven of the 11 minutes allotted to the hard-pressed locals.

Taking advantage of their superiority in man-power, the Petes forced the issue relentlessly and were rewarded when Dugan, aided by Stewart, got the final marker at 5.14. Over the rest of the route play was a bit monotonous with the foxy Petes electing to hold what they had. The Sacs tested Harding with some shots that looked labelled but the little fellow bore a charmed existance.

At the 14:30 mark, quick thinking by Joe Catlin prevented the Petes from increasing their lead. With MacDonald drawn out of position Fred Garvey fired at an open net only to have Catlin slide across the goal-mouth and deflect the rubber to a corner.

Teams:

Peterborough: Goal, Harding; defence, Wade and Peters; centre, W. Stewart; wings, West and Steele; alternates, Jopling, E. Leonard, G. Leonard, Dugan, Mason, Garvey, Collins, Floyd.

Kingston: Goal, MacDonald; defence, Latimer and Goodfellow; centre, Murray; wings, Aitken and White; alternates, MacGregor, Mulholland, Larmer, Catlin, Tinkess, S. Stewart, Wagar, Bender.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the first in a series of three unusual incidents in the history of hockey's premier prize, the Stanley Cup.

It was in the late nineties that the continent was fired by the tales that in a far northern ice-bound region, known as the Klondike, gold was to be had for the plucking. It could be washed out of the streams in lumps like marbles, or picked up in chunks from caches where the waters of the centuries had eddied. So there started the greatest gold rush since California's 49-ers.

A few years later, the glamour had vanished. The once-wild Dawson City, capital of the frozen wastes, had become a matured city. Thoughts had turned to sport and then there evolved in 1905 the most daring and fantastic hockey venture ever undertaken — the Klondike challenge for the Stanley Cup, then held by Ottawa's powerful all-conquering Silver Seven.

Gold vs. Silver. That was it. Suddenly-rich miners tossed in their gold nuggets to finance this wild sporting hazard. From sources unknown, a team was assembled, and a hardy lot they were, these bold Klondikers, physically and mentally. Mostly there were daring young adventurers who had followed the Trail of '98, had survived the hardships that blocked the way to riches. On to Ottawa, they captured public imagination as they trekked through the mountain passes, a grim safari, made their way east, a 4,000-mile jaunt, carrying not only the hopes of the community far behind them, but the admiration of most of Canada's sporting folk.

Everybody realized these Klondikers had set themselves a hopeless goal. But their courage, the glamour of their background, [illegible] spell. Of [illegible] not much was known. One player, Lorne Hanna, was of major calibre. He starred, along with Lester Patrick for the Brandon team that a year after gave Ottawa's mighty forces a real battle for the Cup. The others were Forest, Johnston, Fiarburn, Smith, Kennedy and Watt, players who were and are of unknown quality.

But the sheer drama of the venture gripped Canada, and even though the Klondikers lost 9-2 in the first of the two matches, hopes were entertained that they might rally in the next.

But they didn't rally The second game was the greatest shambles in the long history of Stanley Cup play. Centreing the mighty Silver Seven was a stocky, hard-skating, thick-set blonde, named Frank McGee. Veterans of hockey still assert he was the greatest man on ice that ever lived, even though he played with only one eye. And in the second game, McGee set a scoring record that never will be equalled in the annals of cup play. He scored 14 goals, as Ottawa won by the prodigious score of 23-2.

I have that faded box-score in front of me, as I write. Hockey was then played as a 7-man game, in two periods. McGee started the greatest scoring spree in Cup history seven minutes from the start. In 30 seconds, he scored again, and from then on, he pumped goals regularly past Forest in the Dawson City nets. He scored 30 seconds from the start of the second half, added another a few minutes later, then went completely wild, scoring at intervals of 30 seconds, one minute, 10 seconds, two minutes, 10 seconds again, 4 minutes, 30 seconds. He scored eight goals in a row in this mammoth splurge.

A sad ending for a gallant bid. The Stanley Cup has never known anything like this, before or since.

Next week the second of this series: An Illusion Vanishes.

Toronto Bows To Hawks In 3-2 Game, As Wings Clip Habs 7-2

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's Toronto-Detroit and Boston-Montreal in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals starting Tuesday — which doesn't surprise anybody too much — but the weekend, closing-out date of the 70-game National League schedule, really belonged to individuals. Toronto Maple Leafs blew their last chance of catching up to the second-place Montreal Canadiens Saturday as they lost 3-2 to Chicago and, with the semi-finalists declared and the pressure off everybody, the boys went out to pick up some personal honors in the three-game league wingup Sunday.

Bill Mosienko, 30-year-old veteran of 11 seasons with the Black Hawks, burned up New York's Madison Square Garden ice with a three-goal splurge in 21 seconds—the fastest hat trick by a single player in the history of the league. The score there was 7-6 for the last-place Hawks.

Then, at Detroit, the spoils were distributed three ways as the Red Wings splattered Canadiens 7-2, following a 3-3 draw at Montreal Saturday.

Gets Vezina Trophy

Goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk of the Wings wound up with the Vezina Trophy and the $1,000 that goes with it. Right winger Gordie Howe scored three goals to boost his season output to 47 and his point-total to 86 for the No. 1 spot and line-mate Ted Lindsay scored twice and assisted in another to finish in the runner-up position with 69 points.

Howe, who received a trophy as the team's most valuable player of the season in a pre-game ceremony, collected $1,000 and Lindsay $500.

At Boston, the Leafs sent 36-year-old Walter (Turk) Broda into the nets for the first time this season. The Turk stayed around for half the game, allowed three goals, and made 14 stops as the fourth-place Bruins defeated Toronto 4-2. Al Rollins finished out the game in the Toronto nets.

Winnipeg-born Mosienko made a shambles of the old rapid-firing mark. That was one minute, 52 seconds set by Carl Liscombe with Detroit against Chicago March 13, 1938. And his lightning-like string also eclipsed another N.H.L. record—the fastest three goals by a team.

Previously, the fastest-scoring trio had been held by the old Montreal Maroons with three tallies in 24 seconds—by different players—in the 1932 season.

Catches Fire

The Hawks were trailing 6-2 when Mosienko caught fire in the third period. He put his first past rookie goalkeeper Lorne Anderson at 6:09, notched his second at 6:20 and completed the trick 10 seconds later. Gus Bodnar assisted on all three, setting another N.H.L. record. The old mark of 81 seconds was held by Don Raleigh of the Rangers, set in 1947 against the Hawks.

The three goals boosted Mosienko's output to 31, the second highest in his big-league career. He netted 32 in the 1943-44 campaign when the schedule was only 50 games.

Mosienko was a big cog in the Hawks' Saturday victory over the Leafs with a two-goal effort. The Leafs, fighting hard to pass Canadiens and take a shot at Boston in the semi-finals, peppered Chicago goalkeeper Harry Lumley with 41 shots—20 in the last period—but the apple-cheeked Lumley held them out.

Boston and Montreal go into the semi-final series short-handed. The Bruins' Fleming Mackell — traded by Toronto in January and a big cog in Boston's playoff spot, is out with influenza and Canadiens' defensive centre, Long John McCormack, fractured his left arm in the Saturday game at Montreal.

Hornets Take Third Game, Edge Bears 4-1

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Hershey Bears 4-1 Saturday night to take their third straight game in the American Hockey League's semi-final playoff series.

The Hornets need only one more victory in the best-of-seven series to qualify for the final and a chance at the Calder Cup.

At Buffalo Saturday, Cincinnati Mohawks advanced to the semi-final round, defeating Buffalo Bisons 6-4 in overtime to sweep their series in three straight games.

At Providence Sunday, the Reds took a 5-1 decision from Cleveland Barons to give them a 2-1 edge in their series. Saturday, Cleveland swept over Providence 7-2.

At Hershey Bob Hassard scored twice for Pittsburgh while Frank Mathers and Rudy Migay got one goal apiece. Jerry Brown scored for the losers.

At Buffalo Saturday, a penalty to Eddie Kobussen in the overtime period gave the Mohawks their chance, and Gus Schwartz and Ian Mackintosh scored one minute apart.

The tally was especially sweet for Mackintosh who had deflected a shot from Gordie Pennell of the Bisons into his own net to tie the game.

Ab Demarco gave Buffalo a first-period lead. But Misckoski and Ed Harrison ran it to 2-1 for Cincinnati in the second before Stan Long got a pair to make it 3-2 for the home squad.

Bill Wylie and Martin got the Mohawks' remaining goals.

3 Doctors Design, Build Artificial Heart In Toronto

OTTAWA, March 24 (CP) — The National Research Council disclosed today that three Toronto doctors built an artificial heart in Toronto Sick Children's hospital. They demonstrated it may safely be used in surgery.

The heart's designers were doctors W. T. Mustard, A. L. Chute and J. D. Keith. They built it to shunt the blood from the heart of a child suffering from congenital heart disease while the doctor repaired the damage.

The work of the three doctors was part of a N.R.C.-sponsored program for devising artificial hearts, the council's medical research division reported. No details of the invention were given but the division told what led up to its making.

One of the key reasons was the absolute control by the scientist over at least one of the various factors which maintain the circulation of the blood. An artificial heart also helps the surgeon who wants to operate directly on a patient's heart from which the blood must be excluded.

Under one of these, Dr. F. A. L. Mathewson of the University of Manitoba undertook to follow for at least 25 years the history of young men whose medical examinations during war service indicated grave heart disease but who appeared to be in good health.

GRAZING WAS NOT THE LUSHEST of the 1952 summer when this picture was taken from the high knoll across the canal from Peterborough Golf and County Club. These Holstein cattle were probably from the herd of Don McColl, and Stan Wood has some of his Black and White up along the awter. The picture retains the charm of scene towards the end of summer, along the wide arm of the Trent waterway system opposite the golf greens. Several motor launches passed down stream during a half hour. Holsteins may have yielded a little of their high sales value as an effect of the foot and mouth embargo in the west, but the whole dairy industry is confident of quickly regaining its position

This section of megalithic fence on the old Robert Dobbin farm along the "loop line" in North Monaghan presents a little lesson in geology. Boulders such as these were only pebbles lightly carried by the glaciers in the age when southern Ontario's land lay under a deep ice cap. In modern times they remained where nature's forces had dropped them, and for pioneer settlers they were an early problem of riddance from the land. Melville Johnston says that in later days there were relics of the lifting machines that lightened the farmer's burdens. They were fitted with pulleys, hauled by a horse or two, and wheels enabled them to be hauled about. Stones were raised and set on stone boats. They became enduring fences that are graphic reminders of the work other generations of farmers had to do to smooth the way for grassland husbandry.

No Comparison

In an initial comparison between the loose housing barn and the standard stanchion barn for dairy cattle at Lennoxville Experimental Station, Que., the average production of milk per cow for December and January was 469 lb. in the loose housing unit as compared with 442 lb. in the stanchion barn.

Sell More Tractors

During 1951 more tractors were sold in Eastern Canada than in Western Canada. This is the first time the east has purchased more than the west. Actual numbers purchased were by Eastern Canada, 26,832; by Western Canada, 23,730.

Hybrid cobs like this October sample from a W. W. Dawson field in Otonabee might serve as symbols for the seed grain division of the Central Ontario Spring Show here this week. They are also insignia of the cornbelt States of Iowa, Illinois and Ohio. Use of hybrid varieties in this province has been slowly extending from the counties of the western peninsula of Ontario as far as Renfrew. Because early frost in the fall is a hazard factor, early planting is required. On the whole, grain corn is not yet a substantial proportion of the harvests of this district. Farmers who have tried it, have satisfied themselves of its feed value, particularly for hogs and poultry. Experience has shown that mould from moisture content can be avoided by care and sensible drying practice.

Dan A. Nill's Grass Silage Was First Experiment But Yielded Quality Feed

Dan A. Nill of Cavan township took a silage chance on four acres of lush clover last June, and turned out a product that has been nearly perfect feed for his dairy and beef cattle.

"I had sown sweet clover as a green manure crop on ten acres," Mr. Nill related to the Examiner the other day. "On four of those acres there was a self-catch of red clover. The growth of those legumes was so heavy that it seemed to be a shame to plow it down.

Having heard and read a lot about grass silage, I began thinking of trying it with those four acres. It happened that two of my neighbors, Eldred Snider and Bill Swain, had bought a new forage harvester. They were expecting delivery any day.

You know how an idea can develop into something real. In talking it over with them, we decided on the grass silage experiment. The three of us were accustomed to ensiling corn. Grass was new to us, but as there wasn't much to lose if we had a failure, we decided to try it.

Timed By Machine

The date of the cutting was June 28. At the time, I had been thinking of a week earlier, but the job hinged on the arrival of the forage harvester. When it came, we were all set with equipment. The machine was put to work on the four acres of that ten-acre field, and we didn't have a hitch.

This was an experiment for all three of us. My two neighbors were as much interested in it as I was. Without their co-operation I couldn't have done it at all. Any way we were curious about grass silage, and we were ready to start.

The sweet clover was about half bloom and the red clover in full bloom that afternoon. It was really a tremendous crop on those four acres of the overlap of red clover. I don't need to recall that fact, because farmers generally had the same experience in 1951.

We set the harvester for its shortest cut, half an inch.

By Rule Of Thumb

The question of moisture content came up before hand. All we had to go by was what you might say, rule of thumb. We gave it the hand squeeze test, and felt that it was all right. It had to be, because we were going ahead any way. It was a hit or miss operation all through that stage.

We had three tractors, one hauling the harvester, another drawing one wagon as it was filled from the harvester with the finely cut clover, and the third was the extra for the job of hauling a full wagon to the barn and the silo. One of the tractors was used for blowing the grass into the silo.

Everything went smoothly. The harvester operated like a new broom. Two of us packed the grass by tramping in the silo. When the job was done we had the silo, which is 12 feet by 30 feet, half full. We didn't seal that crop. I thought there would be some spoilage anyway. In the fall the silo was filled with corn.

In January I started to feed the grass to the cattle. As to mouldiness, there was some of the grass spoiled at the top, about a foot and a half in depth in the centre and sloping out to 3½ feet at the edge.

Cattle Liked It

The grass ensilage came out dark, but it had a wholesome smell. It was new feed to the stock. At first they sniffed it a bit, and evidently the more they tried it the better they liked it. I fed approximately 20 to 30 pounds a day to the dairy cattle, and a little less than that to the beef.

I guess there was a lot of luck in my experience, with the help of my two neighbors, Mr. Swain and Mr. Snider. I wouldn't hesitate to do it again in the same circumstances of such a heavy clover crop."

That's the story of the three grass silage rookies. They clouted a home run with the bases loaded, and manifestly did everything right, largely by the necessity of the arrival of the Snider-Swain harvester.

Mr. Nill showed Frank Paterson a can of the grass ensilage recently. It had the aromatic quality of a certain brand of smoking tobacco, rather sweet and generally appealing to the sense of smell. It was cut almost fine enough to tamp into a pipe and put a match to it.

The forage crop harvester, a comparatively new machine in Ontario farming, demonstrated its utility in grassland farming last summer. Weather conditions, plus the new pasture methods that are being widely adopted in this central section of the province, produced luxurious growth of hay. The heavy crop invited the forage harvester to prove it value, as interestingly recounted by David A. Nill of Cavan elsewhere on this page. The machine chops up the hay in motion, delivers it into an accompanying wagon, and ensiling is the final stage. Moisture content of about 70 per cent is recommended for purpose of grass silage.

RECORD TOMATO PRICE

An all-time high price of $35 a ton for ungraded tomatoes was announced today by R. W. Neal, secretary of the Canned Foods Association of Ontario. The price represents a 22-per-cent increase over last year's and has led processors to believe they will lose western markets.

18 Barley Varieties

A recent survey of farmers in Eastern Canada showed that no less than 18 varieties of barley are being grown. Many of them are varieties which are not recommended as being suitable for Eastern Canadian conditions.

In Ontario, 13 different varieties are grown but, of course, the leading ones are Montcalm, O.A.C. 21, Galore, Nobarb, and Barboff. Nine varieties were reported from Quebec, although O.A.C. 21 and Montcalm were, by far, the favourites. New Brunswick farmers grow six varieties made up mainly of Charlottetown No. 80, Montcalm and O.A.C. 21. Prince Edward Island reported three varieties but 80 per cent of those reporting, were growing Charlottetown No. 80. The number of farmers who have no idea what variety they are growing is high in all provinces and ranges from 20 - 40 per cent.

Show Variation

Chemical analysis of soybean seed from the Central Experimental Farm breeding nursery show a variation in oil content from 17 to 23 per cent and in protein content from 31 to 45 per cent in different strains. This provides a wide range for selection depending upon the use for which the crop is intended. At the present time processors are demanding high oil percentage—varieties containing not less than 20 per cent of oil.

Average Cost $287

Investigations at the Brandon, Man., Experimental Farm for the past five years indicate that the average cost of baling hay in the field in the Brandon and Melita districts was $2.87 per ton. This covers all costs including wages.

Dry Milk Industry

It is expected that there will be considerable expansion of the dry milk industry in Canada during 1952. At least four plants are converting from roller process to spray process.

Labor Party Sees UK Peril If Arms Program Cut

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng., March 24 (AP).—Clement Attlee's moderates in the Labor party demanded acceleration of Britain's rearmament program Sunday—a broadside aimed at both the Conservative Government and left wingers in the Labor fold.

Speeches by two of the former Labor prime minister's top lieutenants here Sunday night warned against any reduction of the arms program—as demanded by the left-wing rebel faction of Aneurin Bevan—and said Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative Government has pared the program to the danger point.

Hugh Gaitskell, former chancellor of the exchequer, warned that if Britain slashes her defence spending further the United States might turn isolationist again, which would bring Britain into mortal peril.

Woodrow Wyatt, former under secretary of state and one of Attlee's staunch supporters in Parliament, said a reduction of the country's rearmament program would make Britain the laughing stock of the world and would give the signal for Stalin to go ahead in Europe.

Churchill announced previously Britain can not complete its £3,600,000,000 rearmament program within the scheduled three years, but will require an extra year.

Proven Right

The Bevan group said Churchill's statement was an admission that they had been right all along in contending that the program imposed too heavy a strain on the country's faltering economy and might endanger the social welfare programs installed by Labor when it was in power. It is on this issue that Bevan and his followers have bolted from the Attlee leadership of Britain's Socialistic movement and have made a strong bid to take over the leadership themselves.

In denouncing the Government cut-bark of the rearmament program, Wyatt said Britain's production lines already have been geared for fast rearmament and any slow-down will leave thousands of people unemployed. He said if the program is slowed down British troops would be unable to replace arms and equipment which had worn out since 1945.

"As for the idea that we should get £250,000,000 worth of military equipment from America this year, this is impossible," he said. "The British forces couldn't absorb all that amount of arms from abroad. Anyway, the result would be not less dependence upon America but far more dependence."

Gaitskell said Americans no longer would listen to British advice "if they felt they were no longer a real partner." Under the Labor Government, he said, "we did much to influence American policy."

Gaitskell said even after allowing for higher prices, the cost of the rearmament program is not greatly above the original three-year program, inaugurated by the Labor government in 1950.

"Let us have no illusions", he said. "Without America fully committed to the defence of Western Europe we could not withstand Russian aggression. France and Italy, rent with internal dissensions, would collapse and the whole of Europe would fall speedily under Russian control".

Ice Storm Strands Alnwick Jr. Farmers

ROSENEATH, March 24 (ENS) —Eighteen members of the Alnwick Junior Farmers were compelled to stay all Saturday night at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Adams, two miles east of Roseneath owing to the freezing rain that fell in the late evening.

The group had met there early in the evening. At the conclusion of the meeting when the members attempted to start for home, the roads were sheets of ice and car-driving was impossible.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams and family came to the rescue of the young people and offered them overnight hospitality and served breakfast cafeteria style in the morning.

Importance Shown

The importance of early seeding of barley has been shown in experiments over a period of three years at Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere Experimental Station, Que., where the highest yields for various barley varieties were secured from early seeding. The yield decreases arising from late seeding varied considerably with varieties, Montcalm barley being one of the least affected by late seeding while the variety Mensury was seriously affected by late seeding.

Fight Desert Area

HONG KONG, March 24 — (Reuters)— A modern great wall is being built in China by the Communists, the New China News Agency reports. It consists of a forest shelter belt which the agency claims will change the face of northeast China in 15 years. It is intended to stave off wind-driven sand which transforms the area into desert. To date 18,000,000 seedlings have been planted in a belt 650-miles long and 200 miles wide, the agency says.

Five Fatalities During Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Accidents in which automobiles ran into trees claimed two lives during the weekend, bringing the total of violent deaths in Eastern Canada to five for the period.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed one other person killed in a traffice accident, one man fatally injured at work and another beaten to death. Four persons were killed in Ontario and one in Quebec.

At Montreal, Bernard Crevier, 24, of St. Anne de Bellevue was killed when the car in which he was riding went out of control and crashed into a tree.

Mrs. G. W. McNabb of Owen Sound died in a similar accident at Barrie. The car in which she was a passenger skidded off the road.

Jonas Muliunas, 45, a steel worker at Hamilton, was killed when he became entangled in a coal conveyor belt at his work.

At London, Ont., Michael Magiel, 70, died of a beating suffered March 12 when he is believed to have been attacked in his home. Another man has been charged with assault.

Mrs. Edith Hicks, 51, was killed in a truck-car collision near Minden, 75 miles north of Oshawa.

Narrow Escape

PEMBROKE, March 24 (CP)— A live 20-pound mortar bomb was found by a seven-year-old boy Saturday. Thomas Rae saved his son, Jimmy, from injury or death when he spotted the bomb as a live incendiary. Experts from nearby Petawawa military camp said they could not understand why the bomb did not explode when Jimmy picked it up in a ditch. A box of five more was found in the same area, apparently left there from the Second World War.

Cancel Services

ROSENEATH, March 24 (ENS) —Church and Sunday school services were cancelled at Roseneath United church on Sunday morning owing to the freezing rain that fell during the night making driving impossible.

Veteran Pilots Aid Farmers In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM,
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. —(CP)—Veteran New Zealand pilots of the last war are finding a livelihood with thrills in an unlikely direction — spraying fertilizer from the air on vast farming areas.

The airmen work over farms in steep hill country that is too broken and rugged to be covered economically by traditional ground methods. From improvized landing fields they pilot their small planes along steep hillsides and ridges, often turning at the heads of gullies with few feet to spare, flying back with a long white cloud of chemical fertilizer trailing down behind them.

In this way they cover in a few hours contry that would take weeks of backbreaking work to fertilize by hand methods. Trucks and tractors cannot reach much of this land and for years it has remained poor in quality and able to support few animals. Now with the introduction of the aeroplane, however, much of it is being converted into first-class grazing country.

Aerial topdressing is one of the country's fastest growing industries, and one which holds immense promise for rapid expansion of New Zealand's farm production. Already barren hillsides are showing a thick sward of pasture and supporting herds and flocks.

But it is dangerous work. The fliers hardly ever have a recognized airfield to operate from. Usually the best they can hope for is a rough farm field cleared of major obstructions.

Many Applicants

They must fly low to ensure an even spread of fertilizer, and are constantly skimming the tops of trees and ridges. Getting off the ground with a full load of chemicals is a task in itself.

But there is no lack of applicants for the job. Fliers with distinguished battle records may find everyday life dull, and aerial topdressing has become the glamor job of post-war New Zealand.

Crashes are frequent and the wear and tear on the planes is considerable, but pay is high and the job is a constant challenge to the skill of the pilots. In most cases the fliers manage to come out of ugly situations unhurt or with only minor injuries, but the job takes its toll all the same.

Regulations are being drawn up to protect the pilots and lessen the incidence of accidents, but the occupation from its very nature will remain dangerous.

When life is in your hands

If someone's breathing stops from gas, drowning, electric shock—could you save his life?

April Reader's Digest tells about a new, surer method of artificial respiration the Red Cross and U.S. Army now use — with pictures to show you how.

The new technique takes so little strength a child can save a grown man. And because it forces air into the lungs as well as out, it's more effective than the widely used Schafer method.

Drug Peddlers Quitting Trade Too Many Caught

By CLARKE BEACH

WASHINGTON, March 24—(AP) — The post-war boom in the narcotic traffic, with its 'teen-age drug addiction which so alarmed the United States last year, has ended.

And narcotics are going to be less and less of a problem as time goes on.

That's the opinion of the man who has the main responsibility for licking the drug evil, Harry J. Anslinger, Commissioner of the Bureau of Narcotics.

Many peddlers are quitting, Anslinger says, primarily because so many are being caught and new laws—Federal and local—make long sentences mandatory.

If States and cities continue to expand their war on illicit drugs, Anslinger says, the whole vicious business will eventually dwindle to the vanishing point.

The general trend for a generation has been toward extinction of the traffic. The upsurge in 1949, 1950 and 1951 was a post-war phenomenon which Anslinger had predicted from the time the war started.

Less Convictions

Here are some statistics which indicate the downward trend:

1. Convictions for violations of Federal narcotic laws totalled 4,962 in 1930, when records were first kept, dropped to an all-time low of 1,120 in 1945. They began rising after that, reaching a crest of 3,247 in 1950 but dropped to 3,042 in 1951.

2. There was a long waiting list last summer for beds in the public health service hospitals which treat addicts.

3. Narcotic drugs seized or purchased as evidence by Narcotic Bureau agents reached the all-time high in 1922 when the total was 71,151 ounces. It drifted down unevenly to an all-time low of 844 ounces in 1948, rose to 1,726 in 1949, dropped in 1950 and fell further in 1951 to 1,082.

4. Heroin, the powerful, fast-acting opium derivative which is the modern addict's favorite narcotic, was 70 or 80 per cent pure when sold by peddlers two or three years ago, according to a Bureau official. Now it is diluted with a bland powder called sugar of milk until it is seldom more than 20 per cent pure.

"This shows that the supply lines are running low," this official said. "But still they're charging the same old price—$3,000 to $4,000 an ounce. The stuff is so weak that maybe without intending it they are curing a lot of addicts by diminishing doses."

Upbeat Picture Triumphs In Academy Awards

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 24—(AP) —Now that the hue and cry about the Oscars is over, it's time to figure out what the results mean. It looks like a triumph of upbeat pictures over the downbeat.

An upbeat picture is one more entertaining than dramatic — Westerns, musicals, comedies and adventures.

A downbeat picture is one which treats human or social problems, sometimes finding no solution — concerning murder, greed, marital troubles. It is generally such things that win Academy awards.

This year "An American In Paris" took top honors to the tune of a Gershwin melody. The lighthearted musical snagged seven regular awards including best-picture. It also helped get Gene Kelly a special Oscar for his work in musicals.

Want Gayety

This is a vindication for Kelly, who contends musicals should be recognized by the Academy in competition with dramas. It also indicates the trend of Hollywood thinking, and perhaps that of the nation's moviegoers. It would seem that the people want gayety from their movies, not problems.

The victory of Humphrey Bogart is another indication of this theme.

His four opponents were nominated for deadly serious roles.

Fredric Marsh was strictly downbeat in "Death of a Salesman;" Marlon Brando was ill-mannered and unrelenting in "A Streetcar Named Desire;" Arthur Kennedy was a blind war veteran in "Bright Victory," and Montgomery Clift in "A Place In The Sun," was marching toward the electric chair at the finish.

Bogart, the easy-going boatman with a thirst in "The African Queen," was treated with little seriousness as a contender.

For the first few days of the present assizes a microphone was installed beside the witness box and the voices of those giving testimony were amplified throughout the courtroom. Experimenting continues.

Stop Blacklists Of Schools, Board Asks Prov.

Peterborough's Board of Education have joined with other Central Ontario secondary school boards in asking the Minister of Education to stop teachers' groups from blacklisting school boards.

Recently the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation blacklisted Stratford, Kingston and Hamilton over salary disputes.

During the weekend 60 representatives from 25 Central Ontario secondary school boards met in Oshawa to consider the problem. The upshot was a decision to petition Dr. W. J. Dunlop, Minister of Education, to introduce legislation forbidding this blacklisting.

"Let the blacklists come in," said Mrs. Edwin Bryce, chairman of the Kingston board, "the more the merrier. If we have to close our school in September because we don't have the staff, we'll do it. We are determined to hold the line. If we have to close the school let the department figure it out."

10 Resignations

She said already 10 resignations have been received from teachers. Her comment was that teachers who allowed themselves to be pushed into mass resignation without alternative positions are "fools."

"The teachers' federation seems to have only one thing in mind—to put the finger on boards for higher salaries," said Jasper Foreman of Lindsay. "They don't want to pay any attention to the curriculum."

Dr. Ralph G. Honey of Peterborough said he believed the majority of teachers "actually don't want any part of this sort of thing but are told to line up or else."

Getting Higher Wages

Elaborating on this statement, Dr. Honey said today that probably 75 per cent of the staff on the secondary school local are aware of the progress that his been made in salaries.

The estimated increase in money payments to teachers in Peterborough, between Jan. 1, 1951, and Dec. 30, 1952, would be $950 if the cost-of-living continued at the present rate, he said.

"It is regrettable that publicly-elected bodies are forced into the position where they have to take action against one of our most honored professions," said Dr. Honey.

Other Peterborough trustees at the meeting in Oshawa were chairman W. B. Gordon, Arthur Pitchford, and Stanley R. Adamson.

Held For Assault

Percy Little, 48, 887 Water St., did not enter a plea when he appeared in police court today on a charge of assault occasioning bodily harm.

He asked for an adjournment but was remanded until March 31 on $1,000 bail.

Little is alleged to have struck his housekeeper on the head with a stove poker.

Freezing Rain Encases City, District In Ice

Freezing rain Saturday night and early Sunday slowed city and county traffic to a cautious pace. Only two accidents were reported—one in the city, one in the country—and nobody was hurt in either.

Between the city and Bethany, on Highways 7A and 28, motorists reported seeing 12 cars parked at the side of the highways, waiting for better driving conditions.

Stay Overnight

At Rosenearth, a group of Alnwick township Junior Farmers, meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Adams, were stuck for the night there.

Sunday morning showed the city was sheathed in ice. Trees, power and telephone lines, cars, houses, everything was coated with it, and shone in the morning sun. But as the sun warmed the air, trees and power lines shed their coatings with a clatter.

Bell Telephone manager E. G. Baker reported that troubles with iced-up wires in the city were negligible, but that in the Pontypool district, 26 toll circuits were knocked out by the storm.

Long distance circuits to Toronto and Ottawa were also temporarily out, but these troubles were looked after as they were reported. Complaints started to come into the Peterborough office about 7 a.m. Sunday, and the last few were in before 9 o'clock Sunday night.

Rural hydro officials said trouble had been slight, and the Utilities Commission reported no difficulties.

Splash People, May Be Charged

Motorists who delight in splashing pedestrians with a sheet of muddy water as they cruise through puddles these spring days, could wind up in police court, if the spattered pedestrian gets their licence number.

Today, Police Chief John Thompson reminded car drivers that it is an offence under the Highway Traffic Act to splash pedestrians.

"They could be charged with careless driving," Chief Thompson pointed out. The police department has had several complaints the last few days from people who have had their clothing spotted by the muddy spray from a passing car and Chief Thompson warns motorists that with present spring driving conditions, motorists should drive slowly and avoid splashing. If they refuse to heed this advice, they know what the possible consequences are.

Show Consideration

According to Section 29, sub section one of the Highway Traffic Act, "any person who drives a vehicle on a highway without due care and attention or without reasonable consideration for other persons using the highway shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $5 and not more than $100, or to imprisonment for a term of not more than one month, and in addition, his licence or permit may be suspended for a period of not more than six months.

Aside from the inconvenience of being showered with mud and slush, the splash victim is saddled with a cleaning bill if he is unable to get the licence of the car.

Highway Truck Sanding Road Ties Up Traffic

Several motorists, unfortunate enough to be driving on Highway 28 at the height of the ice storm early Sunday morning were held up by a sand truck for nearly four hours.

Traffic piled up for almost half a mile north and south of Springville Hill when a sand truck driven by Bernard McCaskey, 117 Aylmer St., slid into the ditch, blocking the highway.

About 2 a.m., Foster Eggleston, R.R. 5, Peterborough, was driving south on the highway, when his car slid off the road on to the shoulder. He thought his troubles were over, when the sand truck approached from behind.

As the truck swerved out to pass Eggleston's car, it went into a slide, clipped his front bumper and slid into the ditch.

A tow truck had to be called, to pull the sand truck out. For the next four hours, until 6 o'clock, the sand truck prevented any further accidents from happening on that stretch of the highway, because no traffic could get through in either direction.

OPP Constable Jim Healey investigated.

Three Cars Crash On Ice-Coated Highway

Three cars were in a minor accident Saturday night on Highway 28, just north of the city limits. Nobody was injured and damage was about $55.

The icy highway was the primary cause of the accident.

John Dawson, 58, of Young's Point was driving his car north. He passed several cars and then his car slid off the paved surface onto the west shoulder.

He was about to be pulled out by a repair truck when Elwood Sweeting, 22, of R.R. 3 Lakefield slowed down as he came south to avoid hitting him. However, a car behind Sweeting, driven by Edward Dunn, 42, of 415 Stewart St., was unable to stop in time and struck Sweeting's vehicle, then slammed broadside into Dawson's.

Damage to the three cars were $10 to Dawson's, $15 to Sweeting's and $30 to Dunn's. OPP Constable Wallace Mohns investigated.

Returned From Korea

Apathy Greatest Danger To West Says Peterson

"The greatest danger facing the United Nations today lies in apathy and the desire to get out of the Far East that is so evident in the United States and Canada," Major John F. Peterson, D. S. O., declared Friday night at an open meeting of St. Thomas Chamber of Commerce.

Former Mayor of St. Thomas, Major Peterson recently returned from Korea where he served latterly as second-in-command of the Royal Canadian Regiment. Some years ago he was a resident of Peterborough, an officer with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in World War II in which he suffered service injuries, and previously was on the staff of The Examiner.

As to the spirit of apathy toward the war in Korea, Major Peterson said: "If that is to be our attitude, if we are to tire, become despondent, then our future is a terrifying one, for the first to sense such a feeling will be the Communists."

Real Victory.

"There will be no weakening on their part, and they will take full advantage of any falling off of our determination. There has been real victory in the fact that despite the entry of great numbers of Chinese, we are at the 38th parallel, right where aggression started two years ago.

"Had United Nations not gone into Korea where would these Chinese armies be today?"

"Korea is only a day's travel by air from Vancouver in a standard commercial aircraft, and much less in a jet-propelled plane."

Major Peterson presented an insight into the variety of nations taking part in the Korean war, and said: "It is indeed a fantastic force, and as you come to know its elements and members, you gain a great deal of confidence in the victory of the ideals of the United Nations, for there is no doubt in their minds what they are fighting for."

He spoke in high praise of the calibre, courage and resourcefulness of Canada's fighting men in Korea, naturally with some reference to his own famous regiment, the R. C. R.

Widening Danger

The peace talks that have been in progress so long, he said, undoubtedly have given the Chinese a psychological advantage. Not only has there been a psychological effect on the enemy forces but the peace talks have enabled the North Korean forces to build up very materially in men, arms and munitions.

"I dare say that their strength is far greater than ours and it is not improbable that they will launch an offensive this spring," he said. "In fact it is not improbable that we may see a flare-up in the whole East. And so I feel there is a great need of a very determined front not only in Korea but in the whole of the East."

The Chinese are not poor soldiers, Major Peterson reported. They may not be clever but they are determined and brave, and do unexpected things, like rushing into battle without weapons in the expectancy of getting guns from fallen soldiers. Canadians in Korea did not underrate the Chinese as fighting men once they had encountered them in combat.

He told of the plan that had been employed in counteracting the habit of the Chinese of launching attacks with bugles sounding, a most terrifying effect in the hilly country when sound distances are deceptive. The R.C.R.'s went the Chinese buglers one better by bringing up the entire regimental bugle band and sounding "retreat."

Korean People

He described the rough terrain, the baren hills, so hot in summer with little shade, and the general war torn condition of the land. Most of the people were in desperate condition, surviving by a standard of living a Canadian would find it difficult to understand. He said he had found the Koreans a delightful people, simple minded, gentle of nature and very polite and certainly deserving of a better fate than they have had. Left alone, they should have something to contribute to the world, although they have little or no leadership, having been under Japanese domination for so long.

Child's Cries Raise Alarm In House Fire

Neighbor Saves Girl In Smouldering Room $600 Damage Done

Choking smoke which filled her second floor bedroom wakened four-year-old Cathy Vanallen at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Cathy's cries were heard by Mrs. Laverne Healy in the downstairs apartment and Mrs. Healy pulled Cathy from her crib, as smoke poured from a clothes closet.

When firemen arrived, the smoke was so thick, they were unable to force their way up the stairs of Mal Vanallen's house at 752 Stormont St., on the corner of Bellevue.

To get at the fire, two firemen placed ladders against the north side of the house and broke two windows in the bedroom where the fire was located.

Flames Shoot Up

As soon as the air gushed into the room, flames burst from the closet. Water was sprayed into the burning room, and then, firemen were able to make their way up the stairs and fight the fire from two directions.

In addition to damage caused to the second floor bedroom by the fire, smoke and water damage was also heavy. Damage caused by the fire which was confined to the bedroom is estimated at $600. The Vanallen's have insurance on the house, but the contents were not insured and the furnitunre in the bedroom was destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanallen's apartment was damaged to such an extent, that they have had to find emergency living accommodation while it is being repaired.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy who occupy part of the house were looking after the Vanallen's small daughter, as Mr. and Mrs. Vanallen were out for the evening and had not yet returned home, when the fire was discovered.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

Busy Night

Saturday night was a busy night for firemen. They had two chimney fires before the Vanallen fire. At 7.30, they extinguished a pipe and chimney fire at the home of Charles Jewell, 588 Monaghan Rd. Shortly before 11 p.m., they used a hand pump to put out a chimney fire at the residence of Earl Schwanz, 618 Rogers St.

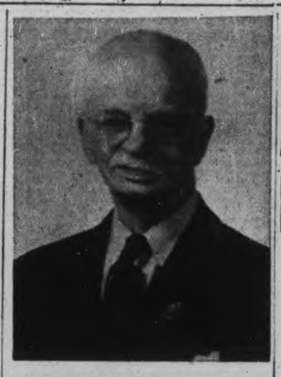
Then at 2.28 a.m., two hand pumps were required to put out a fire in a car at Lansdowne and George St., caused by a short circuit in the wiring. The car was owned by Alvin E. Lee, 602 Romaine St.

Freight Train Derailed In City

C.P.R. trackmen finished repairing the track at the George St. crossing today where a way freight was derailed at 7.30 Saturday night.

It was coming from the east, when the engine went off the rails just at the edge of the George St. crossing. Fortunately, it did not block George St., except for about an hour Sunday morning, when it was finally inched back on the rails at 5.30.

The 1.35 morning train from Toronto was held up about an hour, until the track could be cleared.



A. E. ("MAC") McDOUGALL

A. E. McDougall Dies In Sleep In Toronto Hotel

Alford Elliot McDougall, known as "Mac" to his many friends of the legal profession in Peterborough, died in his sleep Sunday while on a business trip in Toronto.

For the past 14 years Mr. McDougall has been associated in a legal capacity with W. J. Arthur Fair Q.C. In Peterborough, he was for some years secretary of the Jolly Beggars' Club and of the Peterborough Cribbage and Bridge Club.

Mr. McDougall was staying in a Toronto hotel, and on Sunday was expected at his sister's home for dinner. When he did not come, she telephoned the hotel, and he was found dead in his room. A coroner said he had died during his sleep.

Graduated In Law

Born in Uxbridge, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Neil N. McDougall. He was educated in Newmarket, and moved to Manitoba with his parents. In Winnipeg, he graduated from law school and was a member of the Manitoba and Saskatchewan Bar Association.

He served overseas with the army in the First World War. Before he moved east 16 years ago, his wife died. For two years before joining Mr. Fair, Mr. McDougall was with the legal firm of R. M. W. Chitty, Q.C., in Toronto.

He is survived by two sisters, Ruth of Toronto, Mrs. Wallace Rutherford (Anne) of Bellingham, Washington, and one brother, Donald of Chicago.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The body is resting at the F. Rosar funeral home, 467 Sherbourne St., Toronto.

Five Hurt As Car Hits Pole, Tree

Three Youths, 2 Girls Not Seriously Injured Car Skids On Ice

All five occupants of a car which snapped off a telephone pole, and crashed into a tree on the Keene Road at Assumption Hill early Sunday morning were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

None of the injuries sustained by the three youths and two girls in the car were serious.

Driver X-Rayed

John P. Crowley, 23, 778 Simcoe St., north, Oshawa, was driving north, when the car went out of control, on the icy road surface. In addition to facial cuts, Crowley apparently received undetermined head injuries, X-rays were taken Sunday, and he is still in hospital, under observation

Also in hospital are: Miss Joan Inglis, 18, 272 Carlisle Ave., and Miss Linda Nichols, 18, 552 Rose Ave.

Vincent Fitzgerald, 20, R.R. 8, Peterborough and Frederick Clancy, 19, R.R. 7, Peterborough were treated for facial cuts when they were admitted, and were later released.

Say 600,000 Students Hear School Programs

TORONTO (CP).—It has been estimated that about 600,000 Canadian school children now hear regular school broadcasts, and nearly as many adults listen to them at home. Some of the school broadcasts have a higher audience rating than regular daytime radio features.

Belief that the national school broadcasts foster a "healthy Canadianism" was expressed recently by Dr. W. P. Percival, director of Protestant education for the Quebec Education Department and retiring chairman of the CBC's national advisory council on school broadcasting.

Dr. Percival said at the banquet that marked the 10th anniversary of national school broadcasts that these programs, which have the unanimous approval of all 10 provinces, are arousing and deepening interest in history, music, literature and nature study, not only among children but among adults too.

This "biggest classroom" in Canada has a new teacher. Dr. R. O. MacFarlane, deputy minister of education for Manitoba, has accepted the chairmanship of the national advisory council on school broadcasting which includes representatives of all provincial education departments as well as other interested bodies.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, has estimated the number of children listening to both national and provincial school broadcasts at close to 600,000. At least 35 per cent of all Canadian schools now are equipped with radio. Dunton said more than $200,000 would be spent on school broadcasting in the next school year by the combined provincial departments, and the same amount by the CBC.

From the first experiment in national school broadcasts by the CBC has developed an intercommonwealth exchange program, involving regular exchange of such broadcasts among Canada, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Ceylon.

Television for regular school broadcasts offers a new group of problems. Large-screen television receivers necessary for schools are expensive sets. "You may be sure," Mr. Dunton said recently, "that before schools are encouraged to make such large outlays we will have completed a period of careful experimentation, and that the telecasts for schools will be planned on the same sound foundations that have characterized the work of the National Advisory Council."

Siam Prosperity Gives Reds Little Scope

By BILL BOSS

BANGKOK, Thailand, March 24 —(CP)—Thailand is an untroubled prosperous island in southeast Asia's sea of Communist turbulence.

She has her domestic upsets, but they're all in the family.

Since 1945 there have been nine coups d'etat and the assassination of a king in this country, the size of France (100,000 square miles) and with a population barely larger than Canada's 14,000,000.

Thailand—the people call it Siam just as often—is run by Field Marshals and Major-Generals. The people have the vote but scarcely exercise it.

The man at the helm is Field Marshal Pibul Songgram, who carried Thailand into the Second World War on the side of the Japanese. He is the only leader against whom the Allies fought who is still in power. One way or another, leaders of the underground which co-operated with the Allies have been relegated to obscurity.

The Field Marshal's anti-Communist policy is his current passport to acceptability by the west.

Cynical Siamese say voting is a farce because the House of Representatives is powerless, so they don't bother to vote. The Minister of the Interior congratulated the people after the recent elections when the popular vote went up to 25 per cent. Previously it was 15 per cent.

The secret of Thailand's stability is a combination of her unique economy and its Buddhist religion.

She is the only under-populated country in the Orient. She is rich in natural resources, and last year sold abroad one-third more in dollar value than she imported. Despite that she received help valued at $10,000,000 annually from the United States Economic Co-Operation Administration because it is considered an investment in goodwill.

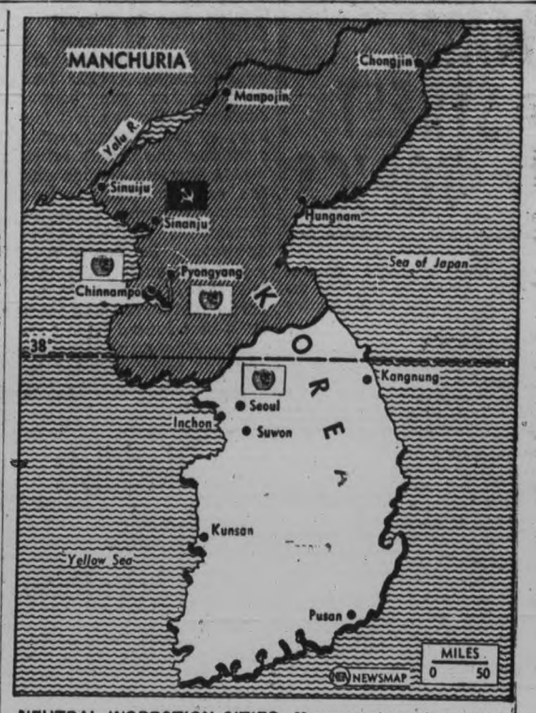
There is a shortage of labor, but the wary Siamese are careful about whom they let in. Already a strong Chinese element has a stranglehold on the economy. Most businesses involving skills, crafts or commercial sense are in Chinese hands. Educated Siamese seem to prefer the professions or government employment. New laws restrict alien rights in business, the employment of aliens, and their enlistment in the armed services.

Thailand's precautions against Communist defection and infiltration are mainly against the alien elements of the population. The country's prosperity, buttressed by the Buddhist religion, affords Communism little scope among the Siamese, but Communism is believed to be strong among the Chinese.

Flanked by insurrectionist Burma, Malaya and Indo-China, the Siamese are strengthening their armed forces. Compulsory service is being introduced for men between 18 and 40, training to last two years.

Even so the police force will remain stronger than the army. The police have the only paratroop course and are equipped with aircraft, armored vehicles and field artillery. Aircraft flying domestic routes are accompanied by police officials.

While revolutions are frequent they are relatively bloodless and foreigners are seldom affected. Generally they are between the armed services. In the last one the navy kidnapped the prime minister who had been installed by the army, and the air force joined the army in bombing naval installations. The prime minister escaped by swimming ashore when the navy gunboat on which he was being held was sunk by the air force.



NEUTRAL INSPECTION CITIES—Newsmap above shows cities nominated by Korean Reds and the Allies to be "ports of entry" to which neutral inspection teams could be assigned during a Korean cease fire. Communist and UN flags show cities in dispute. Allies demand that Pyongyang, and Seoul be included, but Reds refuse. The UN also asks for Chinnampo instead of Red proposed Sinanju.

Knox College Principal Dies

TORONTO, March 24—(CP)—Dr. Walter W. Bryden, 69, principal of Knox College and an internationally-known figure in the theological field, died Sunday at his Toronto home. He suffered a stroke Tuesday.

Born at Galt, Dr. Bryden was a graduate of the University of Toronto and Knox College.

Known as one of Canada's leading theological teachers, Dr. Bryden was the author of several books on religion which won international acclaim.

Dr. Bryden received his early education at the Galt Collegiate Institute. He received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from the University of Toronto in 1907 and graduated with honors in philosophy and psychology. Two years later he graduated from Knox College. He took postgraduate work at the United Free Church College, Glasgow, Scotland, and the University of Strasbourg, France. The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him by the Presbyterian College of Montreal.

In 1925 he joined the staff of Knox College as a lecturer and in 1927 was appointed professor of church history and the history and philosophy of religions. He continued in this appointment until 1945, when he was made principal, succeeding Dr. Thomas Eakin. He was known as one of Canada's leading theological teachers and was the author of several books which won recognition in the United States and Great Britain as well as Canada.

His books included: The Spirit of Jesus in St. Paul, Why I Am a Presbyterian, and The Christian's Knowledge of God.

During his university days, Dr. Bryden was prominent in sports and was captain of the Varsity soccer team. He was the winner of several medals in the field and track events as a runner.

Admitting No Cure For Disease Unscientific And Un-Christian

LONDON (CP)—A team of more than 40 doctors and nurses, under the direction of an Anglican priest, will tackle a task the medical world says cannot be done—the healing of "incurables."

Behind the experimental project is Rev. John Maillard, 67, former East India docks priest. A noted author as well as churchman, he has devoted his life since 1936 to the care of the sick.

An ancient manor house with 100 rooms, near Milton Abbas, Dorset, will serve as the team's sanctuary of healing. It will be opened on May 1 to the first group of patients, including people crippled by arthritis and some in advanced stages of tuberculosis and cancer. Chalets will be set up for tuberculosis sufferers on the 800-acre estate and a separate section established for children.

With a fully-trained medical staff at their disposal, Mr. Maillard said the object of the team would be to combine medical science, nursing and religion.

"We believe that to admit a disease cannot be cured is defeatism, unscientific and un-Christian," he said.

Doctors throughout the United Kingdom have been advised that the home will accommodate 75 patients. Although preference will be given to younger people with their life before them, age, denomination or financial circumstances will be no bar.

"Those who have been given up by their doctors as hopeless, will get first priority," Mr. Maillard said. "They are the people we think we can help most."

Chinese Learn Canadian Ways

MELFORT, Sask. — (CP) — A group of new Chinese Canadians here are learning reading, writing and English conversation. At the same time they are being taught how to conduct themselves in social situations.

For all this they thank a woman who began the work purely out of kindness.

What started as a neighborly gesture for Mrs. J. C. Joslyn now is a five-afternoon-a-week class in a room above a Chinese restaurant. The students are eight children ranging in age from three to 19 years and two mothers, all of whom have been in this country only a little while.

It all began about two years ago. Mrs. Joslyn drove a Chinese to hospital and discovered that his wife and son would be arriving shortly from China. She offered neighborly help.

When another Chinese family wth three children came to town she was asked advice as to where they could get an English teacher. Mrs. Joslyn is not a teacher by profession but she agreed to help them as much as she could.

Takes Them Shopping

What makes this class just a little different from many that are beng conducted for newcomers in various centres is that Mrs. Joslyn and her Chinese students can be seen any day out on the streets of the town. She takes them shopping or to visit any place she thinks would be of benefit.

"I try to teach them situations so that they will never be embarrassed in Canada," she says.

She says she has never done anything she liked better. The qualifications most needed are "unlimited patience and to speak slowly and clearly."

Mrs. Joslyn still finds time for other activities. She works in her husband's law office each day, is secretary of the local branches of the Canadian Cancer and Arthritis Societies, helped organize the town's St. John First Aid and Home Nursing Division and has been president of the Canadian Auxiliary.

Western Oils Account For Most Trading

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Unpredictable as spring weather and precocious as sharp-eyed merchants, Toronto Stock Market traders again looked to Western Canada's oil possibilities this week.

The market's irregular movements, however, made it difficult to decide what they saw.

Last weekend's strong advance ended abruptly Monday—for no apparent reason—but the day's turnover of almost 4,000,000 shares was the week's largest. Western oil trading accounted for almost two-thirds of the volume.

Prices were generally steady Tuesday and Wednesday with oils continuing to dominate exchange dealings. But Thursday trading slowed to about 2,700,000 shares, again with little apparent change.

Prices surged upward Friday as volume of shares traded approached Monday's turnover.

With little apparent relation between price movements and volume and few significant reports of spring property development, market observers hesitated to predict the future.

One fact emerges, however. Since the first of the year, despite sustained activity the Exchange's western oil index has increased by about 13 per cent. During the same period last year, the index gained more than 23 per cent with daily volumes, particularly in February and March, rarely exceeding the 2,000,000 mark.

Quick Profits

These differences would appear to indicate that more speculators are interested in quick profits.

For other market sections—industrials, golds and base metals—it was a dull week. All three drifted irregularly lower in generally slow trading confined mainly to leading issues.

Montreal prices made little headway Monday as papers and industrial eased toward the close. All sections turned slightly lower Tuesday and extended the trend through Wednesday and Thursday. Papers strengthened Friday but industrials dipped.

New York opened the week with mixed trading but oils found favor as the session progressed. Prices turned downward Tuesday as rails sagged. Prices were mixed Wednesday but higher Thursday. Motors led a mild upturn Friday.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 2.61 at 328.40, golds down .48 at 83.36, base metals down 1.84 at 190.44 and western oils up 2.97 at 141.64.

BULGARIAN-BORN Christo Stefanoff, considered to be one of Europe's most famous artists, has selected Canada as his home—after a varied career in which he painted Mussolini, was an inmate of a German concentration camp and sketched the rebellion of the Warsaw Ghetto. Artist Stefanoff has taken up residence in Montreal where he is equipping a studio. He said he has nearly 100 oil paintings and pastel and charcoal sketches with him, valued at between $250,000 and $700,000. Though he has only been in Canada since the beginning of the year, and has had time to paint only several Canadian landscapes, Mr. Stefanoff said he was delighted with the "space and color" of the country and is anxious to travel from coast to coast. In the photo above Lion-maned Christo Stefanoff displays two massive oil-paintings depicting battles in Warsaw during World War II. The canvas at right is claimed to bt the only one in existence of the destruction of the Warsaw Ghetto.

Report Canada's Production Nearly Doubled In 12 Years

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canada produces nearly twice as much as she did 12 years ago.

Stated in dollars, last year's national output of $21,217,000,000 was nearly four times that of 1939; but, allowing for price rises, actual increase is about 90 per cent.

The figures are from the current Business Review of the Bank of Montreal, which includes a supplement giving pertinent figures of the last 12 years.

The nature of Canadian economic development, the review states, is even more significant than its over-all dimensions.

Production of primary steel, "the backbone of industry," is up 130 per cent. "New rolling mills have extended the finishing process in strip, tin plate and sheet steel, and the manufacture of high-quality alloy, tool and stainless steels has been developed."

Further:

Processing of non - ferrous metals has been carried further into the frabricating stage. Output of motor vehicles and refined petroleum has about tripled in the 12 years, while production of pulp and paper has more than doubled. The chemical industry has expanded into new lines and increased its volume by 80 per cent.

Bring Changes

These changes, the review notes, have brought changes in employment as between factory and farm.

"In 1939 there was one worker in industry for every one in agriculture. Since then, industrial employment has risen by two-thirds, whereas farm employment has fallen by one-quarter, although there has actually been an increase in agricultural output. The farmer now is outnumbered by the industrial worker by more than two to one.

"The successful search for new deposits of base metals, iron ore, titanium, uranium and, to a lesser extent, the precious metals, has pushed the frontier northward. New discoveries of oil hold promise of transformation of the economy of the Prairies."

In response to this "drama of discovery," some $1,600,000,000 of foreign capital has come into Canada in the last two years, "principally, but by no means entirely, from the United States."

This foreign capital, however, "has not been the major source of finance for Canada's requirements. It has been equivalent to probably not more than 15 per cent of total capital expenditure in Canada in these two years.

Outside Funds Helpp

"But outside funds have been a predominant factor in the development of oil and iron deposits and directly or indirectly have eased the pressure on the domestic capital market. What is equally important, they have enabled the country not only to finance a deficit in foreign trade, but also to add significantly to its exchange reserves."

The review finds some qualification of enthusiasm in the fact that Canada's dependence on export markets has changed little with the passing years. "Furthermore, the overriding importance of a few main commodities continues. Newsprint, lumber, base metals and wheat are still the foundation stones of Canada's export trade."

Further: While before the war, 40 per cent of Canada's total exports went to the United Kingdom, 37 per cent to the United States, and 23 per cent elsewhere, by 1951 the percentage going to the United Kingdom had fallen to 16 per cent, and the percentage to the United States had risen to 59 per cent. "It is therefore well to remember that the basic pattern of Canada's trade has its elements of vulnerability." However:

"There are fundamental forces which suggest that, as in the past, the optimistic view of Canadian prospects is most likely, over the long run, to be the correct view."

New Plants Cover N.B. Power Needs

FREDERICTON — (CP)—Hon. Isaac Melanson, chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, has brought members of the Legislature up to date on the progress of electrification and power development in the province.

A big development at the Narrows of the Tobique river will be in operation next year, making another 27,000 horsepower available. A new steam generating unit at Grand Lake added another 16,800 horsepower to the Commission's system. Mr. Melanson said these developments would meet the estimated normal increase in demand for electric power.

Further development of the St. John River was under investigation. As the area comprised territory on both sides of the International border, the matter had been referred to a works committee of the international Joint Commission and a report was expected this year. Additional harnessing of this river might herald a "new era of development" for the province.

Mr. Melanson said the Commission was firmly established on a sound basis. It served about 100,000 customers either directly or indirectly.

Language Of Modern Youth Sloppy, Disturbs Experts

MONTREAL — (CP) — High school teachers and university professors are losing out to the movies and comic books, radio and television in their campaign for better speech and writing, says a Montreal authority.

Prof. George L. Duthi, professor of English at McGill University, said the passion for movies and radio and a growing aversion to reading has produced a generation of students who find it increasingly difficult to speak and write with enough accuracy to meet modern requirements.

The professor, who has been studying the reading and writing habits of some 800 first-year students at the university, is concerned about the added effect of television on literacy, added to the impact of movies, comic books and radio. Television, he says, constitutes a distinct threat to the ability to read and write in a lucid fashion.

He has been disappointed in the language and writing of the students in first-year English courses. "I believe that good reading habits are the foundation of speaking and writing ability," he said.

"If a boy or girl is encouraged to read, beginning about the age of seven, and if that boy or girl maintains the habit, then there will be little or no difficulty later on in life."

Must Love Reading

The time element in reading at an early age is not so important as "reading for its own sake, reading for recreation," he said. It was important to learn to like good reading. Possibly one hour's reading a day might be considered a minimum requirement.

As to the effects of neglect of reading, he pointed to the results of a test on first-year students designed to show whether they were capable of "mechancially accurate" writing. "Over 26 per cent failed the test completely, while many others very nearly failed," he said.

The condition was not peculiar to Canada. Similar findings had been obtained in other parts of the English-speaking world.

Prof. Duthie said perhaps the pendulum had swung too far away from classroom work to "making school fun."

Suggest No Overtime

Free Methodist W.M.S. Has Speaker

The Rev. N. A. Bosko, converted Russian, was guest speaker at the Free Methodist W.M.S. meeting last Thursday night. The story of his early life in Russia before World War One was very interesting, but pathetic. He told in detail about his escape from that country at the age of 15 via the underground channel. This was most enlightening, Mr. Bosko is pastor of the church in Campbellford and has been invited to bring the second part of his story, that of his conversion, to the W.M.S. in the near future. Mrs. G. H. Robinson, president, was in charge of the meeting and introduced the speaker. The Rev. R. E. Dargan, pastor, sang "Glad Day" and gave the vote of thanks to Mr. Bosko. The next W.M.S. meeting is to be on Friday, April 4th. The Junior Missionary Society will provide the program and plans to show a film, "Dominican Republic."

Weekend Conference at YW By Delegates From 16 Assoc.

Peterborough Y W C A was hostess for the 1952 regional Young Adult Conference this past week-end and accomodated 90 delegates from out of town Associations, through the kindness of a number of citizens in opening their homes to them. In addition to generous hospitality, the city was well advertised in organized sight seeing tours and a variety of entertainment offered by the YW and the YM.

Theme of the conference was "Purpose-Program-Peace." Each topic was discussed at length with the delegates divided into seven discussion groups, each having a leader and a secretary to record the findings. These are to be incorporated in minutes to be prepared in printed form and sent to each delegate by a Peterborough committee. They will then be discussed at a post-conference meeting of the membership of each Y involved: Kitchener, St. Catharines, Galt, Hamilton, Toronto, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg; Also Niagara Falls and Owen Sound which were not represented.

Be "Spark Plugs"

Delegates were advised that they are expected to become "spark plugs" in their own organizations and make use of the techniques and ideas brought out at the conference.

Peace was the discussion topic on which these young women had the most to say that is of public interest. They felt they should increase work with newcomers to the communtiy, concentrating more on the young people in these families.

They were anxious that there should be an increase in the number of public affairs committees in the Associations. They recommended that the Y increase emphasis on the world service program, incorporating interest in such things as the Columbo plan.

Basic human rights were also discussed and plans for coping with such things as illiteracy. Still under the topic of peace they discussed the lack of food in some countries and immigration policies.

Recommendations

Suggestion was made from the conference to National Council that the small handbook explaining the Y purpose, program etc, be prepared up-to-date.

Religion was the underlying factor in two recommendations prepared for National Council. "I, -That we as members have help in the method of carrying out the Christian emphasis of our program; 2, That we have an ecumenical service of worship at conferences."

Discussion of the second recommendation brought forth the suggestion that a Protestant and a Roman Catholic girl be assigned to work together in planning the worship services, a practice previously suggested which had been overlooked by the planning committee this year. About five delegates present were of the latter faith.

Theme speaker Miss Jean Campbell of National Council said in a "briefing" address prior to the discussions: "Racial prejudice could be wiped out and we women could do it—if we wanted to." She urged the members "Make the Christian purpose meaningful. Make it involve everyone's interest. Concentrate on our basic common denominator by sensing the things we have in common."

Those in Charge

Miss Hazel Wilson carried out the duties of conference chairman in a most complete and satisfying way. Miss Annie Williams had the burden of secretarial duties and Miss Jean McIntyre the treasury. Registration was taken by Miss Helen Edmison and Miss Kay Cailadine and the billeting was arranged by a committee of Miss Gerry Dunford, Mrs. E. Killingbeck and Mrs. T. Cooke with Miss Marion Foster working out the details.

Miss Jean Hammond, president of the Member's Council extended welcome to the delegates at the buffet luncheon Saturday noon. Mrs. H. T. Rehill, president of the Y Board extended her welcome at the evening banquet and said she felt the theme of the discussions was most apt. Greetings of the city were extended at the same time by Mayor Waddell with the hope that some constructive conclusions would be reached during the conference.

Entertainment

Lively sing songs are a mark of such a meeting as this, but possibly the liveliest ever took place Saturday evening with Bill McFarlane of the YMCA staff leading. Loud and lengthy applause showed him the girls liked it "man style." His assistant at the piano was Jim Abraham.

Colored slides taken at National Assembly last year were shown with commentary by Miss Barbara Wilkinson of Galt and pictures taken at YWCA camp were shown with explanations given by a Toronto member who attended.

The entertainment arranged by Peterborough included showing of the film "Call of the Kawarthas" with Bill Titshall as projectionist. Latter part of Saturday evening was free with delegates invited to the 20 Plus Club dance at the YW, "Fun Night" at the YM and to play cards or take a swim. Church arrangements for Sunday were left to themselves, each having been provided with a map of the city which gave the location of the various churches.

Miss Mary Andrews of Oshawa had a most interesting sample display of the many crafts which are taught in the Oshawa Y "Craft Workshop."

Sunday lunch in the Y.W. cafeteria was followed with a sing song and musical entertainment and following a closing worship service, tea was served in the Green Room.

Vote to hold the next annual conference in the spring of '53 was carried by a small majority. It was then decided the conference will be held at Oshawa Y.

Trailer Homes Have Bed Upstairs

LONDON — (CP)—Permanent homes on wheels—they're known as trailers in Canada—have solved the living problems of more than 300,000 people in Britain. The current independent public display of the Caravan Residents Association shows just what can be done with these mobile homes.

Many of the features are familiar to Canadians, such as glass wool insulation, built-in kitchens and bathrooms, hot and cold water systems and convertible furniture.

But among the new types on view here are two-storey caravans. One has two bedrooms upstairs with a central "staircase" from the "entrance hall."

Another model includes a main room that changes with a few adjustments from a buffet dining-room into a settee lounge or a double bedroom. Another caravan expands to half as wide again when settled on its site, merely by winding a handle. In this one the living room can be turned into three bedrooms—one single and two double.

The Little Things Make Or Break

Like color in a costume, pretty accessories can make or break the way you look. Some women walk through their front doors in the morning wearing a grey flannel suit, blue scarf, knotted hastily around the neck, pink felt hat, yellow cotton gloves, brown oxfords, clutching a black hanndbag.

Generally, the average woman avoids wearing striped skirt with, say, a splashy printed blouse. Generally, but not always. And even those women who are careful about their mix-matches find accessories a bugaboo. Having a good accesory wardrobe, which is a definite help in stretching your regular clothes wardrobe, begins with good taste in picking those accessories.

No matter how pretty violet scarves, bunches of violets and mauve gloves may be, resist them if they do not fit in with you wardrobe color plan, if they are not personally becoming, or if they will not team up with your other accessories.

You're on the right road if you never buy accessories, however tempting, unless they fill a real need in your wardrobe. Thus, limit your accessory choices to a few colors and always buy within the framework of these colors.

"Poodle" Cut On Way Out

ST. LOUIS, March 24 (AP) — The poodle hair-do is already on the way out, Marguerite E. Buck, New York hair style authority, said yesterday.

"The poodle just isn't right for enough people," she explained at a fashion show.

The trend, she said, is to coiffures in which the hair will be short but "attractively so".

Woman Manager Of Famous Arena

LONDON (CP)—One of the top jobs in the British musical profession, stage manager of the famed Royal Opera House at Covent Garden, is held by Miss Elizabeth Latham. It's a big job for a woman, but she has had wide experience.

She started at Covent Garden this spring with Benjamin B. Britten's nautical opera "Billy Budd."

Miss Latham studied dramatic art before the last war, but gave it up because she was nervous on the stage. She found her vocation when she began stage-managing for the British national entertainments service which entertained the armed forces during the Second World War.

Since then she has stage-managed at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon, and has also worked at Glyndebourne, the big private opera house in the Sussex Downs.

Spring Calls For Make-Up Change

To help your skin make the transition from winter to spring, change your make-up tones, and choose brighter, lighter-colored accessories.

Start with your foundation base. If you've been wearing a biege tone, switch immediately to a muted rose foundation. It will give your skin a vibrantly alive look.

Pick a powder shade that has the same warm tones as the foundation, and spotlight your lips and cheeks with vivid color. Naturally, your application of these colors must be subtle if you want to achieve a glowing, beautiful effect.

Eyes, Too

Don't overlook the possibilities of your eyes, either. Conservative eye make-up should be replaced with color. Mascara, of course, is a "must." A touch of eye shadow, even for daytime wear, will be an attractive addition. Let your eye shadow blend with the costume you are wearing.

Since your goal is to lend as much color to your skin as is possible, wear hats, scarves and jewellery that help you to reach it. Put all your dark, dull accessories and make-up away.

Jacqueline Duck Is Bride Of Private Lorne Frayne

A lovely wedding took place at St. John's Anglican Church on Saturday afternoon as Norma Jacqueline Duck became the bride of Private Lorne Drew Frayne. The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson who had given permission for the event to take place during Lent because the groom is scheduled to leave for Korea soon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Duck of Peterborough and was given in marriage by her father. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Frayne of Oshawa.

A charming gown of white lace and net with very full skirt falling to floor length was the bride's choice. It was styled with a moulded evening bodice topped with a short sleeve bolero of the lace and the skirt was trimmed with ruching of net. She wore matching lace mittens and a pearl tiara held her short veil. Her bouquet was of red and white roses in a heart shape.

Matron of honor Mrs. Fred Revoy and bridesmaid Mrs. Geo. Duck were in frocks of blue and pink lace made with fitted basque bodice and bouffant skirts. They had long mittens of matching lace and wore halos of flowers and shoulder veils also of blue and pink. They carried circle bouquets of pink carnations which were outlined in the colors of their frocks.

Mr. Philip Frayne was groomsman for his brother and the ushers were Harvey Duck and Donald Frayne, brothers of the bride and groom.

Traditional wedding music was played during the wedding service by organist Mr. F. G. Mann.

The reception of guests took place at the Club Aragon. The bride's mother wore for the occasion a powder blue ensemble with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother chose navy and wore white accessories and a corsage of roses.

When leaving afterward on their wedding trip to Buffalo the bride was wearing a gold color suit and hat and a navy shortie coat and navy accessories.

Private and Mrs. Frayne will live at Camp Petawawa until about May 15th when the groom expects to leave for Korea.

Postmaster, Wife Mark Anniversary

ROSENEATH, March 24 (ENS) —Mr. and Mrs. George Mouncey, Roseneath Postmasters, celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary on Saturday evening at their home, by entertaining their near relatives and a few close friends.

The evening was spent in playing progressive games: Euchre prizes were won by: Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite, Mrs. Earl Braithwaite, Miss Patsy Palmateer, Bart Thackeray. Miss Doreen Cowling carried off the prize for Chinese checkers. In the crokinole section, Fred Norris won the prize for high score and Mrs. Annie Lapp receiving the consolation prize.

The groom's gift to the bride was a set of costume jewellery, necklace and matching earrings. The gathering was called to order and Mrs. Frank Brown expressed the appreciation of the gathering for the many times they had enjoyed the hospitality of their home during the past 30 years and wished them continued health and happiness. A purse of money was presented, on behalf of the gathering, by Mrs. Fred Norris. They replied briefly.

Mr. and Mrs. Mouncey, nee Hazel Cowling, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cowling, Fenella, March 22, 1922. The Rev. Thomas McCord, Presbyterian Minister at Bethesda North, (near Harwood) officiated.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Poppy Seeds Used In Yeast Rolls

My Viennese friend Thilde gave a Sunday afternoon party and served Poppy Seed Roll because I asked for it.

I am so glad this happened and that I have this precious recipe for Mrs. O. LeC. whose letter follows. (I am sorry it is in "grams". You will have to do as I did—take your ingredients to the druggists who will have a gram scale and charm him into letting you weigh them out— then measure them by ounces or cups and teaspoons to have it for keeps, and if you don't mind send it to me.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Dear Mary Moore: When I was home I used to help my mother with some delicious rolls she used to make—She always made the basic recipe and I filled them with walnuts chopped up or poppy seed. I wish now that I had learned to make the dough because for going on 11 years I'm still trying and no success—Mine always turn out too hard. They were made of a yeast dough and it's a Hungarian recipe. Could you help me?

Also would you give me a recipe for either mayonnaise or salad dressing, as yet I haven't found one I could make properly.

I have 3 little boys age 8-6-5, and I'd love to have a good plain cookie recipe. I can never keep the cookie can full. My boys all dislike cooked vegetables, that's really a problem. I would appreciate any help you could give me. Mrs. O. LeC.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER—It is just sheer luck that I have this for you. You may use chopped walnuts in place of poppy seeds, of course.

Yeast Poppy Seed Roll

Five hundred grams flour (bread), 3 eggs, ½ pint milk, 30 grams yeast (1 1-oz. cake) 125 grams butter (4 ½ oz. or generous ½ cup will do), 125 grams sugar (½ cup will do). Scald the milk, cool to body temperature (lukewarm) and dissolve the crumbled yeast in it with 1 teaspoon of the sugar. When it has been stirred and foams to top of cup, add to the beaten eggs. Add the remaining sugar to the flour, make a well in centre, pour in liquids and stir until well mixed. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 1½ hours. Roll out to ½ inch thickness on board floured with bread flour. Brush with soft butter. Cover with Filling: 375 grams minced or ground poppy seeds (or chopped walnuts), ½ pint milk, 3 eggs beaten, 80 grams raisins, 85 grams sugar (3 oz.), about 80 grams other chopped nuts if desired (like almonds), 75 grams (2½ oz.) butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix together, stirring, over low heat, and when it nearly boils cook over boiling water 10 minutes. Spread on rolled out dough, roll up, and let rise again until doubled in bulk. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1 hour.

Prize All-Purpose Dressing

(This is the first time I have given this in this column—it will please both the salad dressing and mayonnaise addicts.)

Combine in order given 2 beaten yolks, 1 teaspoon each mustard and salt, 4 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, 1 cup very cold oil—adding the oil 1 teaspoon at a time and beating until it emulsifies — between each addition. (Emulsify means thicken.) Now melt 3 tablespoons butter, then stir into it ¼ cup flour and when blended 1 cup boiling water. Stir until thick and cook 10 minutes over boiling water. Chill. Beat into emulsified oil dressing. Add 1 or 2 tablespoons icing sugar. Economical and popular.

Watch this column for my answer to the last part of you letter.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Resents Her Husband Seeing Old School Girls

DEAR MISS DIX: Should a man give up old friends he has known in high-school days—if they are girl friends? My husband, Peter, and I met after graduation from high school, married a few days later and moved several hundred miles away from home. We only go back about twice a year. We are happily married and have a family. When we go back home for a visit we spend our time with his folks, my folks, and mutual friends. However, he also makes a habit of dropping in to see some of his old friends, then comes home and tells me of the visit. Since I knew these girls slightly, I am interested in the news. I'd like to go with him on his calls, and though I've asked, he has never taken me.

Peter is just naturally friendly with everybody. He also calls his old boy friends. Though I try to take these visits as a matter of course, as the years progress they still occur at least once a year. I'm sure my husband sees nothing wrong in seeing these ladies, but I wonder and worry. After nine years he still goes to see the two married ones who live in town and the sister of one of them who lives with her mother.

MRS. C. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Wives are natural worriers, but on the basis of what you have written, I honestly can see no harm in Peter's visits to old friends. I suspect Peter of nothing more serious than being a bit of an incorrigible gossip who likes to collect the latest news. Since he is, according to your own description, a naturally friendly person, he likes people, and is especially fond of old friends.

Better Than New Sirens

This trait is lots more comfortable for you than having him constantly making new friends — which could be a source of potential danger. Much better old girl friends that newly met sirens. Furthermore, since the visits only occur once a year, your green-eyed monster really is trespassing on the wrong premises.

There's a great deal of comfort in old friends, and both husband and wife can profit from their association. Too many young people discard their old friends after marriage, only to regret their thoughtlessness later. Very often a reminiscent conversation with a pal of high school vintage can disperse unhappy moments in the present. The value of these nostalgic sprees is difficult to gauge, but one who enjoys them should not be deprived of the pleasure. Peter apparently does like these forays into the past, so don't make an issue of them, and try to stop your worrying.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm very much interested in writing to some boys in Germany, or Korea, but don't know how to get names and addresses of boys who'd like to receive mail. Could you tell me where to get them?

VICKI

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There should be some sort of clearing house for an exchange of addresses so that mail to our boys overseas will go in an unending stream. The best source for intercommunication would be a church. If the boys who want mail would send their names to the pastor of the church they attended at home, and girls willing to write letters would leave their names, a very congenial mail service could be established. Your local Red Cross might also have some names for you. The scoutmaster of your local Boy Scout troop may know of boys anxious for mail, and so might the Y.M.-C.A.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past four years, since I was 14, I have been going steady with Frank. Recently I met Bill, who works in my office and also goes steady. Now I know I care more for Bill than for Frank. Bill took me home from a party last week, and from the way he treated me and the conversation we had, I have reason to believe he likes me, too. However, he has been very cool since, and hasn't asked me out. I hate to hurt Frank, but don't know what else to do.

DORIS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Perhaps Bill's coolness stems from the fact that he knows you are going steady, and being in the same position himself, probably doesn't feel very honorable about asking you out. If you feel that you no longer care for Frank, the best thing to do is break off with him. Perhaps then Bill will realize that you are free to accept dates and he'll rearrange his own affairs accordingly. On the other hand, don't overlook the fact that he very possibly sincerely cares for the girl he dates, and has no intention of giving her up. In that case, you will just have to surrender gracefully and find another guy.

Players Lacked Skill Adjudicator Says

CORNER BROOK, Nfld., March 24 (CP).—The Northcliffe Players of Grand Falls lacked the skill to get past the dearth of real interest in part of the play "High Ground," by Charlotte Hastings, adjudicator Pierre LeFevre said at the Newfoundland Region Drama Festival here Saturday night.

Mr. LeFevre said settings and costumes were good but technical skill was lacking. He criticized the slow pace throughout the presentation.

Also presented was the one-act play "Proud Kate Sullivan," a drama of Newfoundland outport life, written by Fred Emerson, St. John's barrister, and produced by a Grand Falls cast. The play has been entered in the Sir Barry Jackson competition for one-act plays.

Mr. LeFevre said his adjudication will be made direct to the Dominion festival committee.

Believes Television Shouldn't Be Limited

TORONTO, March 24 (CP) — W. J. Sheridan, Montreal, executive secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said today the Chamber "believes that the development of television in Canada should not be confined to any governmental agency or corporation."

Addressing the opening session of the 27th annual conference of Canadian Association of Broadcasters, he said television should be developed as freely and rapidly as possible by private capital.

"The Canadian Chamber of Commerce," he said, "believes in the principle that no person or organization in any field should be both competitor and regulator and has long urged the establishment of a separate regulatory body having minimum, essential regulatory powers over radio and television broadcasting in Canada."

French Plane Crashes 16 Aboard Killed

MARSEILLES, France, March 24— (CP)—Sixteen persons—including a baby—were killed early today when a French passenger plane crashed at Gao, French West Africa, reports reaching here said.

The plane, belonging to the African Transport Company, crashed while taking off for Nice, France, after landing at Gao, east of Timbuktu, for refuelling.

Three persons were stated to have been rescued from the burning plane, a Lockheed Lodestar, which started its flight from Abidjan, on the French Ivory coast. It carried a crew of three.

An official of the company at Nice said the plane's engines apparently failed as it left the ground.

PANAMA, Panama, March 24 (AP).—The board of directors of the Inter-American Press Association Sunday condemned the Argentine Government of President Juan D. Peron as "incompatible with the existence of freedom of the press."

A unanimous resolution based the condemnation on control of news by the Argentine Government.

It specifically denounced Peron's expropriation of the newspaper La Prensa and asked the United Nations Economic and Social Council to take up the case.

Spiders, Moths Enter Finals

Ken Kingston's Spiders and Barney Dundas' Moths advanced into the finals of the Lillico trophy basketball playdowns Saturday with victories in the semi-finals.

In the consolation play Mac Campbell's netters, the Bugs romped through the Mosquitoes, captained by Lloyd Ash, in three straight games. They won 15-7, 15-12 and 15-10.

Kingston's Spiders cast aside George Batley's Grasshoppers with two wins in the best of three seas, 17-15 and 15-11. They lost the third game 15-13.

Dundas' Moths had easy wins, 15-11 and 15-5 in their semi-finals with the Crickets, captained by Dave Addyman. The Crickets won one of the three, 15-5.

Kingston's and Dundas' teams now move into a best-of-seven series for the Lillico trophy with games on March 29 and April 5. In consolation play the Bugs and Grasshoppers will meet this week to declare a winner to play the Bugs, also a best-of-seven series, games on March 29 and April 5.

Cattle Disease Hits S. England

ANDOVER, Hampshire, England, March 24 — (Reuters) — Britain's worst epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease in 10 years—which had been concentrated along the east coast— has spread to Southern England, it was officially confirmed today.

The Health Ministry confirmed an outbreak of the disease at a farm near here. A standstill order for cattle has been imposed over a 15-mile radius. Farmers living in the area will not be able to take their cattle to market in Salisbury, Tuesday.

Hopes that the epidemic, which started last November, was nearly over faded last week when fresh outbreaks were reported from four points in Eastern England.

Since the epidemic began there have been more than 120 outbreaks. About 12,000 head of livestock have been slaughtered in an effort to control the disease.

Havelock Minister Speaks To Craft Club

HAVELOCK, March 24 (ENS) — Mrs. Edward Keating opened her home Thursday evening for a meeting of the Rush Point Devotional and Handicraft Club. The president, Miss Helen Cook, presided. Miss Joan Seeney was pianist.

The Rev. R. G. Newman gave a short talk on two sayings about Christ; the first at the beginning of His ministry when his own countrymen condemned Him saying "Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary?" The second was at His baptism, God said, 'This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased". The theme of the discourse being that Jesus as a carpenter was pleasing to God and that it is God's will that each one, do his or her work well in order to please Him.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. Seeney. "Galway Bay" was sung as a girls' chorus with Miss Barbara Pollock as the accompanist. Mrs. Archie Menzies gave a reading "Elizabeth Fry a friend of prisoners". The girls, decked in sundry articles of green, staged a comic parade to the music of "Wearing of the green, staged a comic parade to the music of "Wearing of the green" played by Donald Pollock. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Keating for her hospitality and an invitation to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Pollock on April 10, was accepted. The handicraft and games periods were much enjoyed.

The tournament attracted 200 players, including 35 contestants from such points as Stratford, Barrie, Kitchener, Sudbury and Niagara Falls. But none of the visitors reached the finals.

Last Six U.C. Missionaries Sent Out Of Red China

HONG KONG, March 24 (AP). —The last six United Church of Canada missionaries in Communist China arrived today in Hong Kong from Chengtu ending work in China which began in 1925.

They agreed it is good to be out of China but sharply disagreed on the merits of the Chinese Communist regime.

All were teachers at Chengtu's West China Union University. They are:

Dr. and Mrs. Leslie G. Kilborn of Toronto. Kilborn was dean of medicine at the university. He was born in China and his parents founded the first medical mission at Chengtu in 1891. Mrs. Kilborn's parents live at Guelph, Ont.

L. Earl Willmott, instructor of religious education and Mrs. Willmott, both of Toronto.

Bursar William Small of Toronto and Mrs. Small, whose parents live at Hamilton, Ont. With them were their two daughters, Lorraine 3½, and Katherine 1½.

Arriving with them from the university were Jesse and Mrs. Moncrieff, Northern Baptists of Los Angeles, Calif.

Others Ordered Out

The returning missionaries said the Szechwan Foreign Office has already ordered out Marion Hughes of the British Friends' Society, last foreigner and last Presbyterian missionary at the Chengtu University.

Willmott, whose series of letter-essays lauding the Chinese Red regime were published last year in Shanghai's English language "China Monthly Review," published by John W. Powell, an American, told reporters he still stands by his earlier writing.

"The Chinese Communist church doesn't want and doesn't need foreign missionaries. They are on their own legs now and have a feeling of independence. I have not met anyone who does not agree that the new regime is popular. I've heard nothing about persecution of the Chinese people."

Small, who like Willmott wore an unmarked blue uniform of the government-sponsored teachers' union, said "the people are behind their government. Actions of the government are to the benefit of 98 per cent of the people."

Asked about the persecution of Chinese and foreign missionaries in China, he replied "I know nothing about that but I am concerned over what I've heard about persecution abroad." He wouldn't elabtorate."

Sharply Critical.

Dr. and Mrs. Kilborn were sharply critical of the Red regime saying it had "achieved miracles but at a terrible price."

Dr. Kilborn said:

"You must remember it's not only a Communist revolution but a Nationalistic one. They call it controlled anti-foreignism. The basis of the entire Communist control is simply fear and you can't imagine how deep down the regimentation goes.

"The night before I left a Chinese professor I've known for years sent me a note asking me to visit him 'between 11 p.m. and midnight, today, to say goodbye.' The first thing he asked me was 'did anyone see you?'"

Dr. Jesse H. Arnup, secretary of the Board of Overseas Missions of the United Church, said today that he "knew all the time that Willmot was sympathetic to the People's Government in China —but Small was a surprise."

He said that the two men could not be considered to have "joined the Communists." As he understood it, they had merely expressed an appreciation for what the Chinese Red Government had accomplished in West China.

Men's Sketch Club Exhibits Many Fine Landscapes

The preview of the 16th annual exhibit of the Peterborough Men's Sketch Club Saturday night at the Public Library gallery was a triumph of landscapes and public regard. All told 75 landscapes and one seascape were on view and so many people came to see them that few really could. The show is open to the public for a fortnight.

The show makes one proud—proud of such competence in painting by determinedly amateur "sketchers"; proud of the large Peterborough interest in painting. Nine members of the Sketch Club are exhibiting. They are: C. S. Browne (13 oils); A. B. Burrows (one, sold the opening night); J. Hamer (eight oils, four water colors); G. N. Howson (six oils); J. E. R. Munro (10 oils); C. H. Saunders (11 oils, one distemper-painting); O. C. Simmers (six oils) H. Steggles (seven oils, four water-colors, one pastel); Dr. C. B. Waite (four oils).

[illegible] not exciting, but the mass of them is. Eight walls of Peterborough landscapes, interspersed with a few of Quebec, California and other outside points. The standard of execution is high; if people exercised their senses they would buy them quickly.

Variety and Vitality

The bravest show of all is by H. Steggles. He has more variety in media, style and subject than the others. Jack Hamer is preeminent with his bold brush and palette. His "October, Eel's Creek" has a restrained force and quiet sombreness; a pleasing, moody piece. His extremely interesting and vital "March Washday" is, I think, the best work in the show. He is never dull.

C. H. Saunders' delicate and accomplished water-colors are a delight as usual; O. C. Simmers, G. N. Howson, and J. E. R. Munro, the doyen of the club, have characteristic flatness of pigment, and achieve handsome effects.

C. S. Browne has his usual competence with snow and shadows; his exercise "See Der Trunks" is more effective than its joshing title suggests. Dr. Waite's California purples are incredibly striking.

Rocks and Trees

It is time the Men's Sketch Club stopped spoofing themselves that they are just dabblers. They are not. They have skill with brush and color and form which suggests that they should begin to paint more than rocks and trees and lakes.

The Kawartha landscape fine [illegible] our environment. To set the record straight, and interpret validly, we should expect from them street scenes, factories, children at play, tourist booths, the family at church or table; a geranium in a wartime bungalow; succulent apples smelling up the household in December; a beverage-room crowd; a queue at a movie; a man puzzling over his income-tax forms.

The Sketch Club are too single-mindedly devoted to rocks, water and trees, and as a result, are parodying themselves and each other and becoming, well, rather dull.—T.J.A.

Animal Nightlife Shown In Audubon Film

A near capacity audience attended the last Audubon Screen Tour of the season Saturday night at Queen Mary Auditorium.

Howard Cleaves, of Staten Island New York, a representative of the National Audbon Society showed his film, "Midnight Movies in Animal Land." Mr. Cleaves illustrated the film with a running commentary on how he obtained the pictures of the birds and animals in their natural surroundings.

The entire film was photographed by Mr. Cleaves at night.

The film, is the result of 18 years of photographing birds and animals all over the continent, from the spruc forests of New Brunswick, to the desert plateaus of Arizona.

Began In 1907.

As a student of the famous inventor Thomas A. Edison, Mr. Cleaves took his first still pictures of animal life in 1907. In 1931, he began taking motion pictures of wild life and later he studied natural science as a special student at Harvard.

To obtain the proper lighting to take his night photos, Mr. Cleaves invented a device that has won for him the nickname of "The Human Chandelier."

During his lecture, he demonstrates his method of taking pictures in total darkness. He has devised a portable generator, powered by a small gasoline motor and weighing less than 100 pounds which he carries into the woods where he intends to take his photograph. Mr. Cleaves then mounts three 500 watt bulbs on his camera tripod or even on his shoulders and with the flick of a switch, he can turn night into day for a distance of 500 yards. When he has his subject located, he turns on the lights, and snaps the shutter, without disturbing the bird or animal, because Mr. Cleaves points out that turning a light on them at night does not frighten them away.

Some of the pictures were taken after he had trailed hundreds of feet of cable through bush and swamp to photograph animals and birds and he obtained his movies without their being aware they were being photographed.

His pictures of water birds — herons, loons, and red-winged blackbirds were taken as he polled his canoe through the long grass of reedy rivers and marshes.

Honey Bait.

To get his shots of bears, Mr. Cleaves left some honey in the spot where he wanted to take the pictures and the bears fell for the bait. He managed to get some racoons to enter his summer cottage by baiting them with strips of bacon.

Mr. Cleaves was introduced by Lewis Bird, president of the Peterborough Nature Club which sponsors the Audubon Screen Tours locally.

Plane Lands On Highway

NORTH BAY, March 24 (CP). —A light plane took off from here today for Toronto after an unscheduled weekend adventure of landing on a highway 12 miles northwest of Sudbury, late Saturday.

The craft ran low on gas and the pilot David De Carle of Toronto, decided to land on the highway when he saw an Ontario Provincial Police cruiser below.

De Carle was piloting M. A. Lipton, Toronto business man, and his secretary, Elizabeth Lang, from Toronto to Porquis Junction. He said he lost his bearings and landed when the fuel gauge hovered near the empty mark.

After refuelling, the plane took off from the highway again and headed for North Bay.

Lipton completed his business trip to Timmins by taxi.

Blind Students Stage Mikado Performance

BRANTFORD, March 24 (CP) —Students of the Ontario School for the Blind Saturday staged Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado". A half hour portion of the production was broadcast on the CBC dominion network.

Only 50% of the 70-member cast had any sight and of that half, none had more than 10-per cent vision.

Ronald Edwards of Toronto played Ko-Ko and Lorraine Jackson of Galt was Yum-Yum. Katisha was taken by Greta Thederahn of Calgary.

Other principals were Eunice Helm, Lucknow, as Pitti Sing; Dolores Magel, Winnipeg, as Peep-Bo; Doald Rawson, Ocher River, Man., as Pooh-Bah; Doug McCallum, Ottawa, as the Mikado, and Albert Pepin, Winnipeg, as Nankipoo.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS —By Merrill Blosser

Quebec Skier Captures Downhill Title

STOWE, Vt., March 24 (CP)—Ernie McCulloch, 25-year-old chief ski instructor at Mont Tremblant, Que., raced down the Nose Dive trail to win the United States and American international downhill titles Saturday.

The Canadian used borrowed skis to run the straightest line possible from an elevation of 4,060 feet for 1¾ miles to the valley some 2,500 feet below.

He covered the distance in 2:16.7 to beat 10 Olympic aces, including Norway's Stein Eriksen and Austria's Othmar Schneider. He broke his own skis in practice.

McCulloch took a bad spill on Sunday and was forced to drop out of the international slalom championship. He fell in his first slalom run over a foggy, sleet-covered course and did not qualify for the second run.

Olympic champion Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., and Jack Reddish, 25-year-old sailor from Salt Lake City, swept most of the honors in the United States-recognized phase of the downhill and slalom competition.

Mrs. Lawrence captured the U.S. slalom Sunday and the downhill Saturday.

Reddish was second among the Americans in the downhill on Saturday and won the U.S. open and amateur slalom title Sunday by virtue of two good runs on a 2,200-foot course through 58 gates. He had a combined time of 2:42.5. The U.S. downhill-slalom-combined also went to Reddish.

T.V.L. Tilt Tuesday

MARMORA, March 24—(ENS)—The fifth and deciding game of the semi-final series of the T.V.L. between Havelock, winners of the northern section, and Marmora, winners of the central section, will be played in the Peterborough arena Tuesday evening. Both teams will have a large following of fans which, with citizens who have family connections with the two villages, should constitute a fine crowd witnessing a keen struggle for supremacy.

Juves Over-Matched?

Manager Don Kirk of the Havelock juvenile,s who lost out last week in Lindsay to Georgetown in the deciding game of the O.M.H.A. juvenile C finals, thinks his team was over-matched. He is quite proud of the fine showing made by the village juveniles in going to the finals and making such an excellent fight of it there, and he feels they can beat any team in the province from a place under 3,000 in population.

"I know it will do no good to kick now," he stated Saturday, "but a mention of this might make the provincial officials check into it closer another season. Georgetown is a centre of 4,000—which is 1,000 more than permitted in C playdowns, according to the book. We have 1,200 in Havelock. Besides that, Georgetown drew players from outside. So, it was hardly a fair test of strength for the Havelock boys."

I.C.A. Union Cracks Down On Amateurs

MONTREAL, March 24 (CP)—The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union has cracked down on today's so-called amateurs, as far as inter-collegiate ranks are concerned, outlawing players in the Interprovincial and Western Football Unions and Alexander Trophy hockey from intercollegiate sport.

The blast came Saturday at a meeting of the board of governors of the Union who also clapped down on athletic scholarships, athletic loan funds and strengthened the transfer rule.

Action of the committee was seen by observers as aimed at halting abuses of scholarships and the glossing over of amateurism as obtained among universities in the United States.

It was also decided a condition of membership in the union would be that all athletics must be directly under the control of the administration of each institution.

Eligibility Rules

On eligibility rules and amateurism, the board decided:

"No person who has at any time played in a recognized professional league is eligible to compete.

"Recognized professional league is interpreted to include all teams in rugby football in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union and the Western Canada Rugby Football Union, and in hockey to include all teams entered in senior leagues leading to competition for the Alexander Trophy.

"No person is eligible who receives an athletic scholarship, or any other form of remuneration, either from the institution itself or from any other body or individual, for the purpose of recruiting members of athletic teams.

"Because of the difficulty of controlling athletic loan funds, any student receiving aid from a loan fund is also ineligible unless that fund is directly controlled or administered by the academic authority of the institution.

Extend Transfer Rule

"The present 'transfer rule' was extended to apply to students transferring from any university to a member of the union. Formerly, it applied only within the union. Under this rule, a student who is classed as a transfer must spend one year at the institution to which he has transferred before he is eligible to represent that institution on an athletic team. . . ."

The governors decided on a three - conference organization, previously in effect but now formally recognized within the union. They are:

Ontario - Quebec conference, which includes McGill, Queen's, Toronto and Western Ontario; the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Conference and the Southwest Ontario Conference.

Each conference is largely autonomous with regard to its administrative operation but is subject to C.I.A.U. regulations with respect to eligibility, playing rules and other such matters.

Assumption College of Windsor was admitted to the Ontario-Quebec Conference in basketball but the application of McMaster University of Hamilton for admission to Ontario-Quebec Conference football play was referred to a committee of the five institutions chiefly interested.

T.C.S. Scores Victory To End Season

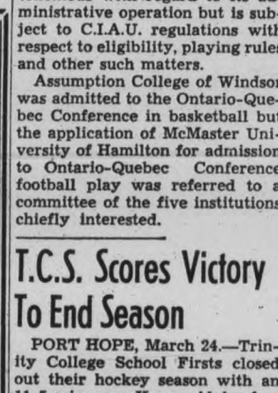
PORT HOPE, March 24.—Trinity College School Firsts closed out their hockey season with an 11-5 win over Kappa Alpha fraternity here Saturday night.

Bob McDerment's three-goal total was the highest individual performance for the Firsts, who fired five goals to start the right way in the first period. Long, Brown and Yale each scored twice, while Arnold had one goal.

Don Fullerton was the Kappa star with three goals, while Palmer and Ballentine added one each.

Capacity Crowd Sees Church Play

GORE'S LANDING, Mar. 24—(ENS)—A capacity crowd filled the United Church hall Friday night to hear the three-act play, Two Country Kids, staged by St. James United Church Peterborough. The play was held under the auspices of the Young People's Union.



GORDIE HOWE and linemate Ted Lindsay collected two goals each to lead the Red Wings in a 7-3 win over the New York Rangers in the Motor City a few days ago. The tallies were Howe's 43rd and 44th of this season, breaking the all-time Detroit club record which he set at 43 last year.

IN THE SWIM—Jackie La Vine climbs out of the Chicago Town Club pool after a brisk splash session in preparation for the U.S. Olympic tryouts coming up this summer. The 22-year-old Chicago star was the National AAU outdoor 100-metre freestyle champion in 1950, also the indoor 220 and 440-yard queen.

St. Catharines Takes Semi-Finals Downing St. Michael's By 8-5

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors bowed out of Memorial Cup play Sunday by the width of a goalpost. From the shot that all but went in, they stumbled to an 8-5 loss to St. Catharines Teepees.

The victory, which gave the Teepees the best-of-five Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final three games to two and lifted them into the finals against Guelph Biltmores, came after a St. Michael's rally—one of the most inspiring seen at Maple Leaf Gardens in years—fell short by a single goal.

Sadly outplayed and trailing 6-1 at the outset of the third period, St. Michael's began to show life, whittling away at St. Catharines' lead. Then taking advantage of penalties, they pulled to within one of the Teeps. With six minutes left to play, the collegians had nudged the visitors with a five-goal total.

Pouring it on in an attempt to get that tying marker, the Toronto crew went all out, but the closest they got—and that was mighty close—was when Billy Lee hit the post. It was a shot little Marv Brewer — playing an outstanding game in the St. Catharines nets—didn't even see.

Penalty Costly

Then Bob Sabourin of St. Mike's drew a tripping penalty. The bubble had burst. With the man advantage St. Catharines bounced back with two goals of their own to save the day for the 8-5 final.

In O.H.A. senior play, Owen Sound Mercurys, the 1951 Allan Cup champions, Saturday won their second straight game from Stratford Indians to stave off elimination in the best-of-seven finals. They downed the Indians 4-2 and deadlocked the series at three games each.

The seventh and deciding clash is scheduled Tuesday night at Stratford. The survivor meets the Northern Ontario champions in an all-Ontario final.

In their fight to capture the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A title, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds Saturday night took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven finals against Noranda Copper Kings with a 6-4 overtime victory. The sixth game is slated again at Noranda tonight.

The N.O.H.A. Junior A finals took a turn toward Porcupine Combines Saturday when they drubbed Sudbury Wolves 7-2 at Timmins and picked up a commanding 3-1 lead in the best of seven series. Fifth game is scheduled at Timmins tonight.

Buddy Boone, Bobby Schnurr and Chuck Foley were two-goal men for St. Catharines Teepees, with Charlie Marshall and Brian Cullen adding singletons. Murray Costello and Bill Lee tallied twice for St. [illegible] getting the others.

Gets Overtime Markers

Bill McComb netted both of Owen Sound's overtime markers, Tom Burlington and Buck Forslund coming through with singles. Denny Flanagan and Jack White notched the Stratford tallies.

Bill Wisinski clicked for two Greyhound goals while Roy Heximer, Terry Biocchi, Doug Towers and Ken Johnson added the others. Brian Robinson got two of Noranda's while Tex Connelly and Mike O'Shea netted singles.

Ross Kelly paced the Porcupine attack with a pair of goals. John Festerani, Bill Jones, Ab Chircoski, Billy Cox and Don Albert came through with the remaining markers. Herb Dozzie and Jim Morrison were the Sudbury scorers.

Gladu Sets Record With Three Goals

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 24 (CP).—Paul Gladu of St. Hyacinthe, Que., Sunday night pumped in three goals in 87 seconds for an American Hockey League playoff record.

His hat trick led Providence Reds to a 5-1 victory over Cleveland Barons and gave the Reds a 2-to-1 edge in the second place playoff series.

The mark, although a playoff record, is 30 seconds behind the 57-second regular season record posted by Bill Jennings of Indianapolis in 1941.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Murray (Muzz) Patrick, manager of Tacoma Rockets, is proud of his Pacific Coast Hockey League team—so proud, in fact, that before Friday night's game with the Canucks in Vancouver, he began passing out pictures of his players to Vancouver fans.

Vancouver owner Coley Hall, however, objected to Patrick's pic[illegible]ure passing.

"Next thing I knew," said Patrick afterward, "Coley takes a poke at me. I swing at Coley," and, the former pugilist said, "the police grab him and the fight is over."

It took four policemen to break up the scrap, but neither participant was marked and neither laid a complaint with police.

What would have happened had the incident occurred after the game is anybody's guess. Tacoma beat Vancouver 2-1 in the regularly scheduled game and then won, 7-6, , replay of the last 11 minutes of a Feb. 22 game that Canucks had protested.

Don Gehrmann, the Wisconsin Whippet, ran the fastest half-mile in history on a standard 11-lap track Saturday night—negotiating the distance at 1:51 at the Olympic Carnival in New York's Stadison Square Garden.

Steve Sundra, former New York Yankee pitcher, died Sunday in Cleveland of an incurable disease. Sundra, 40, was flown to Cleveland from his Atlantic City, N. J. Home two weeks ago to spend his last days with his father, Michael. The nature of his disease was not disclosed. Illness dragged Sundra's weight down to 75 pounds from 215 after he retired from baseball in 1946.

The University of Alberta Golden Bears won the 1952 Western Canada intercollegiate senior men's basketball championship in Edmonton Saturday by defeating University of British Columbia Thunderbirds 62-56 in the second game of a best-of-three series. Bears, who now meet University of Western Ontario Mustangs in the Canadian intercollegiate final, won the first game Friday 72-55.

In Laurel, Md., H. A. Kimball's Algasir, longest shot of eight horses in the race, won the 35th running of the Capitol Handicap Saturday before 21,388 fans at Laurel's opening. For the $2 bettors, Algasir paid $62.80 to win.

The American Hockey Coaches' Association Saturday night in Boston chose Canadian-born Cyril Thompson of Colorado College as American college hockey coach of the year and awarded him the Penrole Trophy.

First baseman Lou Limmer, the rookie Philadelphia Athletics expected to make the big leagues with a bang, was farmed out to Ottawa of the International League Sunday in West Palm Beach, Fla., as manager Jimmy Dykes dropped eight players from his squad. Along with Limmer, pitchers Joe Murray, Ed Hrabscak and Mike Kume went to the A's triple-A Ottawa farm team.

Many a young married woman is proud of her new home—but behind her happiness there lurks the fear of losing her home if death stopped her husband's income.

Mary: Where? . . . What? . . . I mean, what kind of a deal?

So, Mary, I've taken out a Policy. It will make sure that should anything happen to me, you'll have this home to live in, free and paid for, instead of a Mortgage to pay.

John: Well now, I'll tell you . . . don't worry another minute. I've just made a deal that will make sure that this house is yours, clear and fully paid for, should anything happen to me.

Russians Win Cultural Sector Of Cold War

NEW DELHI, March 24 (Reuters)—Russia is quietly scoring in the cultural sector of the cold war in India.

The United States and other Western countries have been sending India millions of dollars in food and technical aid. The Communist countries, much less expensively, seem to be gaining through the arts.

A major Soviet art exhibition ended here last week after drawing thousands of interested Indians.

A Russian mission the previous week made a special hit in Bombay by starring a Russian singer who gave a concert of Indian songs in fluent Hindu and Bengali. Communist goodwill missions also have been touring the country.

The Russians are actively spreading their ideas to book-hungry Indians by distributing cheap editions of Communist literature, learther-bound editions of Marx, Lenin and Tolsty sell for as little as 25 cents. Soviet scientific and political pamphlets go for a penny each.

THE LUGGAGE OF DUTCHMEN emigrating to Canada now is being disinfected by order of the Canadian government in a measure designed to prevent the possible spread of foot and mouth disease among cattle. Japanese Firms Ready To Make Guns And Tanks

By WARREN WHYTE

TOKYO, March 24—(Reuters)—Old-established Japanese munitions firms are planning 1953 previews for their first post-war planes, tanks and warships.

The occupation-sponsored constitution specifically forbids rearmament and General MacArthur as early as September, 1945, implemented the Potsdam Declaration by ordering destruction of war-plants.

But munitions men are going ahead anyway backed by the belief that Japan's new post-Treaty Allies, led by the United States favor at least limited rearmament and munitions manufacturing.

Japan already is supplying some items for the United Nations forces in Korea.

So far these mainly have been rations and uniforms for South Korean troops, small parts for machine-guns, containers for jellied gasoline bombs (napalm) and flash bombs for the Air Force.

Four Japanese companies have announced they soon will start production of a 4.2-inch mortar for the U.S. Army—the first complete war weapons to be turned out here since Japan's surrender.

Want U.S. Help

Japanese firms want financial backing, blueprints and American machines for rifle, artillery and ammunition manufacturing.

An authoritative source in the Ministry for Trade and Industry said a bill is being prepared to permit aircraft manufacturing, with government assistance, late this year.

Tanks would be the most easily manufactured war machines for Japan, but planes, including jet-fighters, will have the highest priority in any government munitions allocations.

Japanese ability to manufacture war weapons is summarized in the following recent industrial survey:

Aircraft—test models of standard type jet-fighters could be started within three months of contracts being signed. But companies insist on long-term government contracts before installing expensive machinery and tools for mass production.

Tanks — production could be started at any time mainly because of the impetus given to manufacturers by repair of war-damaged tanks for the U.S. Army.

Ships—Japan is able to produce immediately vessels up to 1,500 tons (destroyer escorts) fitted with modern radar. Difficulty in producing bigger vessels such as cruisers and battleships is due to a seven-year lag in modern naval techniques.

Guns—mortars and bazookas could be manufactured immediately. Rifles and heavy artillery would require importing modern rifling machines.

Bombs—could be made immediately.

Asks Jap Steel

TOKYO, March 24 (Reuters)—The British Iron and Steel Corporation is asking for more steel from Japan, an official of the Yawata Steel Company said today. The corporation is discussing possibilities of securing 40,000 to 50,000 tons of semi-finished steel in addition to the 109,000 tons whose export was approved by the Japanese government this month.

Gunmen Rob Armored Car Of $600,000 Near Boston

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION seen in this aerial photo followed in the wake of the tornado that swept through Arkansas and the south-western states. The main street of Judsonia, Arkansas, shown above, was virtually wiped out in the twister that alogether killed 235 people. The state governor appealed to President Truman for help to clear the destruction.

Guards In Store, As Citizens Watch Loot Transferred

DANVERS, Mass, March 25 (AP)—Three gunmen today robbed an armored car of about $600,000 cash, all the money in the vehicle, while it was stopped in this town about 20 miles north of Boston. Police said the truck was unattended while guards were in a drugstore. Lawrence Johansen, in charge of the truck, estimated the loot and said most of it was in small bills. The car was owned by the United States Trucking Company and was delivering money to banks and business concerns in comunities of Massachusetts' north shore.

The truck was parked on the main business street, just across from the Danvers National Bank and police said the back doors of the truck apparently were left unlocked.

Johansen said he delivered about $1,000,000 to banks and business houses before ariving to make a delivery to the National Bank here.

The robbers fled in a black sedan, almost knocking down Patrolman Edmund Noonan on traffic duty in Danvers Square.

Police later located witnesses who, unaware of the robbery, had seen men "shifting large bundles" from the sedan to another car.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation rushed in special agents when it was reported Federal Reserve funds were involved.

The holdup was another in a series of robberies that has plagued New England communities recently. Within recent weeks officials of the Credit Union of the Quonset Point, R.I., naval air station were held up and robbed of $100,000, and a bank in Medford, Mass., was robbed of $15,000.

The stickup was the largest in this area since six rubber-masked gunmen robbed Brink's Company of $1,200,000 in cash in Boston, January 17, 1950.

S. African Policy Condemned By Canadian MP's

OTTAWA, March 25. (CP)—South Africa's policy of race segregation was bitterly criticized Monday as Canada's Commons debated the possibility of drafting a bill of rights for citizens of this country. One Liberal and two C.C.F. members suggested Canada could not remain silent on Prime Minister Malan's policy of separation of blacks and whites within South Africa. Condemnation came from M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina) and Alistair Stewart (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North.)

As the chamber devoted a day to private members' legislation, they spoke on a resolution by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) calling for a written bill of Canadian rights.

Mr. Diefenbaker proposed that a standing parliamentary committee be established to "act as a watchdog" on freedom and that the government submit a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada to determine which freedoms are matters of federal or provincial jurisdiction.

Perennial Motion

Renewing a perennial motion, he suggested that "freedom needs an anchor." Guarantees under a bill of rights would help to combat communism since the communists were holding out to colored peoples the idea of equality.

The debate ended after citizenship Minister Harris moved that it be adjourned so Justice Minister Garson, anxious to debate the issue but absent from the chamber through illness, could take part.

Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. members contested the move, but Mr. Harris' motion carried on a recorded vote of 86 to 28.

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview the move means "closure or erasure" of his resolution. He said it now drops to the bottom of the list of private members' measures and is not likely to be revived at this session.

Straining Relations

Raising the South African issue, Mr. Croll said that policy is "straining" commonwealth relations. Canadians had "the right and the duty to examine our relationship with South Africa before the appropriate tribunal.

The Malan policy affected all "South African people of color as well as those of Indian and Pakistani stock."

"I find it difficult if not impossible," said Mr. Croll, "to understand how the Commonwealth can sustain friendly relations while that statute is in effect."

It was a "very serious question" how "democratic Nehru can find common ground with Fascist Malan." It was splitting South Africa into "racial areas" and setting up a "Ghettoland which we must deplore."

Mr. Coldwell said Canada should make it clear that "we will not be silent" on South Africa's move. He favored a national Bill of Rights and felt that if Commonwealth countries had made their views on

Canada Conducts Bacterial War Research

OTTAWA, March 25 (CP) — On an isolated island of bitter memories Canada is conducting some of the most important and dangerous research in biological or bacterial warfare—one of the most secret phases of the defence program.

The work is going on at Grosse Isle, some 30 miles down the St. Lawrence river from Quebec City. It is an integral part of the research Dr. O. M. Solandt says will enable Canada to defend herself or to strike back in the fields of bacterial and chemical warfare. The island is used for tests scientists hesitate to make on the mainland.

Dr. Solandt, chairman of the Defence Research Board, said in a recent Ottawa speech that there is a "strong possibility" that this type of warfare will be used in another war. Canada is preparing both to defend herself and to retaliate if necessary.

Role Kept Quiet

He didn't mention Grosse Isle. Its role has been kept as quiet as the part it played in the war in a successful search for an answer to Rinderpest, one of the world's most destructive germs and one which could have severely cut into Canada's food supply.

Grosse Isle is a lonely, forlorn spot where immigrants once were placed in quarantine on arrival in Canada. Under the soil are the mass graves of hundreds of Irish immigrants who died of typhus and were buried there at the time of the 19th century potato famine.

Canada's main base in the B.W. field is not Grosse Isle. It is the Suffield, Alta., experimental station where tests are made in both B.W. and chemical warfare. Suffield embraces a huge area of flat prairie.

Canada's work there is an important contribution to joint U.S.-British-Canadian preparedness. This is one of the fields where Canada is assigned a leading role.

$75,000 Fire In Guelph Store

GUELPH, March 25 — (CP) — Fire, breaking out shortly after midnight Monday night, destroyed the Reward shoe store and Anderson's bakery and coffee bar on upper Windham street with damage estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000.

The building is located between Loblaw's groceteria and Barber's butcher shop. Firewalls on both sides prevented the fire from spreading along the whole business block.

Firemen had to battle the flames from Windham street and Park Lane with all available equipment in use. The fire was brought under control after an hour's battle.

The damaged property is owned by Mrs. Bert Smith. The Re- [illegible] and saturated in the building only three weeks ago. Smoke from the fire could be seen three miles away.

May Quarantine Islands Lamport Says

TORONTO, March 25 (CP) — Mayor Allan Lamport said today it may be necessary to quarantine the islands in Toronto bay.

He visited the islands today with Dr. L. A. Pequegnat, medical officer of health, and other civic officials, to view damage caused by the weekend's storm.

He said the officials will decide whether health is immediately menaced by a temporary breakdown of the sewage system on the island, where hundreds of persons live the year 'round. Water has

Push Inquiry In Liquor Deal

WASHINGTON, March 25 — (CP)— Tax scandal investigators from the House of Representatives dug deeper today into the intricate deals on liquor imported from Canada which netted Hyman Harvey Klein and his Canadian partners big profits and a $7,000,000 tax headache.

Klein, a liquor importer, was recalled for the second day before a House Ways and Means subcommittee.

The committee sought to find out why Sen. Styles Bridges (Rep. N. H.) and Henry Grunewald, Washington Public Relations man, interceded in Klein's behalf with the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Klein told the committee Monday he did not know Bridges, that he wouldn't know Grunewald "if I fell over him," and that he authorized absolutely no one except his tax lawyers to act on his case.

The liquor importer testified that he and three Canadian partners in 1944-46 netted approximately $20,000,000 on a $4,000 capital investment in tax-exempt foreign corporations through which they imported whiskey into the United States.

Mobs Demand Trieste Return

ROME, March 25 (AP)—Mobs demanding the return of Trieste to Italy became ugly today and police hurled tear gas to break up fighting in downtown Rome.

Scores were injured and more than 100 were arrested.

Club-swinging police broke up masses near the United States diplomatic missions in Rome and Naples. Police halted another march of students against the British Legation in Milan.

The most serious outbreak occurred at noon in Rome's downtown Galleria, near the Foreign Ministry. Here at least five policemen were clubbed.

Kingston Inmates Send Floral Tribute

TORONTO, March 25 — Hundreds of floral tributes to Sgt. of Detectives Edmund Tong are already pouring into the funeral chapel at 1491 Danforth Ave. where his body is resting until the funeral to-morrow. Included in the wreaths is one signed by some of the inmates of Kingston Penitentiary.

Telegrams of sympathy from friends and police forces across the country are swamping Toronto police headquarters. Another wreath was signed, "From a pal."

6 Killed In Los Angeles As Fire Destroys Hotel

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 25 (AP)—Fire roaring swiftly through the St. George Hotel in downtown Los Angeles today killed at least six persons, firemen reported, and injured many others. The hotel was turned into a scene of horror within minutes. Screams of victims sounded through the early morning quiet. None was identified immediately. Hotel patrons stumbled through smoke out of the building. A number jumped from upper floors into firemen's nets The hotel at 115 East Third Street is patronized largely by men transients.

Deputy Coroner Frank Johnson said the bodies of five men, suffocated rather than burned, were removed and piled in the lobby. Another man fell to his death in an alley after hanging from a fifth floor ledge.

Night clerk Leland Whitehouse, 57, ran through corridors awakening patrons.

The fire was brought under control within an hour after its outbreak about 3 a.m.

The St. George is a 100-room brick hotel. There were apparently about 150 patrons in the place. Its location is just off Main St., the downtown Skid Row section of Los Angeles.

Police said 10 persons were sent to hospital with burns or injuries.

Fire investigators said they have no idea how the blaze started.

The blaze was the third major fire of the night. A few hours earlier, a $400,000 blaze swept [illegible]-storey business building a few blocks away, on Broadway, gutting a clothing store, dress shop, jewelry store and restaurant.

One wing of the Bel Air Country Club was burned out in another fire shortly after midnight. President Frank Winnie estimated the loss, chiefly to the kitchen and banquet room, at $200,000. Six employees escaped.

Attlee Wins Double Victory

LONDON, March 25 (AP) — Clement Attlee won a double victory today over Aneurin Bevan's left-wing Labor faction.

A meeting of Labor members of the Commons voted a new code to enforce parliamentary discipline in the Labor ranks. It also obtained by a unanimous vote a ruling that Attlee shall continue to preside over meetings of the parliamentary Labor party.

Bevan and his followers were reported earlier to be planning a move to ban Attlee and other moderate Socialist leaders from acting as chairmen at the meetings.

The parliamentary Labor party consists of all 295 Socialists who sit in the Commons. Its meetings enable party leaders to blueprint policy for Commons debates.

The chairman is in a powerful position to influence the proceedings. Attlee was in the chair as [illegible] this morning.

The closed-door sesison lasted a little more than two hours, and Bevanites turned up with pockets bulging with amendments to new disciplinary orders.

Their aim was to get a wider interpretation of the "conscience clause" which enables pacifists and anti-liquor enthusiasts to vote against party policy over such issues as rearmament and licensing of public houses.

Tornado Damage Said $25 Million

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 25 (AP)—Arkansas suffered $25,000,000 damage from Black Friday's tornadoes, Governor Sid McMath said Monday night. The estimate was based on a survey of the state.

Arkansas was hardest hit by the tornadoes, storms and floods, which took 232 lives, injured 1,100 and left thousands without shelter in six states.

In Arkansas alone, 129 persons were killed; 711 injured and 1,361 homes were destroyed or damaged.

Relief operations directed by Red Cross and Salvation Army workers, rapidly brought a semblance of order to the chaos today.

Arkansas cities that escaped unscathed dispatched truckloads of clothing, food and furniture to the destitute communities and sent thousands of dollars in cash to finance relief work.

The Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation declared five of the states—Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, Missouri and Mississippi—as distaster areas, opening the way for government loans to the storm victims.

Consumer credit restrictions also were lifted for all Arkansas persons in the affected areas.

At Judsonia—the White County, Ark., community that caught the full force of the raging storm —11 of its 34 victims [illegible] in a mass funeral.

Ont. Millionaire Rupert Bain Dies In Mexico

TORONTO, March 25 (CP) — H. Rupert Bain, 54, president of the National Life Assurance Company of Canada and millionaire Toronto financier, died today in Mexico.

Mr. Bain had been in poor health since a brain haemorrhage last October.

The well-known mining broker, who became a millionaire before he was 38, marrjed Mrs. Margaret Josephine Foster Watkins last July after his divorce from Eileen Bain. Mrs. Bain married Mr. Watkins two weeks earlier.

The Bains were prominent in Toronto society circles and he was an ardent horseman.

His horse, Rock Lad, was Canada's hope in the Grand National steeplechase in 1938. The horse, however, never made the grade.

Served Overseas

Born at Prince Albert, Sask., Mr. Bain served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First Great War. He returned to Winnipeg to take charge of the Bond Department of Carruthers, Martin and Torrance. His father was a former Winnipeg physician and his uncle one of the first lawyers to practise in Winnipeg.

Later, he moved east to join a Toronto firm and in 1923 formed his own company, specializing in municipal bonds. Then, he plunged into Canadian mining stocks and by 1937 headed an organization of more than 200 persons.

Say Eisenhower Resigns In April

PARIS, March 25—(Reuters)—General Eiseinhower will announce his resignation as North Atlantic army commander in Europe next month and return to the United States to lead his campaign for the presidency about the third week of May, usually reliable quarters predicted today.

They discounted any resignation announcement before April 2 when Eisenhower will tell the world how the western defence build-up has progressed since he took over the supreme command a year ago.

These sources also expect Eisenhower to make no announcement before the staff exercises being planned and supervised by his deputy, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, from April 7 to 11.

35 Workmen Killed In Tunnel Explosion

NAPLES, Italy, March 25 (Reuters)—Thirty-five workmen were reported killed and more than 40 injured in an explosion in a tunnel being built for a hydro-electric project near here today.

The explosion occurred as workers were completing the tunnel three kilometres (about 1.8 miles) under a mountain between the towns of Mignano and Velabro.

The cause was not immediately determined.

Country Doctor Suggests Drive—In Hospital Plan

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 25 (AP).—A kind of drive-in "hospital equivalent" — where you're in and out the same day, even for childbirth—can meet virtually all the needs of a rural community, a country doctor said today.

Dr. D. G. Miller, Jr., of Morgantown, Ky., said he converted two small country stores into such a set-up and was able to meet the requirements of all but about three per cent of his patients.

One of only two physicians in a "low-income" Kentucky county of approximately 12,000 population, Dr. Miller said he, two nurses, a laboratory technician and a receptionist handled 10,672 "office" calls for everything except major surgery.

In addition, he made 566 visits to homes, riding in a jeep for round-trip distances of as much as 50 miles.

The office and home visits, he told the American Academy of General Practice, represented 2,339 individual patients.

And he said that such an arrangement could allow a single rural physician anywhere—with a few capable assistants and proper, though sometimes improvised, equipment—to meet all but a few of the needs of a community of several thousand people.

A doctor's office "hospital equivalent" he said, can be equipped for about $25,000—provided the doctor uses such things as a $25 one time dental chair as an eye-ear-nose-throat examining chair, and various army surplus supplies.

There are no board and room charges at Dr. Miller's "hospital equivalent." If a patient stays long enough for meals, relatives go out and buy them.

The American Academy of General Practice, which is holding its annual meeting, is an organization of some 15,000 "family doctors."

Peer Not In Class Of Roman Legions Tries To Walk Thames, Has To Swim For It

LONDON, March 25—(Reuters)—A six-foot-three Socialist peer tried to walk across the River Thames at low tide today, but ended up having to swim for it.

Lord Noel-Buxton, scrambled ashore in the shadows of the Houses of Parliament and admitted that his attempt to emulate the Roman legions—who daily marched across the Thames 1,900 years ago—was a failure.

"There was much more water than I thought", he explained. The river was probably shallower in Roman days.

Noel-Buxton, 35-year-old farmer, writer and poet, is writing a book on London's history and was trying to prove that Caesar's troops found it easy to walk across the river.

Dressed in grey flannels, a sports coat and rubber-soled shoes, he entered the Thames near Westminster bridge, which he said marks the site of a paved Roman ford. He got as far as the bridge's first piers and then sank from sight.

Seconds later the red-headed peer, bobbed up again and struck out for the opposite shore as hundreds of onlookers clapped and cheered.

His crossing time was 17 minutes.

Scientists Experiment Making Life Painless

BOSTON, March 25 (AP) — A way of making life painless is being studied here in the interests of cancer sufferers.

Deep in the centre of the brain is a spot which scientists believe is the crossroads of pain pathways, for most pains you feel.

At Massachusetts General Hospital, scientists are experimenting with an electric needle. They plan to push it into this point in the brain, and destroy the crossroads with an electric spark.

Destroying it would apparently mean freedom from pain, a Godsend for many cancer patients.

The method has been tried on monkeys, said Dr. William H. Sweet, neuro-surgeon. Apparently, he said, it could kill pain easily, without changing personality.

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said today that he hopes to be able to give assurance in 10 days' time that the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in South Saskatchewan "has been completely wiped out."

Her husband became Lord Lindsay at the death of his father. Lady Lindsay is the former Hsaio Li (Chinese for "Persuasive Dawn"), daughter of a Chinese army officer. The couple, wed in 1941, now live in Australia, where Lord Lindsay is a university research fellow.

Huge Crowd Demands P.M. Resign

City Hall Square Sea of Flame During Demonstration

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, March 25 (Reuters)—The square in front of Johannesburg city hall was a sea of flame Monday night as thousands of torch-bearing demonstrators called on the Nationalist government of Daniel Malan to resign.

The crowd was so vast it flowed into side streets out of sight of the speakers. Columns of marchers carried banners saying "resign" and "100,000 South Africans can't be wrong."

Organized by Torch Commando, the powerful veterans' organization working to unseat Premier Malan, the meeting was protesting the government's plans to defy the Supreme Court. The court last week ruled invalid Malan's separate representation, a major plan of his racial segregation platform which whittled down the voting rights of colored (mixed blood) persons. Malan has said he will introduce legislation prohibiting the courts from ruling on the validity of laws passed by parliament.

Dishonors Name

A. G. (Sailor) Malan, a leader of Torch Commando and no relation to the Prime Minister, told the demonstration the whole controversy had dishonored the good name of the white man in South Africa.

The government would stand condemned in the eyes of the world as Fascist unless it called a general election to let the people decide on its course of putting parliament beyond reach of the courts.

Premier Malan said in a statement in Capetown Monday night he would put the issue before the voters "at the right time."

Former Senator A. J. De La Rey, another Torch Commando leader, appealed to the people to avoid using force. The Torch Commandos' weapon was the pencil, and the place to use it was the ballot box.

At the end of the meeting balloons bearing anti-government slogans were released.

Adopt Resolution

In Blomenfontein, seat of the Supreme Court, a large meeting adopted a resolution demanding the government's resignation.

In the diamond mining city of Kimberley, Harry Oppenheimer, opposition member of parliament, told a large open-air rally the government is "recklessly and dishonestly planning to subvert the constitution, cornerstone of the state." It contemplated "not an act of parliament but an act of revolution."

At the Cape port of East London a joint meeting of supporters of the United and Labor Parties and the Torch Commandos called on the three organizations to join together in a supreme, but constitutional, effort to smash "Malanazism" in South Africa for all time.

The pound sterling was $2.80, unchanged from Monday.

Early risers went back to the tables while other passengers slept through the near disaster. The 86 passengerse were taken from the 1,556-ton vessel by tugs and landed on the rocky shore of West Vancouver.

Murray Won't Meet Wilson

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—C.I.O. President Philip Murray today attacked defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson as "biased and uninformed" and refused to meet with him on the steel dispute. Wilson, flying back from talks with President Truman at Key West, Fla., had charted new steel wage-price peace negotiations in apparent hopes of avoiding boosts which Wilson said might wreck the U.S. economic controls program. Murray's tart refusal to meet with Wilson, even before the mobilization chief got around to sending out invitations, seemed to doom any such negotiations before they started.

Wilson told reporters who met him at the airport Monday night that proposals made last week by the Wage Stabilization Board for settling the labor issues posed "a serious threat" to government efforts to stabilize the economy.

The steel industry says it will have to raise its prices up to $12 a ton to pay for wages increases recommended by the W.S.B. for the United Steelworkers of America, of which Murray is also president.

Makes Hot Reply

Wilson's comment that the W.S.B.'s recommendations for a 17½ cent hourly pay boost and other benefits for steelworkers would threaten the economic stabilization program stung Murray into making a hot reply.

"It is clear," Murray's statement said, "that no constructive purpose can be served by attendance at a meeting with Mr. Wilson at which—in accordance with his prior, biased and uninformed judgment of the issues—he will attempt to set aside the findings of the wage board in favor of an industry-dictated arrangement.

"Accordingly, the United Steelworkers will attend no such meeting with Mr. Wilson."

Murray, pointing out that he had postponed scheduled steel strikes four times at Truman's request and had followed the administration's suggestions in presenting the union's complicated demands to the W.S.B. for suggested solution, said Wilson was unfamiliar with the case.

"His only knowledge of the issues," Murray said, "comes from the Steel Corporation executives who summoned him to New York for a hasty briefing."

Ottawa May Soon Take Control Of Surplus Meat

OTTAWA, March 25 (CP)—The federal government may soon take direct control over all surplus meat in Canada, it was learned Monday. Concerned over a mounting surplus, federal officials have a plan in the making to revive the wartime government meat board with power to buy up all surplus meat and dispose of it as best it can.

The loss, if any, will be borne by the Federal Treasury and the Canadian taxpayer. But it may lead to the restoration of the free movement of livestock and meats between provinces.

Informants here believe various provincial restrictions are aimed not so much at preventing the possible spread of foot and mouth disease from South Saskatchewan as to block movement of surplus meat into local markets with disastrous effect on prices and local industry.

A decision to revive the board may be made within a week. With it may possibly come an extension of the government's price support from pork to beef and lamb. There still is no indication just where the floor prices will be fixed.

Fewer Homes Built In '52

OTTAWA, March 25—(CP)—Canada's housing program, which hit its post-war peak in 1950, is on the decline and will probably continue to dwindle in 1952.

The forecast was contained in Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's annual report tabled Monday in the Commons. It showed 85,000 housing units completed in 1951 compared with 91,754 in 1950, a record year.

Chief causes of the decline were shortages of mortgage funds and serviced land, larger down payment requirements and a higher debt service on new mortgages.

Construction costs last year were roughly 15 per cent higher than in 1950, materials were higher by 18 per cent and labor costs were up about nine per cent.

The corporation said the lack of mortgage funds was a "definite limitation on the volume of house building." This is likely to be true this year as it was last year.

"A desirable level of new residential construction from a social point of view may indicate a need for an over-all residential construction program substantially greater than can be financed under present arrangements."

The roast caught fire and both girls, seven months and 2 years old, were overcome by smoke.

Something New In Premieres

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP) — The premiere on Broadway Monday night was not officially a theatrical first night.

Producers normally take their new shows out of town for the reaction of preliminary audiences before unveiling them to seasoned professionals.

But Monday the producers of "Dark Legend" brought their new play into Manhattan's tiny President theatre and announced that it was strictly a tryout and that if the play succeeds they will transfer it into one of the larger Broadway playhouses.

"Dark Legend," by Helen Fraenkel is a dramatization of an actual case history of Dr. Frederic Wertham, an expert on the legal application of mental therapy.

The story picks up the mental confusion of a young boy, takes him through long-range causes for his troubles and eventually ends in matricide.

The actors—James Lipton, Olive Deering and James Daly—play their roles like three people who just happened into the stage door while passing by on the street and hadn't had a rehearsal at all. Which is about the highest tribute you can pay to good performances.

Prices Dip Sharply On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, March 25 (CP) — Prices dipped sharply today in early afternoon stock market dealings as only golds bucked a general decline.

Golds and western oils attracted speculative interest but turnovers were moderate. Industrial dealings spread slowly from leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 1,989,000 shares.

Utilities, constructions, steels, banks, refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials downward with a broad list of fractional declines. Liquors, foods and miscellaneous issues also slipped but retail stores edged upward.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 35 cents.

Calgary and Edmonton, Calmont, Central-Leduc, Charter, Home Oil, New British Dominions North Canadian, Pacific Petroleum and Punch traded lower. Canada Southern and Jupiter were strong.

Base metal weakness eased the exchange's index to the lowest level of the year. Consolidated Smelters, East Rim, Hellens, Opemiska, Quebec Manitou, Waite Amulet and Barvue slipped.

Senior Golds were firm. Kerr Addison, Malartic and Sigma pushed upward. A few junior issues—East Malartic, New Dickenson and San Antonio—also climbed strongly. Prospects and holding companies eased.

S. African Policy

this point clear a year or two ago Prime Minister Malan would have had much more difficulty in putting forward his "incongruous" policies.

Mr. Stewart termed the policy "dreadful and shocking."

"A million half-caste people in the cape territory," he said, "have been refused the right to vote merely because their skins are colored, and that is going to be used against the democratic world all across Asia as another example of the hypocritical tactics of the western world, and therefore we have to condemn it."

Lionel Bertrand (L—Terrebonne) opposed the Diefenbaker motion on the ground a Bill of Rights might mean an invasion of Provincial jurisdiction.

Must Respect Constitution

Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L—Portneuf) suggested all the provinces must take part in the enactment of such a bill. It must respect the constitution.

Dealing with that question, Mr. Diefenbaker, himself, said the "most serious attention" should be given as to whether the Bill would invade Provincial fields. Because he did not want to see that happen, he suggested a reference to the Supreme Court as a preliminary step.

Subject to the Supreme Court ruling, his Bill would provide generally for freedom of religion, speech, press and radio; no abrogation of the Habeas Corpus law except by parliament; no taking away of liberty or property except by regular process of law, and safeguards for those coming before Royal Commissions and other tribunals.

House Called 'Whitakers' Folly' Built By Fraud Is Up For Sale

GODALMING, England —(Reuters)—Everything that Whitaker Wright did was on a grand scale. A range of hills spoiled Witaker's view from his bedroom window, so they had to be removed.

One day, he decided he would like an under-water ballroom. Soon, there it was, with a glass roof so the goldfish in his quarter-mile-long artificial lake could watch the dancers below.

This was Whitaker's folly—one of the most extravagant homes ever built in England. It took 2,900 workers to put up the $2,352,000 house that could do credit to the under-water ballroom.

Even when he was found guilty of fraud in his stock exchange dealings and sentenced to seven years in jail, Whitaker was equal to the situation. He swallowed cyanide and died 15 minutes after sentence was pronounced.

That was in 1904.

Today the auctioneer's men are swarming over Whitaker's Folly, cataloguing the contents for this week's big auction. The present owner, Sir John Leigh, just can't afford to keep the 77 servants Whitaker planned on.

Whitaker was a big man in financial circles in the 1890s—all 250 pounds of him. He floated companies like little boys float paper boats. He fraternized with the Prince of Wales, who became King Edward VII.

But the authorities finally caught on.

If it weren't for Whitaker's Folly, his name would be all but forgotten by now.

But who could forget a man who built a 74-foot-long bridal bedroom, with piano, harp, zither, Chinese gong and 40-odd windows? Or the 32 bedrooms? Or the deer park enclosed by a $100,000 stone wall?

But soon auction customers will hear:

"Who'll give me a bid on this fine, glass-walled, under-water billiard room and cocktail bar?"

Canada Building 7 New Bombs To Fight Cancer

OTTAWA, March 25 (CP)—The government's Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. is going into the cancer-fighting business in a big way.

Officials said Monday they are building in Ottawa seven more of the $48,000 cobalt-60 beam-therapy units like one in London, Ont.

The equipment, nicknamed the cobalt bomb, is assured of markets in Canada, the United States and elsewhere and more will be produced when the current seven are finished. The bomb is being built and sold on a commercial basis by the Crown firm which produces and refines Canada's uranium.

Next In Line

Vancouver and Winnipeg are the next cities to get them in Canada. In both cases they are being purchased by organizations interested in fighting cancer.

The units are roughly nine feet high and resemble large X-ray machines. They shoot beams of radiation into the human body and have done good work in fighting cancer, according to reports from the unit in use in London's Victoria Hospital.

The term cobalt-60 comes from the radioactive element produced in Chalk River's atomic reactor. It is one of the outstanding products to come out of Chalk River.

New Canadians Build Apartment

TORONTO — (CP)—A $327,000 co-operative "dream"—first such operation by new Canadians—is being fashioned in east suburban Scarboro township.

A group of Toronto's 5,000 Estonian-born residents are building a 34-apartment housing project.

The "dream" is slated to be complete by next July. It started in 1944 when under the menacing shadow of Russia's threats to their tiny country thousands of Estonians fled their homeland.

Early last year the group known as Estonian Houses Co., was formed on a non-profit co-operative basis. Each family bought $2,000 worth of shares. When the building is ready an additional $1,500 will be paid by those taking five-room apartments, $1,000 will be paid by those taking four-room homes.

In 20 years, after the company has paid off a $220,000 loan to Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, tenants will own their apartments outright.

Censorship Of C.B.C. Sharply Criticized

TORONTO, March 25 (CP) — T. J. Allard said Monday C.B.C. censorship of private radio programs is "like the old Star chamber technique of the interference by the lifted eyebrow."

The general manager of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters told an interviewer that station managers bend over backwards to avoid any conceivable offence against C.B.C. regulations. They could not be sure how the regulations would be interpreted.

"We feel that broadcasting should be on all fours with the other forms of publishing."

No. 2 Party Member Arrested In Egypt

CAIRO, March 25 (AP)—Ibrahmin Shoukri, No. 2 man in Egypt's Socialist party, was arrested late Monday night. No charges have been lodged against him, police said today.

The No. 1 man of the party, Ahmed Hussein, who formerly led a Fascist-like green-shirt movement, was arrested in connection with investigation of the Jan. 26 fire riots. He was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment last week on charges of belittling King Farouk.

Shoukri is the party's only representative in the Chamber of Deputies. Dissolution of the House yesterday cancelled his parliamentary immunity, making his arrest possible.

Egypt is still under martial law, imposed at the time of the January disturbances in Cairo.

Man Forces Police To Lock Him Up

TIMMINS, March 25 — (CP).—Here's one man who really wanted to go to jail—and did.

Police said Joseph Dagnais, 73, appeared at police headquarters several days ago and asked to be locked up. Police said "no."

Saturday he entered the police office again, pulled out a bottle of wine and took a drink. He asked to be locked up.

He was. Police booked Dagnais on a charge of having wine in a public place.

Operating Revenues

MONTREAL, March 25 (CP).—Operating revenues for the Canadian National System, all inclusive, for the month of February, were $52,038,000. Operating expenses were $52,080,000, leaving a net operating deficit of $42,000. This compares with a net operating deficit of $596,000 in the corresponding month last year when revenues were $43,352,000 and expenses $43,948,000.

News Blackout Imposed On Korean Talks

MUNSAN, Korea, March 25—(AP)—Korean truce negotiators drew a curtain of secrecy today across their talks on exchanging prisoners of war.

The news blackout was established in an effort to break one of three deadlocks preventing agreement on an armistice. The theory is that negotiators will talk more readily about possible compromises if they are out of the propaganda limelight.

Their problem is how to exchange prisoners. The U.N. wants prisoners of war to decide for themselves whether they will be sent home. The Reds want all P.O.W.s repatriated, whether they like it or not.

A second goup of staff officers reached general agreement on the secondary question of ports of entry to be used during an armistice. But it remained deadlocked on the key issue of whether Russia should be recognized as neutral and thus eligible for helping supervise the truce.

No Secrecy Here

No secrecy is involved in these talks. The Reds rebuffed an Allied effort to break the deadlock. The Allies suggested each side name only two neutrals instead of three.

The Communists insisted Russians be among inspectors stationed at the 10 ports of entry. Col. Don Darrow replied that the U.N. command opposition to the Soviet Union "is clear. It is irrevocable. And it is final".

Nobody is trying to break the third deadlock over whether the Reds should be allowed to repair and build military airfields during an armistice.

Staff officers handling the prisoner question have been working toward a news blackout for three days. The Allies formally proposed it Monday. Negotiators agreed on it Tuesday.

The U.N. command warned the Communists the secrecy will be lifted immediately if the Reds try to make propaganda capital of the confidential talks.

Boy Scouts Hold Conference For District In Cobourg

COBOURG, March 25 (ENS) — Scout leaders and sponsors of boy scout work were in an enviable position through the fact that their efforts moulded the character of young people, said W. L. Little, superintendent of the Ontario Training School for Boys at Cobourg, in addressing the western area conference of the Boys Scouts Association held this past week-end at Cobourg.

Hugh Cameron was chairman of the conference which was attended by 190 delegates. A handicraft display of work done by cubs and scouts was on exhibition and arranged by the Cobourg Scouters Club. The Cobourg 6th Trinity Cub Pack under Don Macklin, cubmaster and William Brown, assistant cubmaster gave a demonstration of using the six unit in cubbing.

District Commissioner L. R. Griffith of Cobourg, chairman of the day session, called the conference to order with the parading of the colours and opening prayer was by the Rev. E. C. Kelloway. Mayor J. D. Burnet of Cobourg welcomed the visiting scout representatives and stated that Cobourg was highly honoured in having the western area Boy Scouts conference held here. The entire group of representatives then separated into five sections, cub leaders, scout leaders, rover leaders, ladies' auxiliaries and committeemen, each going to their own room for discussion of problems peculiar to their own section.

Cub leaders were under W. King, cubmaster, Peterborough; scout leaders under Dr. J. Best, scoutmaster, Colborne; rover leaders, under Skipper Arthur Rose of All Saints, Peterborough; ladies' auxiliary representatives under Mrs. W. Corbett, treasurer Provincial Ladies' Auxiliaries, Oshawa; group committeemen, district staffs and association representatives under W. H. J. Tisdale, Provincial Commissioner for Ontario.

The sectional conferences proved interesting and on regrouping, witnessed an excellent demonstration by the 7th Cobourg Troop under District Scoutmaster Charles Wingfield and Assistant Scoutmaster Junior Butler. A half-hour general discussion was held which was climaxed by an address given by W. H. J. Tisdale who summarized and rounded out the questions which had been discussed. At the banquet held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall, the chairman was Bob Finkle, president of the Cobourg association. Grace was offered by the Rev. E. Mackay of St. Andrew's.

The roll call by Field Commissioner Art Jackson disclosed that the 190 delegates represented some 22 cities and towns between Port Hope and Napanee. Guest speaker was Mr. Little of the Training School, who was introduced by Lou Griffith. Mr. Little followed the theme of how Boy Scout training played an important role in the training of future leaders of the country. Few of the boys placed in reform schools have had cub or scout training, he said, which placed scout leaders in an enviable and honoured position in the moulding of characters of the boys in this country. Mr. Little pointed out the need for greater emphasis in making scouting principles available to more boys in the province, the population was growing at the present rate of 10,000 per month. Scottie Broughton of Brighton thanked the speaker.

Awards presented during the dinner by Provincial Commissioner Tisdale were Gilwell beads to both Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irish, cubmaster and assistant cubmaster, Sterling, and believed to be the first time this award has been presented to a husband and wife at the same ceremony. Mr. C. Brighton, scoutmaster of the 1st Trenton troop, received a 1951 Plan Achievement Crest. Mr. Charles Wingfield, district scoutmaster, Cobourg, was presented with his Scouting Warrant by District Commissioner Griffith. Sing songs during the afternoon and evening sessions led by Assistant Scoutmaster Junior Butler were enthusiastically entered into.

Record Profit Of 4 Million Made Last Year TCA Reports

OTTAWA, March 25— (CP)— Trans-Canada Air Lines, cashing in on the rapid growth of air transportation, made a profit of nearly $4,000,000 last year in operatoins covering a 17,000-mile system circling half the globe.

The profit, biggest in the 10-year history of the government-owned airline, will be used to expand its 47-plane fleet with eight new planes of the conventional piston-engine type at a total outlay of $11,000,000.

The airline's engineers continue to watch developments in the jet transport field but there are as yet no plans to buy jet aircraft.

The annual report of the airline, tabled in the Commons today by Trade Minister Howe, showed an overall profit of $3,890,957. This compared with an overall deficit of $1,325,206 in 1950.

Make Profit

For the first time in its history TCA made a profit on Atlantic operations, making $47,231 last year where in 1950 it went $1,526,412 in the red. The North American profit was $3,843,726 compared with a profit of $201,206 in 1950.

The report showed passenger traffic up 20 per cent over 1950, air cargo and air express up 13 per cent and mail by 11 per cent. TCA planes flew more miles and carried more passengers than ever before and the volume of business was such that at times the airline found itself unable to meet demands.

G. R. McGregor, company president, said even bigger business is expected this year. This can only be met by expanding TCA's present fleet of 20 North Stars and 27 DC-3's.

To meet this need five new super Constellations have been ordered for service next year on the Atlantic run at a cost of $9,000,000. Three Canadian-built North Stars have been purchased from Canadian Pacific Air Lines at a cost of $2,000,000 and will be fully paid for this year. They'll go into domestic service soon.

Mr. McGGregor said the piston-engined Constellations—they have Wright 3350 "compound" engines developing more than 3,000 horsepower—were ordered only after "long and thorough engineering investigation of the types of aircraft then on the market."

Keeping Abreast

But TCA engineers continued to make technical and economic investigations of all current developments in turbo-prop and turbo-jet engines and both current and planned types of planes using jet power.

The report showed North American revenue at $37,043,289 compared with $31,043,684 in 1950. Atlantic service revenue was $10,967,012 compared with $8,344,815. North American expenditures totalled $32,670,655 compared with $31,318,613, and Atlantic service expenditures were $10,665,465 compared with $9,586,388.

Mr. McGregor said a 31 per cent increase in overseas operating revenues was one of the features of the financial year. It was the result of enlarged North Atlantic immigrant travel, an upswing in traffic between Canada, Bermuda and the West Indies "and an effective program of cost control." North Atlantic competition was keen but TCA had a record matched by no other airline. Of the 644 flights scheduled during the year, all were completed.

Give Encouragement

Encouragement was given the North Atlantic business by TCA's organization in London of an industrial advisory service to provide Canadian information to potential air passengers in Britain and Europe.

Dealing with replacement of aircraft, Mr. McGregor said the average original book value of the company's North Star fleet was approximately $675,000 each. But prices quoted for four-engined planes in current production which could be considered eligible replacements ranged from $1,400,000 to $1,800,000.

Thus, he said, the aggregate depreciation accruals on the present fleet will not provide sufficient capital to purchase replacements. For this reason the 1951 surplus had been reserved as a first contribution to the "very large amount of money which will be represented by the difference between the cost of replacement equipment and the amount of money realized from the complete depreciation of the present equipment."

This had been done with the approval of Canadian National Railways which holds all TCA issued stock.

Woman Missionary Tells Of Japanese Life

NORWOD, March 25 (ENS).—Miss Louella Rorke, a United Church missionary to Japan, and presently in Canada on furlough, was guest speaker at a special service in Norwood United Church on Sunday evening. The great changes in the outlook and habits of the Japanese since the war have created new opportunities for the Christian missionary. The way is not easy, she said, because of war destruction, poverty and competition from faiths like Buddhism and Communism.

With vividness Mis Rorke told of the educational work in which she has been engaged and referred to several young Japanese women who are highly trained for Christian leadership in kindergarten schools.

Mrs. Russell Gardner sang a solo. The Rev. R. G. Newman of Havelock and a former missionary in Japan, read the Scripture lesson and later introduced Miss Rorke to the congregation. Visitors from Havelock and Hastings attended the service, as well as Norwood people.

Miss Rorke will be going back to Japan in the summer for her last term as a missionary of the Women's Misionary Society of the United Church of Canada.

Following the church service, Mis Rorke and Mr. and Mrs. Newman and Paul Newman and several other missionary workers gathered at the parsonage for a brief social time.

Miss Rorke's hearers will remember the moving appeal she made for young Christian women to open their hearts to the call for missionary service: "Truly the fields are white unto the harvest, but the laborers are few."

The Neglected Aspect Of Conservation

In some information which reached us this morning from UNESCO we read that April 7 will be observed as World Health Day; just who will observe it, and how, we do not know, but the theme of the celebration is to be Healthy Surroundings Make Healthy People. The director-general of the World Health Organization, Dr. Brock Chisholm, has written cogently on this topic, and some of the statistics which UNESCO provides, showing how costly insanitary living can be in human life, are hair-raising. As the World Health Organization exists to do what it can about such evils as this, we are moved to wonder when it will get around to dealing with a matter relating both to health and to conservation which we have frequently mentioned in these columns.

• • •

We refer to the terrible waste of valuable materials which is caused by our present method of disposing of garbage and sewage. We have learned enough to prevent plagues by burning our garbage and pouring our sewage into waterways; we have not yet learned to return both garbage and sewage to the soil from which, in the first place, they came. Vast quantities of nitrogen and potash, of phosphoric and silicic acid and magnesia are swept away to the sea, or into our lakes, and nothing is done to restore the soil from which they were taken. Every farmer knows that organic manure gives him better results, over a long period, than chemical manures; recent scientific research suggests that this is because the organic fertilizer contains elements which they call auximones, which have a function in the life of a plant similar to that of the vitamin in the life of an animal. Grain grown with organic fertilizer and grain grown with inorganic fertilizer show no important difference when chemically analysed, but experiments by Professor Gilbert Fowler and his associates show that the grain grown with organic fertilizer has a much higher nutritive value. Whatever this may be—auximone or call it what you will—it is returned to the soil in animal manure.

• • •

Professor F. H. King, in his interesting book Farmers of Forty Centuries, estimates that North America and Europe, in a single year, are pouring away in sewage about 12,000,000 pounds of nitrogen, 4,000,000 pounds of potassium, and about 3,000,000 pounds of phosphorus per million of adult population. Consequence: we are decreasing the value of what our soil produces, as nourishment, though we appear to be increasing the yield in quantity.

• • •

What can be done about it? Having learned that it is dangerous to neglect the care of garbage and sewage, we can now learn how to use it and return it to the soil which needs it. This can be done by a system of composting which is not elaborate, though it is not economically profitable on a small scale. But so important a job is worth attention at least on the provincial level, and done on a large scale the costs drop and the product—a dry, odourless organic fertilizer of the best quality—can be made and marketed cheaply.

• • •

Here is something for the World Health Organization to think over. Recommendations from such a source to enlightened governments should command a respectful hearing. Scientists have been aware of the dangers of our waste of organic matter for fifty years, and it is time that progressive nations saw the light.

The Bevan Revolters

Mr. Aneurin Bevan's revolt under the Party leadership of Mr. Attlee is neither as strong nor solidly supported by other dissident Labour members as the headlines make it seem. Particularly when they are in Opposition, the Labour Party leadership has tolerated considerable diversity of opinion in the past, without reading the squawkers out of the Party. Mr. Bevan was not read out of the Party last week, nor were his policies censured.

One reason for this mildness may be the realization of the party executive under Mr. Attlee that the fifty-six Labour Members of Parliament who voted with Mr. Bevan at the end of the defence debate by no means represent a united body of dissenting opinion. The single common denominator is their opposition to the size of the rearmament program. Beyond that is little in common to unite them under Mr. Bevan and against Mr. Attlee. The "Bevanites" are a curious miscellany. Among them are pacifists, pure intellectuals, vagabond souls to be found in any party especially a left-wing one, and survivors of the Independent Labour Party. They have no united policy; Mr. Bevan does not control them as a splinter group.

Their influence in the Labour Party and Trade Union councils is not great. Of them all, only Mr. Bevan has his roots deep in the history or the soil of the Labour Party. Mr. Bevan is annually re-elected to the National Executive of the Party, but he is always faced by a powerful majority of trade unionists when he gets there. Even if he could rely on the 57 Labour Members of Parliament who voted with him on the defence issue, it is not enough strength to challenge Mr. Attlee's majority.

Midnight Chuckles At Rideau Hall?

When our new Governor-General first made his way to Ottawa in that capacity, it was noted that the Mayor of Ottawa was not among those who received him; this is noteworthy, for Mayors of Ottawa are not remarkable for their reticence in meeting distinguished persons, and have for many years contrived to be present at functions which did not unmistakeably demand their presence. It has been suggested that Miss Whitton's absence on this occasion was intentional. We now read that when Mr. Massey goes to Montreal, Mayor Camillien Houde has made it clear that he will not be present.

Mr. Massey will survive these slights. He is a Canadian, and he knows how bitter Canadians can be toward one another; he knows how hotly the matter of a Canadian Governor-General was discussed, and how strong was disapproval of such an appointment in some quarters. And as one acquainted with politics he knows that when the Mayor of Ottawa or the Mayor of Montreal want a favor of some sort, they will be all smiles when they ask him for it.

We feel that people who are inclined to snub the new Governor-General should be reminded that the fact that he is a Canadian does not in any way diminish the fact that he is Her Majesty's representative in this country and that official slights offered to him are slights offered to the Queen. (There are pictorial records which show us that Mayor Whitton and Mayor Houde clung to the Queen with the greatest amiability, when she visited Canada as Princess Elizabeth.) We hesitate to suggest that either Mayor thinks that a Canadian is not a proper person to represent the Queen, but their conduct suggests it.

Mr. Massey has had the education of a scholar, and is, we suspect, something of a philosopher. If, when he has retired to his bedchamber in Rideau Hall at night, that historic house should echo with his chuckles, nobody with a grain of humour will be in doubt about what he is laughing at.

One Bear Makes A Spring

The famous poetic question: "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind," has a definite answer and no subjunctive at all in these parts. Winter does come, and Spring is a long, long way behind it—a third of a year. Shelley would not have optimistically put the question if he had lived in Canada. His winter was a December-January lull between autumn and Spring, and not a harsh period at that. English poets' descriptions of winter can in fact be applied to our Spring.

In Winter, when the dismal rain
Came down in slanting lines,
And wind, that grand old harper, smote
His thunder-harp of pines.

We are glad to be able to report now, however, that our four months of winter are surely ending. We shall have, of course, another month of somewhat English winter. But the skies are bright, the sun has warmth. We can now believe in the hopeful rhetoric of Shelley: If Winter come, can Spring be far behind?" It is around the corner of the eastern winds. Crows are cawing, robins chirping, water is gurgling, clouds are [illegible] Cobourg last Friday.

In a little while—say in May—we shall have a taste of Shelley's Spring:

Behold! Spring sweeps over the world again,
Shedding soft dews from her ethereal wings;
Flowers on the mountains, fruits over the plain,
And music on the waves and woods, she flings,
And love on all that lives, and calm on lifeless things.

How Fanatics Are Made

By BERTRAND RUSSELL

THOSE who see in totalitarianism a threat to all that has seemed to them valuable in the present and in the past are faced with three questions: How do totalitarian systems arise? Why do many people like them? Is there anything other than armed force that can impede their spread? Anyone who is interested in these three questions and sees that answers must be found to them if liberty is to survive, will find himself very much helped both by Mr. Talmon and by Mrs. Hoffer. (The Origins of Totalitarian Democracy, by J. L. Talmon and The True Believer, by Eric Hoffer.)

✧ ✧ ✧

THE two books differ widely, both in scope and in method. Mr. Talmon scrutinises with a wealth of learning the ideas which dominated the active years of the French Revolution, while Mr. Hoffer, eschewing erudition, applies an almost uncanny psychological insight to the explanation of the motives which throughout the ages have generated the many different kinds of mass movement known to history.

✧ ✧ ✧

MR. TALMON'S chief thesis is that what he calls "Totalitarian Democracy" is not an invention of Marxists or of Russians, but comes straight out of Rousseau and his active disciples in the French Revolution. I am not wholly convinced, but undoubtedly he comes much nearer to a complete proof of his thesis than most would expect.

The French Revolution was dominated by the "mystique" of Rousseau's general will. The general will was incredibly convenient. Rousseau is careful to explain that it is not necessarily the will of the majority. It is only the virtuous whose private will is in harmony with the general will, and the virtuous are, of course, the leaders of one's own party. In the French Revolution, as in the Russian, a minority was able to seize power and to enforce its authority by terror while nevertheless claiming to be acting in the name of democracy.

BUT it is not mere mundane institutions such as ballot boxes which show what the people really want; what they really want is mystically revealed to certain enlightened prophets who know how to lead their country into the promised land. The goal is liberty and harmony, but neither can be achieved until everybody agrees with the inspired leader.

This philosophy was equally dominant in France and in Russia. But, in France, a majority who opposed the postulated general will cut off the heads of the revolutionaries; while, in Russia, where the French Revolution had been studied, the leaders avoided this fate. Consequently, while the speculations of Robespierre remained historical curiosities, the very similar speculations of Lenin are threatening to sink the whole world in either despotism or chaos.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE root of the matter, as Mr. Talmon points out, is the absolute belief in a gospel by which the millennium is to be brought within a short time. If you really know how to bring the millennium, why make a fuss about cutting off a few heads? Why tolerate the pernicious speculations of those who dim the faith that you are engaged in spreading? Away with such paltry hesitations! They are unworthy of the man of destiny. What to the outsider appear inconsistencies or unscrupulous acts, dictated by love of power, have a quite different appearance subjectively in the mind of the leader.

Mr. Talmon draws two conclusions from his inquiry: one, that Marxist ideas go back to the French Revolution; that other, that no creed which is all-embracing and all-solving is compatible with liberty. The second of these seems to me wholly true and very important. The first, I think, is true only with certain limitations. The French Revolutionaries treated the individual as the ethical unit, and had a point of view which grew out of belief in the Rights of Man. Marxism, by its emphasis on classes, has degraded the individual and has substituted organisations in his place.

✧ ✧ ✧

EVERY great popular movement, whatever may have been its original objects, has led by processes which seem inevitable into horrors of one kind or another. Why this happens, and why the faithful follow in spite of horrors, is explained in simple non-technical terms in Mr. Hoffer's investigation of the True Believer. The pleasure that a man finds in belonging to a mass movement arises always, according to Mr. Hoffer, from a feeling of inadequacy on the part of the disciple. It may be a sense of sin, or a sense of failure, or mere timidity, that makes a man unable to stand alone.

✧ ✧ ✧

OF THESE, the sense of sin is perhaps the most potent. When a man joins in a mass movement he is persuaded that the movement is wholly good and that its virtue is reflected upon himself. His load of sin, on the other hand, is ejected on to an opponent's movement. In this way he is able at the same time to love his co-religionists, to hate the infidels, and to feel that sense of personal worth which, as an individual, he had lost.

Fear of the outer world and hatred of [illegible] psychology of those who become converts to mass movements in their active phase. These undesirable emotions are multiplied and externalised as the movement spreads, and thus become sources of persecutions and ruthless wars.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF MR. HOFFER'S analysis is right, as I am convinced that it is, the only cure for fanaticism lies in self-respect, and in preventing the growth of that sort of morbid humility which is regarded by some as the highest virtue. In view, for example, of Dostoevsky's preaching of humility, it is not surprising that he was an intimate friend of the Procurator of the Holy Synod, whose persecutions he supported. A collection of abject individuals can be turned into a cruelly fanatical society, but only a community of self-respecting individuals can practise freedom and tolerance.

All this and much more the reader will [illegible] which, in spite of its brevity, and because of its simplicity, seems to me as sound intellectually as it is timely politically.

An American Opinion: OF COURSE, HE COULD MOVE

Letters To The Editor

FACTS ABOUT SASKATOON HOSPITAL

Sir: The Director of Hospital Administration and Standards for the Department of Public Health, Saskatchewan, has written me a letter referring to an article in the Peterborough Examiner of February 14, 1952, in which he thought I would be interested. He also commented that he "sort of" resented the implication that the Peterborough Civic Hospital had more to offer patients than our hospital. He did agree, however, that our hospital's beds would be more constantly occupied than the Peterborough hospital's. He also suggested that I write you to let you know that our hospital has just as much to offer the community as the Civic Hospital in Peterborough.

Without going into detail I can say that our hospital offers a wide range of general services to the Saskatoon area, which extends for a considerable distance outside of Saskatoon. Our hospital is one of the two base hospitals in Saskatchewan. The other base hospital is located in Regina.

On the financial side of the picture we finished the year's operation with a small surplus, $2,341. This is what we term an "operating surplus". In addition to our operating costs, however, there are items of expense which are not considered operating costs by the Saskatchewan Hospital Services Plan; namely, interest charges on operating loans and capital borrowings. The City of Saskatoon bears these interest charges, which, in 1951, totalled $72,000. Our total operating costs in 1951 were the equivalent of $9.88 per patient day. This is an all-inclusive cost figure, however, and does not mean that we must charge that rate in order to break even. The daily rate paid by the Saskatchewan Hospital Service Plan for 1951 was $8.39 for adults and children, and $2 a day for new-borns. Revenues from other sources such as extra charges for private and semi-private accommodation, X-ray services to out-patients, etc., explained the difference between our actual daily rate and the total cost of operation. It should be mentioned here that the daily rate paid by the Saskatchewan Hospital Services Plan includes the cost of ordinary drugs, laboratory procedures, X-rays, operating room and case room charges, etc. The patient must pay for any special drugs not covered by the Plan, and for any out-patient services rendered.

We have a 350 bed hospital, excluding bassinets. Our rate of occupancy for 1951 was 92%. There were 8,627 hospital admissions, and 1,249 births in 1951. The volume of diagnostic work carried out in our hospital is considered very high. There were 14,982 diagnostic X-rays and 2,312 fluoroscopic examinations. Our laboratory performed 81,755 general procedures and 9,640 tissue examinations. Our physiotherapy department performed 21,538 treatments.

Our hospital provides facilities for the Saskatchewan Cancer Clinic serving the northern part of this province. The cost of these facilities is included in our patient day cast, but the remuneration of Cancer Clinic medical staff is borne by the Saskatchewan Cancer Commission.

We have a large training school for nurses with an eprolment of about 200 students at the present time. A residence is provided for these students, and of course, the operation of this school requires a teaching staff. The cost of operating this school is also included in our patient day operating costs.

Just as a matter of information, the burgesses of the City of Saskatoon approved a money by-law last November to provide the capital funds for a $2,000,000 extension program for this hospital. This extension will provide new facilities for operating rooms, laboratory, X-ray, administrative offices, emergency treatment, physiotherapy, dietary, medical staff lectures, storage, isolation, internes and nursery.

I fully realize that the foregoing information may not be of real interest to you, and that your reference to our hospital may have been a casual one used simply as a comparison, I really know nothing about the Peterborough Civic Hospital, but I am fairly certain that our hospital would have just about as much to offer patients. I understand that a new hospital has just been built, and that it is quite possible that for the time being at least Peterborough has extended itself.

Yours very truly,
L. T. MUIRHEAD,
General Superintendent,
Saskatoon City Hospital

LIKES IKE, BUT—

Sir: In your editorial "Reputations Abroad Politically Useless at Home" you have answered your question very well; and your query "What are his chances of being elected? merely gives me an excuse to "shoot-off" regards Generals and Political regimes: "I like Ike" yet if I had a vote in the next U.S. Presidental election it is not likely that he would get my vote, precisely, because he is a General; and the opposition forces can, and probably will, use plenty of available evidence to show that a military genius should not be entrusted in the position as President, and Commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

In his speech, at the time a University degree was bestowed on him, the General asked why don't the Presidents of the Universities teach their students to get along without the need of men in such jobs as he, Gen. Eisenhower, holds. At the time I thought the General's remark was very sensible; but later when he became President of Columbia University if he made any effort to implement that grand idea I failed to learn about it.

About fourteen years ago [illegible] ment told us that Carnegie Institute, after scanning the thirty or forty billion people who have shuffled on or across the stage of human affairs since the dawn of recorded history, had compiled a list of five thousand persons who, among that great throng, were given credit as contributors to human progress; and it is interesting to note that ability as a military genius or financial wizard didn't help to qualify a person for a place in the Carnegie listing (I presume the list was composed of characters like me, Socrates, Shaw, Euripides etc.) Military conquests or defeats, or material gains for minority groups are not likely to be an indication of human-progress though interested and interesting peole have tried hard to inculcate in us the idea that "our way of life" democracy, is founded on just such an idea.

Democracy is not the right word to describe a people who spend their biggest effort flaunting their social muscular-potential tugging at a war-chariot, any more than the term "Age of Reason" was an appropriate name to describe a social development resulting from the French revolution. The features that Aristotle pointed-out, in particular, as his reason for designating democracy as "A depraved form of Government" are the very ones that have since developed to become the most prominent in our system.

The self-styled democratic people of Athens condemned and executed Socrates, which event helped to ruin Plato's desire to take part in social affairs, and turned his attention back to philosophy, where from his philosophical view, he gave forth some ideas on who should run the affairs of State, and observe: There is no cessation of evil for the sons of men: that only true [illegible] ply should serve as the sovereign power, or that those in power should "by some dispensation of Providence" become true philosophers.

Respectfully,
W. H. ROSEBUSH

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Is not God in the height of heaven? and behold the height of the stars, how high they are! . . . Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace: thereby good shall come unto thee . . . For then shalt thou have thy delight in the Almighty, and shalt lift up thy face unto God. (Job 22: 12, 21, 26.)

Then Job answered and said . . . Oh that I knew where I might find him! that I might come even to his seat! . . . But he is in one mind, and who can turn him? and what his soul desireth, even that he doeth. (Job. 23: 1, 3, 13.)

The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. (Ps. 103: 19.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For I know that the Lord is great, and that our Lord is above all gods. Whatsoever the Lord pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth, in the seas, and all deep places . . .

Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations. (Ps. 135: 5, 6, 13.)

Unromantic Irish

(Windsor Star)

One of the traditional features of Ireland is its spirit of romance. All its maidens have been fetching colleens and all its males gallant men ready to wield the shillelagh in defence of their womenfolk. It's tragic, so soon after St. Patrick's Day, to have this legend debunked.

Yet Rev. J. J. McNamee, Bishop of Ardagh and Clonmacnoise, says Eire's marriage rate is the lowest in the world. He urges parents to encourage their sons to marry young, rather than fall into a "fatalistic acceptance of permanent bachelorhood." Sure, and it's a sad day for Ireland when its youth have to be "encouraged" to become romantic.

There is no music, no poetry, no prose more filled with the spirit of romance than that of Ireland. What is wrong in Ireland? Have the lassies lost their appeal or the lads their ardour? Is the soul as well as the spirit of the Irish losing the fire which made them renowned? Or are there economic or other influences at work which subdue the natural talent of the Irish for romance? We'd like to know.

Says Alberta Ignores Suggestions

By The Canadian Press

A surplus of almost $500,000 for Manitoba has been predicted in the coming fiscal year.

In making the prediction Monday night in the Manitoba legislature, Provincial Treasurer Ron D. Turner said in his budget address that expenditures on ordinary account will amout to a record $49,099,000. Ordinary revenue was estimated at $49,588,000.

The previous record was 1951-52's revised estimated expenditure of $42,777,000, revenue of $48,135,000 and surplus of $1,757,537.

The budget highlighted expenditures of almost $1,700,000 more for education this year than 1950-51, an additional $682,000 on health and welfare and a total of $3,300,000 more on roads.

Saskatchewan's education grant total was attacked and defended at Regina when bills were given second reading increasing equalization grants to schools and raising teachers' service pensions.

Need Education Aid

J. G. Egnatoff (L-Melfort) said aid to education was far from adequate. Education Minister Woodrow Lloyd said the grants had been increased greatly during the last few years and eventually municipalities could devote such funds directly to operating costs, after completion of current construction programs.

Alberta's Health Minister D. W. W. Cross said in the Edmonton house his government has implemented only one recommendation of a royal commission which in 1948 investigated child welfare administration.

The commission was appointed by the provincial government after a report from the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire said Alberta babies were being sent to the United States for adoption.

Hugh John MacDonald (L-Calgary) charged the Alberta commission was appointed only "to keep the people quiet with an election in the offing."

Newfoundland's legislature was told by Malcolm Hollett (PC-St. John's West) that the province has been reduced to a state of penurious begging."

Premier Joseph Smallwood, whose economic development program was under attack, denied that Dr. Alfred A .Valdmanis, director-general of economic development, had worked with the Nazi financial wizard, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, in Germany during the war. Pressed by Mr. Smallwood Mr. Hollett refused to withdraw the statement.

The plight of provincial lobster fishermen, hard-hit by storms, came before the Nova Scotia house, where Premier Macdonald said negotiations are being carried on with the federal government. A complete report will be given later.

TORONTO, March 25—(CP)—Chairman D. Malcolm Neill, of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, Monday criticized the federal government for spending "several millions of dollars" to supply television to residents of the Toronto and Montreal areas.

Addressing the opening session of the four-day, 27th annual convention of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, he said private stations should be allowed to provide television services to all parts of the country at no expense to the taxpayer.

Tar Company Suing U.S. Salt Company

TORONTO, March 25—(CP)—The Dominion Tar and Chemical Company, of Montreal, is suing a United States salt company for $5,000,000, claiming the U.S. firm broke an agreement for the joint mining of rock salt.

Dominion Tar sued International Salt Co. of Canada Ltd., after an announcement from Chatham March 8 that International will erect a $4,500,000 plant at Erieau, 20 miles south of Chatham.

The Canadian Press said erroneously in a news story Monday that the plaintiff company was Dominion Tire and Chemical Company.

Concert Assoc. Holds Dinner Opens Campaign

Eleventh annual membership campaign of the Peterborough Community Concert Association got under way Monday evening when sixty directors of the association and campaign workers dined at the Copper Kettle room of the Y.W.C.A. and launched the canvass. The association is limited by the size of the concert hall (P.C.-V.S.) to 850 members.

Campaign chairman Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, and Albert Robinson, New York agent of the association, said that while present members had first chance of subscription, there would be vacancies for 100-150 new members. The advance subscription has been the largest it has ever been. Application for renewals and new memberships are now being taken by canvassers and at the campaign headquarters.

Mr. Robinson reminded his hearers that the association was a "membership organization".

Community Concert Association president, Miss Musa Cox, presided at the dinner, and introduced two guests from the Lindsay concert association, Mrs. G. Beal, president, and Mrs. D. Smith, secretary. Mrs. Thursa Williamson, campaign secretary, outlined the procedure of the canvass. The priority given renewals expires Wednesday.

Miss Cox announced that the artists' selection meeting of directors would be held on Saturday afternoon, after the campaign had closed. No memberships will be accepted thereafter.

Mrs. Ford Turner had charge of the dinner arrangements.

Heading the campaign workers' groups are: Charles Allen, Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Mrs. A. E. DeNure, Mrs. Elsie Flett, Donald Kennedy, Mrs. Jacob Low, Mrs. Ford Turner; Mrs. H. A. Mitchell.

Following the dinner Mr. Robinson conducted a musical quiz with gramophone recordings.

Cecil Bronson Elected Head Of Music Festival

BANCROFT, March 25 (ENS)—Cecil Bronson of Bird's Creek Public School was elected president of the North Hastings Music Festival Committee at the organization meeting for the curent year, held in North Hastings High School Thursday night. Other officials elected were: Vice-president, Ralph McDonald of Coe Hill; secretary-treasurer, Norma Haas of Bancroft; program committee, Mrs. Leah Goodkey and Miss Grace Duquette, itinerant music supervisors for North Hastings elementary schools; Mrs. L. Freiburger of Bancroft Public School Home and School Association; Charles Montreuil of North Hastings High School; John Bleecker of Bancroft Public School, and the president and vice-president of the association.

Acording to present plans the festival will be a one-day affair in N.H.H.S. on June 10, with G. Roy Fenwick, director of music, Ontario Department of Education, as adjudicator. Plans to include an oratorical competition with the festival were shelved as the meeting felt that it would be preferable to have a separate date for the public speaking events. A committee, headed by Laurier Hook, will make a separate announcement on this subject in the near future.

DON'T FEEL HALF DEAD

Are you always tired?

SERIOUS AILMENTS RESULT FROM ERRORS IN DIET

It's necessary to strike at the source—not at the symptom. When an individual suffers serious ailments caused by a food factor deficiency, a one hundred percent improvement cannot be expected unless he is supplied with those elements which were lacking in his diet, the absence of which caused the degeneration in the first place.

To keep free from ailments, we must keep our tissues, blood, bone, and glands well supplied with the food elements they need. Our normal body chemistry must be maintained if our health is to be maintained. We can expect to possess normal health conditions.

HAVE YOU A HORIZONTAL HUSBAND?

If he's tired all the time and lacking pep; if he snoozes on the chesterfield every evening, too weary to go out or enjoy life, he may be suffering a vitamin and mineral deficiency. If he's irritable or nervous, dyspeptic or generally under par; if he experiences vague aches and pains (assuming the absence of specific disease), then examine his diet carefully. THE TROUBLE MAY BE RIGHT THERE. He probably needs a vitamin and mineral dietary supplement and should be introduced to Formula 7-11.

A DRUGGIST SPEAKS:--

"I have compared the formulae — 7-11 is the best product of its kind that's ever been on my shelves."

That is how one druggist expressed his opinion of 7-11, a new formula for better health.

IN ON FIVE GOALS EACH—Arn Dugan, left, Fred Garvey, in centre, and Don Floyd, were the leading marksmen for the Petes in their 14-5 triumph over Kingston in last night's senior "B" puck playoff here. These three were in on five goals each in a fine showing, Garvey scoring three and aiding on two, Dugan tallying a pair and helping on three more, and Floyd lighting the light once and assisting on four more. The whole team shared in the victory with a classy performance.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A recent item from Florida hit Toronto papers. Seems owner Jack Cooke of Toronto's baseballic Leafs ordered a Tely scribe out of the Leaf's training park down south. Quite a fuss was made about it, but apparently the truth is that Trent Frayne and his wife invited Cooke out to dinner and then needled him plenty for not paying writers in his Liberty magazine more for their stories. Frayne often writes pieces for Maclean's. So, baseball apparently had nothing to do with the squabble between the scribe and the club owner. Contrary to usual custom this time 'twas Cooke who was burned up.

With spring comes the annual Stanley Cup madness. N.H.L. schedule is o'er and now it's Toronto Leafs vs. Detroit Wings in one semi-final while Boston Bruins tackle Montreal Canadiens in the other. U.S.A. writers criticize the cup playoffs, pointing out that the team finishing atop the schedule is the league champion, and there should be no further fussin' and feudin' for some silverware. But Canadians like the Stanley Cup shenanigans, and the players are well paid for a few weeks of post-season labor. Fans must like the big games, too, as they fill the arenas for every tussle. Ducats are hard to get for these cup contests.

* * * * * *

Hope Wings Take Leafs

We'd like to see Bruins oust Canadiens in that set. Never have been a strong Montreal fan, for one thing, and we seem to have more of a Boston hookup here, anyway. George (Red) Sullivan, as Ashburnham boy, plays for the Bruins now, and Dit Clapper is a local merchant and one of the Bruins' directors—having starred with 'em for 20 years. Also, the junior "B" Oddfellows—have a tie-up with Boston so that Bruins get first call on any promising local material. In the other set, we like Wings over Maple Leafs.. Always have been a Detroit fan, and Wings' manager Jack Adams played a season here about 1917. A slim contact, true, but there it is. And we like Red Wings to capture the cup in the finals. How do you think it'll go?

* * * * * *

Three up and one to go—that's the Petes' cry today after their 14-5 drubbing of Kingston here last night. A big crowd was quite impressed at the class shown by Jim Ellis' hustlers as they swept easily to their third straight win. If they can wrap it up in the Limestone City tomorrow eve for group laurels, they'll prance right into O.H.A. senior "B" group semi-finals. Stouffville Clippers will be their next opponent, we're told. That's seven straight playoff wins, without a loss, since the Petes wound up their schedule well out in front. They may yet overtake that record Peterborough streak of 11 straight playoff wins when Legion went through to a senior "B" title three years ago.

* * * * * *

Petes Pennant Bound?

The way they've been going in recent weeks, we expect 'em to take it all this spring. After a so-so first frame last night, they got rolling and the striving K's couldn't come close. Lovely passing plays, fine finish in close, clean and speedy hockey all the way—and perfect harmony on the club. A tough combination for anyone to beat. A good mixture of veterans and youngsters, too, and a whole lot of puckists right in their prime now. They made Sonny MacDonald look no better than a senior "B" goalie, and one who was having a tough night of it. They're off for Kingston on the morrow and hoping to be group champions before 11 p.m. that evening.

MAURICE RICHARD tried everything to get a goal Saturday. Here he's shown putting his right foot out and getting it twirled all about. Left to right are Richard, Red Kelly, Sawchuk sprawled behind and that's elegant Elmer, who got two goals, standing guard at the goal post. Canadiens earned a 3-all tie to clinch the second slot in the NHL standings, and left the job of tackling the Detroit Red Wings in the semi-final to the Toronto Leafs.

SID ABEL and Leo Reise look grim and Terry Sawchuk seems to be playing traffic cop on this one. It was the tying goal by Elmer Lach on a passout from Dick Gamble. That's Gamble pressing his ear the woodwork, extreme right. The Habitant in the background, centre, is Floyd Curry, who also got an assist on the goal.

Robert Batley President Men's League

Petes Smear Kingston, 14-5 For Third In a Row Of Senior 'B' Group Playoffs

Humbling Kingston Sacs 14-5 here last night before nearly 1,700 fans, the Petes racked up their third straight win in as many starts of the best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" group finals of Central Ontario. The fourth game is listed for Kingston tomorrow and the fifth, if necessary, back here Friday. Series winner goes directly into provincial semi-finals. The Petes managed to lead only 1-0 in the first frame, but they rolled in the middle chukker for a 6-3 margin, and dominated play most of the 7-2 third stanza. Play was quite fast over most of the route and generally clean. The visitors drew five of the eight minor penalties, one being to Kingston for having too many players on the ice with a man in the penance pew.

Fine Showing

Jim Ellis' charges really roared in the final two periods to earn their win handily. They turned in a dazzling display of quick combination rushes and fine finish in around the enemy fort. Nearly every man was in on the scoring, and there were no individual stars over the complete distance. Everyone from Goalie Harding out played a sound game. The visitors fought hard and at times pressed on the attack but they were outplayed in the last two heats.

Leading goal-getters for the winners were Curly Mason and Fred Garvey with three apiece, Arn Dugan notching a pair and singles going to Junior West, Ted Collins, Don Floyd, George Steele, Drake Jopling and Jake Wade. High for assists was Floyd with four, Dugan helping on three, while two assists each were marked to Earl Leonard, Collins, Wade, Garvey, Red Robinson and West, as Gus Leonard and Mason passed for one each. For Kingston, Sammy Mulholland and Gabby White counted a pair apiece and Clint Tinkess one. Don Murray aided on a pair, with Joe Catlin, Junior Chevrifils and George McGregor getting an assist apiece.

Fairly Even Heat

Play was quite fast, clean and fairly even in the initial inning. Catlin tested Harding early and then a Floyd-Garvey rush threatened. Wade tore up fast but missed and Kingston almost counted one in the crease. West broke the goose-egg at eight minutes when he cuffed home Earl Leonard's rebound at the crease edge when the goalie was a trifle slow clearing. The K's drove for a space and their third line hemmed the Petes in for a solid minute, but they couldn't beat Harding. Jopling and Dugan teamed up for a good try and with Mason off for slashing, the visitors pressed but in vain.

Garvey got a quickie in close in the second from Floyd and Collins. The latter added one shortly from Wade and Garvey on a hot angle drive after Wade backhanded out a corner pass. Mulholland got that back on a fast solo from the side in close. Mason dented the hemp on a speedy close-in thrust with Dugan as play kept fast and became a bit rugged. Tinkess tipped in a forward pass on a play built up by Catlin and Chevrifils, but Mason evened that when he picked the short side, with Robinson and Dugan aiding, as the Petes pressed hard. Floyd added one on fine finish inside from Garvey. Collins and Aitken were gated for roughing and Mulholland followed for high-sticking. All were back when Dugan bashed home a rebound on a play by Mason and Robinson. Murray was robbed but came back to aid on a neat goal by White near the close, White using a delayed shot going in.

Piled It Up

Steele flipped a pass early in the third to West and took a nice return pass going in fast to hoist one high in the twine. Mulholland blazed through to equalize that on McGregor's pass shortly. Wade was back from a tripping penalty when Dugan's attempted passout went in off a Kingston defender. White tore in close to hit the mesh with Murray's pass, and then White got the nod for tripping. It cost three goals. Garvey slapped in one from Floyd from the side on a flip shot, and Jopling batted home another from Earl Leonard and Floyd as they ganged up hard. Wade took a passout on a play by Gus Leonard and West to whistle home a partly screened shot, and then White returned. Garvey added one more from close range as he and Floyd and Collins kept dipsy-doodling around the enemy defence. Larmer was over for tripping when Mason got the last goal on a neat in-close drive with Wade and Dugan. Tinkess was chased then when Kingston played too many men on the ice, but there was no further scoring.

Kingston: Goal, MacDonald; defence, Stewart and Sweetman, centre, Murray; wings, White and Aitken; alternates, McGregor, Mulholland, Larmer, Tinkess, Catlin, Chevrifils, Goodfellow, and Latimer.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and E. Leonard; centre, Robinson; wings, Dugan and Mason; alternates, Collins, Garvey, Floyd, Peters, Wade, G. Leonard, Steele and West.

Referees, A. Calhoun and J. Crombie.

Kentucky Oaks Has 63 Entries

LOUISVILLE, KY., March 25—(AP).—The historic Kentucky Oaks, often called "the derby for fillies," attracted 63 nominees today.

The Oaks, as old as the famed Kentucky Derby itself, will be run the 78th time on Friday, May 2, at Churchill Downs.

That's the day before the $100,000 Derby, for which 167 three-year-old colts, geldings and fillies have been nominated. The Oaks, at a mile and 1-16th, is for three-year-old fillies.

Among outstanding Oaks eligibles, announced by the Downs management today, are Rose Jet and Princess Lygia.

Most three-year-old fillies are pointed for the Oaks, mainly leaving the Derby for colts and geldings.

Only one filly, Regret, ever won a Derby, in 1915.

Rose Jet, owned by Main Chance Farm, was acclaimed the champion two-year-old filly of 1951. She won five of nine starts and earned $132,285.

Princess Lygia was nominated for the Oaks by movie man Louis B. Mayer, who purchased her from Mrs. Harry Trotsek last summer for a reported $125,000.
